2. BIP on the bus: The IEP required a copy of the BIP on the bus. The Director of Special Education was notified on September 30, 2025 that the bus driver only had electronic access and promptly provided a physical copy that same day. This allegation is substantiated between September 12, 2025 and September 30, 2025.
3. Bus data: The IEP did not mandate specific data collection on the Student's bus journeys. The Case Manager proactively created a Google Form for the bus aide to track behaviors as needed, which were provided to the necessary party. This allegation was not substantiated.
4. Food and water plan: The December 2024 IEP did not contain provisions for the Student's food and water intake. While an amendment addressing these issues was drafted on September 29, 2025, it was never signed by a Legal Education Decision Maker (LEDM) or implemented during the complaint period. This allegation was not substantiated.
5. Study carrel: The IEP mandated a study carrel/partition. The Case Manager confirmed the study carrel was neither practical nor safe in the School setting and was not consistently available. Regardless of the rationale for the lack of provision, this allegation is substantiated.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is partially substantiated* the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP during the period of September 12, 2025 to November 5, 2025.

Issue Two

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, reviewed and revised the Student's IEP when the Complainant provided documentation regarding medication to support the Student's behavior in school. K.A.R. 91-40-16 (a), K.A.R. 91-40-18(b); K.S.A. 72-3429 (B)(b)(1)(4)(B)(c)(4); 34 CFR § 300.324 (a)(6)(b)(1)(ii)(C)(D)(E).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16 (a), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-18(b) and 34 CFR § 300.324 (a)(6)(b)(1)(ii)(C)(D)(E), if an IEP team determines a child needs behavioral interventions and strategies, accommodations, assistive technology devices or services, or other program modifications for the child to receive a FAPE, the IEP team shall include those items in the child's IEP. Changes to the IEP may be made either by the entire IEP Team at an IEP Team meeting or by amending the IEP rather than by redrafting the entire IEP. Each public agency must ensure the IEP team revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address information about the child provided to, or by, the parents, the child's anticipated needs, or other matters. Upon request, a parent must be provided with a revised copy of the IEP with the amendments incorporated.

According to K.S.A. 34-72-3429 (b)(1)(4)(B)(c)(4), each IEP of an exceptional child and any amendment or modification of an IEP shall be made by the child's IEP team. Upon agreement of the parent and the agency, an IEP team can meet in person or by alternative means, including telephone conference calls and video conferences. If the parent and agency representative develop a written document amending or modifying a child's current IEP, the document shall be dated and signed by the parent and the agency representative. The parent and the agency shall be provided a copy of the document.

The Complainant alleged the LEA refused to accept updated medical information from the Student's pediatrician and used an "outdated form" to avoid providing required health services.

The LEA stated it did not refuse to consider the Complainant's medical documentation, which was provided just before the October 28, 2025 IEP meeting. The full implementation of the requested PRN medication was delayed until November 3, 2025 when the corrected authorization form and medication were received by the District. The Complainant's extensive requests for IEP changes, received shortly after the meeting, necessitated internal deliberation to draft an amendment. The District argued that the Complaint, filed only two days after the medication was received, during the amendment drafting process, did not constitute a failure to revise the IEP.

The LEA received the physician's note on October 27, 2025, followed immediately by an IEP meeting on October 28, 2025, which initiated the review process. Full implementation of the PRN medication occurred on November 3, 2025, after administrative delays related to receiving the correct forms and the medication. Following this implementation and incorporating the Complainant and Resource Parent's requests, the LEA began drafting the required IEP amendment. The Complainant filed the Complaint only two days later, during the active revision process. An amendment and PWN were drafted on November 19, 2025.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, i*t is not substantiated* the LEA failed to review and revise the Student's IEP after receiving medical documentation on October 27, 2025.

Issue Three

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Complainant with a PWN when there were changes to the Student's health plan needs that affected the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the Student, or the provision of a FAPE. K.A.R. 91-40-26 (a)(1)(2)(c)(3); 34 § CFR 300.503(a)(1)(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26 (a)(1)(2)(c)(3) and 34 § CFR 300.503(a)(1)(b), in providing any notice to the parent or parents of an exceptional child and amendments thereto regarding any action proposed or refused by an agency, each agency shall ensure the notice includes a description of other options the agency considered the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. Written notice must be given to the parents of a child with a disability a reasonable time before the public agency proposes to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a FAPE to the child.

The Complainant alleged the LEA failed to notify the Complainant when the Student was out of the PRN medication and destroyed the medication without informing them. The Complainant believed the LEA failed to administer the PRN medication "at the first sign of agitation" as defined by the physician on October 27, 2025, and refused to accept the updated order.

The LEA claimed the PRN medication information provided on October 27, 2025, pertained to health-plan procedures and did not impact the Student's special education identification, evaluation, placement, or related services.

No documentation exists in the 2025-26 nursing plan or medication authorization records indicating that the PRN medication was provided before October 27, 2025, or authorized before November 3, 2025. A PWN regarding the destruction of the previous medication and the cessation of the provision of the medication would only be necessary if the Student's health plan were incorporated into their IEP and the administration of this specific medication was required as a related service or accommodation essential for the Student to attend school and benefit from their education.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA failed to provide a PWN for the lack of medication and destruction thereof.

Issue Four

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied the Student access to a FAPE when they failed to provide the services and accommodations listed in the Student's IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-2 (a)(1)(2)(e); 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2 (a)(1)(2)(e), 34 CFR §§ 300.17, and 300.101, a FAPE must be available to all children residing in the State between the ages of 3 and 21, including children with disabilities who have been suspended or expelled from school. An IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Complainant alleged the Student's IEP and health plan were not followed, and the Student lost access to their education due to seclusions and restraints.

According to the LEA, all supports, including behavior intervention strategies, related services, and modifications, were implemented consistently and without interruption as required by the IEP.

The Supreme Court in Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District (2017) clarified that a child's IEP must be "reasonably calculated to enable a child to make progress appropriate in light of the child's circumstances." Crucial to achieving this progress is the faithful implementation of the IEP's core components. The LEA's failure to implement the study carrel/partition and the initial absence of the Student's BIP on the bus resulted in material omissions that undermined the Student's right to a FAPE. The study carrel/partition was a mandated program modification intended to manage the Student's sensory needs and behaviors by reducing visual distraction, a functional area where the Student required support. The LEA's unilateral determination that this measure was impractical or unsafe in the School setting, without a team meeting and proper amendment, constituted a material failure of implementation. This failure deprived the Student of the necessary environment to access their education as calculated by the IEP team, thereby impeding their ability to make progress appropriate to their circumstances, as required by the Endrew F. standard. The initial failure to have a physical copy of the BIP on the bus similarly represented a material failure. Given the Student's severe behavioral needs, the BIP and its reactive strategies were a critical safety and de-escalation protocol, especially during high-risk transitions like bussing.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is substantiated the LEA denied the Student a FAPE from September 12, 2025 to November 5, 2025.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. A violation occurred in the following area:

A. Federal regulations at 34 CFR § 300.323 (a)(c)(1)(2)(d)(1)(2) and K.A.R. 91-40-16 (b)(2)(3)(4)(5) specify the implementation of a student's IEP.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #437 did not implement the Student's IEP, including the accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided. Materials and interviews document this.

B. B. Federal regulations at 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101 and K.A.R. 91-40-2 (a)(1)(2)(e) specify a FAPE must be available to all eligible children with disabilities.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #437 did not implement parts of the Student's IEP, which resulted in a denial of a FAPE from September 12, 2025 to November 5, 2025.

Based on the foregoing, USD #437 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 15 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #437 shall submit a written statement of assurance to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) stating that it will comply with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) at 34 CFR § 300.323 (a)(c)(1)(2)(d)(1)(2) and K.A.R. 91-40-16 (b)(2)(3)(4)(5) by implementing the Student's IEP, including all noted accommodations, modifications, and supports to ensure the Student's access to a FAPE.

Issues

In her complaint, the parent identified two concerns. The first concern focused on student 1 and the second concern focused on student 2. The investigator discussed both concerns with the parent during a telephone call on November 28, 2025. The parent determined that she would withdraw the first concern specified in her written complaint - issues related to student 1. That decision was confirmed in an email from the parent to the investigator dated December 1, 2025.

The parent wrote:

> "...I do not wish for the state to expend resources to pursue the events last year of which my son [student 1] did not receive pull out for testing and para support on multiple occasions in a week or so time span. This happened last year and he was able to pass the courses. I wanted it on record and I was glad to have brought these concerns up with [the district] admin again on record at the IEP mtg for [student 2] on Nov 24th that started with complaint form issues."

This investigation, therefore, addressed the three issues related to student 2 which were specified under Concern 2 in the parent's written complaint and one additional issue raised by the parent during the telephone call with the investigator.

A formal complaint must allege that a violation of special education laws or regulations has occurred within the 12-month period prior to the date the complaint is received and filed by the commissioner of education (K.A.R. 91-40-51(a) and (b)). In her written complaint the parent raised issues that are not covered by special education laws or regulations. Specifically, the parent objected to what she felt was an intimidating telephone call which she says she received from the president of the Board of Education for the district directing her to stay away from the school. She also objected to the manner in which information about student 2 was presented during an IEP team meeting with the student present. Neither of these issues were investigated since neither would be deemed a violation of special education laws and therefore fall outside of the authority of the investigator.

Background

These concerns involve a 15-year-old boy who is enrolled in the 10th grade in his local high school. At the time of his most recent reevaluation in October 2024, the student was determined to be eligible for special education support under the categorical designation of Specific Learning Disability in the areas of reading (basic reading, reading fluency, and reading comprehension), written expression, and math problem solving and calculation. The student has received special education services from the LEA since preschool.

In a telephone call with the investigator on November 28, 2025, the parent stated that she was exploring options to enroll the student in a virtual school for the second semester of the 2025-26 school year.

Issue One

Failure to provide student 2 with accommodations/modifications specified in his IEP(s)

Position of the Complainant

The parent reports that on Au-----t 18, 2025 she was told by student 2's "Ag teacher" (Animal Science class) that the teacher did not know what an IEP was and was unaware that student 2 had an IEP. It is the position of the parent that the student has not been afforded the accommodations/modifications specified in his IEPs.

The parent also asserts that a paraeducator was not available to support student 2 in his Driver's Education class.

Position of the LEA

The LEA asserts that the teachers of student 2 have been trained on the requirements of the IEPs in place for the student over the 12-months prior to the date of this complaint. The LEA further contends that student 2 has been afforded the accommodations/modifications specified in those documents.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

Once an IEP has been completed and consent for services has been obtained from the parents, the child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related services provider, and any other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Regardless of whether an individual participates in the IEP meeting, all individuals who are providing education to the child (regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and any other service provider who is responsible for implementation of the IEP) must be informed by the IEP team of

1. his or her specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and
2. the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP (K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(5); 34 C.F.R. 300.323(d)(2)).

Investigative Findings

The "Special Education Services" section of student 2's October 16, 2024 IEP contained the following statements:

> "Beginning 10/16/24, [student 2] will be provided Direct Special Education Services in the Special Education classroom (location) 5 days a week (frequency) for 135 minutes per day (Duration) for ELS, math and study skills.
> Beginning 10/16/2024, [student 2] will be provided Direct Special Education services in the General Education classroom (location) 5 days a week (frequency) for 45 minutes per day (Duration) for Science.

For the 2025-26 school year, the October 2024 IEP for student 2 outlined service changes. According to a prior written notice form dated October 14, 2024, the student would be placed in a special education setting for Science because > "most science textbooks are written above the level they are intended for so a 10 grade level science text will be at the 11th grade + reading level. [Student 2] is at a frustration level in a 4th grade level passage and a 10th grade level science book will not be something he can comprehend even with support."

The October 14, 2024 prior written notice form also stated that the student would begin to receive special education support in a general education setting for World History because

> "As a 9th grader [the student] does not have a history class, [but] as a 10th grader he will be receiving special education support [in the general education setting] when he takes world history."
> The team talked about how [student 2] is very confused in science at this point and decided that with the support he can make it through the freshman 9th grade year. As a team we rejected the idea of removing him at this point as he is passing and learning with special education support, accommodations and modifications (including notes support, modified scope, modified worksheets, modified tests, open note/book tests and reduced workload in the class).

The "Accommodations and Modifications" section of the student's October 16, 2024 IEP contained the following statements:

> "Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when given an assessment (frequency) in a general education (location) (sic), [student 2] will be provided a separate, quiet or individual setting for the length of each individualized testing session (duration).
> Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when [student 2] is given an assignment, quiz, test, and/or assessment (frequency) across all education settings (location)...[the student] will use TTS to access the information until the assignment, quiz, test, and/or assessment has been completed in its entirety (duration). This should be computerized when possible to make him more independent but can be read aloud by a human reader if TTS is not possible.
> Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when given an assessment, assignment, or project (frequency) in a general education (location), [student 2] will be provided (frequency) (sic) he will be given the directions in a variety of ways (verbal, written, etc.) and the directions will be broken down into steps, using visual supports, when available, until the assignment, quiz, activity or assessment has been completed in its entirety (duration).
> Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when expected to take notes (frequency) in a general education setting (location) (sic), the scope and sequence will be modified for the entire length of the assignment or project (duration) to match his notes and prepare him for his assessment.

Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when given an assessment or quiz (frequency) in a general education (location), [student 2] will be allowed to use his notes or his book to answer the questions until he completes the assessment or quiz (duration).

Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when given an assessment (frequency) in a general education (location) (sic), [student 2] will be provided a modified assessment (Shorten, only most important parts, wordbank, limited matching to 10 words per section, and reduce multiple choices to 3 options) for the length of each individualized testing session (duration).

Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when [student 2] is given a writing task (frequency) across all educational settings (location), [the student] will be allowed up to 15 extra minutes to complete the writing task (duration).

Beginning 10/16/24 through 10/15/25, when given an assessment (frequency) in a general education (location) (sic), [student 2] will be provided a separate, quiet or individual setting for the length of each individualized testing session (duration)."

According to the LEA, the general education teachers for student 2 were on Au-----t 11, 2025 sent digital copies of the "At a Glance IEP" for the student which outlined his accommodations and modifications. On Au-----t 13, 2025, the special education teacher met with these general education teachers to discuss IEPs for this student and others. Additionally, the district maintains an internal link where teachers can access IEP information.

The parent sent a text message to student 2's general education Animal Science teacher on Au-----t 21, 2025 offering to come to the school to talk about "IEPs for students." Having received no offer of a time for that conversation by Au-----t 28, 2025, the parent texted student 2's special education teacher who replied that the Animal Science teacher "had the iep stuff all along. She just knows she can't talk confidential information with you..."

In a telephone conference call on December 11, 2025, the student's ELA, Animal Science, and World History teachers confirmed to the investigator that they had been provided with information regarding the IEP for student 2 at the beginning of the 2025-26 school year, shared examples of how they had worked with the special education teacher to modify coursework for the student, and explained how they were able to access the student's IEP.

The Animal Science teacher is new to the teaching profession and to IEPs, but during the telephone call of December 11, 2025, she provided the investigator with multiple examples of how she has worked with the special education teacher to implement a variety of modifications to help the student succeed in her classroom.

During the December 11, 2025 telephone conference call, the World History and ELA teachers also told the investigator how they had worked with the special education teacher for student 2 to design modifications for the student.

Examples of the implementation of accommodations/modifications for student 2 were provided to the investigator in written form for the student's Mechanical, Electrical, Plumbing (MEP) class, ELA, Geometry, Animal Science, and World History classes.

The annual review of the student's IEP was conducted on October 14, 2025. The IEP team determined that student 2 would need 144 minutes per day of special education service 5 days per week in a special education setting for math, study skills, and science. According to student 2's IEP, he would receive 45 minutes per day of special education services 5 days per week in the general education setting for ELA and 90 minutes of special education services in the general education setting every other day for history.

According to the "Accommodations/Modifications" section of student 2's October 14, 2025 IEP, he would be afforded the following accommodations in the general education setting:

- pull-out setting for tests;
- modified assignments and assessments to his abilities;
- cloze notes provided prior to lesson to keep student 2 engaged;
- permission to use open note and book for tests;
- frequent checks for understanding;
- text to speech and speech to text; and
- chunking of projects and large assignments.

An additional hand-written accommodation ("50% on timed tests") was added at the bottom of the section.

The parent was given prior written notice of the LEA's proposed changes in special education services for the student and gave her written consent for the implementation of those changes on October 14, 2025. The parent was not provided with notice of changes to the accommodations/modifications that would be provided to the student.

On November 25, 2025, the IEP for student 2 was amended. The parent provided written consent for the amendment.

The amendments to the accommodations/modifications of student 2's IEP included:

- noting that prior to lesson presentation, student 2 would be provided with cloze notes that were modified to include only the information the student would be tested on;
- formalizing the inclusion of an accommodation allowing 50% more time on all timed tests; and
- provision of preferential seating near the instructor and away from environmental distractions.

The amendment also noted that student 2's class schedule would be modified, dropping a Yearbook class and designating the student as a teacher's aide during that block.

The parent was provided with prior written notice of these changes and gave her written consent for their implementation.

During the telephone call of December 11, 2025 discussed above, the World History, ELA, and Animal Science teachers told the investigator that they had been informed of changes to the student's IEP made through both the annual review process and through the IEP amendment.

Neither the October 16, 2024 IEP for student 2, nor his October 14, 2025 IEP, nor the subsequent November 2025 amendment require special education support for the student in his Driver's Education class. According to the LEA, a district paraeducator had been employed to transport students from this district to a neighboring district for the class. That individual had at times acted as a monitor in the classroom when students were being tested but was not providing special education services to the students.

Summary and Conclusions

Ample evidence was provided by the LEA to show that the general education teachers for student 2 have been informed of their responsibilities with regard to the implementation of the accommodations and modifications specified in the student's IEPs over the past 12 months. Physical examples of modifications were provided, and the student's ELA, Animal Science, and World History teachers spoke at length about how they had worked with the special education teacher to provide the supports the student needed. A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this aspect of this issue.

Additionally, there is no requirement that the student be provided with special education support by a paraeducator for his Driver's Education class in any IEP for the student that has been in effect during the 12-month period prior to the filing of this complaint. A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this aspect of this issue.

Issue Two

Inadequate Notice Regarding Participants in an IEP Team Meeting

Position of the Complainant

During her telephone conversation with the investigator on November 28, 2025, the parent stated that the LEA had not consistently provided her with 10-day notice of IEP team meetings regarding student 2.

Position of the LEA

The LEA denies this allegation and asserts that the parent has been given proper notice of the three IEP team meetings regarding student 2 that have been conducted during the 2024-25 and 2025-26 school years.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

To address the requirement to strengthen the role of parents in the special education process, Congress mandated that schools afford parents the opportunity to be members of any decision-making team for their child, including eligibility, initial evaluation and reevaluation, and development of an individualized education program (IEP) for the provision of a free appropriate public education (FAPE). Schools are to ensure that parents have the opportunity to be members of the IEP team that makes decisions on the educational placement of their child (K.A.R. 91-40-17).

Parents are to be provided with written notice of an IEP meeting regarding their child at least 10 days in advance of the meeting (K.A.R. 91-40-17(b)(2)), but may waive their right to 10-days prior notice in order to expedite the scheduling of a mutually agreed upon IEP team meeting.

Investigative Findings

The triennial review of student's IEP was conducted during the 2024-25 school year. The parent was, on September 11, 2024, emailed notice of the proposed October 16, 2024 meeting for the purpose of reviewing the results of the required reevaluation and conducting an annual review of the student's IEP.

The LEA has convened two IEP team meetings regarding student 2 between the start of the 2025-26 school year and November 24, 2025. The first of these meetings was held on October 14, 2025, and the second on November 24, 2025.

The October 14, 2025 meeting had originally been scheduled for earlier in October 2025. However, on September 15, 2025, the special education teacher for student 2 sent an email to the parent asking:

> "Can we move [student 2's] IEP to October 13 or 14th so he can get 3 full weeks of the trial in ELA and Geometry?"

The parent agreed to the change in the date of the meeting.

Notice of the October 14, 2025 IEP team meeting was sent to the parent via the student on September 16, 2025. On that same date, the parent signed the form indicating that she planned to attend the meeting.

Shortly after the October 14, 2025 annual IEP review meeting, the parent raised concerns regarding the content of the document and asked for another IEP team meeting. In an email to the parent dated November 15, 2025, student 2's special education teacher proposed that an IEP team meeting requested by the parent be conducted on November 25, 2025 at 2:00 PM. However, extenuating circumstances surrounding educational records led to the meeting being rescheduled to November 24, 2025.

The parent had signed a notice of the proposed November 25, 2025 meeting on November 17, 2025. On November 18, 2025, the parent was at the school to pick the student up for an appointment. According to the special education teacher, she explained to the parent that the meeting would have to be moved to the morning of November 24, 2025. The special education teacher had not yet developed a revised notice of meeting form. The special education coordinator states that in a phone call on November 18, 2025, she confirmed with the parent that the IEP meeting would be held on November 24, 2025 at 9:30 AM.

The parent contends that it was only when she received a text from the special education teacher at 8:00 AM on November 24, 2025, that she learned of the time of the upcoming meeting at 9:30 AM. The parent states that she changed her plans for the morning and went to the meeting as scheduled. At the meeting, the parent signed the notice of meeting form indicating that she agreed to waive her right to 10-day prior written notice of the meeting.

Summary and Conclusions

The parent was provided with more than 10-day prior notice of IEP team meetings held on October 16, 2024 and October 14, 2025. While she was not afforded 10-day prior notice of the IEP team meeting held on November 24, 2025, the parent waived her right to that notice at the time of the meeting. Under these circumstances, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Three

Failure to Inform the Parents of the Attendees at a Meeting

Position of the Complainant

The parent asserts that she had not been informed that the student's former third grade teacher would be attending a meeting regarding student 2.

Position of the LEA

The LEA acknowledges that the former third grade teacher for student 2 did attend a meeting regarding the student but contends that this was not an IEP team meeting which required that the parent be informed of who would be in attendance on behalf of the LEA.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Written notice of an IEP Team meeting must indicate - among other things - the titles or positions of the persons who will attend the meeting on behalf of the school. The school may elect to identify participants by name, but the LEA is under no obligation to do so and may refer to a participant by title only (K.A.R. 91-40-17(b)(1)).

Investigative Findings

On September 9, 2025, the parent sent an email to the building principal writing:

> "...I'm requesting to come up and review [student 2's] IEP and the modifications he's receiving. [I] would like to see the work he's had modified thus far. I'd also like to set up a convenient time to observe in all his classes with new teachers..."

The building principal responded on September 9, 2025, writing:

> "I sent you another email in regards to a meeting about [student 2] and his IEP/modifications...Let's meet with the teachers and go from there about visiting the classroom. You and I can discuss this more on Thursday [September 11, 2025] if you'd like. It looks like [there are only two] 'new teachers'. We can include [the student's World History teacher] as well if you'd like since he will be here Thursday."

On September 11, 2025, the parents met with the building principal, the student's special education teacher, the student's World History teacher, and the student's Animal Science teacher for what was described by the parent and the LEA as a "planning meeting." Also in attendance at that meeting was a third grade teacher from the district who is the designated "mentor teacher" for the student's Animal Science teacher who is new to the teaching profession and asked her mentor to attend as support.

Summary and Conclusions

While special education statutes and regulations establish a number of notice requirements related to IEP team meetings, not every meeting of parents and school staff held to discuss a student's needs is an IEP team meeting. Special education laws do not require districts to provide the parent with prior notice of who will be attending every meeting – though it might well be considered courteous to do so.

The meeting of September 11, 2025 was not intended to be an IEP team meeting but rather an opportunity to provide the parents with information regarding how new teachers were addressing his need for curricular modifications. During the meeting, the Animal Science teacher shared with the parents how the student's classwork and assessments had been modified and how future assignments would be adjusted as well.

While in the opinion of the investigator the parent should have been afforded the opportunity to ask that the mentor be excused, the district's failure to alert the parent to the fact that the mentor would be present for this discussion is not a violation of special education laws. A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Additional Comments

At the meeting described above, the parent told the school staff that the student wanted to return to all of his general education classes. In preparation for the upcoming annual IEP review, a plan was developed to allow the student to attend general education ELA and math classes for 3 weeks. Data would be taken on how the student performed in those settings with unmodified requirements. That data would then be used to make decisions regarding the student's educational placement during the upcoming IEP year.

Special education statutes and regulations require an LEA to obtain the written consent of the parent before making a substantial change to the educational placement (more than 25% of the school day) of a student or a material change in services (25% or more of the frequency or duration of any one service) (K.A.R. 91-40-27(a)(3)). In this case, the decision was made to have the student return to the general education classroom for his math and ELA instruction for a three-week period prior to his upcoming annual IEP review. The student's instruction in these courses was at that time being provided in a special education setting per his October 16, 2024 IEP.

In an email to the parent dated September 16, 2025, the special education teacher outlined the plan:

> "Proposed changes:
>
> Math in class for lecture (2/3) pulled to work on the assignment (1/3). Modified scope and sequence. Lower level work based on his level of understanding but still on the same topic and concepts.
> ELA Modified writing to 1/3 of peers writing, modified assignments to his levels, modified assessments.
>
> Accommodations for both:
> - Calculator
> - notes provided before lesson so he can follow
> - pull-out testing
> - Modified assignments and assessments
> - read-aloud
> - open-note and open book for assessments
> - Wordbank (max 10 per section)
> - Reduced options on multiple choice to 3
> We will let [student 2] try this for 3 full weeks and push the IEP back. If at any time he wants to stop the trial we can stop and go back to the pull-out setting. If it goes well and he is making progress we will move forward with the possible changes in setting on the IEP."

By changing the student's placement for these two courses from the special education setting to the general education setting, the LEA made a substantial change in placement for the student and a material change in services. The parent was not provided prior written notice of that proposed action, she did not provide her written consent for that change, and the student's IEP was not amended. She did, however, respond to the special education teacher's email writing:

> "Looks good to me."

The parent did not contest the implementation of this 3-week trial period in her complaint (though she objected to the manner in which data collected during the trial period was shared with the student). Therefore, the investigator has opted not to identify a violation related to these facts. However, the LEA is advised that making a substantial change in the placement of a student or a material change in services – even for a short period of time and even when done with good intent – could result in a finding.

Issue Four

Failure to Timely Respond to the Parent's Request for an IEP Team Meeting

Position of the Complainant

It is the position of the parent that the LEA did not promptly respond to her September 9, 2025 telephone and email requests for an IEP team meeting to discuss the needs of student 2 and her request to observe the student in some of his classrooms. The parent also asserts that the LEA did not timely convene a second IEP team meeting to address her continued concerns regarding the student's October 14, 2025 IEP.

Position of the LEA

The LEA contends that it responded in a timely manner to the parent's concerns.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

In a January 8, 2002 letter to state special education directors, guidance was provided by the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) regarding what would be considered a "reasonable time" for a district to respond to a parent's request regarding such special education actions as evaluation or the provision of a free appropriate public education (FAPE). That guidance – which is generally applied to any request from a parent – established "15 school days" as a "reasonable time" in which to respond "unless there is some unusual circumstance."

Investigative Findings

On September 9, 2025, the parent sent an email to the building principal writing:

> "...I'm requesting to come up and review [student 2's] IEP and the modifications he's receiving. [I] would like to see the work he's had modified thus far. I'd also like to set up a convenient time to observe in all his classes with new teachers..."

The building principal responded on September 9, 2025, writing:

> "I sent you another email in regards to a meeting about [student 2] and his IEP/modifications...Let's meet with the teachers and go from there about visiting the classroom. You and I can discuss this more on Thursday [September 11, 2025] if you'd like. It looks like [there are only two] 'new teachers'. We can include [the student's World History teacher] as well if you'd like since he will be here Thursday."

A meeting was held on September 11, 2025. As noted above under Issue Three, both parties described that discussion as a "planning meeting" where participants addressed the modifications being provided in two of his general education classrooms.

At the time of the planning meeting, an annual IEP review meeting for the student had already been scheduled for early October 2025. Because the decision had been made to implement a 3-week trial period of general education instruction for the student, the LEA proposed that the annual review be rescheduled for October 14 to allow for that 3-week trial.

The parent also states that, during a telephone call with the principal on November 12, 2025, she asked for another IEP meeting to discuss the provision of accommodations/modifications for student 2. The student's special education teacher sent the parent an email on November 13, 2025 proposing a meeting for November 25, 2025. That meeting was ultimately held on November 24, 2025.

Summary and Conclusions

The parent received a written response to her September 9, 2025 request to observe the student and discuss his coursework modifications on the day her request was made. A meeting to discuss the parent's concerns was held within 2 school days.

After receiving a request for an IEP team meeting from the parent on November 12, 2025, the LEA responded the following day, and an IEP team meeting was scheduled for November 25, 2025 – 9 school days later. That meeting was ultimately held on November 24, 2025 – 8 school days after the parent's request.

Because the LEA responded in a timely manner to these parent requests, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has not substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations on issues presented in this complaint. Therefore, no corrective actions are required.

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #437
ON OCTOBER 21, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 8, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, --------, by their guardian, --------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the guardian as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #437, Auburn/Washburn Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #437.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on October 21, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on November 20, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), implemented a unilateral restricted communication plan without providing the Parent with a Prior Written Notice (PWN). K.A.R. 91-40-26; 34 CFR § 300.503.

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, imposed a communication restriction that denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in Individualized Education Program (IEP) implementation and educational decision-making. ISSUE THREE: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, blocked communication necessary for coordination of services and access to the IEP team, thereby denying the Student a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE). K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 § C.F.R. 300.101, 34 C.F.R. § 300.17.

Background Information

This investigation involved a high school-aged student enrolled at Washburn Rural High School in USD #437. The Student was receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability under the categories of Autism and Intellectual Disability per the IDEA. The Student is very observant and enjoys building relationships with staff. The Student requires an Augmentative Alternative Communication (AAC) device for communication. The child lives at home with their foster parents.

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On December 16, 2024, an annual IEP meeting was held. The Parent participated in the meeting. The Student's goal areas were identified as mathematics, functional reading, communication, following directions, emotional regulation, social skills, spelling, daily living skills, and personal hygiene skills. Related services included adaptive P.E., speech and language, occupational therapy (OT), and transportation. Accommodations listed behavioral supports, visual schedules, a behavior support plan, use of an AAC device, sensory breaks, and supervision for safety.
2. On June 4, 2025, a PWN was issued indicating the LEA's proposal to conduct a reevaluation specifically for a Functional Behavior Assessment (FBA), using existing observations, records, and doctors' notes. The Parent provided consent for the evaluation on June 6, 2025.
3. On September 29, 2025, the LEA issued a PWN documenting the IEP team met to review the Student's evaluation and assessment data. The notice stated the LEA would not complete an FBA and would instead develop a "comprehensive IEP fidelity and support system" plan.
4. On September 29, 2025, the LEA issued an IEP Amendment Between Meetings to update accommodations, including support during meals and academic accommodations.
5. On October 14, 2025, the Attorney for the LEA notified the Parent of the plan to have all communication sent to the Director of Secondary Special Services, except for direct communication with the School Psychologist. The LEA stated the reason for the plan was due to "frequent intimidating, aggressive, threatening, and abusive" communications from the Parent. They indicated the Parent threatened staff with reporting them to the "district and beyond" if they didn't "comply with [the Parent's] demands." The LEA stated the plan was a "reasonable and necessary" response to protect staff, "maintain confidentiality, and provide clear communication channels." According to the LEA, the communication plan did not change the Student's "identification, evaluation, placement, or the provision of FAPE", so a PWN was not issued. The LEA further described the plan as "not restrict[ing]" the Parent's participation in the IEP process because the Parent was able to receive "all required notices, progress reports, and invitations to meetings" and maintained their ability to request a meeting or propose revisions.
6. According to the Parent's documentation, they discovered a communication restriction was in place on October 14, 2025, when they visited the School to coordinate a medical appointment for another child residing in their home. The Parent noted on the same date, their attorney formally notified the LEA's legal counsel of the Parent's lack of consent to any "unilateral communication restriction plan" for the Student. The Parent also noted they submitted their own written documentation confirming their dissent on October 18, 2025, and claimed they were not provided procedural safeguards, or any PWN explaining the LEA's decision or rationale for the restricted communication plan.

7. According to a communication log, the following communications occurred from October 14, 2025 through October 20, 2025 between the Parent and the LEA regarding the Student:
    a. The Attorney for the LEA contacted the Parent Advisor to inform them of the communication plan.
    b. The Director of Secondary Special Services emailed a draft amendment and PWN to the Parent for review.
    c. The Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the Parent quarterly progress reports. The Director of Secondary Special Services sent an additional email notifying the Parent of the Director of Secondary Special Services' upcoming absence and providing an alternative contact.
    d. The Parent emailed "multiple staff" to state disagreement with the communication plan.
    e. The Attorney for the LEA emailed the Parent Advisor to clarify the communication plan would remain in place.
8. On October 15, 2025, the Parent Advisor emailed the Attorney for the LEA and indicated the Parent preferred to work through the Parent Advisor to schedule the IEP team meeting. The Parent Advisor indicated the Parent requested their attendance at the meeting.
   The Parent Advisor stated the Parent expressed "significant concerns" about communicating through only one LEA contact. The Parent commented they did not feel the Former Case Manager was adequately informed of the Student's specific special education needs and indicated they required an "open line of communication" with the Student's IEP team. The Parent Advisor indicated the Parent had the right to participate as a "full member of the IEP team," which required "direct and open communications with key staff."
   The Attorney for the LEA emailed the Parent Advisor to state they preferred the Parent to schedule the meeting directly with the Director of Secondary Special Services to avoid delays caused by using a "middleman." The Attorney for the LEA confirmed the Parent could continue to communicate with the School Psychologist.
9. On October 16, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the Parent a copy of the PWN related to an IEP amendment and the amended IEP, October 16, 2025.
10. On October 17, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the Parent a copy of the Student's first-quarter progress reports. They sent an additional email to the Parent stating they would be out of the office and provided the name and contact information for the substitute point of contact.
11. On October 18, 2025, the Parent emailed the Director of Secondary Special Services and seven additional staff, including the Former Case Manager, expressing their disagreement with the "communication restriction" and indicated it was "inappropriate, unreasonable, and unlawful." Additionally, the Parent described the communication restriction constituted retaliation as it blocked communication and isolated the Parent from the IEP team. The Parent stated if the directive was not "immediately rescinded," they would file additional complaints with the KSDE.

12. On October 20, 2025, the Attorney for the LEA emailed the Director of Secondary Special Services and the Director of Elementary Special Services to state they spoke with the Parent Advisor and the communication plan would "remain in place" at that time.
13. On October 21, 2025, the Parent emailed the Executive Director of Learning Services and the Assistant Principal to request the LEA "immediately preserve" all educational documents and related records for the Student. They specified they wanted all investigation materials, including "any redacted or unredacted documents," preserved and added the LEA was on "formal notice" of its obligation to preserve evidence. They stated they requested all parties included in the email respond with their understanding of who the "individual designated as custodian of these records" was. The Parent added they felt the Director of Secondary Special Services had interfered with the Parent's ability to access educational records and related material.
14. On October 22, 2025, an audio-recorded IEP team meeting with the Parent and school staff recorded the Parent screaming at staff using expletives. The meeting was held via video conference for the Student's sibling. Prior to the Parent's outburst, the team had been getting the Parent access to the Student's sibling's current IEP. While the team was waiting for the Parent to receive the emailed IEP, a classroom teacher stated they needed to check on something with their class and would be back in a couple of minutes.

    The Parent stated, "I just proved there was a God. I'm going to Hawaii." The Director of Elementary Special Services and the Associate Principal asked, "What?" The Parent screamed, "I just fucking proved there was a God! I'm going to Hawaii!" The Associate Principal asked the Parent if they were ok. The Parent yelled, "No. Are you okay?". When the Associate Principal started to speak to the Parent, they were interrupted by the Parent yelling, "You mother fuckers!" The Director of Elementary Special Services stated, "We're going to go ahead and hang up right now." The Parent yelled, "No, you're going to hell. You're fucking going to hell!" The Parent continued to yell expletives at the staff until they were all able to leave the virtual meeting. The Associate Principal told the Parent they would try to reconnect with them at a later time.
15. On October 28, 2025, the Assistant Principal documented the impact of the Parent's treatment of staff through observations, which indicated:
    a. The Former Case Manager stated they felt overwhelmed by constant emails, unable to keep up with the Parent's request, and the Parent did not believe the Former Case Manager. They added the Parent's request for "constant confirmation and documentation" about the Student's day.

b. The Teacher stated they were verbally assaulted in an IEP meeting. They stated the Parent sent "constant" emails and did not believe the Teacher when they reported incidents. The Teacher stated the Parent was "rude and dismissive" in emails.
c. The Current Case Manager stated they "fundamentally disagreed" with parts of the IEP the Parent requested. They added the Parent was rude and dismissive toward them. They stated they were verbally assaulted during an IEP meeting.
d. The Food Services Manager stated they were frustrated the Parent never completed the school paperwork for meal plans. They added the Parent "sends doctor's notes and expects it to be followed." They added the Parent was "always critical" of food choices.
e. The Associate Principal detailed being verbally assaulted during an IEP meeting. They added they did not feel the Parent should be the Student's advocate.

16. In an undated statement from the Former Case Manager, they documented the following experiences with the Parent that led to the request for a communication plan.
    a. The Parent's emails, beginning at the start of the 2025-26 school year, demonstrated "citing regulations" and referencing "non-compliance" and a change in tone to "directing, accusing, and threatening."
    b. The Former Case Manager received 25 emails from the Parent within the first 13 days of school, with "strongly worded or demanding" content.
    c. The Parent threatened to take action with KSDE and file complaints against the Former Case Manager.
    d. The Parent claimed they had access to information from the complaint responses, giving them a "one-up" position.
    e. The Former Case Manager felt they needed to monitor emails "constantly" and respond "immediately" out of fear of "escalation or complaints to the LEA."
    f. Staff recalled reluctance to communicate with the Parent due to feeling "heightened anxiety" and a "fear of being named in a complaint."
    g. The Former Case Manager noted reduced time for collaboration due to increased time "managing and debriefing" accusations among staff.

    The Former Case Manager requested "concrete support" to protect staff and allow them to do their jobs, including a communication protocol, facilitated meetings, staff protection, and boundary/confidentiality reminders. They added the patterns they described were "sustained and harmful" to their well-being, staff morale, and their ability to function "confidently and efficiently."

17. An undated document listed the times the Parent interacted with staff, virtually, in person, or by phone during the 2025-26 school year.
    a. September 2, 2025, with the School Psychologist for one hour virtually.
    b. September 10, 2025, with the School Psychologist for one hour virtually.

c. September 25, 2025, with the School Psychologist for one hour virtually.
d. September 29, 2025, with the School Psychologist, the Assistant Principal, and the Current Case Manager for one hour in person.
e. October 16, 2025, with the School Psychologist for one hour virtually.

The document described the Parent's emails as "increasingly adversarial and unconstructive." The document confirmed "several staff members" had reported the communications were "harsh and accusatory," which made it difficult for "direct engagement." It added no "direct physical threats" were made, and clarified the result of the tone and frequency of the Parent's emails led staff to request all communication be routed through administration for "safety, professionalism, and efficiency."

18. According to the Student's Daily Schedule, which was sent home to the Parent, the team listed the foods the Student ate for breakfast and lunch in detail. In addition, the schedule included detailed descriptions of the activities the Student participated in during each class period. It included when the Student went for walks and took a bathroom break, as well as the specific activity/topic for each class period.
No incidents were documented from August 13, 2025, to November 14, 2025. The data recorded on the daily schedule remained consistent throughout the school year, including after the communication plan was implemented.

Parent Interview

19. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent described their role with the Student as "parent representative."
20. The Parent stated they learned about a restrictive communication plan with the School when they came to pick up the Student's sibling for a medical appointment on October 14, 2025. They stated the office staff was unable to use the intercom to call the Student down due to statewide testing and were told to call the Current Case Manager directly. The Parent indicated they left a voicemail on the Teacher's phone and followed up with an email. They stated they did not hear back and had to wait in the office until the end of that class period. The Parent recounted they were "almost late" for the appointment. The Parent recalled the Teacher never called them back and stated they realized the School had put a restriction on them and they'd extended it to a "second one of [their] students."
The Parent stated the office secretary did not mention the communication plan to them when they came to pick up their student. The Parent stated she did not think the secretary knew about the plan.
21. The Parent stated the Attorney for the LEA had emailed the Parent Advisor on October 13, 2025, notifying the Parent that all correspondence from the Parent would be channeled through the Director of Secondary Special Services as the "point of contact." The Parent stated the Complaint Advisor emailed them back to say they disagreed with the plan and it was a "violation of my parental safeguards." They added the plan also included "safety, wellness, and health," which limited the Parent's ability to "coordinate doctors' appointments or any type of health and safety things," which had nothing to do with an IEP. They added, "They blocked me from everything."

22. The Parent shared the communication plan was never explained to them in person, adding it was given to the Complaint Advisor. They stated the Complaint Advisor showed them the email and explained the plan's conditions to the Parent. The Parent expressed they felt it was "retaliatory" because they had filed complaints and hired an attorney.
    The Parent stated the Parent Advisor emailed the LEA to state they disagreed with the plan, and the LEA replied, they would be continuing the plan because their client was "abusive.
23. The Parent shared their understanding of the plan, which indicated they were to send any questions about the IEP or issues related to the Student's health, safety, or wellness to the Director of Secondary Special Services, who "was in control of it." They added if they emailed the teachers directly, the teachers were directed to forward the emails to the Director of Secondary Special Services, who would "respond if [they] saw appropriate." (P3, 08:25) The Parent indicated they were permitted to communicate directly with the School Psychologist.
24. The Parent noted the School psychologist told them they could not provide the amendments to the IEP directly to the Parent because of the communication plan, and instead had to give them to the Director of Secondary Special Services to review before sending them to the Parent.
25. The Parent explained they felt the LEA was "filtering everything" through the Director of Secondary Special Services because they didn't want the Parent to know "what's going on or not going on" with the Student's IEP. Before the communication plan, the Parent said the conversations with the Director of Secondary Special Services were "cordial" and gave "a little bit more information." Afterward, the conversations were "definitely one of power and control." They stated it was retaliatory and "not collaborative." The Parent stated they felt the LEA was withholding information before the plan, too, but was more "cordial."
26. The Parent stated communication with the IEP team was "collaborative" before the plan, even when they had to have "difficult conversations." They added it was "how it should be," meaning the Parent was able to "get information and participate." They stated they were a "collaborative team member." The Parent felt the communication with the team was "respectful," "friendly," and "collaborative." They stated they could come to the School to set up a meeting or, if they preferred, call.
27. The Parent stated they felt IEP amendments were not happening because the Director of Secondary Special Services "took over." They added the Student's food plan was not "being followed." The Parent described the Assistant Principal providing them with the menu so the Parent could choose food for the Student and stated the Director of Secondary Special Services said it was "being followed," but the Parent reported, "it's not."

28. The Parent stated services were delayed after the IEP meeting on October 28, 2025. They stated the changes were supposed to have already been made, and nothing from that meeting was "set in stone." They added the Director of Secondary Special Services was supposed to coordinate it. They expressed there were five staff members at the IEP.
29. The Parent recalled since the communication plan was implemented, they have not been able to "check in" on the Student and their services or ask questions directly to the IEP team. They stated they couldn't get "real-time" information. The Parent stated the Director of Secondary Special Services sent the Student's Progress Reports and the Parent had questions, but, "[the Director of Secondary Special Services] can't answer." They added they didn't have questions for the Director of Secondary Special Services; they had questions for the IEP team. The Parent confirmed the plan restricted them from talking with the people who were providing the "service delivery."
30. The Parent stated an example of an alternate method for providing timely information was when they were given the name of a new point of contact when the Director of Secondary Special Services was going to be out of town.
31. The Parent described the communication plan as preventing the Parent from advocating for the Student and from keeping the Student safe. They stated they were concerned for the Student's safety and welfare because the Student is non-verbal.

Parent 2 Interview

32. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Parent 2 stated they were informed of the restricted communication plan on October 14, 2025. They reported the Parent was told in person by the LEA to communicate with the Director of Secondary Special Services regarding any student in the Parent's care. Parent 2 reported the LEA's attorney sent an email to the Parents' attorney on the morning of October 14, 2025. However, neither the Parent nor Parent 2 received this communication until after LEA staff informed the Parent.
33. Parent 2 acknowledged the Parent was the primary communicator with the LEA and to their knowledge, the restrictions only covered the Parent. They stated their attorney said "any contact between specifically [the Parent] and the district needed to be directed to [the Director of Secondary Special Services]."
34. Parent 2 stated, "[The Student] has got so many special needs … it's imperative that we have constant contact with [the Student]." They shared ongoing concerns about IEP implementation, including the Student's Behavioral Intervention Plan (BIP) and AAC access. Parent 2 stated that, before October 14, 2025, both Parent 2 and the Parent went to the School to speak directly with staff regarding the Student.
35. Due to the Student's history of Emergency Safety Intervention (ESI), Parent 2 expressed concern about the LEA's response time, given the restrictions. They stated they believed it was a safety issue, "that's why it's important for us to continue to work with the direct staff." Parent 2 reported, "[O]ur attorney said that this prevents meaningful …

and timely communication." They were unaware of any ESI events since the restrictions were put in place.

36. Parent 2 stated the Student was on "a very restrictive [diet] plan, … per [their] physician's orders." They stated the food plan was written into the Student's IEP and reported they had data showing it was not strictly followed. They indicated the communication plan hindered their ability to monitor food intake and, therefore, the Student's overall health.
37. Parent 2 stated the Student's IEP required daily data sheets, including behavior data. They reported the present data sheets were "… very nonspecific. They're very generic, … not really about [the Student's] day." They expressed they believed the daily data should be much more detailed, including information about academic activities and progress. Parent 2 shared, "We're not getting any data [about] … IEP goals … some of that we're able to get through direct contact with … staff and now we don't … because everything's got to go through [the Director of Secondary Student Services]."

Director of Secondary Special Services Interview

38. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director of Secondary Special Services stated they were the Director of Secondary Special Services for the LEA.
39. The Director of Secondary Special Services shared the volume of communication from the Parent was "overwhelming." They recalled "one individual" received 25 emails from the Parent in "a span of a few days." The Director of Secondary Special Services stated the Parent also emailed with "non-IEP requests." They shared staff felt a "sense of fear" based on comments the Parent had made during conversations via email, phone, and during in-person meetings. The Director of Secondary Special Services noted staff had received information requests from outside organizations that the Parent was not aware of, leading the Parent to retain an attorney.
    The Director of Secondary Special Services stated staff were saying they couldn't work with the students because of the Parent. They added, "multiple staff members" told the Director of Secondary Special Services they would quit if they had to "continue working with the Parent." The Director of Secondary Special Services stated they initially placed the Student with a case manager who was strong in communication, collaboration, working with kids, and IEP writing. When a case manager said they would quit if they had to continue working with the family, the Director of Secondary Special Services switched case managers. They stated they became fearful they would eventually "run out of options" with staffing.
40. The Director of Secondary Special Services explained the communication plan did not restrict participation but instead "funneled" the communication "differently." They stated since the plan was implemented, the volume of communication had not changed; however, the "type of communication" did. They added the Parent continued to email staff, and staff forwarded the emails to the Director of Secondary Special Services, but did not respond. The Director of Secondary Special Services added the Parent had not answered the Director of Secondary Special Services' phone calls, so communication had occurred via email.

The Director of Secondary Special Services stated the Parent had a good relationship with the School Psychologist, and the communication plan allowed the Parent to have direct contact with them. The Director of Secondary Special Services confirmed there had been "quite a few" informal meetings between the Parent and the School Psychologist since the communication plan was enacted.

41. The Director of Secondary Special Services reported they held an IEP meeting with the Parent in October 2025. They stated they met as a team to discuss a previously filed complaint and also held a formal IEP meeting, with a notice of meeting and "all the appropriate pieces in place." In addition, because the Parent had retained an attorney, the LEA also had its attorney present. The Director of Secondary Special Services clarified during the IEP meeting, the Current Case Manager led the meeting, and the Director of Secondary Special Services participated as an IEP team member.
42. The Director of Secondary Special Services compared the current level of communication with a student who had similar needs to the Student. They stated communication is typically collaborative; if a teacher wasn't able to respond within a few hours, a parent wouldn't email, then call, and then email the teacher's supervisor to report they hadn't been responded to. The Director of Secondary Special Services noted when there were incidents that required immediate communication, such as an ESI incident, the Parent would be called immediately.

    The Director of Secondary Special Services clarified the Parent often emailed what they felt was "urgent," but clarified "the nature of the question" was not truly urgent or related to the IEP process. They added, the team could take up to 48 hours to respond to "collaborate with others" before replying to the Parent.

    The Director of Secondary Special Services described a daily sheet that goes home with the Student, detailing the Student's day. They stated this system is "fairly standard" for students with "complex needs." They added it was a "tremendous" amount of communication, and it would not be typical to provide communication "beyond that."
43. The Director of Secondary Special Services stated the team did not provide a PWN for the communication plan because it did not impact the Student's "identification, evaluation, placement, [or] provision of [a] FAPE." The Director of Secondary Special Services added the Parent requested an annual IEP meeting before the scheduled meeting was due, and the Director of Secondary Special Services told the Parent they would work with them to get it scheduled, but the Parent did not respond.
44. The Director of Secondary Special Services stated since they are not always in the building with the IEP team, they will seek guidance from team members before responding to the Parent. They confirmed they had responded to every email the Parent had sent.

Former Case Manager Interview

45. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Former Case Manager stated they were a special education teacher at the High School. The Director of Secondary Special Services, who is the Director of Secondary Special Services for the LEA, was also in attendance.

46. The Former Case Manager stated their current role is to support other case managers and support staff with their "day-to-day needs." They explained they were the Student's case manager for the previous school year and for the "very beginning" of this school year. They stated they were no longer the Student's case manager because it felt "impossible" to have their job and be a case manager when it came to the Parent. The Former Case Manager recalled feeling there was a "constant, looming, ever-present expectation" the Parent was trying to find "something that was always wrong."
47. The Former Case Manager recalled meeting with the Parent and Parent 2 over the summer, during which the Parent "demanded" the Former Case Manager serve as the Student's case manager and the case manager for the Student's two siblings. The Former Case Manager stated the Parent accused "everybody" on the Student's team of "doing something wrong." They added the Parent was "angry and upset" before the school year started.
48. The Former Case Manager described the threatening behavior the Parent demonstrated, including a conversation in which the Parent stated they could access the "depositions" and read everything that everybody had said. The Parent told the Former Case Manager they had made a list of "bad people" and proceeded to list off the names. The Parent told the Former Case Manager they could go back 365 days from the date they filed the complaint.
49. The Former Case Manager recalled feeling "intimidated" and added they worked "really hard" to do what's best for kids and stated they realized at that point, "nothing was ever going to be good enough." The Former Case Manager stated they had worked with most of the Parent's children "for years" and said no matter what they did, "it was never good enough."
50. The Former Case Manager stated there wasn't much need for "direct contact" with the Parent. The Director of Secondary Special Services added, the team got used to responding to non-IEP-related comments and being "really accessible" to the Parent because of "intimidation and threatening" requests from them.
    Additionally, the Former Case Manager stated communication was not reciprocal, as the Parent "never answered a phone call" from the Former Case Manager. They said the Parent would "constantly" email them and was demanding "all the time." They shared the communication did not feel collaborative.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented a unilateral restricted communication plan without providing the Parent with a PWN. K.A.R. 91-40-26; 34 CFR § 300.503.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26, each agency in providing any notice to the parent or parents of an exceptional child and amendments thereto regarding any action proposed or refused by an agency, each agency shall ensure that the notice includes a description of other options that the agency considered and the reasons why those options were rejected and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. The notice shall be written in language understandable to the general public and provided in the native language of the parent or other mode of communication used by the parent, unless it is clearly not feasible to do so.

According to 34 CFR § 300.503, written notice must be given to the parents of a child with a disability a reasonable time before the public agency proposes to or refuses to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of FAPE to the child. The notice must include a description of the action proposed or refused by the agency, an explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action, a description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action, a statement that the parents of a child with a disability have protection under the procedural safeguards of this part and, if this notice is not an initial referral for evaluation, the means by which a copy of a description of the procedural safeguards can be obtained. The notice must also include sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding the provisions of this part, a description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal.

The Parent alleged the LEA implemented a unilateral restricted communication plan without providing the Parent with a PWN.

The LEA responded the communication plan did not propose a change to the Student's identification, evaluation, placement, or the provision of a FAPE, so a PWN was not required. Additionally, the LEA stated the plan did not make any changes to the Student's IEP. All communications contemplated by the IEP would be provided through the Director of Secondary Special Services. The Parent's questions, complaints, and concerns could be expressed to a singular point person, rather than through separate staff members.

The LEA, through the Attorney for the LEA and the Director of Secondary Special Services, implemented a restricted communication plan on October 14, 2025, which routed all Parent correspondence regarding the Student to the Director of Secondary Special Services, except for direct communication with the School Psychologist. The LEA justified this action by stating it was "reasonable and necessary" to protect staff from the Parent's "frequent intimidating, aggressive, threatening, and abusive" communications, which included verbal assaults and threats to file complaints, leading staff to fear escalation and consider quitting. The LEA did not issue a PWN for this restriction, asserting the plan was an administrative boundary that did not constitute a change to the Student's "identification, evaluation, placement, or the provision of FAPE." The Parent formally disagreed with the "unilateral communication restriction plan" on the same day, claiming it was "unlawful" and the LEA had failed to provide procedural safeguards or a PWN explaining the decision and rationale.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA failed to provide the Parent with a PWN after initiating a unilateral restricted communication plan. This finding confirms the restriction was a reasonable procedural boundary rather than a substantive change to the Student's program.

Issue Two

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, imposed a communication restriction that denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in IEP implementation and educational decision-making. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a), K.A.R. 91-40-25; 34 C.F.R. § 300.322, 34 C.F.R. § 300.501.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a), each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25, each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child and the provision of a FAPE to the child. Each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each meeting concerning their child or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling the meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place, informing the parents of the information, and providing prior written notice of any meeting to the parents of the child.

The notice shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the meeting and the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency or at the agency's request. If neither parent of an exceptional child can be physically present for a meeting concerning the child, the agency shall attempt other measures to ensure parental participation, including individual or conference telephone calls. A meeting shall not include the informal or unscheduled conversations involving agency personnel and conversations on issues including teaching methodology, lesson plans, or coordination of service provision if those issues are not addressed in the child's IEP, and preparatory activities that agency personnel engage in to develop a proposal or response to a parent's proposal that will be discussed at a later meeting.

The Parent alleged the LEA imposed a communication restriction, which prevented the Parent from participating in the IEP implementation and education decision-making processes.

The LEA responded the communication plan did not deny the Parent meaningful participation in the IEP process. The LEA indicated the plan was implemented on October 14, 2025, and was established due to a pattern of communication that had become excessive, aggressive, and threatening toward staff members, resulting in multiple employees expressing concern for their safety and requesting not to be assigned to continued direct contact with the Parent. Additionally, the LEA indicated they had been contacted by outside agencies seeking information without appropriate releases, creating additional confidentiality risks. The LEA determined routing all communication through a single administrative point of contact was the most appropriate, professional, and legally sound approach.

The LEA continued, the Parent received all required notices, progress reports, and invitations to meetings. The Parent was able to request an IEP meeting or propose revisions, which does not restrict their participation in the IEP process.

The Parent argued the restricted communication was retaliatory and prevented them from participating as a "full member of the IEP team," citing a denial of an "open line of communication" and the inability to get "real-time" information or ask specific questions directly to the service providers about progress reports. They felt the Director of Secondary Special Services was "filtering everything," and the communication was no longer collaborative. Conversely, the LEA maintained the restriction did not deny meaningful participation because the Parent continued to receive all legally required information, including notices, progress reports, and invitations to meetings, and still had the ability to request a meeting. Furthermore, the Parent attended an IEP meeting held in October 2025 and retained the right to direct contact with the School Psychologist and an alternative contact when the Director of Secondary Special Services was unavailable.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in IEP implementation and educational decision-making by enacting a communication plan.

Issue Three

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, blocked communication necessary for coordination of services and access to the IEP team, thereby denying the Student a FAPE. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 § C.F.R. 300.101, 34 C.F.R. § 300.17.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, each agency shall provide a FAPE. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction.

Each agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination of whether a child who is advancing from grade to grade is a child with a disability shall be made on an individual basis in accordance with child find activities and evaluation procedures required by this article.

Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality. An agency shall not be required to provide a FAPE to any exceptional child who has graduated from high school with a regular high school diploma. Each exceptional child shall be eligible for graduation from high school upon successful completion of state and local board requirements and shall receive the same graduation recognition and diploma that a nonexceptional child receives. The IEP of an exceptional child may designate goals other than high school graduation.

The Parent alleged by blocking real-time communication necessary for coordinating services and access to the IEP team, the LEA denied the Student a FAPE.

The LEA responded the communication plan did not interfere with service coordination or deny the Student access to the IEP team. All services continued as written in the IEP, with no interruptions, delays, or missed services. At no time was the Parent denied access to IEP records, updates, or decision-making opportunities. The communication plan did not impede IEP access or services and ensured the continued provision of a FAPE for the student.

The Parent alleged the communication restriction denied the FAPE by hindering their ability to advocate for the non-verbal Student's safety, welfare, and health, and expressed concern that the delay in communication could affect timely responses to potential ESI events. They cited a problem: the Student's restrictive food plan was not being strictly followed, and the restriction prevented them from monitoring food intake and general health. The LEA countered the plan did not deny a FAPE, noting its protocol required immediate communication with the Parent for critical incidents such as ESI, and Parent 2 confirmed being unaware of any ESI events since the plan was enacted. The LEA further noted they provided the Parent with a standard daily data sheet detailing the Student's day, which they considered sufficient, and the nature of many of the Parent's questions was not urgent or related to the IEP process. The facts do not provide the necessary evidence of harm caused by the restriction.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA denied the Student a FAPE by blocking communication necessary for coordinating services and access to the IEP team.

Background Information

The student named in this complaint is currently attending the fourth grade at one of the LEA's elementary schools. According to the LEA, the student attended early learning services in the current district and first qualified for IEP services in 2019. The student uses a wheelchair and walker due to spina bifida.

The IEP provided by the LEA is dated February 21, 2025 and includes the following:

Goals

1. Safety related to clearing the environment of mobility hazards, safe sitting and walker use
2. Independently open exterior doors from walker level
3. Catch a small ball thrown overhanded

Special Education and Related Services

1. Physical Therapy direct services for 25 minutes, one day per week.
2. School Nurse Services - Services provided by a qualified nurse in accordance with the IEP for 15 minutes.
3. Attendant Care - a noninstructional paraeducator for lunch coverage, 10 minutes, daily.
4. Special Education Services- adult support for mobility in specials, recess and classroom for 245 minutes, one day per week.
5. Special Education Services- adult support for mobility in specials, recess and classroom for 270 minutes, four days per week.

Support for School Personnel

1. Teacher consultation (Physical therapist and special education teacher will consult with classroom teacher, specials teachers, and other staff members regarding the student's needs, 5 minutes, monthly in the special education classroom).

Modifications/Accommodations

1. Adult check In/Check Out for organization.
2. Alternative seating, activities, etc., may be needed in order for the student to be most successful at school.
3. Visual organizational prompt on student desk.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaints and interview with the complainants, two concerns that fall under IDEA or Kansas regulations were identified and investigated.

Issue One

Did USD #383 fail to implement the student's IEP specific to nursing services and adult support in the 2025-2026 school year as required by 34 CFR §300.323(c)(2)?

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 CFR §300.323(c)(2) require that the LEA must ensure that as soon as possible after the development of the IEP, special education and related services are available to the student.

Parent Position

School Nurse Services - The parent complaint states, "On November 5, 2025, the district failed to provide a qualified nurse and instead instructed an untrained para-educator [paraprofessional #1] to assist [the student] with [the student's] catheterization. The parents were not notified and learned of the incident from [the student], reporting it to the principal immediately." The parents also shared in their complaint that the nursing minutes noted in the IEP are for "School Nurse Services" which include monitoring for shunt malfunctions and assessment for signs of infection as noted in the 2025-2026 IHP. The parents feel these services were not performed on November 5, 2025.

IHP- The parent's complaint notes a concern that the LEA updated the student's Individual Health Plan (IHP) without their consent, "The district cannot unilaterally alter a component of an IEP outside of a team meeting."

Adult support - The parent's complaint states, "The district has demonstrated a chronic and systemic failure to implement the "Adult Support" services as mandated in [the student's] IEP. This constitutes a denial of FAPE by failing to provide for [the student] safety, despite the district being formally put on notice of this exact violation in a previous IDEA complaint."

LEA Position

School Nurse Services - The district response states, "The student's IEP specifies 15 minutes per day of nursing support for catheterization and medical monitoring. The Nurse Office Visit Report demonstrates that catheterization occurred twice daily on every school day (when the student was in attendance) from August 13 through November 16, 2025, in the nurse's office by or under the supervision of a licensed nurse." Additionally the LEA shared, "The Emails (IHP, Minutes, Cathing) include communication between nursing staff and administrators verifying that the catheterization schedule and adult supervision procedures matched the IEP and medical orders which are used to create the IHP.

Individualized Health Plan (IHP) - The IHP is separate from the IEP document to ensure current medical orders can be followed immediately. These records collectively demonstrate that [the LEA] implemented all nursing services as written and in full compliance with 34 C.F.R. § 300.34(a) and Kansas Process Handbook Ch. 5, which recognize school-nurse services as a related service supporting FAPE."

Adult support - The district response states, "The Staffing Summary (Sept 19, 2025) documents that trained paraeducators were assigned under the supervision of the special-education teacher, principal, and nurse. The IEP team considered parental requests for "arm's-length" proximity but determined this would be overly restrictive and inconsistent with IDEA's LRE mandate (34 C.F.R. § 300.114)."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

School Nurse Services

1. The LEA response states, "The student's IEP specifies 15 minutes per day of nursing support for catheterization and medical monitoring." However, the IEP states "School Nurse Services - Services provided by a qualified nurse in accordance with the IEP", and offers no further guidance on the nature of the school nurse supports, including what these services are or when they should be offered. The IEP does note that the student requires an Individualized Nursing Care Plan.
2. The document, Authorization for Medication/Procedure to be Administered at School and Field Trips, notes that catheterization is either nurse assisted or self-performed. This document is signed by the student's physician and dated August 13, 2025.
3. Nurse #1 resigned as the elementary school's nurse mid-October, 2025.
4. The principal sent a message to the parents, via the communication platform on October 21, 2025 which states, "Thank you for reaching out regarding [the student's] care. This week, our substitute nurse [Nurse #3], is providing nursing support at [the elementary school]. [They] have been given the necessary information and training to care for [the student] and all students. Please be assured that during this transition, our nurse's office will be staffed by highly trained and qualified nursing professionals. [Nurse #3] or another district nurse, will be on site to provide the care needed. Each nurse will also have the access and information necessary to contact parents and provide any needed communication. You are always welcome to contact me directly with any questions or information you would like shared with the nurse."
5. The LEA shared a number of emails from the LEA's head nurse with the name of the nurse assigned to the elementary school each day to cover the duties of the open school nurse's position.
6. The parents emailed the principal on November 5, 2025, stating that the student reported that their catheterization was supported by an untrained paraprofessional due to the school nurse's absence.
7. A review of the Health Office Visit report reflects that on November 5, 2025, the student visited the nurse's office twice to use the restroom. The first time was from 10:50-10:55 a.m. with "Nurse Substitute" noted but no name, and the second time at 2:10-2:15 p.m. assisted by nurse #2.
8. The principal replied on November 6, 2026, stating, "As shared in previous communication, during the transition of replacing our school nurse, our nurse's office will be staffed by highly trained and qualified nursing professionals and that staff will have the access and information necessary to contact parents and provide any needed communication. On certain days, this has included the use of a district float nurse or substitute nurse to ensure coverage, or like yesterday, our current office professional, [nurse #2], who is a licensed Registered Nurse, has stepped in to provide services in the nurse's office as needed. All staff assisting in the nurse's office have been provided the appropriate training and access to necessary documentation, including Individualized Health Plans and communication protocols with parents. This process and coverage continues to be overseen by the district's Lead Nurse, to ensure continuity of care for all students at [the elementary school]."

9. The parents replied on November 6, 2025, stating that their child was certain that paraprofessional #1 was available for assistance and that nurse #2 was not present.
10. In an email sent by the principal to the parents November 7, 2025, the principal suggested they meet to discuss the issue.
11. In the parent's response on November 9, 2025, they declined the meeting and stated, "we believe it is best to address these matters through the Kansas State Department of Education's formal complaint process to ensure objectivity and an accurate review of the documentation."
12. The district response references the 2025-2026 Health Office Visit report, "Entries record that the student self-catheterized independently with the nurse nearby to answer questions and assess urine output, and that staff monitored for infection or abnormal results, these contemporaneous logs, spanning over 300 documented visits, confirm consistent provision of services in the location specified in the IHP and IEP. The data show no missed sessions except excused absences for medical appointments, which were promptly noted."
13. The principal sent a message to all parents via the communication platform on November 13, 2025 stating in part, "We're happy to share that [nurse #2], who many of you know as our Office Professional, will be stepping into the School Nurse role." "This will be starting on Monday, November 17, 2025…"
14. A review of nurse #2's qualifications revealed a temporary license on October 23, 2025 and an unencumbered license as of October 30, 20205.
15. In the interview with the principal on December 1, 2025, the principal confirmed that [Nurse #2], although not the nurse assigned to the school but rather office personnel at that time, had been trained and was the person who assisted the student on November 5, 2025.
16. In an email exchange with nurse #2, on December 8, 2025, they reported being trained to support the student by the LEA's lead nurse and granted access to relevant student records, including a packet provided by the parents, informed of the student's typical restroom routine and needed level of support.
17. Additionally the LEA provided the following information in their December 11, 2025 response, Under the Kansas Nurse Practice Act (K.S.A. 65-1113 et seq.) and related regulations (K.A.R. 60-15-101 through 60-15-104), a licensed registered nurse may delegate certain health-related tasks to trained health aides, provided that those tasks do not require the professional judgment of a nurse and that the aides have been appropriately trained and are supervised by the delegating nurse." The LEA also stated, "This process follows both the Nurse Practice Act and the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook, which recognize that school health services can be provided by trained personnel under the supervision of a licensed nurse. The district's use of delegated health aides is a standard and lawful method to ensure continuity of nursing services, consistent with IDEA requirements and Kansas regulations."

18. In a December 11, 2025 email exchange with the director when asked if the student had school nurse support during the a.m. restroom visit to the nurses office on November 5, 2025 they replied, "We did not have a nurse present that morning. Self-catheterization is stated in the doctor's orders provided in the doctor's orders and in accordance with the Delegation of Specific Nursing Tasks in the School Setting does not require a nurse present. A para was provided for transition during this time to allow for this to take place in the nurse's office."

Individualized Health Plan (IHP)

1. In an email from the principal to the parents on August 12, 2025, the principal requested current medical information to aid the nurse in updating the student's IHP, "In reviewing [the student's] current IHP with Nurse [#1], we are needing to update her plan for this school year…"
2. In an August 13, 2025 reply from the parent to principal, the parent states that the student should be "cathing from the mitrofanoh. [The student] is doing catheterization independently but still needs standby assistance (outside the bathroom is fine) to help ensure [their] safety."
3. The director noted in their interview on November 14, 2025 that the IHPs are stored in the LEA's IEP system and that the LEA is clear that the IHP is a separate document, not part of the IEP.
4. The LEA's director of human resources who supervises the nurses shared the LEA's practice regarding IHPs on December 3, 2025:
    a. "Each nurse writes them [the IHPs] for the students that need them in their building. They are written and stored on the computer or in a binder (whatever the nurse chooses) for the student that year.
    b. At the end of each school year, nurses will pass on the IHP to the next nurse (early learning –elementary, elementary – middle, middle – high)
    c. IHP should be updated each year as needed.
    d. If a student moves or the plan is not needed, please shred the IHP."

Adult Support

1. The parents filed a formal complaint with KSDE on April 29, 2025 including alleging the lack of paraprofessional support throughout the 2024-2025 school year. The investigation found that although there were documented instances of lack of paraprofessional support due to staffing shortages and unexpected absences, the impact to the student was not a material failure to implement the IEP. This decision was appealed by the parents. The KSDE appeal committee upheld the investigators finding but offered this caution to the LEA, "Again, with regard to the issue of implementation of the IEP, this was a difficult set of facts presented for appeal and could have gone either way. The school district should not interpret this decision as authority to remain understaffed. Proper staffing includes anticipating that there will be some level of staff absences throughout the school year and planning for those absences." page 6.

2. In correspondence with the parents and LEA the terms adult support, and paraprofessional support, were used interchangeably. The current IEP states, Special Education Services- "Adult support for mobility in special, recess, and classroom."
3. A photo taken by the parents on August 19, 2025 shows the student's paraprofessional sitting on a bench a distance from the student. While it is not possible to determine the distance exactly, it is clear that the paraprofessional is too far away to assist the student should the student lose their balance on the playground.
4. The parents requested and received from the student's doctor, a Letter of Medical Necessity. This letter states student needs related to catheterization, arms length adult support and therapeutic weight bearing dated September 2, 2025.
5. The parents emailed the investigator that on November 20, 2025, the student reported not receiving, "paraeducator support during Art, Library, Recess and transition from the nurse's office."
6. The parents messaged the principal via the communication platform of the missing paraeducator support on November 20, 2025 asking for an explanation as to why the student did not have adult support during specials, recess and walking back to class from the nurses office.
7. The principal replied to the parents on November 21, 2025 stating, "There was not a paraprofessional for parts of the day due to [staff] absence. During [the student's] catheterization time, a teacher was available and assisted [the student] to the nurse's office and then back to the classroom." The principal also added, "As stated in the IEP, services may be interrupted for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to personal illness, professional staff obligations, field trips, school closures due to inclement weather and other instances beyond the control of the school system."
8. In the principal's interview on December 1, 2025, they confirmed that the student did not have adult support during the end of library (the student arrived at school near the end of that period) and did not have support during art or recess. However, the student did have support walking to and from the nurse's office, although this is not stated as a requirement in the current IEP. The principal had not figured the number of minutes of missed adult support but said they assumed the student had received all of the minutes due to the student's late arrival. Further, the principal asserted that the statement in the student's IEP under the header, Services, "Services may be interrupted for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to personal illness, professional staff obligations, field trips, school closure due to inclement weather and other issues beyond the control of the school system," covers any missed minutes due to staff illness.

Conclusion

34 CFR §300.323(c)(2) requires LEAs to implement the student's IEP as soon as possible, and in this case, specific to paraprofessional support.

The parent's complaint included the following school nurse services related concerns:

- Whether an unlicensed but trained staff can perform school nurse duties, which is the basis for the parent's November 5, 2025, concern.
- Whether the IHP is part of the IEP, which offers IDEA protections and guidance for updating the IHP and holds the LEA accountable for duties as written in the IHP.

School Nurse Services

The IEP states, "School Nurse Services- Services provided by a qualified nurse in accordance with the IEP". As noted in the Related Services Facts Sheet from KSDE dated February 2025, "School nurse services are services provided by a qualified school nurse. School health services are services that may be provided by either a qualified school nurse or other qualified person (34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13))." The student's IEP specifically states, "School Nurse Services" and does not include the term, "School health services" or mention delegation of services to unlicensed staff. A careful reading of the KSDE guidance for 34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13) clarifies that school nurse services are to be implemented by a qualified school nurse and does not allow for the delegation of duties. As to whether or not the school nurse duties were performed by an unqualified person on November 5, 2025, the LEA stated in the December 11, 2025 email that there was not a school nurse available to provide services for the student's a.m. restroom visit but did provide evidence that a qualified school nurse was available for the p.m. restroom visit.

The student's IEP requires 15 minutes of school nurse services per day and was provided only 5 minutes, according to the LEA's own record keeping on November 5, 2025. The LEA also stated that the a.m. services noted in the IHP were not provided by a licensed nurse, and although the investigator does not have the authority to make a finding outside of the IEP the LEA should be aware that it is not appropriate to delegate school nurse services to non licensed staff.

The parents raised two related issues; the first is a concern that the IHP for the 2025-2026 school year was updated without their input. An email from the principal to the parents on August 12, 2025 requested updated medical information to enable nurse #1 to update the IHP. The parents responded on August 13, 2025, offering the requested information, demonstrating their input and awareness that the nurse was updating the IHP.

The second issue is whether the IHP is part of the IEP and so protected by IDEA. The IHP update by the nurse noted above was outside of the IEP team process and required no IEP team meeting or signatures. The IEP notes that the student has an IHP and nursing services; however, this alone does not automatically determine that the IHP is part of the IEP. The LEA's position is that the IHP is not part of the IEP and thus updates may be made without the IEP team input and signatures but rather are based on the physician's orders and recommendations with updates the responsibility of the nurse. The LEA followed their own process for updating IHPs as shared by the nursing supervisor in an email to the investigator. The investigator concurs with the LEA and finds that the IHP, although related to the IEP, is a separate document and not part of the IEP. Considering the IHP as a non-IEP document enables the IHP to be quickly revised based on the changing needs of the student without pulling together the IEP team. Because the IEP team has not been required to review and sign off on the IHP updates and the PWN did not reflect any IHP decisions made at the IEP meeting, the IHP will not be considered as part of the IEP. This is not a finding that the duties listed in the IHP are unimportant, only that as currently written, the IEP does not speak to the implementation of specific IHP duties. It is strongly encouraged that the IEP team clarify and document whether the IHP is indeed part of the IEP, as well as clarify the IHP to include a schedule of services, and which services may be performed by a non-licensed, but trained employee, based on what best serves the student.

Adult Support

Specific to the parent's concern that adult support was not available on the playground as evidenced by a photo taken on August 19, 2025. The determination of how close an adult must be to appropriately support the student is a decision to be made at the IEP team level with input from the student's doctors, parents and LEA staff. The content of the IEP determines what the LEA can be held accountable for in a complaint investigation. The current IEP simply states, "Adult support for mobility in specials, recess, and classroom." Without specificity in the IEP, this investigator has no basis to determine compliance.

In regards to the parent's concern that adult support was not available to the student on November 20, 2025 due to staff illness. The minutes of support required by the IEP include 245 minutes one day per week and 270 minutes four days per week. In the principal's interview they were not able to share if the student received these minutes on November 20, 2025, although they felt the minutes had probably been met due to the student's late arrival. The principal also shared that due to the following statement in the student's IEP, "Services may be interrupted for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to personal illness, professional staff obligations, field trips, school closure due to inclement weather and other issues beyond the control of the school system," the student's minutes were met. It is appropriate to clarify in the IEP that services may be missed when the school is not in session (summer, spring/fall break, snow days, etc) or when school is open but classes are not held due to scheduled events such (field trips, field day, assemblies). Kansas does not allow for situations where the student is at school and expects services and the provider is not in school to provide those services. When students are at school but do not receive IEP services because a provider is unavailable, LEAs are not excused from their obligation to implement the IEP and should plan in advance for those situations. The investigator did not conduct a random sample of IEPs; however, the investigator strongly recommends that the LEA review its IEP template to ensure that this inaccurate and misleading statement does not appear in IEPs across the LEA.

Additionally, it is noted that the parents filed a formal complaint on April 29, 2025 for this same concern. The investigator found there had been missing adult support minutes although they were not found to constitute a material failure to implement the IEP. The KSDE appeal committee upheld the investigators findings but also issued a warning to the LEA, "The school district should not interpret this decision as authority to remain understaffed. Proper staffing includes anticipating that there will be some level of staff absences throughout the school year and planning for those absences." (page 6).

Based on the foregoing, it is found that:

- The LEA is OUT of compliance due to missed school nurse minutes on November 5, 2025 as required by 34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13). Corrective actions are required.
- The LEA is IN compliance related to updating the IHP outside of the IEP team process. No corrective actions are required.
- The LEA is OUT of compliance for failing to provide adult support as required by the IEP. Corrective actions are required.

Issue Two

Did USD #383 fail to issue a complete PWN in response to the student's September 17, 2025 IEP meeting as required by 34 CFR §300.503(b)?

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 CFR §300.503(b) require that PWNs included the following: (1) A description of the action proposed or refused by the agency; (2) An explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action; (3) A description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action; (4) A statement that the parents of a child with a disability have protection under the procedural safeguards of this part and, if this notice is not an initial referral for evaluation, the means by which a copy of a description of the procedural safeguards can be obtained; (5) Sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding the provisions of this part; (6) A description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected; and (7) A description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal.

Parent Position

In the parent complaint and in the parent interview on November 13, 2025 the parents expressed concern that the PWN issued on September 18, 2025 was not reflective of the discussion at the IEP team meeting on September 17, 2025 and that the PWN did not include all of the information required by IDEA.

LEA Position

In the LEA's response it states, "The PWN dated September 18, 2025, meets every element required under 34 C.F.R. § 300.503(b) and K.A.R. 91-40-27.

1. It lists all actions proposed and refused (nursing location, adult support proximity, evacuation procedures);
2. States the reasons for each determination;
3. Identifies the data and records reviewed;
4. Provides procedural-safeguard information; and
5. Offers contact information for parent questions.

The LEA response also states, "The narrative section explicitly references parental input and provides a clear rationale grounded in student safety, independence, and IDEA compliance. Accordingly, [the LEA] issued a complete and legally sufficient PWN documenting every IEP team decision. At this time, parents have refused to sign consent or do not consent to adding the 'close proximity' accommodation that was discussed in the meeting."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation noted previously and interviews with all parties. Specifically, this analysis includes the topics discussed in the September 17, 2025 IEP meeting, reflected in the LEA's September 18, 2025 PWN, the recorded audio of the IEP meeting and the following PWN requirements: (1) A description of the action proposed or refused by the agency; (2) An explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action; (3) A description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action; (4) A description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected; and (5) A description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. Additionally, the findings of Issue One are incorporated herein by reference.

The remaining PWN requirements are present and include:

- A statement that the parents of a child with a disability have protection under the procedural safeguards of this part and, if this notice is not an initial referral for evaluation, the means by which a copy of a description of the procedural safeguards can be obtained; and

- Sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding the provisions of this part.

Paraprofessional at arm's length -

1. Description of action- The PWN states, "Request for a paraeducator to remain within 'arm's length' during the school day - [the LEA] is denying this request. The IEP team carefully considered the parent's request that [the student] requires a paraeducator to maintain 'arm's length' proximity throughout the school day. The team determined that this level of supervision would be unnecessarily restrictive and inconsistent with the Least Restrictive Environment (LRE). Instead, the IEP Team believes that close proximity support is an appropriate accommodation and will be added specifically for recess and physical education to promote safety while also supporting independence and peer interaction."
2. Explanation of refusal- The PWN states, "[The LEA] is denying this request. The IEP team determined that requiring a paraeducator to remain within 'arm's length' of [the student] at all times during the school day would be unnecessarily restrictive and inconsistent with the Least Restrictive Environment (LRE) mandate under IDEA and the Kansas Process Handbook. However, the team is proposing to add 'close proximity' support as an accommodation for recess and physical education, which ensures safety while fostering independence and appropriate peer interaction."
3. Options considered and why options were rejected-
    a. The PWN states, "Rejected as overly restrictive, inconsistent with LRE, and not supported by data."
    b. The parents reported in their complaint, and the IEP meeting audio recording confirms the parent's suggested "arms length" only for specific times of the day such as transitions, PE and the playground.
4. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
    a. The PWN states, "Student's current IEP, progress monitoring data, and staff observation records."
    b. This statement lacks a description of the data considered and only includes a list of data sources. This section needs to include a description of how this refusal is related to the student's current IEP, progress monitoring or staff observation records. Additionally, the student's relevant history of fractures due to osteopenia shared by the parents in the meeting is an important piece of data but was not noted as a consideration.
5. Other factors relevant to the proposal or refusal-
    a. The PWN states, "The district remains committed to providing FAPE in the LRE as required under IDEA, and the Kansas Process Handbook. All decisions are based on [the student's] individualized needs and the legal authority of the district to administer staffing, safety, and communication procedures. The IEP team remains committed to reconvening to discuss [the student's] goals once updated data and team availability allow for meaningful review and input. Parents retain the right to request an IEP team meeting at any time to discuss proposed revisions."

b. The PWN includes the statement above for all of the actions proposed/refused discussed at the IEP team meeting. However, each action proposed/refused should include specific factors related to each topic discussed and decided upon. It is likely that factors considered for decisions such as how close adult support should be are likely different than those related to creating an individualized evacuation plan or increasing nursing minutes.

Additional related evidence

6. The LEA's response states, "The PWN clearly records the district's refusal to add constant arm's-length support, providing a detailed rationale: that the student already had adult supervision during medical and transition activities, and that constant physical proximity would impede independence and peer engagement."

Nursing service minutes -

1. Description of action- The PWN states, "The IEP Team agreed to continue including nursing minutes on the IEP at 15 minutes daily."
2. Explanation of refusal- The PWN states, "The IEP Team agreed that nursing minutes remain necessary on the IEP to ensure that [the student] receives the required health-related support for access to a Free Appropriate Education (FAPE)."
3. Options considered and why options were rejected-
    a. The PWN states, "Removing nursing minutes - Rejected because [the student] continues to require health-related support for self-catheterization."
    b. The parents clarified in their complaint and interview that the discussion also included their request to increase the nursing to 24 minutes which was echoed by the nurse explaining that this was typically the amount of time it required to support the student's needs. The audio recording of the IEP meeting confirms this.
4. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
    a. The PWN states, "Input from nursing staff and parents regarding medical needs."
    b. This section needs to reflect the content of the input from the nursing staff and parents and how this information was used to come to a decision, not simply that their input was considered.
5. Other factors relevant to the proposal or refusal- As noted previously, it is not sufficient to include a statement which does not address the specific decision.

Student specific evacuation plan -

1. Description of action- The PWN states, "[The LEA] is denying this request. [The student] will follow the district's building-wide evacuation plan, which is fully compliant with emergency management standards."

2. Explanation of refusal- The PWN states, "[The LEA] is denying this request. [The student] will follow the district's building-wide evacuation plan, which already meets emergency management requirements."
3. Options considered and why options were rejected-
    a. The PWN states, "Developing an individualized evacuation plan - Rejected as duplicative and unnecessary given a compliant building-wide plan."
    b. This explanation fails to note the considerations raised by the parents including the student's mobility challenges and vulnerabilities. The concerns raised by the parents were not related to whether the evacuation plan met emergency management requirements, but rather how the student's safety, given mobility challenges, would be addressed.
4. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
    a. The PWN states, "District building evacuation plan reviewed in consultation with administration."
    b. This is not a sufficient description of data which needs to include how the LEA believes the district building evacuation plan accommodates this student's needs..
5. Other factors relevant to the proposal or refusal- As noted previously, it is not sufficient to include a statement which does not address the specific decision.

Below are additional PWN related concerns.

Request to add/revise IEP goals: The parent's complaint included a concern that the discussion related to new IEP goals occurred after the meeting ended, but was included in the PWN. While the LEA was not required to reference this brief conversation, it is not inappropriate for them to have included a refusal given that the team was no longer gathered and clearly no team decision could be made. It is also noted that the LEA offered to schedule a continuation of the IEP meeting where IEP goals could have been discussed.

Weight bearing request: The parent's complaint included a concern that the IEP team discussed the student's need to be weight bearing post surgery. The audio recording confirms this. This discussion included the parent's request that the student stand at their desk post surgery and the LEA's request for physician guidance. When asked why this discussion was not included in the PWN, the principal replied on December 11, 2025, "Standing is something all students have access to. That is not an accommodation for an IEP. Students are able to stand and sit in any classroom at any time. I have included the doctor's orders, along with the [communication platform] messages between myself and the parents. Please note that in the doctor's orders, neither of which state anything about standing as an accommodation for [the student's] return to school following the surgery. The request for standing is a general education intervention, where if a student needs to stand, they would be allowed to stand. I am also including a message from our [physical therapist], that was sent to parents on October 20th following the surgery to note concerns and asking for guidance. Parents did not respond to this message."

The PWN also included issues which were proposed/refused that are not addressed by IDEA and thus not appropriate to include in the investigation but are personnel issues under the purview of the school board and could be directed there if the parents wish to do so. These include:

- Selection of paraprofessionals by the parents.
- Notification of paraprofessional schedule change.
- Restoring direct communication with school staff.

Conclusion

In this case, while there are some inconsistencies between the details reflected in the audio recording of the meeting and those documented in the issued PWN, IDEA does not specifically address the accuracy of the information included in a PWN. However, IDEA does address the completeness of the PWN which is discussed below.

Regarding the allegation that the PWN does not include all of the information required by IDEA. The following decisions included in the PWN do not include specific information as required by 34 CFR §300.503(b):

- Paraprofessional at arm's length, which lacks
    - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
    - Other factors relevant to the refusal.
- Nursing service minutes, which lacks
    - Options considered and why rejected,
    - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
    - Other factors relevant to the refusal.
- Student specific evacuation plan, which lacks
    - Options considered and why rejected,
    - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
    - Other factors relevant to the refusal.

Please note, IDEA does not require each section of the PWN to be exhaustive, but does require there is enough information to help parents understand why an action was accepted or refused, not simply that an action is refused.

Specific to the allegation of refusal to revise IEP goals. It is appropriate for the LEA to have included this discussion and refusal to make changes to the IEP given the lack of team members after the meeting concluded.

Specific to the allegation of omitting the weight bearing discussion. The LEA's assertion that the discussion was not included in the PWN because standing is something available to any student at any time is appropriate, additionally there was not a team decision to do something different for this student. IDEA only requires that decisions made by the team are included in the PWN, not simply discussions.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that:

- The LEA is OUT of compliance due to the issuance of an incomplete PWN on September 18, 2025. Corrective actions are required.
- The LEA is IN compliance related to issuing a refusal to update the IEP in the September 18, 2025 PWN. No corrective actions are required.
- The LEA is IN compliance related to omission of the "weight bearing" discussion from the September 18, 2025 PWN. No corrective actions are required.

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 383,
Manhattan/Ogden Public Schools: 26FC383-002

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on November 10, 2025, by ------- on behalf of their daughter, -------. In the remainder of this decision, ------- will be referred to as "the parents," and ------- will be referred to as "the student." An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on December 17, 2025. That Complaint Report concluded that there were violations of special education statutes and regulations in Issue One and Issue 2.

Thereafter, the district filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parents, the Complaint Report, the district's notice of appeal, and the parents' response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The appeal committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The report identified two issues, both of which are under appeal. We start with Issue One:

Issue One

Did USD #383 fail to implement the student's IEP specific to nursing services and adult support in the 2025-2026 school year as required by 34 CFR §300.323(c)(2)?

The investigator concluded that the district was out of compliance for two reasons:

1. The LEA is OUT of compliance due to missed school nurse minutes on November 5, 2025 as required by 34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13). Corrective actions are required.
2. The LEA is OUT of compliance for failing to provide adult support as required by the IEP. Corrective actions are required. (Report, p. 15).

Conclusion 1 was based on the actual language in the student's IEP. In her interview with the principal, the principal "confirmed" that "Nurse #2 assisted the student on November 5, 2025, but, Nurse #2 was not an actual nurse. (Report Finding 15, p. 9). The investigator said school personnel reported that Nurse #2 was "trained to support the student by the LEA's lead nurse, was granted access to relevant student records, including a packet provided by the parents, informed of the student's typical restroom routine and needed level of support." (Finding 16, Report p. 9).

The investigator correctly noted that federal regulations define the terms "School Nurse Services" and "School Health Services" differently, and explained that:

> "School nurse services are services provided by a qualified school nurse. School health services are services that may be provided by either a qualified school nurse or other qualified person (34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13))." The student's IEP specifically states, "School Nurse Services" and does not include the term, "School health services" or mention delegation of services to unlicensed staff. A careful reading of the KSDE guidance (the guidance was not cited but is presumably the guidance on page 102 of the current Special Education Process Handbook) for 34 C.F.R. 300.34(c)(13) clarifies that school nurse services are to be implemented by a qualified school nurse and does not allow for the delegation of duties. As to whether or not the school nurse duties were performed by an unqualified person on November 5, 2025, the LEA stated in the December 11, 2025 email that there was not a school nurse available to provide services for the student's a.m. restroom visit: (Report, p. 13 – Emphasis added)".

The Appeal Committee agrees with this analysis. These definitions are consistent with the definitions in Kansas regulation K.A.R. 91-40-1(fff) and (ggg). When an IEP specifies "School Nurse Services," instead of "School health services," it means the services must be provided by a qualified school nurse and does not allow for the delegation of duties to "other qualified" persons. Whether this analysis amounts to a violation of law is addressed later in this decision.

With regard to Adult Support, the student's IEP specifies that "adult support for mobility" will be provided in specials, recess, and classroom for 245 minutes one day a week and for 270 minutes four days per week (Report, p. 5). In correspondence between the parties the term "adult support" was used interchangeably with "paraprofessional support."

First, the investigator noted that a photo taken on the playground on August 19, 2025, may have indicated adult support was not close enough to be effective, adding that the IEP description of "Adult support for mobility in specials, recess, and classroom," was not specific enough to find a violation.

Second, the investigator noted that, on November 20, 2025, ten days after this complaint was filed, the student informed the parents that she did not have paraeducator support for Art, Library, Recess and transition from the nurse's office (Findings 5 and 6, Report, p. 11). The principal replied to the parents on November 21, 2025 stating, "There was not a paraprofessional for parts of the day due to [staff] absence, but that during [the student's] catheterization time, a teacher was available and assisted [the student] to the nurse's office and then back to the classroom." (Finding 7, Report p. 12). During the interview with the complaint investigator, the principal acknowledged that the student did not have adult support for a portion of the school day, although the student may have received a proportionate amount of services required by the IEP because the student came to school late that day ((Finding 8, Report, p. 12). The investigator concluded that these facts constituted a failure to implement the IEP and substantiated a violation of law for failing to provide adult support as required by the student's IEP.

In its appeal, the district argues that, the events of November20, 2025, occurred ten days after this complaint was filed and should not have been addressed by the investigator, at least not without informing the district that it would be added to the complaint filed on November 10, 2025. The Appeal Committee agrees. However, for the reasons stated below, the Appeal Committee believes it is appropriate to rule on this issue now, while these facts are under appeal, rather than wait for another complaint to be filed on this issue.

In its appeal, the district argues that to the extent it did not implement the student's IEP, with regard to nursing services and adult support, the failure to do so was not a material failure and should not require corrective action. The district cited several court decisions saying that the law does not require perfect implementation of an IEP and that to be actionable, a failure to implement an IEP must be a material failure.

A review of applicable case law supports the district's position. In Abigail P. v. Old Forge School District, 124 LRP 21769 (3d. Cir. 2024), the third circuit, joined the 4th, 5th, 8th, 9th, and 11th Circuits saying an implementation failure must be material to be actionable. This United States Circuit Court of Appeals decision explained the "material failure" standard, saying:

> Indeed, a requirement of perfect adherence "would ignore the realities and the challenges that the IDEA was built to accommodate." "A materiality standard affords local agencies some flexibility while still holding those agencies accountable for > material failures and for providing the disabled a meaningful education benefit…Several of our sister courts have held that "a party challenging the implementation of an IEP must show more than a de minimis failure to implement all elements of that IEP, and, instead, must demonstrate that the school board or other authorities failed to implement substantial or significant provisions of the IEP." We agree and hold as much here. (Citations omitted).

In this complaint, we see one instance when, on November 5, 2025, the student did not receive "nursing services," as that term is defined by law, because the student was assisted by "Nurse #2, an "office personnel" who had been trained to "to support the student by the LEA's lead nurse and granted access to relevant student records, including a packet provided by the parents, informed of the student's typical restroom routine and needed level of support." (Findings 15 & 16, Report, p. 9.

Likewise, the student did not receive Adult Support for a portion of the day on November 20, 2025. Ten days after this complaint was filed, the student informed the parents that she did not have paraeducator support for Art, Library, Recess and transition from the nurse's office (Findings 5 and 6, Report, p. 11). This means the district failed to implement the student's IEP regarding Adult Support on one day. The Appeal Committee notes that holding a district to a standard of perfection in implementing an IEP is inconsistent with current legal standards set by the highest courts to consider this question, and it will not do so in this appeal.

In their response to the appeal, the parents argue that "physical safety services" are "not analogous to occasional academic service delays." The Appeal Committee agrees, but also recognizes that the law does not require a district to provide a risk free environment and that this student did not go completely unsupported by a health provider at any time while at school.

The parent's response to this appeal also alleges, that the incidents in this complaint are not the only instances of missed services and that there is a "historical pattern" of missed services. The Appeal Committee has jurisdiction only over the current complaint report and cannot consider other allegations that were not addressed in the complaint report.

The finding of a violation of law in Issue One is reversed and corrective action for this issue is rescinded.

Issue Two

> Did USD #383 fail to issue a complete PWN in response to the student's September 17, 2025 IEP meeting as required by 34 CFR §300.503(b)?

The parents alleged that the district did not include all of the information required by IDEA (Report, p. 16).

The investigator found that the district was out of compliance "due to the issuance of an incomplete PWN on September 18, 2025 (Report, p. 23)." That conclusion was based on the following:

> Regarding the allegation that the PWN does not include all of the information required by IDEA. The following decisions included in the PWN do not include specific information as required by 34 CFR §300.503(b):
> - Paraprofessional at arm's length, which lacks
> - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
> - Other factors relevant to the refusal.
> - Nursing service minutes, which lacks
> - Options considered and why rejected,
> - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
> - Other factors relevant to the refusal.
> - Student specific evacuation plan, which lacks
> - Options considered and why rejected,
> - Description of the data used as a basis for refusal, and
> - Other factors relevant to the refusal.
> Please note, IDEA does not require each section of the PWN to be exhaustive, but does require there is enough information to help parents understand why an action was accepted or refused, not simply that an action is refused. (Report, p. 22).

We examined each of these three findings:

Paraprofessional at arm's length – The investigator said the PWN was sufficient except for two required components:

4. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
   a. The PWN states, "Student's current IEP, progress monitoring data, and staff observation records."
   b. This statement lacks a description of the data considered and only includes a list of data sources. This section needs to include a description of how this refusal is related to the student's current IEP, progress monitoring or staff observation records. Additionally, the student's relevant history of fractures due to osteopenia shared by the parents in the meeting is an important piece of data but was not noted as a consideration,
5. Other factors relevant to the proposal or refusal-
   a. The PWN states, "The district remains committed to providing FAPE in the LRE as required under IDEA, and the Kansas Process Handbook. All decisions are based on [the student's] individualized needs and the legal authority of the district to administer staffing, safety, and communication procedures. The IEP team remains committed to reconvening to discuss [the student's] goals once updated data and team availability allow for meaningful review and input. Parents retain the right to request an IEP team meeting at any time to discuss proposed revisions."

b. The PWN includes the statement above for all of the actions proposed/refused discussed at the IEP team meeting. However, each action proposed/refused should include specific factors related to each topic discussed and decided upon. It is likely that factors considered for decisions such as how close adult support should be are likely different than those related to creating an individualized evacuation plan or increasing nursing minutes.

The Appeal Committee agrees with the investigator's conclusion and her explanation of why this portion of the PWN was inadequate. We could not have said it better.

Nursing service minutes -

The investigator said the PWN was inadequate for this service with regard to the following components:

1. Options considered and why options were rejected-
   a. The PWN states, "Removing nursing minutes - Rejected because [the student] continues to require health-related support for self-catheterization."
   b. The parents clarified in their complaint and interview that the discussion also included their request to increase the nursing to 24 minutes which was echoed by the nurse explaining that this was typically the amount of time it required to support the student's needs. The audio recording of the IEP meeting confirms this.
2. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
   a. The PWN states, "Input from nursing staff and parents regarding medical needs."
   b. This section needs to reflect the content of the input from the nursing staff and parents and how this information was used to come to a decision, not simply that their input was considered.
3. Other factors relevant to the proposal or refusal- As noted previously, it is not sufficient to include a statement which does not address the specific decision.

The Appeal Committee agrees with the investigator's analysis. With regard to the data used as a basis for not removing nursing services, the PWN needs to "describe" the data it used as the basis for the refusal. What input from nursing staff and parents regarding medical needs was used? The Appeal Committee cannot find the answer to that question in this PWN.

The investigator found as follows:

1. Description of action- The PWN states, "[The LEA] is denying this request. [The student] will follow the district's building-wide evacuation plan, which is fully compliant with emergency management standards."
2. Explanation of refusal- The PWN states, "[The LEA] is denying this request. [The student] will follow the district's building-wide evacuation plan, which already meets emergency management requirements."
3. Options considered and why options were rejected-
    a. The PWN states, "Developing an individualized evacuation plan - Rejected as duplicative and unnecessary given a compliant building-wide plan."
    b. This explanation fails to note the considerations raised by the parents including the student's mobility challenges and vulnerabilities. The concerns raised by the parents were not related to whether the evacuation plan met emergency management requirements, but rather how the student's safety, given mobility challenges, would be addressed.
4. Description of the data used as basis for the proposed or refused action-
    a. The PWN states, "District building evacuation plan reviewed in consultation with administration."
    b. This is not a sufficient description of data which needs to include how the LEA believes the district building evacuation plan accommodates this student's needs..

The Appeal Committee finds this portion of the PWN to be responsive, but overly vague. Presumably, the district refused a specific evaluation plan for the student because it determined that the district's building-wide evacuation plan meets emergency management requirements including the individual needs of this student, making other options unnecessary. However, the explanation of refusal is the answer to a "why" or "how" question. it should explain why, or how, the district's building-wide evacuation plan meets the individual needs of this student. That's the issue confronting this team. The IEP team made the decision that the evacuation plan met this student's needs but did not say how or why it did so. The Appeal Committee should be able to answer that question after reading the PWN, but, even after a careful reading, it cannot.

The district's appeal asserts that any defect in the PWN did not adversely affect the parents ability to participate in the decision making process because the report did not identify anything that the parents failed to understand, any meeting they were prevented from requesting, or any service the student lost because of the wording of the PWN. Without that connection, the district argues, there is no legal basis for a noncompliance finding. it may be correct that any defect in the PWN did not adversely affect the parents' ability to participate in the decision making process because these parents appear to be very knowledgeable about their rights under the law. However, parent sophistication does not excuse the district from following the law. The Appeal Committee agrees with the conclusion in the complaint report that the district is out of compliance with the law on this issue.

This conclusion may appear to be inconsistent with the conclusion in Issue 1. We do not think so because there is a separate element that arose in this appeal. After receiving the investigator's well written report, including a detailed explanation of the defects in the district's PWN, the district's appeal indicates that it has a significant misunderstanding of what constitutes a compliant PWN, saying:

> 4. The investigator imposed requirements not found in law
>
> The report effectively requires districts to include detailed explanations of how data were weighed and how each parental concern influenced every decision. That level of detail is not required by IDEA or Kansas regulations.
>
> Imposing such a standard creates an impossible moving target and converts subjective preferences into compliance findings. That is not how Prior Written Notice is evaluated under the law.
> 5. At most, the report identifies a drafting preference

Even taking the report at face value, the concerns raised relate to how the PWN was written, not whether it met legal requirements. IDEA does not authorize findings of noncompliance based on stylistic preferences absent harm.

The Appeal Committee disagrees with this description of the report. The deficiencies found by the investigator are not merely "drafting preferences" nor did they require "detailed explanations of how data were weighed and how each parental concern influenced every decision." The requirements for a compliant PWN are written in plain language, appropriately described in the complaint report.

The Special Education and Title Services (SETS) team has a "general supervision" responsibility to monitor and ensure that Kansas school districts know how to comply with state and federal regulations (34 C.F.R. 300.600). For that reason, like a hearing officer under 34 C.F.R. 300.513(a)(3), a state education agency may order a school district to comply with the law even when the violation is a procedural violation that did not deprive a student of a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) nor a parent of meaningful participation.

For the reasons stated herein, the Appeal Committee affirms the conclusions of the investigator in Issue 2, that The LEA is out of compliance due to the issuance of an incomplete PWN on September 18, 2025, and that corrective actions are required.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is reversed on Issue 1 and sustained on Issue 2. The corrective actions for Issue 1 are rescinded. The corrective actions for Issue 2 remain, except that the training activity required by corrective action 2 must include all of the required content of a PWN in conformance with the description provided in the complaint report and in this decision, specifically including:

(1) A description of the action proposed or refused by the agency;
(2) An explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action;
(3) A description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action;
(4) A description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected; and
(5) A description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 7h day of January, 2026.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #437
ON NOVEMBER 16, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 10. 2-25

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, ---------, by their guardian, ---------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the guardian as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #437, Auburn/Washburn Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #437.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on November 16, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on December 16, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), imposed a communication restriction that denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in the Individualized Education Program (IEP) process and educational decision-making. ISSUE THREE: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided all required supplementary aids, services, and related services as written in the Student's IEP, specifically regarding the provision of paraprofessional support, transportation, transition and vocational services, supervision, and behavioral supports. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b); 34 CFR § 300.323.

ISSUE FOUR: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, reviewed and revised the Student's IEP following a significant change in circumstances and a safety event. K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2); 34 CFR § 300.324(b).

ISSUE FIVE: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing IDEA, provided the Parent with the Student's quarterly IEP progress reports. K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3); 34 CFR §300.320(a)(3).

ISSUE SIX: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parent a copy of the Student's current IEP and educational records upon request. K.A.R 91-40-18(d), K.A.R. 91-40-25(a); 34 CFR §§ 300.322(f), 300.501(a).

ISSUE SEVEN: Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the provision of a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) in a safe environment after an alleged incident with a staff member. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

Investigation of Complaint

The Complaint Investigator interviewed the Residential Caregiver on December 11, 2025 and the Parent on December 12, 2025. The following LEA staff were interviewed on December 17, 2025: the Transition Program Coordinator and the Director of Secondary Special Services.

In completing this investigation, the Complaint Investigator reviewed documentation provided by the Parent and the LEA. Although additional documentation was provided and reviewed, the following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

1. Emails, 11/25/24 - 12/18/25
2. Student Account, 11/11/25
3. School Calendar for August and September, 2025-26 School Year
4. Individualized Education Program, 12/12/24
5. Notice of Meeting, 10/15/25
6. Prior Written Notice for Identification, Initial Services, Placement, Change in Services, Change of Placement and Request for Consent, 12/12/24
7. Student Schedule, 2025-26 School Year
8. Transition/Paraeducator Support Services, 12/2024-12/2025

Background Information

This investigation involved a 20-year-old student enrolled in their third year in the 18-21 transition program at a high school in USD #437. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability under the categories of Autism and Emotional Disability per the IDEA. Their strengths are described as being personable, able to verbalize concerns in an appropriate manner, and able to identify emotions. The Student's functional needs reportedly align with their diagnoses. The Student will turn 21 on February 3, 2026.

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On November 25, 2024, at 11:26 a.m., the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator to inform them the Student had not been picked up for class at the Technical School. The Transition Program Coordinator responded at 11:46 a.m. to apologize for the error and stated, "[The Assistant Principal] handles that on days off. … We will be there to get [the Student] asap."
2. On December 11, 2024, the Transition Program Coordinator emailed the Parent a list of program options for the Student:
    a. "Pre-ETS" was available to serve the Student while in the 18-21 program, providing once-a-month services at the High School, services outside of the High School, and over the summer months, but was unable to pay for courses at the University.
    b. Vocational Rehabilitation was able to pay for courses at the University if the Student exited the 18-21 program.
    c. An internship opportunity at the LEA print shop was secured for two days per week.
    d. An internship was also secured to assist the LEA athletic department with graphic design.
    e. Based on these options, the Student's schedule could be configured in multiple ways:
        i. Go to the print shop twice a week, the University to work on interview, social-emotional, and independent living skills, and the graphic design internship every afternoon.
        ii. Go to the print shop twice a week, a job site three days a week, and the graphic design internship every afternoon.
        iii. Go to the print shop twice a week, a job site three days a week, the graphic design internship three days a week, grocery shopping on Thursdays, and cooking a meal on Fridays.

3. An IEP dated December 12, 2024 and in effect until December 11, 2025 included the following relevant information:
    a. Participants were listed as the Student, the Parent, the Transition Program Coordinator, the Assistant Principal, and the School Social Worker.
    b. Post-School Goals:
        i. Education & Training: "After exiting school services, [the Student] will pursue training at a technical school with programs related to [their] career interests, particularly in the area of computer programming.
            1. Transition services needed: "[The Student] will be enrolled in courses which will provide skills supporting interests and needs toward future employment. Continue educational opportunities within Technical School curriculum."
            2. "Application to Vocational Rehabilitation Services will be made to provide additional training and services for future employment."
        ii. Employment: "After exiting school services, [the Student] will seek part-time employment within the community as [they] pursue training, [which] may include intern programs provided by support agencies."
            1. Transition services needed: "[The Student] will be instructed regarding behaviors and appropriate interactions related to the employment setting as well as explore various careers related to [their] interests."
        iii. Independent Living: "After exiting school services, [the Student] [would] continue living within [their] current foster home while within age eligibility."
            1. Transition services needed: "Instruction within the special education setting and the community will be provided to develop social interactions and emotional regulation in a variety of setting[s] providing skills to manage interactions within the community."
    c. Additional Course Information: "[The Student] will continue to attend school in the 18-21 program through the [20]25-26 school year when they] will age out of eligibility."
    d. Consideration of Kansas Vocational Rehabilitation: "With Parental consent, Vocational Rehabilitation will be notified when the Student is within three semesters of graduation or program completion."
    e. Goal Progress Reporting: "Parents will receive written reports of the student progress toward meeting annual IEP goals in accordance with the [LEA's] established grade reporting schedule."
    f. Goal 1: "When discussing post-high school decisions, specifically related to [their] transition for independence, [the Student] will be able to demonstrate emotional readiness for the transition by independently describing goals and needed support in all major life domains (Post-secondary Education/Training, Employment, Independent Living/Community Participation) at at [sic] 5 out of 5 times [the Student] discusses these topics specific goals [sic] by [the] end of the IEP as measured by anecdotal records."

i. A Progress Report dated October 10, 2025 indicated "Progress adequate to meet annual goal" for three reporting periods. Additional comments noted the following:

1. March 14, 2025: The Student cultivated independence through the 18-21 program, balancing a college class with employment opportunities. The Student was learning to navigate a schedule, time meals, complete college-level homework, and develop self-advocacy amongst a variety of peers with varying abilities.
2. May 28, 2025: The Student demonstrated "significant and consistent" progress toward post-secondary transition goals, independently articulating needs regarding education, employment, and independent living at a rate of five out of five times. They successfully completed college-level coursework at the University and exhibited emotional growth by considering others' perspectives during conflict. Additionally, the Student maintained resilience and a positive attitude while navigating challenging real-world work environments, as confirmed by ongoing anecdotal records and documented observations.
3. October 10, 2025: The Student continued to make "significant progress" regarding understanding their limits and strengths in terms of their University classes and the work that it took to keep up with them and earn a passing grade. The Student had grown significantly in how they got the work done.

g. Goal 2: "When provided with weekly assignments related to [their] internship opportunities, [the Student] will be able to will [sic] independently complete tasks such as assembling print orders, organizing materials, or creating event programs at 90% accuracy and on-time submission in 8 out of 10 observed opportunities by [the] end of the school year as measured by Observation."

i. A Progress Report dated October 10, 2025 indicated "Progress adequate to meet annual goal" for three reporting periods. Additional comments noted the following:

1. March 14, 2025: The Student had been pursuing their academic experience and would increase their opportunities to complete orders and organize materials at the High School, and was doing a "good job" at the print shop twice a week.
2. May 28, 2025: The Student progressed toward the goal of independently completing internship assignments, despite limited access to the print shop caused by scheduling conflicts. When present, they demonstrated increased independence and accuracy in assembling orders, organizing materials, and creating event programs. The team noted that upcoming schedule adjustments were expected to provide more opportunities for the Student to improve productivity and meet accuracy targets (8 out of 10 observed opportunities for on-time submission and 90% accuracy).

3. October 10, 2025: The Student demonstrated the following skills 100% of observed opportunities at both job sites in September and October 2025: on time and prepared, follows directions, demonstrates respect to everyone, stays on task, stays in assigned location, appropriate and clear communication, and demonstrates a positive attitude when at work. The Student achieved 100% for finishing assigned jobs for both job sites in September 2025, and one job site in October 2025. They achieved 83% for the other job site in October 2025 and needed some prompting. In the areas of asking for help when needed and accepting feedback or help, the Student achieved 100% for both job sites in September 2025 and 83% for both job sites in October 2025. Overall, the Student had increased their independent work, was able to complete tasks with three or more steps, and only required periodic supervision. Additionally, the Student was able to focus for two or more hours at a time and was completing a variety of tasks. Jobsite Monthly Progress Report and Job Coach Feedback forms from September and October 2025 recorded this data.

h. Goal 3: "When engaged in [their] internship assignments, [the Student] will be able to demonstrate appropriate workplace communication by engaging in professional interactions with supervisors and coworkers, including using email or verbal communication at 13 [out of] 15 on [their] performance rubric success in 4 out of 5 opportunities by [the] end of the school year as measured by Rubrics [sic]."

i. A Progress Report dated October 13, 2025 indicated the Student had reached their target of 13 on May 23, 2025 and referenced the aforementioned skill achievements. No other details were provided.

i. Parent Input section: "[The Student] needs monitoring around electronics so that [they don't] have the chance to play games when [the Student] isn't being directly monitored and is supposed to be doing work. [The Parent] will get [the Student] set up to take a class at [the] University during school hours in the Spring and the school will provide the support for that class."

j. Behavior Intervention Plan and Positive Behavior Supports

   i. Problem Behaviors: "[The Student] may shut down and refuse to work, putting [their] head down on [the] desk upon correction or intervention of [their] behaviors. During these behaviors, [they] may purposely interfere with the engagement of other students."

ii. Precursor Behaviors: "[The Student] will be observed [to be] inattentive to assigned task, using [their] fidget inappropriately, or ask for a privilege [they have] not earned. This occurs most often when [they do] not see the relevance of content and [have] been instructed to engage in the activity."

iii. Setting Events and Antecedents: "Identify Circumstances that appear to come before the behavior or make the problem behavior more likely. [The Student] responds negatively when not given [their] way (told no) or does not easily understand a new concept [they have] been given. [The Student] becomes overwhelmed when [they are] unable to be successful in tasks given [them] or believes content is too difficult for [them]. This most frequently occurs when [they have] been denied the use of [their] computer, interfering with [their] ability to play games."

iv. Hypothesis of Behavior Function: "Behaviors are believed to escape or avoid tasks, activities, or gain access to preferred activities, items, or people. [The Student] denies any need for social[-]emotional instruction, [and] therefore, refuses to engage. If [they] feel content is too difficult for [them] [the Student] may also respond negatively. [The Student] focuses on playing computer games and will react negatively when this is denied to [them]."

v. Replacement Behaviors: "[The Student] will be taught to evaluate the situation and identify the problem. [They] will determine the degree of the problem and identify possible solutions to resolve the situation. [They] will also be taught skills to self-regulate [their] behaviors."

vi. Proactive Strategies: "Positive Behavior is a small structured environment with a low student[-]to[-]adult ratio. When [the] [S]tudent need[s] to separate themselves from [a] large, more stimulating setting, options are provided to support the [S]tudent. Social skills instruction is provided during teachable moments and in role[-]playing and contrived situations."

    1. "Conflict resolutions and stress reduction strategies taught in small group setting, role[-]playing and contrived situations."
    2. "Teach appropriate communication skills, such as how to ask for clarification/assistance, request a break, move to more quiet setting to work, [and] advocate for [their] own needs."
    3. "Learn to identify triggers for undesired behaviors and how to respond in a more appropriate way."
    4. "Teach self-control and self-management skills in the areas of anger management and coping skills."
    5. "Teach replacement behavior for when [the Student] is frustrated/overloaded [of] [providing] an individual signal to [the] teacher [when the Student] feels the need to leave the class. When [they are] overloaded, [the Student] needs to be directed to go to [Positive Behavior Support] PBS for a break."

6. "School staff will greet [the Student] positively and will provide [them] prompts (as [they] enter class) [on] what to expect each class period."
7. "Staff will seek opportunities to provide positive attention/reinforcement as checking for understanding and compliant behaviors."
8. "Teachers will provide non-verbal prompts (touch on the desk, nonverbal signal) to provide [an] opportunity to self-correct [the Student's] behaviors as they surface, prior to [their] participating in conflict."
9. "Provide early notifications of transitions within the class period."
10. "PBS is not to replace the consequences which occur when choices are made to violate [the] student code of conduct."

vii. Reactive Strategies: "[The Student] may request (or teacher may direct) a ten[-]minute break during an assigned task but return to tasks following the break. [They] may also request [an] opportunity to discuss [their] frustration. Upon communicating the need for a break, [the Student] may leave class for [a] short period to reflect on behavior or take a sensory break, then return to interact with others in [an] appropriate manner. Removal may include [the Student] stepping outside [the] classroom with staff. [The Student] will indicate [their] preference for break location prior to leaving the class."

viii. Data Collection Method: "Daily Data Collection"

1. In their written response to interview questions, the Transition Program Director stated behavior progress was tracked daily through collaborative staff consultation, internal communications, job skills evaluations, and course grades. Progress monitoring shifted to a narrative data collection format to better capture vocational growth and behavioral successes. The Student's behavioral presentation was consistently low-intensity or non-existent. Consequently, the team's focus shifted to maintaining stability rather than intervention.
2. Additionally, the Transition Program Director noted, the Student successfully attended college-level courses on Tuesdays and Thursdays with LEA staff support, and achieved an American College Testing (ACT) score of 21, demonstrating high-level academic capability. Data suggested the Student's primary need was for academic testing accommodations rather than behavioral supports.

3. Responsibility for monitoring was shared between classroom teachers and support staff, who provided weekly or bi-weekly updates to ensure the effectiveness of the Student's highly individualized program.

ix. Staff Training Procedures: "Include necessary staff training in the IEP. Staff training will occur within program[.]"

k. Program Supports and Modifications in all subjects included:

i. Extended time when given an assignment to complete independently, to show mastery of a skill, not to exceed 1.5 to 2 times of allotted time to accommodate breaks.

ii. Alternate setting when given an assignment/assessment to complete to minimize distractions, until completion of the task.

iii. Allow frequent breaks when the Student demonstrates difficulty with self-regulation; may be student-initiated or staff-directed.

iv. Use of a calculator when given math operations to complete; not to include basic math operations or assessment.

l. A disclaimer in the Services and Supplementary Aids section read in part: "The school is unable to provide regularly scheduled special education and/or related services in the following situations: inclement weather closures, scheduled school closures, unforeseen emergencies, student absences, school field trips, assemblies, late arrival weeks, emergency drills, summer break, and other unplanned school or partial closures."

m. Direct services included:

i. Vocational Special Education in a community[-]based direct instruction setting with "job coach support" for 120 minutes a day, five days a week.

ii. Special Education Services for "job prep" outside the regular education classroom at the High School for 45 minutes a day, five days a week.

iii. Specialized Transportation for "extracurricular" activities for 30 minutes a day, five days a week.

iv. Specialized Transportation to and from the Student's job site for 40 minutes a day, five days a week.

v. Special Education Services at non-school locations (inclusion setting for the Technical School) for 192 minutes a day, five days a week.

vi. Social Work Services in a Special Education setting for 20 minutes a day, one day every four weeks. Notably, in a different section of the IEP, this service was listed to occur for 20 minutes every two weeks.

4. A PWN was issued on December 12, 2024 outlining the IEP services for the Student. The explanation of action stated, "It is proposed for [the Student] to receive the services outlined above because [they continue] to show success and improvements when provided the services as stated." The options considered and rejected section noted "It was considered reducing [the Student's] services for class at [the Technical School], but that was rejected because the team agrees that [the Student] continues to require supervision and access to adult guidance and accountability around electronic use, staying in the classroom, and appropriate behaviors around food and prefered [sic] objects." The PWN noted the proposed changes did not require parental consent, however, the parental consent section was electronically signed by the Parent and dated March 7, 2025.

5. On January 16, 2025, the Parent requested copies of the Student's current IEP and progress report from the previous semester in an email to the Transition Program Coordinator. The Parent requested a copy of the Student's IEP via email to the Transition Program Coordinator again on January 27, 2025 and January 30, 2025, stating they also left a voicemail.
   In an email to the Transition Program Coordinator and the Assistant Principal on January 30, 2025, the Parent requested the Assistant Principal send a copy of the Student's IEP, mentioning the Transition Program Coordinator was having technical issues. The Assistant Principal replied on February 3, 2025 with a copy of the IEP, and expressed further technical difficulties obtaining progress reports.
6. On February 14, 2025 at 7:56 a.m., the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator to let them know the Student had not been picked up for their 8:05 a.m. class at the University. The Transition Program Coordinator responded at 8:10 a.m. to apologize, stating "… the off days weren't set up like they had been last semester. … I will look at the calendars myself and arrange transportation for the rest of the semester." The Transition Program Coordinator indicated there was no transportation available for that day, and they would have the Assistant Principal send a message to the University professor.
7. On February 28, 2025, the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator, stating the Student had no paraeducator support at the University that day and escalated during class. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Transition Program Coordinator and the Director of Secondary Special Services were unable to confirm or refute this claim.
8. On March 4, 2025, the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator, stating, "[The Student] reports that there was no class yesterday at [the] University when [they] got there. [They] said [their] para[educator] left home [sic] there alone at [the] University for an hour … with no support or ride back to the [School]." The Parent reported the Student indicated neither their work study nor internship accommodations had begun. The LEA indicated they had no record of this communication.
9. On March 5, 2025, the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator to report the Student was frequently late to the University class due to inconsistent transportation from the LEA. The Parent stated they were unavailable to drive the Student to the University "as [the Student's] IEP designates [transportation] as the responsibility of the [S]chool."

10. On April 7, 2025, the Parent emailed the Transition Program Coordinator inquiring about the Student's work-study assignment. They stated the assignment was supposed to start in January 2025 and there had been no updates. The Parent requested more support for the Student during their class at the University and an update regarding the Vocational Rehabilitation program support discussed at a previous IEP meeting. No evidence of a response from the LEA to this email was provided.
11. In an email to the Parent dated April 18, 2025, the Transition Program Coordinator noted they discussed the following accommodations for the Student for their class at the University:
    a. Extended time (1.5 times) for assessments.
    b. Extra three days for assignments.
        i. The Student needed to tell the professor in an email if they were going to need the extra time.
        ii. Extra time could not be used for every assignment so the Student did not get backed up.
        iii. The Student needed to tell the professor the date they intended to turn the assignment in.
        iv. Assignments due on the last day of class could not be extended.
    c. No extra time on "long" assignments, i.e., a paper with a due date a month away.
    d. The Student would have a note taker.
    e. These accommodations could be adjusted any time in the semester.

    The Transition Program Coordinator indicated they would send formal documentation for the Student to sign and return. They stated they would help the Student turn in the paperwork. The Parent thanked the Transition Program Coordinator for the information and asked if they had received the Parent's previous emails. No response from the LEA to this email was provided.

12. In an email exchange with the Parent on May 14 and May 16, 2025, the Transition Program Coordinator said, "You're right, you have all the right to be irritated and it's my fault. It's been a year and in the last month, more exhausting than I have the capacity to carry on my own. … those were valid concerns and completely a result of my lack of communication. … I dropped the ball with you and I am honestly so sorry." They also explained things that had made it challenging for them to "catch up."
    The Parent thanked the Transition Program Coordinator for their response and expressed concern regarding the Student not receiving necessary support and what they considered to be stagnant progress during the semester. Specifically, the Parent mentioned plans that were discussed to transition the Student to a new job site placement out of their current one, which never materialized, despite the Parent following up multiple times. Additionally, the Parent contacted the Vocational Rehabilitation Program directly due to a lack of updates. The Vocational Rehabilitation Program reportedly informed the Parent they had attempted to contact the High School staff multiple times, most recently in April 2025, but received no response. Finally, the Parent emphasized the Student required more structured planning and was discouraged by the lack of follow-through on their transition goals.

In their written response to interview questions, the Transition Program Coordinator clarified, "The phrasing 'dropping the ball' was used as a professional de-escalation strategy. At that time, the [Parent's] communication style and frequency had created a high-intensity environment. My comment was intended to validate [the Parent] and maintain a collaborative tone despite the challenging nature of the exchange. It was a gesture of professional transparency regarding communication timelines and was not an admission of a failure to implement the Student's IEP or provide required services. We remained in compliance with all service delivery throughout this period." Notably, no concrete evidence was provided to contradict the Parent's claims regarding the Student not receiving necessary supports for the second term of 2024-25.

13. A letter to all parents dated August 6, 2025 stated the 18-21 Transition Program would begin on September 2, 2025. Attached was a school calendar, showing "9th/New" students beginning school on August 12, 2025 and "10-12th" students beginning school on August 13, 2025.

    The Parent replied to this letter on August 11, 2025 asking, "For [the Student], how will this work since [they attend] the [University] and need [their] IEP services prior to September 2, 2025?"

14. In an email to the Parent dated August 14, 2025, the Transition Program Coordinator stated, "[The Student] can plan to ride the bus to school in the mornings on Tuesdays and Thursdays … or we can come pick [them] up on the 16 – whatever you prefer. If you would like [the Student] to come the other days as well, [they're] welcome to … but we're not ready to start any 18-21 content yet because of all the other classes we have to get started first with this huge freshman class and the late start for both teachers and support staff. If you'd like [the Student] to come afterwards, then we can bring [them] home after class on those days."

    During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Transition Program Coordinator confirmed they provided transportation services to the Student for their University class beginning the first day, which was Saturday, August 16, 2025.

15. On October 13, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the Principal and the Assistant Principal of Student Services stating, "Beginning Tuesday, October 14, [2025] all communication between [the Parent] will need to go through me. This is for any student who resides with [them]. … Please make appropriate staff aware of this change effective Tuesday, October 14 [2025]." The Director of Secondary Special Services also relayed they would be out of the office from October 20 to October 24, 2025, and for that week, communications should go through the Director of Elementary Special Services.

16. According to the LEA, they informed the Parent of the communication plan through the Parent's attorney on October 14, 2025. The plan required all communications from the Parent to route through the Director of Secondary Special Services. Regarding the Student, "The Parent continues to receive all required IDEA notices and meeting invitations. The Parent remains able to request IEP meetings, propose revisions, and participate in decision-making. The [Director of Secondary Special Services] coordinates all information with the case manager and service providers to ensure accuracy and timeliness. No meetings have been denied, delayed, or limited due to the communication plan." (
17. A Notice of Meeting dated October 15, 2025 showed a proposed virtual meeting date of December 5, 2025 for an annual IEP review.
18. On October 17, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the Student's progress reports for October 2025 to the Parent.
    In their written response to interview questions, the Transition Program Coordinator stated "[The LEA] identified a procedural communication gap" regarding delivering the Student's progress reports for March 14, 2025 and May 28, 2025. They stated while data was collected and recorded, it was not properly distributed to the Parent until October 10, 2025. The Transition Program Coordinator reported the LEA has since "established a new 'Primary Reporter' protocol to ensure clear accountability for future document delivery and designated scheduled dates and times to meet and guarantee the team has all progress reported successfully sent and documented."
19. In an email to the Parent on October 17, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services stated they would be out of town for the next school week, therefore, the "primary point of contact" for the Parent would be the Director of Elementary Special Services.
    The Parent replied on October 18, 2025 and said, "I do not consent to this ongoing communication restriction[.]" They described communicating through the Director of Elementary Special Services as "inappropriate, unreasonable, and unlawful" because the Student attended the High School. They expressed the restriction resulted in a denial of parent participation.
20. Emails were exchanged between November 11, 2025 and November 13, 2025 regarding a safety incident involving the Student and Instructional Aide 1. Relevant information included the following:
    On November 11, 2025, the Parent emailed the Student's written account of a "serious safety concern" to the Assistant Principal of Student Services. The Student wrote, "During lunch, I playfully threw a ranch packet at [Instructional Aide 1], which [they] then yelled 'that's the last time you will ever throw anything at me,' then [they] pulled out a butter knife and pointed it at me. I personally took that as a threat, and feared for my safety for 15-20 minutes." The Student indicated there were multiple witnesses and described wanting to leave after the incident, but decided not to. The Parent reported the Student was also uncomfortable because Instructional Aide 1 knew where they lived due to transporting the Student home from a job site the previous year. The Parent requested an investigation of the incident and "no further unsupervised contact" between the Student and Instructional Aide 1. They also requested confirmation of the Student's report being documented.

On November 12, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services confirmed receipt of the email detailing the Student's concerns and stated the High School staff were "actively looking into those concerns," and the Director of Secondary Special Services would share more information as soon as they received it.

Later that day, the Parent sent their request to the Principal because they believed the situation had "escalated." They provided an update stating the Student had reported Instructional Aide 1 treated them "worse than yesterday by being hostile around [them]" and Instructional Aide 1's sibling, Instructional Aide 2, treated the Student differently and would not speak to them. The Student also reported they avoided the lunchroom since Instructional Aide 1 was in there alone, and the Student did not feel safe being alone with Instructional Aide 1. Instead, the Student claimed they went to the bathroom and sat there for approximately 30 minutes. According to the Student, they reported their experiences to the Transition Program Coordinator, who allegedly was not informed of the November 11, 2025 incident or the email the Parent sent to the Assistant Principal outlining the concerns. The Parent also claimed the email was instead forwarded to the Director of Secondary Special Services, who did not communicate with the staff in charge of supervising the Student and providing their IEP services.

On November 13, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services replied, "We have visited with the staff members involved and put measures in place to support [the Student] and ensure [the Student] continues to feel safe in [their] school environment. We take all concerns seriously and have addressed this matter appropriately. Because this involves personnel, we are not able to share specific details about our review or any resulting actions." The Residential Caregiver responded, "Exactly what measures are being put in place with regard to [the Student's] school environment and [their] safety?" The Director of Secondary Special Services reiterated, "While I cannot share details related to personnel or internal staffing actions, I can confirm that all appropriate measures have been taken to support [the Student] and ensure [their] continued safety and well-being at school. This includes reviewing the situation with the necessary staff, reinforcing expectations, and ensuring [the Student] has consistent adults available to support [the Student] during the school day."

21. According to the LEA, the timeline of actions regarding the November 11, 2025 safety incident was as follows:
    a. "11/11/25 at 7:03 p.m.: [The LEA] received the [Parent's] initial email."
    b. "11/12/25 at 1:22 p.m.: [The LEA] responded to acknowledge the concern and confirm that a review was underway."
    c. "11/12/25 at 4:24 p.m.: [The Parent] sent additional concerns."
    d. "11/12/25 at 4:27 p.m.: [The LEA] provided additional context after reviewing the situation and conducting an internal personnel investigation."

e. "11/13/25 at 5:16 p.m.: [The Parent] inquired about the specific safety measures being implemented."

f. "11/14/25 at 3:53 p.m.: [The LEA] responded, confirming that appropriate steps had been taken to ensure the Student's safety, including reviewing expectations with staff and ensuring consistent adult support during the school day. [The LEA] also confirmed ongoing monitoring and willingness to adjust supports if needed."

In their written response to interview questions, the Transition Program Coordinator stated as part of the LEA's investigation, they reviewed the Student's Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP). The LEA determined the safety incident "was an isolated event involving a staff member and did not stem from a deficiency in [the Student's] specific programming or behavior support."\

22. A 2025-26 Student Schedule for the Student indicated the first semester spanned August 1, 2025 through January 3, 2026. The schedule listed periods 1 through 4 and the "Advisory" period as being in the "Transition Skill 1" class, periods 5 through 7 being in "Job Experience," and the "Activity" period being in "Instructional Management," all under the supervision of the Transition Program Coordinator. Additionally, an Official Transcript dated December 3, 2025 showed the Student's enrollment date for the 2025-26 school year was August 12, 2025.
23. An undated typed document titled "Transition/paraeducator support services" included the Student's IEP services as outlined in their service summary, and contained the following note:
    a. "We provide coverage for all the days the [S]tudent attends [the Technical School]. [Instructional Aide 3] is the primary individual who supports the [S]tudent at [the Technical School]. On the days [Instructional Aide 3] is absent, [Instructional Aide 4] provides support for the student."
24. A data report indicated the Student utilized transportation services provided by the LEA between August 19, 2025 and December 3, 2025. The report recorded a total of 266 "RFID" scans on Vehicle 11 for runs designated as "HS/MS AM" and "HS/MS PM." The Student consistently boarded at the same stop in the morning, typically between 7:00 a.m. and 7:16 a.m., and traveled to the High School, arriving around 7:30 a.m. Afternoon return trips generally departed the High School between 3:00 p.m. and 3:08 p.m., arriving back at the morning boarding spot around 3:18 p.m. Throughout the reporting period, the Student was consistently picked up from school earlier on Wednesdays, between 2:38 p.m. and 2:45 p.m. The schedule indicated several days with significantly earlier afternoon pickups at approximately 1:40 p.m. (September 17, October 1, and November 5, 2025). One unique drop-off occurred on October 31, 2025 to a different location.

Residential Caregiver Interview

25. In an interview with the Investigator, the Residential Caregiver stated they "met with a lot of resistance from the school" for wanting the Student to participate in the Transition Program. They shared the Student was highly adaptable and "people think that [the Student is] a little more … intelligent than what [the Student] is. " Therefore, the LEA told the Residential Caregiver the Student "wasn't disabled enough" for the Transition Program.
26. According to the Residential Caregiver, the LEA based its resistance on the Student's ability to take a college-level course at the Technical School. However, the Residential Caregiver stated the Student was failing the class before they had paraeducator support.
27. The Residential Caregiver believed the Student should have job coaching, transportation services, and paraeducator support for their class at the Technical School through the Transition Program. They believed the job coaching should include learning to handle money. They recalled at least two occasions when the LEA did not transport the Student, but did not specify dates. The Residential Caregiver stated, "It's not until we start filing complaints that they kind of changed their tune as far as para[educator] support." They indicated the LEA was slow to provide the Student's supports.
28. Regarding the November 11, 2025 incident involving Instructional Aide 1 brandishing a butter knife at the Student, the Residential Caregiver clarified they were not asking the LEA to share staff disciplinary information. Rather, they wanted to know "What exactly are the safety measures you're putting in place to ensure [the Student] feels safe … What safety measures are you putting in place to ensure that it doesn't happen again?" They stated they were not provided any safety measures for the Student.

Parent Interview

29. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated their understanding was the Transition Program services were individualized "to [the Student's] specific needs and to [their] specific education and goals that [they] wanted to work on, … going to [the Technical School] and just independent type living skills so that [the Student] can go out in the workforce and look for employment." They stated they understood the High School would facilitate "opportunities and supports and services … to meet those goals."
30. The Parent stated the Student needs one-to-one support to stay on task, assist in self-regulation, and "to make sure that [the Student is] successful and has the accommodations and supports that [the Student] needs to get those skills that [the Student] wants."
31. The Parent described the Student's offsite services as a collaboration between the Transition Program and the offsite providers. They reported the High School provided a paraeducator to work with the Student at the Technical School and the University and collaborate with the Technical School or University staff on behalf of the Student. The Parent reported the Student worked directly with a supervisor at their job and also had a one-to-one job coach supplied by the High School at their job site.

32. The Parent stated since the communication plan was put in place, "I can't find out anything that's going on or do any troubleshooting like I used to do. I'm not allowed to talk to anybody, [and] they're not allowed to talk with me." Before the communication plan, the Parent directly consulted building staff to make sure the Student had their required IEP services. They noted this collaboration ensured the Student felt safe, and received timely adjustments and support, including addressing emotional and behavioral problems to prevent recurrence.
33. Regarding the safety incident involving a butter knife, the Parent shared the Student asked them to intervene with the LEA, which they perceived meant the Student viewed the incident as serious. The Parent stated they emailed the Principal and the Assistant Principal regarding the incident, who forwarded the emails to the Director of Secondary Special Services, per the communication plan. They shared the Residential Caregiver also reached out to the High School staff and was told the situation was "a personnel issue." The Parent expressed, "We understand that aspect of it, but we need to understand the aspect of what are you doing to support [the Student] because [the Student] feels unsafe." They asserted no administrator ever responded to their concerns for the Student's safety. The Parent viewed the lack of direct response as "they're just blowing all of us off and not taking any of us seriously and just shutting us all down." They indicated the Student was told by staff they should not have reported the incident, and no administrator asked the Student for their account.
34. The Parent expressed the Student continued to feel unsafe at the High School after the incident. They stated the lack of a feeling of safety prevented the Student from interacting with staff, therefore the Student lost access to their services and supports. They indicated the Student wished to drop out of the Transition Program.
35. Regarding transportation, the Parent confirmed a special education bus picked up and dropped off the Student between their home and the High School in the morning and afternoon. The Parent understood the LEA was responsible for the Student's transportation to offsite activities, but did not know what type of transportation was used. They stated the Student was dropped off at the High School at approximately 7:30 a.m. every morning, ate breakfast, and then waited for their transportation to the University. The Parent indicated the Student's University class began at 8:00 a.m., it was a 15-minute ride to the University, and the Student reported being late to the University 50% of the class days. They stated a staff member told the Student "if [the Student] wants to be on time, that [they] should have me take [them] and not take the bus." The Parent stated the Student had not been picked up in the morning at all on more than one occasion, but did not specify dates. They stated their inquiries about transportation for the Student went unanswered.
36. Regarding progress reports, the Parent stated they typically received them by email. They confirmed they did not receive any progress reports after their request in January 2025, and indicated they did not receive any subsequent progress reports for the 2024-25 school year. They stated they only received the 2024-25 progress reports when they received the October 10, 2025 report.

Transition Program Coordinator Interview

37. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Director of Secondary Special Services, the Transition Program Coordinator stated the Student's IEP was written before they were the Student's case manager. They stated they continued to provide and manage the supports as written in the IEP.
38. The Transition Program Coordinator reported the start date for the Transition Program was "… pretty nonchalant. It's not a hard line." They stated the September 2, 2025 start date depended on access to offsite buildings, therefore, jobs and routines began when those facilities were available. The Transition Program Coordinator stated, "… kids do better when they start in their routine right away," therefore, while the Transition Program students were welcome to attend when the High School began, there would not be any programming ready for them until September 2, 2025. They reported this was a typical timeline for the Transition Program, and the Student consistently received their IEP services before the Transition Program start date.
39. The Transition Program Coordinator asserted all students and families were informed of the Transition Program timeline during IEP meetings the previous year. They reported a different staff member was responsible for providing written notification. The Director of Secondary Special Services stated the progress reporting for the Transition Program remained on schedule with the High School, regardless of the start date.
40. Regarding the August 14, 2025 email about the Student's schedule, the Transition Program Coordinator stated they wanted to confirm to the Parent the Student would receive services for the University beginning August 16, 2025, but "routines" would not start yet. They reiterated the Student was welcome at the High School on non-University days, or the LEA could transport them between home and the University until the Transition Program content began. The Transition Program Coordinator confirmed the Student was attending the University and not the Technical School for the Fall 2025 term. They stated IEP services began on August 16, 2025 when University classes started.
41. When asked if the Student received their direct services for the times explicitly listed on the IEP between August 13 and September 2, 2025, the Transition Program Coordinator said, "[The Student] was going to [the] University, and so [they] should have been having that when the classes started. [The Student] was doing all kinds of jobs and vocational things for us. [The Student's] the easiest one to have a routine with and do things with from day to day, so we kept the Student very busy."
42. Regarding communication, the Transition Program Coordinator stated they did not have any emails from January 16 or January 27, 2025 from the Parent in their records. They reported an email from January 21, 2025 discussing the Student's class at the University. They shared enrollment at the University was typically the responsibility of the Parent, but they "didn't mind helping with … enrollment if [they] needed it." The Transition Program Coordinator stated they shared the enrollment assistance request with the Assistant Principal, who reached out to the University the same day.

43. Regarding transportation, the Transition Program Coordinator confirmed the IEP listed home-to-school round-trip busing as well as intra-day bussing to offsite services. They stated there were records for every time the Student was transported. They did not believe the Student was late to their University class 50% of the time or more. The Transition Program Coordinator explained "days off" or "off days" meant days when the High School was not in session. The Director of Secondary Special Services added no students received services on days the High School was not in session. However, the Assistant Principal planned transportation alternatives for the Student on those days. The Transition Program Coordinator reported November 25, 2024 and February 14, 2025 were non-school days for the High School. They did not have information for February 28, 2025 and were unclear about the March 3, 2025 concern from the Parent.

Directory of Secondary Special Service Interview

44. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director of Secondary Special Services stated the LEA had "the right to determine how communication is funneled." They stated the communication plan did not deny the Parent their right or access to participation, rather "funneled the communication differently." The Director of Secondary Special Services stated the Parent was able to communicate with staff through them, and they relayed any messages from staff to the Parent. They reported all parties "have been doing that successfully the last few weeks."
45. The Director of Secondary Special Services stated their records indicated all transportation concerns received a response.
46. Regarding the November 11, 2025 safety incident, the Director of Secondary Special Services confirmed the High School investigated the matter, and they communicated to the Parent the situation was "handled in full." They reiterated they were "not able to share details because it was a personnel matter." The Director of Secondary Special Services indicated while the Parent did not receive responses directly from High School staff, the Parent did receive multiple responses from the Director of Secondary Special Services per the communication plan.
47. Regarding the Student's safety, the Director of Secondary Special Services stated the LEA "followed our basic policy of if somebody reports something that is concerning, then we begin our investigation … ." While they did not share any specific safety measures, they stated "we did ensure that the Student would be able to be safe moving forward, that there was not a concern to [their] safety and that [they] would be able to participate there and there was no lapse in services or supports during this time." The Director of Secondary Special Services reported the Student did not miss any school days or stop attending due to the incident.
48. The Director of Secondary Special Services confirmed the December 5, 2025 IEP meeting was held. They stated the Parent joined virtually and was able to fully participate. They reported the Parent was given the opportunity to add a written Parent Input Statement to the IEP, which they submitted a week later.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, imposed a communication restriction that denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in the IEP process and educational decision-making. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a), K.A.R. 91-40-25; 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.322, 300.501.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a), each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and providing written notice to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25, each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child, and the provision of a FAPE to the child.

The Parent alleged denial of meaningful parental participation in the IEP process, stating “Parents must be involved whenever the student's safety, services, or placement are impacted. Refusing communication and hiding behind personnel policy is an IDEA violation." However, the LEA maintained, “Communication routing does not prevent meaningful participation. It provides structure, FERPA compliance, and safety for staff while maintaining full parent access to the IEP process.” The plan implemented a single administrative point of contact for communication and did not alter the Student’s identification, evaluation, placement, or FAPE. The LEA stated this was necessary due to "intimidating, aggressive, threatening, and abusive communications" from the Parent that placed staff in fear.

Evidence showed the LEA implemented a restricted communication plan on October 14, 2025, requiring all correspondence from the Parent to be routed through the Director of Secondary Special Services. While the Parent alleged this restriction hindered their ability to troubleshoot issues and prevented collaboration, state and federal regulations define "meaningful participation" as being afforded the opportunity to attend IEP team meetings scheduled at mutually agreed-upon times, inspect and review all educational records, and participate in meetings concerning the identification, evaluation, or placement of the child.

Evidence demonstrated that despite the communication plan, the Parent remained involved in the formal IEP process. Specifically, a Notice of Meeting was sent on October 15, 2025 , and the Parent participated in a virtual annual IEP review on December 5, 2025. Furthermore, the Parent was given the opportunity to submit a written Parent Input Statement, which was subsequently added to the IEP. Because the LEA maintained the Parent's access to meetings and decision-making, the funneling of communication did not constitute a denial of participation.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA imposed a communication restriction that denied meaningful parent participation by preventing the Parent from participating in the IEP process and educational decision-making.

Issue Two

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented a unilateral restricted communication plan and a delayed start of the transition program without the provision of a PWN. K.A.R. 91-40-26; 34 CFR § 300.503.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26 and 34 CFR § 300.503, written notice must be given to the parents of a child with a disability a reasonable time before the public agency proposes or refuses to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of FAPE to the child. The notice must include a description of the action proposed or refused by the agency, an explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action, a description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action, a statement that the parents of a child with a disability have protection under procedural safeguards, and, if this notice is not an initial referral for evaluation, the means by which a copy of a description of the procedural safeguards can be obtained. The notice must also include sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding these requirements, a description of other options that the IEP Team considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. The notice shall also be written in language understandable to the general public.

The Parent alleged the LEA implemented a unilateral communication plan and delayed the start of a transition program, as well as made changes in services, timelines, and implementation without required PWNs. The Parent claimed since the Transition Program did not start until September 2, 2025, the Student received fewer days of transition services compared to their non-disabled peers who started school on August 13, 2025. The LEA contended neither the communication plan nor the start of the Student's transition program triggered a PWN because there was no revision to the IEP proposed or implemented. The LEA maintained there was no change to the Student's service start date, and the Student received services consistent with their IEP.

A Prior Written Notice (PWN) is required only when an agency proposes or refuses to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of a student, or the provision of a FAPE. Regarding the communication plan, the implementation of a single administrative point of contact for communication is a procedural routing decision rather than a change in the Student's identification or placement. Therefore, it does not trigger the legal requirement for a PWN.

The Parent alleged the Student received fewer days of service because the 18-21 Transition Program "content" did not begin until September 2, 2025, while non-disabled students started on August 13, 2025. However, investigation records showed the Student's official enrollment date was August 12, 2025. The Student began receiving specialized transportation for their University class on August 16, 2025, the first day of class at the University. While the "content" of the 18-21 program at the High School did not begin until September 2, 2025, the Student was receiving their IEP-mandated support (transportation and access to the University course) starting in mid-August. Additionally, the Transition Program Coordinator offered the Student the option to attend the High School on non-University days or be transported home, ensuring the Student was not barred from the educational environment. Because the Student's individualized services commenced in accordance with the schedule of their community-based placement (the University), the Student was enrolled and receiving benefits as of August 16, 2025, and was offered access to the High School or alternative transport during the gap period, the administrative start date of the High School's internal transition curriculum did not constitute a "change in placement" or a refusal to initiate services. Therefore, the PWN requirement was not triggered.

Issue Three

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided all required supplementary aids, services, and related services as written in the Student's IEP, specifically regarding the provision of paraprofessional support, transportation, transition and vocational services, supervision, and behavioral supports. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b); 34 CFR § 300.323.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b), an IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to implement the IEP as written, with specific respect to transportation, aide support, supervision, behavioral supports, and transition services. Additionally, the Parent stated they had to initiate all contact with the Vocational Rehabilitation Program to set up the Student's transition services, and none of the Student's other transition services, such as internships, began on time. The Parent also claimed the Student's IEP required "continuous one-on-one" paraeducator support, but the Student was left without this support on "multiple occasions."

The LEA contended they consistently provided all required supplementary aids, services, and related services outlined in the Student's IEP throughout the complaint period. The LEA fully implemented all mandated supports, including paraprofessional support, transportation, transition and vocational services, supervision, and behavioral supports, exactly as written in the IEP. The LEA maintained there is no evidence that they failed to provide any service, implemented services inconsistently, or made unauthorized changes to service delivery.

In determining whether the LEA failed to implement the IEP, the standard applied within the Tenth Circuit evaluates whether the failure resulted in a denial of a FAPE. Kansas courts review the totality of the circumstances to determine if the deviation from the IEP was significant. While a district is generally not liable for de minimis, or minor, deviations from an IEP, a violation occurs when the failure to provide services is significant enough that the student is no longer receiving an "appropriately ambitious" education in light of their circumstances. In this case, the investigation identified discrepancies in vocational services that were more than de minimis and resulted in a substantive denial of FAPE, corroborated by additional non-compliance in the areas of transportation and transition coordination.

The most significant discrepancy involves the provision of "Vocational Special Education." The Student's IEP explicitly required this service to be provided in a "community-based direct instruction setting" for "120 minutes a day, five days a week." Listed as separate services, the IEP also stipulated Special Education Services for "job prep" outside the regular education classroom at the High School for "45 minutes a day, five days a week," and Special Education Services at non-school locations (inclusion setting for the Technical School) for "192 minutes a day, five days a week." Progress report information from March 14 and May 28, 2025 and internal communications indicated the Student only attended the print shop placement twice a week. Mention of job site performance and progress did not appear on the progress report until the October 10, 2025 reporting period. Furthermore, the print shop was located at the High School, which calls into question whether the "community-based" setting requirement was met for any portion of the week. Regardless of the setting definition, the quantitative failure is substantial: by providing vocational instruction only two days a week instead of the mandated five, the LEA failed to deliver approximately 60% of the required weekly service minutes, at least for the second semester of the 2024-25 school year. Rather than a minor administrative error, it is a failure to provide the majority of a core special education service designated in the IEP.

This failure was compounded by a lack of coordination regarding transition services. The Parent alleged plans for a new job site placement, which would have presumably filled the gap left by the limited print shop schedule, "never materialized." The Transition Program Coordinator did not refute this. Instead, in an email dated May 14, 2025, they admitted, "I dropped the ball with you," acknowledging that valid concerns about the lack of progress were the result of their own "lack of communication" and exhaustion. Additionally, the IEP stated that "Application to Vocational Rehabilitation Services will be made" to provide additional training. However, the investigation revealed the Parent had to contact the agency directly because the LEA failed to do so. The Vocational Rehabilitation Program reported to the Parent that they had attempted to contact High School staff multiple times without receiving a response. This failure to coordinate with outside agencies, as written in the IEP, further impeded the Student's transition goals.

Additionally, the investigation revealed failures in transportation that corroborated a pattern of non-compliance. The LEA failed to provide specialized transportation on November 25, 2024, and February 14, 2025, effectively denying the Student access to their off-site educational placement on those days. While the LEA's IEP template contains a disclaimer stating the school is unable to provide services during "scheduled school closures," and investigation interviews confirmed that November 25, 2024, and February 14, 2025, were days when the High School was not in session, the investigation also revealed the LEA had established an obligation to transport the Student to their off-site placements even when the High School was closed. The Transition Program Coordinator admitted the Assistant Principal "handles that on days off" and apologized for the error on November 25, 2024 stating they would get the Student "asap." Regarding the February 14, 2025 incident, the Transition Program Coordinator admitted, "the off days weren't set up like they had been last semester."

The Director of Secondary Special Services also confirmed that while general students do not receive services on days off, the Assistant Principal specifically "planned transportation alternatives for the Student on those days." Therefore, despite the IEP disclaimer regarding closures, the LEA's specific admissions and established practice confirmed that transportation to the off-site placement was a required service that the LEA failed to provide on those dates. Notably, the Parent was unable to transport the Student on these occasions, resulting in the Student missing class. While these two isolated instances of missed transportation may be considered de minimis on their own, they corroborate the broader pattern of material failure to implement the IEP's off-site and transition services.

Finally, the Parent reported instances where the Student was left without paraprofessional support at the University, leading to behavioral escalation. While the LEA claimed to have no record of these specific communications, the confirmed pattern of noncompliance regarding scheduling and coordination lends credibility to the claim that support was inconsistent. Although the IEP did not use the specific title "paraprofessional" in the service lines, the provision of such support was implicitly and explicitly mandated through the designation of "job coach support" and "inclusion setting" services. Additionally, an internal LEA document titled "Transition/paraeducator support services" clarified these inclusion services were fulfilled by specific staff members, noting "[Instructional Aide 3] is the primary individual who supports the [S]tudent" at the off-site location. Furthermore, the PWN issued by the LEA acknowledged the Student's continued need for "supervision and access to adult guidance," and the LEA's own response to the complaint asserted they had "fully implemented … paraprofessional support," confirming their understanding that such support was a required component of the Student's IEP.

It should be noted, in their written response to interview questions, the Transition Program Coordinator contended their previous admission of "dropping the ball" was utilized as a "professional de-escalation strategy" rather than an admission of failure. The LEA asserted they "remained in compliance with all service delivery throughout this period." However, this assertion was not supported by the evidentiary record. The finding of non-compliance was not based solely on the Coordinator's email, but on the LEA's own Progress Reports, which documented the Student attended the print shop (relevant to vocational service) only "twice a week" during the Spring 2025 semester. Because the IEP mandated vocational services "five days a week," there remained an unexplained deficit of three service days per week. The LEA failed to provide service logs, job coach records, or attendance data to substantiate their claim that vocational instruction was provided on the remaining days or that the "new job site" referenced by the Parent as being discussed in January 2025 ever materialized.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is substantiated that the LEA failed to provide all required supplementary aids, services, and related services as written in the Student's IEP, which thereby also denied the Student a FAPE for the Spring 2025 semester.

Issue Four

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, reviewed and revised the Student's IEP after following a significant change in circumstances and a safety event. K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2); 34 CFR § 300.324(b).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2), each agency shall ensure the IEP team revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals, the results of any reevaluation conducted, information about the child provided by the parents, the child's anticipated needs, or other matters.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to convene the IEP team to review and revise the IEP after a significant safety event involving the Student and a staff member on November 11, 2025. The LEA asserted they responded promptly, investigated immediately, and provided timely communication throughout the days following the safety incident. The LEA addressed the concern through internal personnel actions and reinforcement of staff expectations. They maintained the incident did not result in any change to the Student's needs, services, placement, or behavior profile, and the Student continued to receive all IEP services as written, without interruption. They stated no new concerns arose that required revision of goals, services, behavioral supports, or placement, therefore, there was no need to review or revise the Student's IEP.

The investigation confirmed the LEA took immediate administrative action to neutralize the safety threat by addressing the specific staff member's conduct, ensuring the Student's placement remained available. Regarding the obligation to review the IEP, the LEA utilized the Annual Review meeting scheduled for December 5, 2025, which had been noticed to the Parent on October 15, 2025, to address the Student's needs. The fact that this meeting was scheduled prior to the incident did not invalidate it as the appropriate forum for review. Under 34 CFR § 300.324(b), an Annual Review is designed to address all "information about the child provided by the parents" and any "anticipated needs." Because the threat was external (a staff member's behavior) rather than internal (the Student's disability-related behavior), an immediate change to the IEP document was not required to ensure safety on the very next day. The removal or management of the staff member resolved the immediate "change in circumstance," allowing the IEP team to discuss the educational impact or long-term adjustments at the December 5, 2025 meeting. Given the LEA resolved the immediate physical safety concern through personnel measures, waiting 24 days to convene the formal IEP team was reasonable and did not deny the Student a FAPE. The Parent participated in this meeting and submitted written input, proving the team did consider the circumstances.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to review and revise the Student's IEP following a safety event.

Issue Five

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing IDEA, provided the Parent with the Student's quarterly IEP progress reports. K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3); 34 CFR §300.320(a)(3).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3), the IEP for each exceptional child shall include a description of how the child's progress toward meeting the annual goals will be measured and when periodic reports on the progress the child is making toward meeting the annual goals will be provided, such as through the use of quarterly or other periodic reports issued concurrently with general education report cards.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide quarterly progress reports for March and May 2025. The LEA contended they complied with all IDEA and state requirements regarding the provision of quarterly IEP progress reports. They maintained the Student's progress reports for the 2024–25 and 2025–26 school years were completed and provided to the Parent in accordance with the LEA's quarterly reporting schedule.

The Student's IEP specifically stated the Parent would receive written reports in accordance with the LEA's established grade reporting schedule. During the investigation, the Parent confirmed they did not receive any progress reports after their initial request in January 2025 and did not see the reports for the remainder of the 2024-25 school year until they were provided with the October 10, 2025 report.

While the LEA initially asserted all progress reports had been provided to the Parent according to the reporting schedule, the investigation revealed significant evidence to the contrary. Notably, the Transition Program Coordinator admitted the LEA "identified a procedural communication gap" regarding the delivery of the March and May 2025 reports. They confirmed that while data was collected, it was not properly distributed to the Parent until October 10, 2025. To rectify this, the Transition Program Coordinator reported the LEA has since established a "Primary Reporter" protocol to ensure clear accountability for future document delivery. Although the LEA eventually provided the progress data in October 2025, the evidence supported the Parent's claim the LEA failed to provide the quarterly IEP progress reports for March and May 2025 in a timely manner as required by the Student's IEP and state regulations.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is substantiated* that the LEA failed to provide the Parent with the Student's quarterly IEP progress reports for the March and May 2025 reporting periods.

Issue Six

> Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parent a copy of the Student's current IEP and educational records upon request. K.A.R 91-40-18(d), K.A.R. 91-40-25(a), K.A.R 91-40-50(a)(2)(b); 34 CFR §§ 300.322(f), 300.501(a), 300.613(a).

According to K.A.R 91-40-18(d), each agency shall give the parent a copy of the child's IEP at no cost to the parent.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25(a), each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child, and the provision of a FAPE to the child. Additionally, according to K.A.R. 91-40-50(a)(2)(b) and C.F.R. § 300.613(a), "Education records" means any document or medium on which information directly related to one or more students is maintained by a participating agency. The agency must comply with a request without unnecessary delay and in no case more than 45 days after the request.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide a copy of the IEP upon request. Further, they stated, "Safety issues are educational records and must be shared with the parent." The LEA responded they did not receive any request from the Parent for copies of the Student's IEP or educational records during the complaint period.

Regulations require the LEA to comply with a records request without unnecessary delay and in no case more than 45 days after the request. The Parent requested the IEP on January 16, 2025. The Assistant Principal provided the copy on February 3, 2025. The time elapsed between the initial request and the provision of the record was approximately 18 days. This falls well within the 45-day statutory limit.

The Parent further alleged that "safety issues are educational records" and contended that the LEA failed to provide documentation regarding the investigation of the November 11, 2025 safety incident involving a staff member. The LEA treated the incident review as a "personnel matter" and informed the Parent they could not share specific details regarding the internal staff investigation or resulting actions. No educational records were created for the Student based on the incident. Under K.A.R. 91-40-50(a)(2)(b) and 34 C.F.R. § 300.613(a), "education records" are defined as documents directly related to a student and maintained by the agency. Records created for the specific purpose of evaluating a staff member's conduct or employment status (personnel records) are distinct from the student's educational records. Consequently, the LEA's refusal to produce internal personnel investigation notes or disciplinary records did not constitute a violation of the Parent's right to access their child's educational records.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parent a copy of the Student's current IEP and educational records upon request.

Issue Seven

> Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the provision of a FAPE in a safe environment after an alleged incident with a staff member. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Each agency shall make FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination of whether a child who is advancing from grade to grade is a child with a disability shall be made on an individual basis in accordance with child find activities and evaluation procedures required by this article. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide the Student a FAPE in a safe environment and claimed the Student could not access their FAPE if they felt unsafe, threatened, or unable to attend or participate due to “fear or trauma from a staff member.” The LEA maintained that they guaranteed the Student received a FAPE and was in a secure learning environment during and after the reported incident. Following receipt of the complaint, the LEA immediately conducted an internal review, met with the involved staff, and implemented all necessary personnel and supervisory measures. These steps successfully protected the Student's safety and well-being, ensuring no interruption to services or alteration in the provision of a FAPE.

Evidence confirmed the LEA took immediate and appropriate administrative action to address the safety concern. The Parent reported the incident on the evening of November 11, 2025. By November 12, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services acknowledged the concern and confirmed a review was underway. By November 13, 2025, the Director confirmed the LEA had "visited with the staff members involved" and "put measures in place" to ensure the Student’s safety. While the LEA reasonably withheld specific disciplinary details as confidential personnel matters, the Director of Secondary Special Services confirmed "appropriate measures" were taken to support the Student, including ensuring "consistent adults" were available and reinforcing expectations with staff. The Director of Secondary Special Services reported, and the Parent did not provide refuting evidence, that the Student did not miss any school days or stop attending the program as a result of the incident.

A single instance of staff misconduct does not constitute a denial of a FAPE if the school district takes prompt and effective corrective action to remedy the situation and prevent recurrence. In this case, the LEA acted within 48 hours to investigate the allegation and address the staff member's conduct. Although the Student experienced subjective fear immediately following the event, the LEA’s objective actions successfully preserved the Student's access to their educational placement.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure the provision of a FAPE in a safe environment after an alleged incident with a staff member. However, it is noted that while the safety incident itself did not result in a denial of a FAPE, the investigation separately confirmed the Student was denied a FAPE during this same period due to the material failure to implement vocational special education services. This denial of FAPE is addressed under the findings and corrective actions for Issue Three.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. A violation occurred in the following area:

A. Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.323 and K.A.R. 91-40-16(b) specify the LEA must ensure an IEP is in effect for each child with a disability and that the services, supplementary aids, and supports listed in the IEP are provided. In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #437 failed to provide "Vocational Special Education in a community-based direct instruction setting" for 120 minutes a day, five days a week, and specialized transportation as required by the Student's IEP. Evidence established that during the Spring 2025 semester, the Student only attended a vocational placement (print shop) two days per week, resulting in a deficit of 109.2 hours of vocational instruction. Progress reports, Parent emails, and the Transition Program Coordinator's email on May 14, 2025, corroborate this.

B. Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(3) and state statutes at K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3) specify the IEP must include a description of when periodic reports on the progress the child is making toward meeting the annual goals will be provided to the parents. In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #437 failed to provide the Parent with the Student's quarterly IEP progress reports for the March and May 2025 reporting periods. While the LEA eventually provided these reports on October 10, 2025, they were not provided in accordance with the periodic schedule established in the IEP.

During the investigation, the LEA acknowledged a "procedural communication gap" regarding the delivery of these reports and reported that they have since "established a new 'Primary Reporter' protocol to ensure clear accountability for future document delivery." To ensure this self-correction is fully implemented and effective, the required verification is listed below.

Based on the foregoing, USD #437 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 30 days of the date of this report, the LEA shall send a letter to the Parent offering 109 hours of compensatory "Vocational Special Education" services.
    a. These services must be provided in a community-based setting outside of the high school.
    b. The LEA and Parent shall agree upon a schedule for delivery, to be completed within one calendar year. The LEA's obligation to provide these compensatory hours continues notwithstanding the Student reaching the maximum age of eligibility (21) or graduating from the program during the implementation period. If the Student is no longer enrolled, the services shall be provided by a qualified provider at a community site or via reimbursement to the Parent for private vocational services.
    c. Within 45 days, submit a copy of the offer letter and the finalized plan signed by the Parent to SETS.

2. Within 60 days of the date of this report, the LEA shall provide training to all high school special education case managers and transition coordinators and submit agenda, training materials, and sign-in sheets to SETS regarding:
    a. The obligation to provide transition services and job placements as written in the IEP.
    b. The requirement to coordinate with outside agencies (e.g., Vocational Rehabilitation) when specified in the IEP.
    c. Procedures for ensuring transportation to off-site placements on days when the high school is closed but the off-site program is open.
3. Within 30 days of the date of this report, the LEA shall submit a written copy of the "Primary Reporter" protocol referenced in the investigation to SETS. This document must detail:
    a. The specific staff member(s) (by title) responsible for collecting data.
    b. The specific staff member(s) (by title) responsible for physically sending the report to the parent.
    c. The timeline/deadline for sending reports following the close of a grading period.
    d. Within 45 days of the date of this report, the LEA shall provide evidence that this protocol has been disseminated to all special education staff within the Transition Program by submitting a copy of the email, memo, or meeting agenda/sign-in sheet confirming that the relevant staff have been trained on or informed of the new "Primary Reporter" accountability measures.

SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #512
ON NOVEMBER 21, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 22, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student by their parent, ------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #512, Shawnee Mission Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #512.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on November 21, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on December 21, 2025.

Allegations

The following issue will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), afforded the Parent an opportunity to participate in the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, and followed parent participation procedures when a new Individualized Education Program (IEP) meeting was scheduled for December 2, 2025, which was not a mutually agreeable date for the Parent. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b)(1)(c-e); 34 CFR § 300.322(a)(b)(1)(c-d).

Background Information

This investigation involved a fifth-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in USD #512. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On November 7, 2025, the following email exchanges occurred between the LEA and the Parent:
    a. 12:16 a.m.: The Parent requested an IEP meeting for the Student. (D6)
    b. 6:16 a.m.: The Principal replied and indicated the Case Manager would follow up with the Parent. (D6)
    c. 7:01 a.m.: The Case Manager proposed a date and time. (D5)
    d. 9:09 a.m.: The Parent confirmed the date and time. (D5)
    e. 9:38 a.m.: The Case Manager emailed a copy of the Parent Rights and formal notice of the meeting on November 12, 2025 at 1:00 p.m. (D13)
        i. The Notice of Meeting dated November 12, 2025, proposed the aforementioned meeting date and time, noted the meeting was requested by the Parent, and documented the notice was emailed to the Parent on November 7, 2025. The Parent acknowledged their plan to attend the meeting and also waived their right to a 10-day notice prior to the meeting by signature and date of November 12, 2025. (D39-D40)
2. On November 12, 2025 and November 13, 2025, four participating staff members submitted statements documenting the events and interactions that occurred at the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting. The accounts described a parent-requested meeting that escalated rapidly into a verbal confrontation. The staff reported multiple attempts by administrative staff to de-escalate the situation, confirmed the Parent directed profanities at the 5th Grade Teacher and the Principal, and the meeting eventually terminated. (P161-P164)

3. On November 13, 2025, the Principal emailed the Parent and stated the IEP meeting would be rescheduled and facilitated by the Special Education Coordinator and would include norms, opportunities for pauses, and procedures for sharing information. (D7; P32)
4. Between November 17, 2025 and November 20, 2025, the following email exchanges occurred between the LEA and the Parent regarding the rescheduling of an IEP meeting for the Student:
    a. November 17, 2025: The Special Education Coordinator emailed to propose a virtual IEP meeting on December 2, 2025 and wrote, "The Notice of Meeting is attached to this e-mail. Please let me know if this date/time does not work for you and we will work to re-schedule." (D25)
    b. On November 17, 2025: The Parent wrote, "During the recent IEP meeting, my right to meaningfully participate was compromised. My concerns were not acknowledged, I was not given adequate opportunity to contribute, and the meeting escalated instead of being managed through appropriate, supportive procedures. This violates my protected participation rights and the legal requirements governing the IEP process." (D31; P5)
    c. November 18, 2025: The Parent emailed, "I'm not signing the notice of meeting until I get acknowledgement of wrongdoing, a sincere apology[,] and everything I asked for in my previous email." (D18; P11)
    d. November 19, 2025: The Special Education Coordinator wrote, "The IEP team is ready and willing to meet with you via WebEx at 10:00 [a.m.] on the proposed date of 12/2/25 and looks forward to working collaboratively to support your student. As the school team proposed the meeting date more than 10 days in advance, there is no signature needed on the Notice of Meeting." (D17; P1)
    e. November 19, 2025: The Parent responded, "I already told you the disability requests and I told you that I need acknowledgement of wrongdoing on your guys part and a proper apology [sic]." On the same date, the Parent also wrote, "I also didn't agree to the date." (D17; P13)
    f. November 20, 2025: The Special Education Coordinator responded, "The school team proposed December 2nd[,] [2025] at 10 [a.m.] more than 10 days prior to the meeting, therefore, at this time the meeting is scheduled to occur on this date and time. As outlined in the Notice of Meeting, if you're unable to attend this scheduled time and would like to schedule the meeting at another date or time, please share dates and times, within our teacher contract day, that you are available on the Notice of Meeting document." (D16; P14)
    g. November 20, 2025: In two separate emails, the Parent wrote they expected an apology, and "The meeting is not scheduled on that date because I never agreed to the date. You asked me if it worked for me and I never said anything. You didn't give me a variety of dates to see what worked with my schedule. You decided what worked for you and that was that." (D15; P15) In a third email, the Parent wrote, "I want to be clear that I am not refusing to meet. I am refusing to participate in a meeting scheduled without my agreement, which is my right under [the] IDEA and KSDE Procedural Safeguards. A meeting date is not valid simply because it was proposed more than 10 days in advance. [The] IDEA requires the school to make multiple attempts to find a mutually agreeable time and to meaningfully include the parent in scheduling. I was asked if December 2nd worked, and I never confirmed. Therefore, the meeting is not agreed upon and cannot move forward on that date." The Parent listed five items they indicated they needed "Before I can participate in any future meeting … ." The Parent also requested a response confirming "… the December 2nd date is not set," and requested "three alternative dates and times within the teacher contract day for me to choose from." The Parent closed with, "I remain willing to participate once these issues are addressed." (D14; P18)

5. In an email to the Complaint Investigator on December 3, 2025, the Parent wrote, "While it is accurate that I originally requested the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting due to urgent concerns about … [the Student's] declining math performance, the meeting was not completed due to the school's actions - not mine. … Because the meeting was stopped prematurely, parent participation did not occur as required under [the] IDEA. … The district did not respond to these concerns, did not engage in the ADA/504 interactive process, and instead scheduled a new meeting date on December 2, 2025 without my input or agreement. Despite me clearly stating that: I did not agree to December 2[;] The matter was not resolved[;] [and] I was not refusing to meet, only to participate without disability safeguards. … I remain willing to participate and collaborate, but my participation cannot occur while I am being treated as a threat for expressing disability-related distress." (D68-D69)

Interview Summaries

The Parent

6. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent shared they called the IEP meeting on November 12, 2025 because they were concerned about the Student's progress, "An[d] during the meeting, I kept getting interrupted repeatedly by [the Student's] teacher … . And I had stated, 'Please stop interrupting me.'" Instead of addressing the teacher's interruptions, the Parent said, "[The LEA] refused to address the problem and … it basically just escalated me." (P1, 01:43) The Parent described that while they were present for the hour-long IEP meeting, the team spent approximately ten minutes discussing the Student and their needs. According to the Parent, when "it became about me showing the teacher respect, there was no more discussion about [the Student]." (P5, 18:53)

7. According to the Parent, the Special Education Coordinator sent a Notice of Meeting for a December 2, 2025 virtual meeting and "… never asked what worked with my schedule or anything. We never discussed times or dates." (P2, 07:58)
8. On November 18, 2025, the Parent indicated they refused to sign the December 2, 2025 meeting notice, demanding an apology and an acknowledgment of wrongdoing. On November 19, 2025, the Special Education Coordinator informed the Parent their signature was not required because the meeting had been proposed more than ten days in advance. The Parent responded via email on the same day to dispute the date, asserting they had never agreed to the December 2, 2025 date. Additionally, the Parent shared the school team failed to inquire about the Parent's availability or offer alternative options. (P3, 12:35)
9. When asked by the Complaint Investigator if they provided alternative dates and times to the school team, the Parent said, "I didn't because [at] that point, I was trying to get an apology from them." (P6, 25:56) The Parent also shared, "I told them repeatedly, we are not scheduling any more meetings until the investigation is over. Stop asking me to schedule meetings because it's not happening. And they keep doing it." (P7, 28:30)

Associate Superintendent of Special Education Interview

10. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Associate Superintendent of Special Education shared at the November 12, 2025 meeting, "… there was a situation where law enforcement was needing to come because of threats that were made by the Parent, and we had to have [the Parent] escorted out of the building." (P1, 02:15)
11. In a written response after the interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Associate Superintendent of Special Education described the following related to the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting:
    a. The meeting was scheduled for 30 minutes, began at 1:00 p.m., and was ended at 1:10 by the Principal because the Parent "… made several threats and was verbally attacking staff. [The] Parent would not allow staff to answer questions. [The] Parent stood up and was hovering over [the] [P]rincipal and made a threat to punch [the Principal] in the face." (D52)
12. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education shared in a written response after their interview that regarding the December 2, 2025 IEP date proposed by the LEA, "the [Parent] did not provide an alternative date" during the Complaint period for this Complaint. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education shared, "The only feedback provided was not wanting a virtual meeting or when an in[-]person meeting option was offered with law enforcement present. Given we had a request for a parent meeting[,] we scheduled 10 days out [and] asked for other options if that didn't work for [the Parent's] schedule. No other dates or times were offered. The team errored [sic] on the side of reviewing information the [P]arent voiced concerns about and followed up with information discussed and inquired about meeting times." (D53)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, afforded the Parent an opportunity to participate in the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, and followed parent participation procedures when a new IEP meeting was scheduled for December 2, 2025, which was not a mutually agreeable date for the Parent. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b)(1)(c-e); 34 CFR § 300.322(a)(b)(1)(c-d).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b)(1)(c-e), each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and providing written notice to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting. The notice required shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the IEP team meeting and the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency, including, if appropriate, any other agency invited to send a representative to discuss needed transition services.

The Parent alleged, during a November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, the LEA failed to allow the Parent meaningful participation in the IEP process by repeatedly interrupting them, dismissing their concerns, and ending the meeting against their wishes. Additionally, the Parent alleged the LEA unilaterally scheduled a new IEP for December 2, 2025, which was not a mutually agreeable date for the Parent.

The LEA maintained it made reasonable efforts to respond to the Parent's November 7, 2025 request to schedule an IEP meeting. This meeting was scheduled for November 12, 2025, and included the provision of a Notice of Meeting and parental rights documents. Furthermore, the LEA indicated that at the start of the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, the Case Manager invited the Parent to share their concerns. However, the LEA reported that the Parent escalated the situation, refused efforts to "reset the meeting," and "made threatening statements toward the staff," ultimately resulting in the meeting being terminated. The LEA indicated they proposed a virtual December 2, 2025 with a facilitator and requested alternate times if the Parent was not agreeable to the proposal.

The November 12, 2025 IEP meeting was scheduled at a mutually agreed-upon time with appropriate notice, which the Parent acknowledged by attending and waiving the 10-day notice requirement. While the Parent alleged they were denied meaningful participation due to staff interruptions and the early termination of the meeting, the core mandate of K.A.R. 91-40-17 is to afford the opportunity to participate, not to dictate the quality or content of the interactions. The meeting was terminated as a result of the Parent's escalations, not due to the LEA's refusal to afford the Parent the opportunity to participate. The second part of this allegation, concerning the scheduling of the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting being scheduled at a mutually agreed-upon date and time, fell outside of the complaint timeline, and a decision was not rendered on that issue. The Parent filed an additional complaint addressing their concern about the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to afford the Parent an opportunity to participate in the November 12, 2025, IEP meeting.

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 512,
Shawnee Mission Public Schools: 26FC512-006

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on November 21, 2025, by ------- on behalf of her child, -------. In the remainder of this decision, ------- will be referred to as "the parent," and ------- will be referred to as "the student." An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on December 22, 2025. That Complaint Report concluded that there was no violation of special education statutes and regulations.

Thereafter, the parent filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parent, the Complaint Report, the parent's notice of appeal, and the district's response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The appeal committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The report identified one issue: Whether USD #512, afforded the Parent an opportunity to participate in the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, and followed parent participation procedures when a new IEP meeting was scheduled for December 2, 2025, which was not a mutually agreeable date for the Parent.

The report contained the following findings:

> 2 On November 12, 2025 and November 13, 2025, four participating staff members submitted statements documenting the events and interactions that occurred at the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting. The accounts described a parent-requested meeting that escalated rapidly into a verbal confrontation. The staff reported multiple attempts by administrative staff to de-escalate the situation, confirmed the Parent directed profanities at the 5th Grade Teacher and the Principal, and the meeting eventually terminated. Report, p4.
> 11a The meeting was scheduled for 30 minutes, began at 1:00 p.m., and was ended at 1:10 by the Principal because the Parent "… made several threats and was verbally attacking staff. [The] Parent would not allow staff to answer questions. [The] Parent stood up and was hovering over [the] [P]rincipal and made a threat to punch [the Principal] in the face." Report, p. 8
> 4b On November 17, 2025: The Parent wrote, "During the recent IEP meeting, my right to meaningfully participate was compromised. My concerns were not acknowledged, I was not given adequate opportunity to contribute, and the meeting escalated instead of being managed through appropriate, supportive procedures. This violates my protected participation rights and the legal requirements governing the IEP process." Report, p. 4.

As for the allegation that the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting was not scheduled at a mutually agreed-upon date and time, the investigator found that allegation fell outside of the complaint timeline, and a decision was not rendered on that issue. The Parent later filed an additional complaint addressing their concern about the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting. Report, p. 9-10.

Thus, the sole issue under appeal is whether USD #512, afforded the Parent a meaningful opportunity to participate in the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting. in her appeal, the parent states:

> "Despite my presence, the meeting failed to fulfill its purpose due to repeated interruptions, redirection away from my concerns, and premature termination of the meeting. As a result, no meaningful discussion of services, accommodations, or instructional supports for (the student) occurred."

This description by the parent of the November 12 12 meeting directly contradicts the information provided to the investigator in Findings 2 and 11a. Those findings were based on statements made to the investigator by the principal and separately submitted statements from four participating staff members documenting the events and interactions that occurred at the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting.

In such instances, where there are conflicting statements about what occurred at a particular event and there are no non-partisan witnesses, an investigator must sometimes determine what evidence is most credible. This investigator found the description of events at the November 12 meeting by school staff members was more credible than the description provided by the parent. The Appeal Committee normally will not disturb credibility determinations because the investigator often bases such determinations on personal interviews. In this case, the Appeal Committee does not merely defer to the investigator's. the Committee agrees that the description provided by school personnel is more credible than that provided by the parent because all of the school personnel interviewed by the investigator presented a consistent account of what happened and because school officials called police who responded by arriving at the school. Obviously, something unusual happened.

The parent asserted in her appeal of this decision that she has a right to have an opportunity to participate in educational decision making for her child, which includes the right to have meaningful participation. She had that opportunity at the November 12 IEP meeting, but there is no dispute that a disturbance of some kind arose and that meeting was ended by school officials and the police were called.

A decision to end an IEP meeting and attempt to reschedule under such circumstances is not a failure to provide parents with an opportunity for meaningful participation. See, Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist., 114 LRP 6937 (SEA CA. 2014), where a hearing officer explained that:

> The heart of Father's disagreement was his belief that Student was not academically prepared for middle school. Instead of adhering to District's request to cooperate and conduct the IEP team meeting, and hear the information gathered by those who were teaching and working with Student, Father obstructed the meeting and would not refrain from the subjects of his accusations, in a confrontational and aggressive manner. Under these circumstances, after over an hour, District was justified in terminating the meeting. By then, Student's annual IEP, required by law, was almost three months overdue. However, Father did not permit the IEP team process to function. Since Father's noncooperation obstructed the IEP process, Student forfeited any claim that the termination of the meeting denied him a FAPE.

The Appeal Committee has not been informed of the extent of the disturbance at the November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, and makes no judgement as to whether the disturbance was similar to the cited case. The Appeal Committee is merely acknowledging that there is no provision in law that prevents a school district from canceling an IEP meeting and then re-scheduling the meeting for any of a number of reasons, including the reasons provided in this complaint.

The Appeal Committee finds that sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 7th day of January, 2026.

Background Information

This investigation involved a high school student enrolled at Arkansas City Day School in USD #465. The Student is not currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA. Prior to the Student opting out of Special education services, the Student was receiving services under the category of Emotional Disability (ED).

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

On November 8, 2024, an IEP amendment was completed and indicated the following:

The Student would attend full days at the Day School.
Transportation would be provided.
Social Work Services were added for individual therapy, 30 minutes, two times a week, and group therapy, 30 minutes, five days a week.
A goal for social work services was added.
The Student's Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) was updated with the "level system" and behavioral interventions.
The effective date was November 8, 2024.

The General Education Teacher provided the Document to Foster Parent 2 in person on November 8, 2024. (D12-D14)

The November 08, 2024, IEP amendment contained the following additional information:

The Student had a diagnosis of Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). (D74)
The Student's strengths included interacting with peers and being considerate and helpful to staff and peers. (D74)
The Student had needs in the area of social-emotional skills and had behavior that impeded the learning of others or self. (D74)
Staff were concerned the Student would shut down and not share why they were bothered. Additionally, the Student would walk out of class, but not leave the building.
The Student was easily distracted and didn't give their full effort; could be defiant and struggled with language. (D74)
The Student had four major and four minor referrals for low work completion, defiance, and "abusive language." (D75)
The Student did not have areas of concern in reading, written language, math, communication, or general intelligence. (D75-D76)
A behavior goal indicated the Student needed to demonstrate and maintain appropriate classroom behavior and stay focused 85% of the time across all settings. (D78)
A behavior goal indicated the Student needed to self-monitor, with instruction from the social worker, when they became frustrated and needed to choose an appropriate option, such as relaxation, exercise, or leaving the area. (D79)
Social work would be provided in group therapy five times weekly for 30 minutes, and individual therapy two times weekly for 30 minutes. Additionally, special education services would be provided each day school was in session for 410 minutes, minus social work service time. (D84)
The Student received transportation each day the school was in session. (D84)

The Student's Positive BIP was revised on November 8, 2024, to include the following supports:
Behavior concerns included disrespectful classroom behaviors 50% of the time.
Replacement behaviors were described as appropriate and respectful classroom behavior, such as responding to staff requests and directives in all settings, working cooperatively with peers in the group setting, accepting feedback, and completing work. Additionally, the Student needed to maintain the ability to stay focused and on task. (D80)
Instructional methods listed anger management, behavior contract, decision-making skills, modeling, direct instruction, providing cues, role-playing, social skills training, and stress management. (D80)
Prevention strategies included avoiding physical contact, avoiding power struggles, providing clear directions, parent communication, frequent breaks, reminders and prompts, assignment modification, a predictable routine/schedule, preferential seating, structured environment, private student redirection, and reviewing the rules and expectations. (D80)
Interventions included redirection, providing prompts/cues, repeating expectations, offering a break, giving physical space, and reminding the Student of coping skills and timeout/break choice. (D81)
Positive consequences included earning a token/ticket or points, verbal/non-verbal praise, or a note or call home. (D81)
Negative consequences included loss of privilege(s), loss of token/ticket or points, or a note or call home. (D81)
Triggers included the Student holding on to something that is bothering them until they have an outburst. The Student will walk out of class. (D81)
During the escalation stage, the Student will pick at their fingernails, become defiant, mouth answers, look straight ahead, or pretend to do work. (D81)
The Student attends a program with a behavioral component to help each student focus and improve behaviors that interfere with learning. (D81)

bb.The following strategies were recommended for use when the Student needed "more assistance."

Verbal redirection should be used when the Student shows a lack of awareness as to a behavior that is inappropriate or harmful to self or others.
Redirection and positive practice should be used when the Student shows a lack of needed skills.
Sensory strategies included using fidgets, taking a walk, getting a drink, breathing, stretching, and accessing a quiet space.
When adults are aware of triggers, they should provide choices, space, and time for the Student.
Use the room chill-out strategy when the Student persists in misbehaving despite trying other methods.

> The quiet room time-out should be used when the Student demonstrates noncompliance or disruptive behavior after other strategies have been used.
> Use on-site suspension when the Student exhibits behavior that is disruptive to the extent the teacher is unable to teach and the students are unable to learn.
> Therapeutic holds may be used when the Student threatens to injure themselves, others, or property, and when physical guidance is necessary to stop the behavior. (D82)

A letter dated December 2, 2024, described the LEA's decision to "honor the long-term suspension-expulsion recommendation" for the Student based on evidence presented at the December 17, 2024, hearing. The letter indicated the Student would be long-term suspended-expelled through May 23, 2025. (D89)

On December 5, 2024, a letter signed by the Director of Special Education described actions that led to the Student's 10-day suspension from December 5 through December 18, 2024. The Letter was addressed to Foster Parent 2 and the Parent.

The Letter indicated the Student had brought a vape, Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), and a 12-inch sword with a 5-inch blade. The Student was handcuffed and removed from the building. The letter indicated an MDR would be scheduled, and they would be notified of the date. Additionally, the letter noted, based on the outcome of the MDR, the LEA may "choose to conduct" a long-term hearing. (D17)

On December 6, 2024, the Special Education Provider emailed the Director of Special Education to provide details of the incident involving the Student on the previous day. The Special Education Provider provided additional details, including a comment the Student had made in a group chat with other students regarding a threat to kill another student. The Director of Special Education confirmed receipt of the email the same day. (D18)

On December 12, 2025, a Notice of Meeting Acknowledgement was delivered to the Parent, indicating they planned to attend, waived their right to a 10-day PWN, and were provided with a copy of the Parent Rights/Procedural Safeguards. (D24)

A December 13, 2024, Notice of Special Education Meeting indicated a meeting was scheduled for that day at 11:00 a.m. and would be held either virtually or in person. The Purpose of the meeting was to discuss possible changes in the Student's IEP and to hold an MDR before the long-term suspension hearing. (D25)

On December 13, 2024, an MDR form documented the following information:

> The Student showed a picture of a gun and was threatening other students the night before.
> Police charges were pending
> The IEP review indicated that the Student experienced ED.
> The Student was placed in the most restrictive placement of the Day School.
> The Student's IEP was offered and provided to the Student.

The Student often slept during the school day and did not complete academic work.
The Student reported they had no intention of harming anyone and had only wanted to show it off.
The conduct in question was determined not to be caused by the Student's disability.
The conduct in question was determined not to be a result of the school's failure to implement the IEP.
It was determined the Student's behavior was not a manifestation of their disability, and disciplinary removal may occur.

Participants included the Parent, the Student, the General Education Teacher, the Special Education Provider, the Assistant Director, Foster Parent 2, and the Special Education Coach. (D19-D21)

On December 16, 2024, the General Education Teacher emailed the Assistant Director to share the Student's attendance and grades. According to the email, the Student had started at the Day School on November 12, 2024.

They were absent on November 14 due to court. On December 21, the Student left for a visit at 11:30 a.m. and was absent without calling on November 26, 2024. They left school without permission at 9:30 on December 3, 2025. On December 5, 2024, the Student was taken into custody by police due to unsafe objects they brought to school (D98)

On December 18, 2024, the Principal emailed the Assistant Director to confirm the hearing committee upheld the suspension and to explain the Student would be suspended through "May 23, 202[5] ." The Principal added the team would need to convene to determine how the Student would be educated during the suspension. (D28)

A Drop Form dated December 19, [20]24 indicated the Student had been dropped from the Day School because they "left the area." The form indicated the Student would be located in another city in the state. (D27)

On January 27, 2025, the LEA received a records request from another LEA in the state for records regarding the Student. Notes on the form indicated records were emailed on February 3, 2025. (D30)

On November 20, 2025, the Director of Special Education and the Assistant Director made a home visit to the residence after the LEA became aware the Student had enrolled for the 2025-26 school year and phone calls and texts to the Parent had gone unanswered. They spoke with the Student and the Foster Parent and indicated the Student could attend the Day School. The Student stated they did not want to go back to that school and opted out of Special Education Services. The Student was told to contact the High School to get a schedule and begin attending there. (D5)

On November 20, 2025, the Student signed a Revocation of Consent document, indicating they were revoking consent for "all [special education] services." The Foster Parent also signed the Document. (D6-D7)

On November 20, 2025, a PWN was created, which stated the Student had revoked consent for all special education services, related services, supplementary aids and services, and placements. The PWN noted the decision was based on a request from the Student, after a discussion with the Student and the Foster Parent. Additionally, no other options were considered because it was not a team decision and was described as a "unilateral action of the legal decision-maker." (D9-D10)

According to an Enrollment History document, the Student transferred from the High School to the Day School on November 12, 2024. The Student exited the Day School on December 16, 2024, with a comment of "no show." (D96)

The enrollment history note stated "No show at [the Day School] per [the General Education Teacher] on February 14, 2025." (D97) Director of Special Education Interview

In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director of Special Education stated the Student initially enrolled in the LEA on November 8, 2024. That same day, the Director of Special Education held an IEP meeting with the Student, the Parent, and Foster Parent 2 present. Placement for the least restrictive environment (LRE) was determined to be the Day School. Based on information available at the time, the Director of Special Education believed the Parent and Foster Parent 2 had educational rights for the Student for the 2024-25 school year. (P2, 07:33; P4, 13:26; P4, 16:03)

The Director of Special Education shared on December 5, 2024, the Student brought a vape and a sword to school. Law enforcement became involved, and the Student was placed on a 10-day suspension. They stated during the suspension, an MDR was held. Based on that meeting, the Director of Special Education reported a long-term hearing was conducted, resulting in a long-term suspension through the end of the 2024-25 school year. The Director of Special Education reported they were not invited to, nor did they attend, the long-term hearing, as it was not a special education proceeding. (P1-P2, 03:48; P2-P3, 09:09; P3, 11:10)

The Director of Special Education stated they received the results of the long-term hearing in a letter dated December 18, 2024. They reported the Student was unenrolled from the LEA on December 19, 2024, by their educational advocate. The Director of Special Education stated they were unclear of the exact person who unenrolled the Student, as they did so at the High School, not the Day School; therefore, they did not see or speak to the advocate. They shared "we were going to have a meeting to put services in place, and we never got to meet with them because [the Student] was withdrawn from school." (P1-P2, 03:48; P8, 29:07)

The Director of Special Education recalled on November 18, 2025, they became aware the Student reenrolled in the LEA. They immediately began reaching out to Foster Parent 1 to set up a reentry meeting. As they were unable to reach Foster Parent 1 by phone, the Director of Special Education and the Assistant Director conducted a home visit on November 20, 2025.

They spoke to the Student and Foster Parent 1 in person. They offered to reinstate the Student's current IEP, including the Day School placement. The Student refused, and as they were then 18 years old, they were able to sign themself out of special education. The Director of Special Education made the Student and Foster Parent 1 aware they would have to reenroll the Student at the High School on their own. (P6, 18:13-P7, 26:30)

The Director of Special Education acknowledged they brought only the forms they anticipated needing, not "the full complement of forms that we normally have online." They stated that although the Student was 18 and able to sign for themself, the Director of Special Education had Foster Parent 1 sign the forms as a witness. (P7, 25:10, 26:30)

The Director of Special Education expressed, "I feel like the allegations are a hundred percent unfounded … because we've done our best to serve this student. … If [the Student] would've stayed here, we would've done a [PWN] and designed services to take [them] through the year, and they would've been reasonable, appropriate, but we never had the opportunity to do so because [the Student] was withdrawn." (P10, 36:21)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #465, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to implement the Student's IEP during their suspension/expulsion. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3); 34 CFR §300.323.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3), an IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year.

The Complainant alleged the Student's IEP was not implemented when they could not be monitored during their online work, as stated in their IEP.

The LEA maintained, since the Student was not a student in USD 465, there was no obligation to provide special education services.

The Student was removed on December 5, 2024. The long-term expulsion was finalized on December 18, 2024. The Director of Special Education reported the Student was unenrolled on December 19, 2024, by their educational advocate. The Director of Special Education stated they were going to have a meeting to put services in place, but never were able to meet with the family because [the Student] was withdrawn from school. A Drop Form dated December 19, 2024, indicated the Student was dropped because they "left the area" and would be located in another city.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP during the Student's suspension/expulsion.

Issue Two

Whether USD #465, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided documentation to the Student's caseworker and home/foster care organization about their suspension/expulsion. K.S.A. 72-3433(d)(1); 34 CFR § 300.530(h).

According to K.S.A. 72-3433(d)(1), if a disciplinary action is contemplated, not later than the date on which the decision to take that action is made, the agency shall notify the parents of that decision and of all procedural safeguards afforded under the law.

The Complainant alleged the Student's caseworker and home/foster care organization did not receive documentation of the Student's suspension/expulsion.

The LEA affirmed documentation was provided to the Student's caseworker and home/foster care organization.

The initial suspension letter on December 5, 2024, was addressed to Foster Parent 2 and the Parent. The participants listed on the December 13, 2024, MDR form included the Parent and Foster Parent 2. The facts do not include documentation of whether the LEA provided information directly to a caseworker or to the foster care organization specifically regarding the suspension/expulsion, only that they communicated with the Parent and a Foster Parent, and that records were later sent to another LEA. Evidence that a specific state-mandated caseworker or foster organization had distinct legal notification rights that were bypassed, or a showing that Foster Parent 2 was not the appropriate legal representative for notices, was not provided.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide documentation to the Student's caseworker and home/foster care organization regarding the Student's suspension/expulsion.

Issue Three

Whether USD #465, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, changed the Student's placement as a result of their suspension/expulsion, and if the IEP team failed to meet and determine services for the Student. K.S.A. 72-3433(c); 34 CFR §300.536.

According to K.S.A. 72-3433(c), an alternative educational setting shall be determined by the IEP team.

According to 34 CFR §300.536, for purposes of removals of a child with a disability from the child's current educational placement, a change of placement occurs if the removal is for more than 10 consecutive school days, or the child has been subjected to a series of removals that constitute a pattern. The public agency determines on a case-by-case basis whether a pattern of removals constitutes a change of placement.

The Complainant alleged the LEA provided conflicting information about the Student's length of suspension/expulsion, resulting in a change of placement.

The LEA confirmed the Student was immediately withdrawn by the Foster Parent from USD 465 upon the conclusion of the Student's long-term hearing. Because the Student was no longer enrolled, there was no opportunity to meet to change the placement and/or to determine special education services.

Based on the Student's enrollment timeline, the LEA did not violate procedural requirements for a change of placement. Although the disciplinary action was moving toward a long-term expulsion, the Student's voluntary unenrollment occurred at the precise legal threshold, alleviating the LEA of the obligation to convene a team to determine ongoing services.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA changed the Student's placement as a result of their suspension/expulsion without meeting as a team to determine services for the Student through a placement meeting.

Issue Four

Whether USD #465, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide educational supports and services to the Student during their suspension/expulsion. K.A.R. 91-40-35(c); 34 CFR §300.530(b)(c)(d).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-35(c), if a child with a disability is placed in an interim alternative educational setting, the agency shall provide special education and related services to the child that shall enable the child to continue both to progress in the general curriculum, although in another setting, and to receive those services and modifications, including those described in the child's IEP, that will enable the child to meet the goals set out in the IEP. The services shall include services and modifications that address the child's misbehavior and that are designed to prevent the misbehavior from recurring.

According to 34 CFR §300.530(b)(c)(d), school personnel may remove a child with a disability who violates a code of student conduct from his or her current placement to an appropriate interim alternative educational setting, another setting, or suspension, for not more than 10 consecutive school days (to the extent those alternatives are applied to children without disabilities), and for additional removals of not more than 10 consecutive school days in that same school year for separate incidents of misconduct (as long as those removals do not constitute a change of placement). After a child with a disability has been removed from his or her current placement for 10 school days in the same school year, during any subsequent days of removal, the public agency must provide services to the extent required by law.

For disciplinary changes in placement that would exceed 10 consecutive school days, if the behavior that gave rise to the violation of the school code is determined not to be a manifestation of the child's disability, school personnel may apply the relevant disciplinary procedures to children with disabilities in the same manner and for the same duration as the procedures would be applied to children without disabilities.

A child with a disability who is removed from the child's current placement must continue to receive, as appropriate, a functional behavioral assessment, and behavioral intervention services, and modifications that are designed to address the behavior violation so that it does not recur. These services may be provided in an interim alternative educational setting. A public agency is only required to provide services during periods of removal to a child with a disability who has been removed from his or her current placement for 10 school days or less in that school year, if it provides services to a child without disabilities who is similarly removed.

After a child with a disability has been removed from his or her current placement for 10 school days in the same school year, if the current removal is for not more than 10 consecutive school days and is not a change of placement, school personnel, in consultation with at least one of the child's teachers, determine the extent to which services are needed, to enable the child to continue to participate in the general education curriculum, although in another setting, and to progress toward meeting the goals set out in the child's IEP. If the removal is a change of placement, the child's IEP Team determines the appropriate placement.

The Complainant alleged the Student did not receive educational services or support during their suspension/expulsion, nor did the LEA communicate with the Student during this time.

The LEA asserted the Student was unenrolled, withdrawn, and had moved away beginning December 19, 2024. Since the Student was not enrolled in USD 465, there was no obligation to provide special education services.

The Student was removed from school on December 5, 2024. The long-term suspension was finalized on December 18, 2024. On December 18, 2024, the Principal noted via email that the team "would need to convene to determine how the Student would be educated during the suspension." The Student was unenrolled on December 19, 2024, relieving the LEA of the responsibility to provide special education services.

Based on the foregoing and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide educational support and services to the Student during the Student's suspension/expulsion.

Whether USD #465, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied the Student a FAPE during their suspension/expulsion. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination of whether a child who is advancing from grade to grade is a child with a disability shall be made on an individual basis in accordance with child find activities and evaluation procedures required by this article. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Complainant alleged the Student was denied a FAPE when they did not receive services during their suspension/expulsion.

The LEA affirmed that the Student was no longer enrolled in USD 465 and there was no obligation on the part of the LEA to provide special education services.

The Student's suspension began on December 5, 2024. The legal mandate to provide a FAPE during a period of disciplinary removal, specifically for behavior determined not to be a manifestation of the disability, is triggered on the 11th school day of removal in a school year.

The Student was serving a standard short-term suspension from December 5, 2024 to December 18, 2024. During this window, the LEA held a timely MDR on December 13, 2024, and a long-term hearing on December 17, 2024. December 19, 2024, was the first day the LEA was legally required to have alternative services in place for a long-term removal. The Student was officially dropped from the LEA on December 19, 2024, because they "left the area" and moved to another city.

Because the Student was no longer enrolled in the LEA as of the 11th day, the LEA's responsibility to provide special education services and a FAPE ceased.

While the Student did not receive services during the 10-day suspension, the LEA was within the legal "10-day window" allowed for disciplinary removals. The LEA demonstrated an intent to provide a FAPE by noting the team "would need to convene to determine how the Student would be educated," but the Student was withdrawn by their advocate before the legal obligation to implement those services began. Therefore, no denial of a FAPE occurred.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Student with a FAPE during the Student's suspension/expulsion.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #229
ON NOVEMBER 13, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 22, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, -------, by their parent, -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #229 Blue Valley Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #229.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on November 13, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on December 13, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #229, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), implemented comparable special education services upon transfer, specifically transportation services from home to school, as mandated by the active IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-1 (ccc)(W)(vvv)(1)(3), K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3); CFR § 300.323 (a)(e)(g).

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #229, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, declined to implement services upon transfer, thereby denying the student a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE). K.A.R. 91-40-2; CFR 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

Background Information

This investigation involved a fourth-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in USD #229 who transferred into the LEA from the Previous District for the 2025-26 school year. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a learning disability as their primary exceptionality and emotional disability as their secondary exceptionality per the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). The Student enjoys learning and participating in class and responds well to routines and activities. The Student is motivated by relationships with their teachers.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. The Student's IEP from the Previous District, dated December 2, 2024, indicated:
    a. Parent concerns: Academic performance and learning barriers.
    b. Goals: Occupational therapy, social/emotional learning, reading (two goals), and math (two goals).

c. Accommodations/Modifications/Supportive Aids: "[The Student] needs assistance at arrival and dismissal to ensure safety to and from transportation," daily, in the general education setting, for arrival and dismissal, from December 2, 2024 to December 1, 2025. Transportation:

i. "Does the student require transportation this year?" Answer: "Yes."

ii. "Does the student require transportation next year?" Answer: "Yes."

iii. "Does the student require transportation for ESY?" Answer: "Yes."

iv. "The student qualifies for special education transportation services, but the parent chooses to transport" from December 2, 2024 to December 1, 2025.

2. The PWN dated December 2, 2024, indicated the IEP team met to review evaluation data to determine the Student's eligibility for special education, appropriate special education and related services, and any changes needed for the Student to meet their annual goals.

a. Relevant actions proposed: specialized transportation.

b. Consent was provided by the Parent via signature and dated January 10, 2025.

3. On August 13, 2025, the LEA created Interim Process Documentation for a Transfer IEP upon the Student's transfer to the LEA. The relevant information indicated:

a. Goals: Occupational therapy, social/emotional learning, reading (two goals), and math (two goals).

b. Description of related service, Transportation: As an answer to the question, "Based on the IEP team determination of eligibility, does the student qualify for special education transportation as a related service for the duration of the IEP? The document indicated, "Yes." According to the document, "If the student does qualify, curb[-]to[-]curb transportation would be provided to address the needs that are indicated in the IEP."

c. LRE: The Student transferred to the School in the LEA from the Previous District.

4. A PWN dated August 13, 2025, was emailed to the Parent on August 19, 2025, and described the changes in services and placement, and indicated the interim IEP was based on the Student's December 2, 2024 IEP from the Previous District. Descriptions, explanations, and options were noted. No information regarding transportation was included in the PWN. The Parent consented to the special education placement and services on October 1, 2025. Another PWN with the same creation and distribution dates contained the same language as the other PWN, and also included the following:

a. Description of action: "[The Student] continues to be eligible for transportation, as outlined in [their] [LEA] IEP. Transportation will be provided to and from [the School] and a mutually agreed-upon location within the [LEA] boundaries."

b. Explanation of refused action: "The district is declining to provide transportation from your home in [City 1] to the [LEA] boundaries for the following reasons: 1. Transportation as a part of [a] FAPE is available within the resident district boundaries to a resident district school. Parents have opted to initiate a voluntary transfer to a school outside the resident district boundaries. 3. The law does not require that school districts provide transportation outside of the district boundaries when parents initiate a voluntary transfer."

c. The PWN was neither signed nor dated by the Parent.

5. In a written response to the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education clarified the District's rationale for two PWN's with the same date, "… the original PWN … was issued immediately following the transition meeting into [the LEA]. However, [the Parent] declined to sign it because door-to-door transport was not included. To obtain consent for the other IEP services, we decided to split the PWN into two separate PWNs. [The second PWN] (reissued with modifications on 9/17[2025]), the transportation discussion was removed, and a second PWN (9/17[2025]) was issued specifically for transportation. Instead of creating an entirely new PWN, we updated [the original to the new], which explains why they share the same date."

6. On August 19, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed the Student's Interim IEP to the Parent and shared, "This IEP is very similar to [the Student's] previous IEP with the same goals and just a few small changes to services" and explained how to sign the documentation. On August 25, 2025, the School Psychologist reminded the Parent to sign the IEP.

   The Parent replied on August 26, 2025, requesting "specific elements" from the Student's IEP in the Previous District be carried forward to the LEA "before signing the IEP." The Parent wrote, "… the interim IEP indicates [the Student] does not qualify for transportation, but [the Student's] [Previous District] IEP stated [the Student] did qualify for special education transportation. At that time, I chose to provide transportation myself; however, I am no longer electing to waive that service. I am requesting that [the LEA] provide comparable transportation either by bus, or more practically, through parent mileage reimbursement." The Parent reiterated their requests and indicated that retroactive reimbursement should be provided from the first day of school, August 13, 2025, and continue thereafter at the standard IRS rate for the 53-mile round trip.

7. On September 2, 2025, the Special Education Administrator emailed the Parent regarding the Parent's request for transportation, " … because the law does not require school districts to provide transportation outside the school district when attendance is based on a parent[-]initiate[d] transfer, we are declining to provide transportation from your home in [City 1] to [the School]. We will however [sic] offer district transportation within [the LEA] boundaries to and from [the School] and a mutually agreed-upon [LEA] [s]chool. … Secondly, we recognize that [the Student] is eligible for transportation on the [Previous District's] IEP, but you had declined that service. Because we were not notified of your request to initiate transportation until August 28, 2025, we decline to provide transportation reimbursement prior to that date."

8. From September 2, 2025 through September 4, 2025, the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education, the Special Education Administrator, and the School Psychologist exchanged internal emails regarding transportation and the PWN:
    a. September 2, 2025 from the Special Education Administrator, "I called [the Parent] … and we spoke about the transportation. [The Parent understands that transportation is not applicable to an out[-]of[-]district transfer but doesn't understand how this does not deny [the Student's] transportation under [the] IDEA. [The Parent] requested … this rejection to be submitted through a PWN and I told [the Parent] we could follow up with one tomorrow. Do we want it to be separate or a part of the interim IEP PWN?" September 3, 2025 from the Special Education Administrator, "To me it makes sense to capture all interim IEP responses in one PWN so including our response to transportation would go within the same PWN as [the Student's] interim IEP … ." The Special Education Administrator wrote that transportation would be provided within the LEA's boundaries and asked the School Psychologist to update the PWN and send it to the Parent.
    b. On September 4, 2025, the School Psychologist sent an internal email indicating they updated the IEP and PWN, "I changed the verbiage on the PWN to reflect that transportation will continue to be provided within district boundaries."
9. On September 4, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed the Parent to communicate they had updated the Interim IEP to include the Student's eligibility for transportation. A corresponding PWN was issued, specifying that this eligibility covered transport to and from the School within the LEA's boundaries. On the same day, the Special Education Administrator shared a building list and an LEA map via email, and offered to establish transportation to and from the Parent's preferred location within the LEA's confines. In a December 1, 2025 email to the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education shared the Special Education Administrator also called the Parent on September 2, 2025 to discuss transportation and the LEA's offer for transportation within the LEA's boundaries.
10. In a September 10, 2025 email, the Parent challenged the LEA's stance on their offer of transportation within the LEA boundary and argued the most recent IEP from the Previous District included transportation based on an IEP team determination. They believed, "Once [the LEA] accepted [the Student] under voluntary transfer, the district assumed full responsibility for delivering FAPE - including existing implementing [the Student's] existing IEP in full. This obligation exists regardless of district boundaries. Offering transportation 'from a location within district boundaries' does not meet the IEP requirement. That is not a service listed on [the Student's] IEP. If the district refuses to bus from our home and refuses mileage reimbursement, then the service is not being provided at all." The Parent declined to sign the Interim IEP and the related PWN. On September 17, 2025, the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education provided the LEA's rationale for the provision of transportation within the LEA's boundaries.

11. In an email to the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education on September 17, 2025, the School Psychologist indicated the Student had been attending, and "We have been unable to finalize [the Student's] interim due to [the] parent not signing." The Assistant Superintendent replied on the same day, "We will split it into two PWN's. You can put all services except transportation on one PWN (this can include the parent consent for OT services). On the other put transportation a[s] Not a substantial change[,] not needing consent (we are still providing transportation within the school district."
12. On September 18, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed the Parent to share they had adjusted the paperwork and put transportation on a separate PWN to allow the Parent to consent to the Interim IEP.
13. A PWN dated September 17, 2025, was emailed to the Parent on September 18, 2025 and described a transportation change, "The Student continues to be eligible for transportation, as outlined in [their] [Previous District's] IEP. Transportation will be provided to and from [the School] and a mutually agreed upon location within the [LEA] boundaries." A "checkmark" indicated parental consent was not required. The following information was noted:
    a. Explanation: "[The Student] is eligible for transportation per [their] Previous District's] IEP."
    b. Options considered and rejected: "[The] Parent requested transportation to/from [the Student's] home in [City 1] … . The district is declining to provide transportation outside of the [LEA] boundaries for the following reasons: 1. Transportation as a part of [a] FAPE is available within the resident district boundaries to a resident district school. [The] Parent has opted to initiate a voluntary transfer to a school outside the resident district boundaries. 2. The law does not require that school districts provide transportation outside of the district boundaries when parents initiate a voluntary transfer."
    c. Data and other relevant factors were noted.
    d. The Parent acknowledged receipt of the PWN and added, "I acknowledge receipt of this PWN but do not consent. [The Student's] active IEP includes home-to-school transportation. This refusal does not meet [a] FAPE under [the] IDEA."
14. An IEP Progress Report dated October 9, 2025, indicated the Student made progress and was on pace to meet their goals in five of their six goal areas. The Student did not make progress on one of their reading goals.
15. The October 13, 2025 IEP indicated:

a. Goals: Social-emotional learning, reading (2 goals), math, writing, and occupational therapy.

b. Description of Related Service, Transportation: As an answer to the question, "Based on the IEP team determination of eligibility, does the student qualify for special education transportation as a related service for the duration of the IEP? The document indicated, "No."

16. The October 13, 2025 Transportation Eligibility document indicated the Student did not meet any of the transportation eligibility requirements determined by the following questions:

a. "Was the student administratively placed in a center-based classroom outside their school of residence? Note - if the student is at the school on a parent-initiated transfer, the student is unlikely to qualify for special education transportation." Answer: "No."

b. "Does the nature and severity of the student's disability make Sp[ecial] Ed[ucation] transportation necessary because the student cannot access the school building the same independent way (with or without accommodations) as non[-]disabled peers [?]" Answer: "No."

c. "Does the student exhibit significant and frequent behaviors that cannot be reasonably accommodated on gen[eral] ed[ucation] transportation, thus requiring special education transportation for safety?" Answer: "No."

d. "Does the student have physical disabilities or limitations that prevent the student from accessing school in the same independent way (with or without accommodations) as non-disabled peers?" Answer: "No."

e. "Does the student have other cognitive, medical, or safety needs that prevent the student from accessing school in the same independent way (with or without accommodations) as non-disabled peers? Answer: "No."

f. According to the document, if a "Yes" answer was noted for one or more of the questions, the Student would qualify for special education transportation.

17. The IEP Meeting Notes from October 13, 2025, noted the Parent's concern about the Student's progress in reading and the impact of the Student's transfer to the School. The Special Education Administrator discussed the possible impact and described the LEA's reading instruction. Regarding transportation, "… [the Parent] disagrees because if [the Student] were not taking medication then [the Student] would have more behaviors that would cause [the Student] to need transportation. Team shared that we have to consider [the Student's] current needs and we can always reconsider the transportation need if something changes."

18. The PWN dated October 13, 2025, described the special education, related services, and appropriate educational placement for the Student and any changes or modifications made to the aforementioned areas. A "Material Change in Services" for which parental consent was required, and a description of the actions proposed, it was noted the "Team proposes to remove transportation service." The following information was noted:

a. Explanation: "Special education transportation is a related service that IEP teams evaluate to determine if it is required for the student to access their education services. Eligibility for special education transportation may arise if a student with a disability cannot arrive at school to access services, [in] the same way a similarly situated non-disabled peer arrives to school. When assessed [by] the 5 guiding questions proposed by the Transportation Eligibility, each response is no, non[-]eligible."

b. Option rejected: "The team considered continuing to qualify [the Student] for transportation. This was rejected as [the Student] does not currently meet [the] criteria to qualify for transportation."

c. Data and other relevant factors were noted.

d. The Consent/non-consent page was not signed by any party.

19. Meeting Notes dated November 4, 2025, indicated the Team discussed adjusting the SDI provided to the Student. The notes indicated the "Team will update [the] IEP with this change and send documents to [the Parent] … . Changes will not take effect until [the Parent] signs [the] paperwork."

20. The Student's Daily Attendance Profile 2025-26 listed five absences and one late from August 19, 2025 to November 6, 2025.

Interview Summaries

Parent Interview

21. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent shared they applied for an out-of-district transfer for the Student to attend the LEA for the 2025-26 school year. The Parent expressed the Student's IEP from the Previous District indicated the Student needed specialized transportation to and from school, but it was "waived" because the Parent transported the Student daily.

22. The Parent recalled multiple conversations in August and September 2025 with LEA personnel regarding an Interim IEP. The Parent recalled the LEA sharing they would not provide transportation. Later, the LEA "came back" and said, "… We can offer transportation within district boundaries."

23. In late August 2025, the Parent, "… requested that in [the Student's] Interim IEP, that transportation be continued if busing isn't feasible. I offered alternative mileage reimbursement."

24. The Parent stated they transported the Student between the first day of School (August 13, 2025) and August 26, 2025 when they requested transportation be reinstated. The Parent estimated the Student missed three or four days of school because the Parent was unable to provide transportation.

25. At the October 13, 2025 IEP meeting, the Parent revealed the LEA did not believe the Student needed transportation services moving forward, and the Parent conceded, despite disagreeing.

Assistant Superintendent of Special Education Interview

26. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Superintendent of Special Education indicated the Parent requested a transfer from their home school district in City 1 to the LEA during the open enrollment process. The Assistant Superintendent shared the LEA had a board policy that allowed them to provide transportation within their school district boundaries.
27. The Assistant Superintendent acknowledged in the Student's Interim IEP dated August 13, 2025, "It says transportation. Yes. And so did we accept door-to-door transportation? And we put down 'yes' on there because we're providing transportation to and from the edge of the district …" per board policy. In the same interview, the Special Education Administrator shared they offered transportation within the LEA boundaries because the Student qualified for specialized transportation per their previous IEP. They shared that until the team could determine whether the Student was eligible, they would provide comparable service from the edge of the LEA boundary.
28. The Special Education Administrator indicated they eventually split the PWN into two parts, one for the provision of comparable special education services and one for transportation within the LEA boundaries.
29. The Special Education Administrator indicated that at the October 13, 2025 IEP meeting, the team reviewed the transportation eligibility form, and the Parent shared that for the December 2024 IEP, they "felt like [the Student] qualified for it [transportation] because [the Student] was not on medication."
30. The Assistant Superintendent submitted this email after their interview with the Complaint Investigator. In an email to Assistant Superintendent of Special Education dated December 1, 2025, the School Psychologist wrote, "I originally spoke with [the Parent] on 8/7 [2025]. When we spoke, I shared that [the Student] would not get transportation since [the Student] is an out-of-district transfer. [The Parent] was okay with this at the time as [the Parent] already had [the Student] signed up for before and after school care at [the School]. The Original [Interim] IEP … listed transportation as 'No.' I do not have a copy of the original PWN as I did not email it to [the Parent] separately … . On 8/26 [2025][,] [the Parent] emailed and requested transportation be continued. On 9/4 [2025][,] after the Special Education Administrator and Parent talked, I sent a revised PWN that listed eligibility for transportation within district boundaries … . This was not saved in Synergy because we eventually split transportation out into a separate PWN."

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #229, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented comparable special education services upon transfer, specifically transportation services from home to school, as mandated by the active IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-1(ccc)(W)(vvv)(1)(3), K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3); CFR § 300.323 (a)(e)(g).

According to 91-40-1(ccc)(W)(vvv)(1)(3), "related services" means developmental, corrective, and supportive services that are required to assist an exceptional child to benefit from special education, including transportation. "Transportation" means travel to and from school and between schools, and utilizing specialized equipment, including special or adapted buses, lifts, and ramps, if required to provide special transportation for a child with a disability.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3), an IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year.

According to CFR § 300.323(e)(g), if a child with a disability (who had an IEP that was in effect in a previous public agency in the same state) transfers to a new public agency in the same state, and enrolls in a new school within the same school year, the new public agency (in consultation with the parents) must provide a FAPE to the child (including services comparable to those described in the child's IEP from the previous public agency), until the new public agency either adopts the child's IEP from the previous public agency; or develops, adopts, and implements a new IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to implement comparable special education services upon transfer, specifically transportation services from home to school, as mandated by the active IEP.

The LEA asserted that, under State law regarding out-of-district enrollment and special education, it was not required to provide transportation for nonresident students residing outside its boundaries. It stated that the responsibility for transportation to ensure a FAPE remained with the Student's Previous District. The LEA offered transportation from an in-district bus stop and noted that if transportation was a barrier to a FAPE, the Student's remedy was to return to their district of residence.

The Kansas legislature recently enacted a law permitting students to apply for attendance at a non-resident district. Under that statute, when there is space for more students at any particular grade level at the non-resident district, that non-resident district is required to enroll non-resident students, through a lottery process. (K.S.A. 72-3123). This is a general education statute and is the statute upon which the district relies for its assertion that it is not required to provide transportation to exceptional children, even if those exceptional children have transportation in their IEP.

Paragraph (j) of that statute says:

> (j) Neither a resident school district nor a receiving school district shall be required to provide transportation to nonresident students unless otherwise required by applicable law. If space is available on school district transportation vehicles, a school district may provide nonresident students an in-district bus stop where transportation may be provided by such school district to and from such bus stop and the school for such nonresident students (emphasis added).

The question of whether transportation is otherwise required by applicable law for these exceptional children who have transportation in an IEP and are enrolled in a non-resident district is a question of first impression in Kansas.

Prior to the enactment of K.S.A. 72-3123, school districts had discretion on whether they accepted non-resident students. Because districts had no duty to enroll non-resident students under any circumstance, they were allowed to set non-discriminatory conditions for non-resident students seeking admission, including a requirement that the non-resident parents provide transportation to and from school. This condition was considered to be non-discriminatory because it applied to all non-resident students, and was based on case law at the highest level at which this issue has been considered.

In Osseo Area Schools v. M.N.B. 120 LRP 22511 (8th Cir. 2020), the court considered this issue, which it titled "Inter-District transfers." The 8th United States Circuit Court of Appeals said that, even where a child's IEP includes transportation as a related service, a non-residential district which accepts a student from another district, is not required to provide transportation from outside the district to its programs inside the district. In this case, the court said the receiving district would have to provide transportation to the student once the student entered its district, but only because state law required that result. The court added that there is no opposing IDEA requirement.

The enactment of K.S.A. 72-3123 removed the voluntary nature of inter-district transfers in Kansas by compelling districts to accept non-resident applications to the extent they had the capacity at each grade level to do so. This change meant that an exceptional child who was selected to be enrolled in a non-resident district pursuant to this statute has a statutory right to attend school in the non-resident district. That necessarily includes the right to receive the related services (including transportation) in his or her IEP because the Kansas Special Education for Exceptional Children Act requires school districts to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE), to exceptional children who are "enrolled in the school district," See K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2). A FAPE includes all of the related services (such as transportation) that are in the IEP of a child with an exceptionality (K.S.A. 72-3404(p)). Because K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2) requires only that an exceptional child be "enrolled in the school district," to be entitled to a FAPE, that statute makes no distinction with regard to the path the child, or the child's parents, took to enroll the child in the district. (emphasis added). Mere "enrollment," of an exceptional child in Kansas triggers the FAPE requirement.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is substantiated the LEA failed to provide comparable transportation services upon the Student's voluntary transfer from another district in the State.

Issue Two

Whether USD #229, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, declined to implement services upon transfer, thereby denying the student a FAPE. K.A.R. 91-40-2; CFR 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

According to CFR 34 § 300.17, a FAPE means special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge, meet the standards of the SEA, include an appropriate preschool, elementary school, or secondary school education in the state involved, and are provided in conformity with an individualized education program (IEP).

This is essentially the same as Issue 1, above. Issue 1 was addressed in full above. Accordingly, there are no additional findings or conclusion with regard to Issue 2.

Corrective Action

With regard to the amount of reimbursement for transportation expenses, the parent chose to provide transportation until August 26, 2025. On that date the parent notified the district that she was "no longer electing to waive that service, and added: "I am requesting that [the LEA] provide comparable transportation either by bus, or more practically, through parent mileage reimbursement." (Finding 6).

USD #229 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Submit to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) by no later than January 13, 2026, a written statement of assurance stating that it will comply with K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2), which requires school districts to provide a FAPE to any exceptional child "enrolled in the school district," without distinction as to how the child enrolled or where the child lives.
2. Submit to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) by no later than January 13, 2026, a written statement of the amount the district currently reimburses parents for transporting students to and from school
3. No later than January 21, 2026, reimburse the parent for the cost of transportation for the student to and from school, beginning August 27, 2025 and extending to the date the district begins providing transportation (if any), and notify SETS of the date that payments begin. The rate shall be the same as the rate that the district currently reimburses parents of resident children for transportation to and from school.

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 229,
Blue Valley Public Schools: 26FC229-001

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on November 13, 2025, by -------- on behalf of her daughter, --------. In the remainder of this decision, -------- will be referred to as "the parent," and -------- will be referred to as "the student." An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on December 22, 2025. That Complaint Report concluded that there was a violation of special education statutes and regulations.

Thereafter, the district filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parent, the Complaint Report, the district's notice of appeal, and the parent's response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Discussion of Issue on Appeal

The report found a violation with regard to Issue 1, stated as follows:

> ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #229, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), implemented comparable special education services upon transfer, specifically transportation services from home to school, as mandated by the active IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-1(ccc)(W)(vvv)(1)(3), K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3); CFR § 300.323 (a)(e)(g).

The investigator concluded that the district was out of compliance with law because it was required to provide transportation, at least for a limited time, and did not do so. The district submitted this appeal to contest this conclusion of the complaint investigator, based on several criteria which will be addressed in this decision.

The Appeal Committee first finds that the description of the facts presented in the district's appeal are accurate and those parts are succinctly stated as follows:

> The material facts of this case are not in dispute. (The parent) lives within the boundaries of the Lansing School District. Through the 2024-25 school year, her daughter attended elementary school in Lansing and had been found eligible to receive special education services. Her IEP team determined that she required transportation as a related service, but (the parent) elected to transport her daughter to and from school in Lansing.

Just before the 2025-26 school year, (the parent) applied for her daughter to transfer to Blue Valley pursuant to K.S.A. 72-3123. That statute took effect in the 2024-25 school year and requires school districts to determine (a) their "capacity" for the following school year, (b) how many of their resident students will be attending schools in the district, and (c) the number of open seats available to nonresident students. K.S.A. 72-3123(b) and (c)(1). Nonresident students may apply to fill any of the open seats. If the number of applications is less than the number of open seats, those who applied must be admitted. If the number of applicants is greater than the number of open seats, then the school district conducts a lottery to determine who will fill the open seats. K.S.A. 72-3123(c)(4 and 5). (The parent's) daughter was accepted for admission into Blue Valley for the 2025-26 school year. (The investigator's) report details exchanges of Prior Written Notices between Blue Valley and (the parent) in which Blue Valley initially sent (the parent) a PWN that stated both the substantive services Blue Valley would provide and that Blue Valley would not provide transportation to and from Lansing. After (the parent) refused to sign that PWN, Blue Valley split the PWNs so that one detailed the substantive educational services Blue Valley would provide, with the other outlining Blue Valley's refusal to transport (the parents) daughter to and from Lansing to Blue Valley. (The parent) agreed to the first PWN but refused to consent to the second one. Blue Valley has since reviewed the IEP of (the parent's) daughter and determined that she does not require transportation at all in order to receive a free appropriate public education. (The investigator) did not address this issue in her report.

After reviewing the IEP that had been prepared by Lansing, Blue Valley agreed to provide the same substantive educational services to (the parent's) daughter with minimal revisions. But Blue Valley refused (the parent's) demand that Blue Valley transport her daughter between Lansing and Blue Valley each day (or pay (the parent) to do so), contending that such was not required under either Kansas law or IDEA. However, Blue Valley offered to provide transportation from any school within Blue Valley's boundaries to the school (the parent's) daughter would be attending. The parent refused Blue Valley's offer and filed her complaint.

Before doing so however, (the parent) gave her consent to the removal of transportation services from her child's IEP, as reflected in the Prior Written Notice enclosed with this notice of appeal. The PWN was delivered to (the parent) on October 13, 2025, and she signed the PWN on November 12, 2025.

With this background, the Appeal Committee reviews the district's various positions on appeal.

The committee first addresses the district's arguments under federal law.

The 8th United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in Osseo Area Schools v. M.N.B., 970 F.3d 917 (8th Cir. 2020), addressed a situation, where the state of Minnesota had adopted a similar statute allowing students to enroll in non-resident school districts. That statute specified that school districts accepting non-resident students were required to provide transportation to these non-resident students only within their boundaries. Although decisions of the 8th Circuit do not provide precedent in Kansas, they can act as a persuasive authority.

The Appeal Committee, however, finds that the district's appeal relies too heavily on the Osseo decision. In Osseo, the court gave considerable weight to Minnesota statute § 124D.03, subdivision 8, saying that the nonresident school district must provide transportation only "within the district," and § 123B.88, subdivision 6, stating that "[i]f requested, a nonresident district shall transport a nonresident pupil within its borders and may transport a nonresident pupil within the pupil's resident district." This Minnesota statute is significantly different than the applicable Kansas statute at K.S.A. 72-3123(j), which states that:

> (j) Neither a resident school district nor a receiving school district shall be required to provide transportation to nonresident students unless otherwise required by applicable law. If space is available on school district transportation vehicles, a school district may provide nonresident students an in-district bus stop where transportation may be provided by such school district to and from such bus stop and the school for such nonresident students (emphasis added).

The complaint investigator correctly noted that:

> The question of whether transportation is otherwise required by applicable law for these exceptional children who have transportation in an IEP and are enrolled in a non-resident district is a question of first impression in Kansas.
> Prior to the enactment of K.S.A. 72-3123, school districts had discretion on whether they accepted non-resident students. Because districts previously had no duty to enroll non-resident students under any circumstance, they were allowed to set non-discriminatory conditions for non-resident students seeking admission, including a requirement that the non-resident parents provide transportation to and from school. This condition was considered to be non-discriminatory because: (1) it applied to all non-resident students, and was based on case law at the highest level at which this issue has been considered (the Osseo decision) and (2) a FAPE continued to be available at the district of residence.

In Osseo, there was no provision qualifying the statutory language of "unless otherwise required by applicable law," as we see here in this Kansas statute. In addition, although the Osseo court found no barrier in federal law or in Minnesota law to limiting IEP mandated transportation, that court, of course, did not consider Kansas law.

The complaint investigator correctly observed that:

> The enactment of K.S.A. 72-3123 removed the voluntary nature of inter- district transfers in Kansas by compelling districts to accept non-resident applications to the extent they had the capacity at each grade level to do so. This change meant that an exceptional child who was selected to be enrolled in a non-resident district pursuant to this statute has a statutory right to attend school in the non-resident district. That necessarily includes the right to receive the related services (including transportation) in his or her IEP because the Kansas Special Education for Exceptional Children Act requires school districts to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE), to exceptional children who are "enrolled in the school district;" See K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2). A FAPE includes all of the related services (such as transportation) that are in the IEP of a child with an exceptionality (K.S.A. 72-3404(p)). Because K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2) requires only that an exceptional child be "enrolled in the school district," to be entitled to a FAPE, that statute makes no distinction with regard to the path the child, or the child's parents, took to enroll the child in the district. Mere "enrollment," of an exceptional child in Kansas triggers the FAPE requirement for the district where the student enrolls (emphasis added).

In short, the investigator found that whether the district was required to provide transportation to this particular student at any given time is not dependent on Minnesota or federal law, where, as here, Kansas statutes directly apply.

We note that the district's appeal says, > "the language of K.S.A. 72-3123(j) could not be a clearer sign of the Legislature's intent: Neither a resident school district nor a receiving school district shall be required to provide transportation to nonresident students unless otherwise required by applicable law. If space is available on school district transportation vehicles, a school district may provide nonresident students an in-district bus stop where transportation may be provided by such school district to and from such bus stop and the school for such nonresident students. A school district shall ensure that transportation for nonresident homeless students is provided comparably to that of housed students.

> Through this language, the Legislature warned parents that if they chose to enroll their children in a school district other than the one in which they reside, they would be responsible for, at a minimum, transporting their children to an in-district bus stop. Suggesting that this statute somehow increased a school district's transportation obligations couldn't be further from its plain language.

The appeal committee agrees with this analysis for general education students, but disagrees that it also applies to exceptional children. The language in the statute did not warn parents of exceptional children that "they would be responsible for, at a minimum, transporting their children to an in-district bus stop," it warned school districts that when they "enrolled" these exceptional children they were required to provide them with a free appropriate public education (see K.S.A. 72- 3410(a)(2), which will be addressed later in this decision). A free appropriate public education (FAPE) is defined in Kansas as special education and related services that: (4) are provided in conformity with an individualized education program (K.S.A. 72-3404(p)(4)). Transportation is a related service, that when in an IEP, is literally part of the FAPE obligation (K.A.R. 91-40-1(ccc)(1)(W). The Appeal Committee was unable to discern a specific "legislative intent" behind this statute and so has applied a literal interpretation.

Next, the district asserts that K.S.A. 72-6494, with inapplicable exceptions, "flatly prohibits school districts from transporting nonresident students."

The district's interpretation of K.S.A. 72-6494 is unpersuasive. That statute is a general education statute that addresses the district's computation of its transportation weighting under K.S.A. 72-5131. It does not prohibit districts from meeting its transportation obligations to children with disabilities under K.S.A. 72-3404(p)(4), nor from applying for state aid for transportation services to exceptional children under K.S.A. 72-3422(b)(2), which allows reimbursement of "80% of the actual travel expense incurred for providing transportation for exceptional children to special education or related services," without any expressed limitation regarding where the service begins or ends (emphasis added). Likewise, transportation funding is available to locations outside of district boundaries for "severely handicapped" children under K.S.A. 72-3481.

Moreover, K.S.A. 72-3411(a)(6) specifies that a board of education "shall have the authority to furnish transportation for exceptional children, whether such children are residents or nonresidents of such school district, for the provision of special education or related services."

In the district's next argument, it says the Complaint Investigator's decision rests on a flawed premise, namely that the decision "misses a crucial point," that when parents of nonresident students apply for admission to school districts in which they do not reside," it is a voluntary choice on their part, and by doing so, all such parents—regardless of whether their children are disabled—forfeit their right to transportation to and from school."

The appeal committee finds that interpretation to be: (1) unsupported by any Kansas statute or regulation and (2) contrary to the plain language in K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2), which requires only that an exceptional child be "enrolled in the school district," to be entitled to a FAPE, as that term is defined in K.A.R.91-40-1(z). These Kansas statute and regulation provisions do not distinguish whether a student is attending a school of residence or voluntarily attending school as a non-resident. This statute puts Kansas school districts on notice that if they enroll an exceptional child, they have a duty to make all of the special education and related services in the child's IEP available to that child. This is particularly applicable to children who are attending school in a non-resident district pursuant to a statutory right provided to them under a state statute, such as K.S.A. 72-3123(j).

We have already addressed the district's argument in its Fifth objection, that: "the Complaint Investigator's decision is flatly contrary to Osseo Area Schools v. M.N.B., 970 F.3d 917 (8th Cir. 2020) and she made no meaningful effort to distinguish that case, perhaps because it can't be distinguished." The distinction is quite distinct. As we have indicated earlier K.S.A. 72-3410(a)(2), requires only that an exceptional child be "enrolled in the school district," to be entitled to a FAPE. We believe that had Minnesota statutes had that same requirement, the outcome in Osseo would have been different.

Next, the district argues that "construing the requirement for a free appropriate public education to include an obligation to transport an open-enrolled student regardless of where the student resides, as the Complaint Investigator did in this case, would exceed the requirements of IDEA and violate the Spending Clause, under which IDEA was enacted, and adds that "The Complaint Investigator provided no sound reason why Kansas stands on a different footing than Minnesota."

We already addressed the district's assertion that the investigator "provided no sound reason why Kansas stands on a different footing than Minnesota." The investigator clearly described how Kansas law differed from Minnesota law. With regard to the Spending Clause of the United States constitution, we need not address that issue because the Spending Clause only applies to obligations imposed upon states under federal law and has no application to statutory burdens a state imposes on itself.

Next, in its conclusion, the district speculates that:

> The Complaint Investigator's decision would wreak havoc on school district transportation departments and would yield an absurd result. As KSDE is undoubtedly aware, school districts throughout the state are already faced with a shortage of bus drivers. Requiring school districts to develop bespoke transportation routes to pick up and return single students from as far away as parents are willing to tolerate, and to then staff those routes, would impose a monumental burden on school districts. The Legislature did not appropriate additional funding for such an extraordinary expense,… this doesn't suggest that the Legislature enacted K.S.A. 72-3123 to impose this specific specie of fiscal pain on Kansas school districts; rather, it leads to the conclusion that by disallowing transportation weighting for nonresident students, the Legislature didn't intend for school districts to bear this expense at all.

The district added a footnote, saying that Kansas school districts are facing bus driver shortages and that KSDE "should also keep in mind that students with more severe disabilities require bus aides. So, the Complaint Investigator's decision, if upheld, would obligate school districts not just to pay for additional drivers and the means of transporting students, but also for additional bus aides in many cases."

These concerns are genuine, but not relevant to the analysis of this appeal. The role of KSDE in these complaint investigations and appeals is to interpret the law (as it exists) and apply that interpretation to the facts presented in the complaint. KSDE cannot mitigate the effects of statutory provisions by imposing requirements that are not in the law nor by disregarding those that are.

Finally, the district requests that the corrective action requiring reimbursement of transportation expense be removed because on November 12, 2025, the parent consented to removal of transportation from the student's IEP. A copy of the electronically signed consent to remove transportation was attached to this appeal.

Finding 18(d) in the report confirms the content of this 10/13/25 PWN, but adds that the consent portion had not yet been signed. Perhaps this signed document had not been provided to the investigator or was overlooked by the investigator. In any event, the Appeal Committee will not revise the corrective action for two reasons.

First, K.A.R. 91-40-51(f) permits appeal of "the findings or conclusions of a compliance report." This regulation does not permit appeal of corrective actions, although the Appeal Committee may remove or alter corrective actions as appropriate when it concludes that findings and/or conclusions in the report are reversed or modified (which does not apply to this appeal).

Second, the Appeal Committee reads Corrective Action 3 to require the district only to pay for the cost of transportation actually provided (if any) for the student to attend school at USD 229. Inherent in this corrective action is the assumption that the student will continue to attend school in USD 229 and that transportation is provided in accordance with an IEP. This corrective action does not obligate the district to do anything with regard to transportation that is either: (a) not provided to or from a USD 229 school building or (2) that is not specified, or is no longer specified, in the student's IEP.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 22nd day of January, 2026.

Background

This complaint involves a 5-year-old boy who is enrolled in a preschool program in his local school district. The student received support from the county Infant Toddler Services Tiny K program before transitioning to Early Childhood services at age 3. The parent states that the student has been diagnosed with childhood apraxia which is defined by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association as a "motor speech disorder that makes it hard to speak." The student was determined to be eligible for special education services under the category of Developmental Delay because of his expressive communication and speech articulation delays.

The parents' application for an intradistrict transfer for the student was approved, and the student no longer is enrolled in the classroom he was attending at the time of the events described in this complaint.

Issues

A formal complaint must allege that a violation of special education laws or regulations has occurred within the 12-month period prior to the date the complaint is received and filed by the commissioner of education (K.A.R. 91-40-51(a) and (b)).

Issue One

Failure to provide Parents' Rights Notice upon disciplinary removal constituting a change in placement.

Position of the Parent

In her written complaint, the parent describes three occasions when the student "became emotionally escalated in class [and] was repeatedly removed and isolated in the back room of [the special education] classroom, separated from his peers." According to the parent, "these removals were not isolated incidents and represent a disciplinary pattern." It is the position of the parent that the LEA initiated disciplinary removals of the student without providing information to the parents about their rights.

Position of the LEA

The LEA asserts that the special education teacher's response to the student's dysregulation did not result in a disciplinary removal constituting a change of placement. Therefore, the LEA contends, there was no requirement for the provision of Parent Rights to the parent.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

In this issue, the parent refers to a "disciplinary removal" of the student. "Disciplinary removals" generally fall under one of five categories:

1. In-school suspension: Instances in which the LEA temporarily removed a child or youth from his/her regular classroom(s) for disciplinary purposes but the child or youth remains under the direct supervision of school personnel. Direct supervision means school personnel are physically in the same location as the child or youth under their supervision.
2. Out-of-school suspension: Instances in which the LEA temporarily removed a child or youth from his/her regular school for disciplinary purposes to another setting (e.g., home, behavior center). This includes both removals in which no IEP services are provided by the LEA because the removal is 10 days or less as well as removals in which the child or youth continues to receive services according to his/her IEP.
3. Expulsion: An action whereby the LEA removes a child or youth from his/her regular school for disciplinary purposes for the remainder of the school year or longer in accordance with LEA policy. This can include removals resulting from violations of the Gun Free Schools Act.
4. Removal to an interim educational setting: An appropriate setting determined by the child or youth's IEP team in which the LEA placed the child or youth for no more than 45 school days. This setting enables the child or youth to continue to receive educational services and participate in the general education curriculum (although in another setting) and to progress toward meeting the goals set out in the IEP.
5. Removal by a hearing officer: Instances in which an impartial hearing officer orders the removal of a child or youth with disabilities from his/her current educational placement to an appropriate alternative educational setting for not more than 45 school days based on the hearing officer's determination that maintaining the child's or youth's current placement is substantially likely to result in injury to the child or youth, or others. The IEP team is responsible for determining the interim alternative educational setting.

The removals described above are applied when any student has violated a rule established by a district Code of Conduct which applies to all students enrolled in the LEA regardless of whether the student has or has not been determined eligible for special education services. However, a number of protections are afforded to students who receive special education services under an IEP when an LEA initiates a disciplinary removal.

Not every action taken by an LEA to address a student's behavior constitutes a disciplinary removal. Schools may use customary disciplinary techniques for all children, including those with disabilities. For children with disabilities, traditional forms of discipline such as detention, or the restriction of privileges, can be used so long as these forms of discipline are also used with nondisabled children and do not violate the provisions of a child's Individualized Education Program (IEP or the child's right to a free appropriate public education (FAPE)).

Special provisions are applied in instances when the disciplinary removal results in a change of placement for a student. At K.A.R. 91-40-33 (a)(1), Kansas special education regulations define the phrase "change in placement for disciplinary reasons," stating that the phrase means that:

> "…school personnel or a special education due process hearing officer has ordered any of the following changes in placement of a child with a disability:
> (A) The child is suspended or expelled from school for more than 10 consecutive school days.
>
> (B) The child is subjected to a series of short-term suspensions constituting a pattern that meets all of the following criteria:
>
> (i) The suspensions cumulate to more than 10 school days in a school year,
>
> (ii) Each incident of misconduct resulting in a suspension involved substantially the same behavior,
>
> (iii) The length of each suspension, the total amount of time the child is suspended, and the proximity of the suspensions to one another indicate a pattern.

When a change of placement as defined above occurs, a number of requirements are triggered – including the requirement that parents be provided with a copy of the Parent Rights notice (K.S.A. 72-3433(d)(1)).

Investigative Findings

An annual review of the student's IEP was conducted on November 26, 2024. The parent participated in that meeting. According to the November 2024 IEP, the team did not believe that the student's behavior impeded his learning or that of others. Per the IEP, the student was placed in an Early Childhood Special Education (ECSE) classroom where peer models were also in attendance. On November 26, 2024, the parent provided her written consent for the LEA to implement the student's IEP.

Under the "Goals and Objectives/Benchmarks Present Levels" section of the November 2024 IEP, the IEP team included the following statement:

> "When compared to typically developing children his age, [the student's] ability to respond appropriately to disappointment is considered delayed for a child of his age. Most children can accept minor disappointments and move on without getting upset or throwing a fit. When [the student] requests a change in routine or is wanting to avoid an activity [he] will stomp his feet and yell at teachers when what he wants to happen is not a choice. [The student] will often be given a choice of where to take a break so that instruction with his peers can continue with less disruption, [the student] often refuses and his behavior escalates to the point that he needs assistance to be moved from the learning area 75% of the times observed. [The student] is starting to understand that the Peace corner is not a time out but a place that it is safe for him to feel big emotions, without disrupting his peers' learning.]

…[The student's] delays in communication can cause him to become easily frustrated when communicating his wants and needs and advocating for what he wants. [He] often displays frustrations and approaches communication as if their [sic] is a miscommunication when he wants something to go his way, but does not get it…

[The student] loves school and learning, when prompted will take deep calming breaths when he is upset. He will also go to the peace corner when he is unable to calm down with prompting."

The IEP team developed the following goal to address the established need:

"When [the student] is faced with disappointment or something doesn't go the way he wanted, [he] will be able to utilize self-calming strategies (e.g. breathing techniques, problem-solving, calm-down area) after one verbal prompt at 80% of the times observed by the end of the IEP year as measured by observation."

In her complaint, the parent cites two instances (on February 20 and April 1, 2025) when the student was removed from the main Early Childhood classroom. The LEA reports that the student moved to the "calm-down area" of the classroom on 4 additional occasions (April 15 and May 6, 13, and 20, 2025). In her complaint, the parent cited excerpts from emails sent by the special education teacher to inform the parent of what had occurred in each of these instances.

The parent described another incident on April 10, 2025 when the student remained in the main classroom area while his classmates moved to the other space described above. Per the parent's complaint, she was informed by email from the special education teacher of the circumstances surrounding this event.

The Early Childhood classroom is made up of multiple areas – a main classroom where the majority of instruction is delivered and a separate space (the "calm-down area named above) that houses student cubbies for storing bookbags, jackets, and other items. The latter area also has a table and chairs used for small group activities, a mini-trampoline for sensory opportunities, and a refrigerator. The space is utilized for a variety of purposes including speech and occupational therapy, and provides a quiet environment where paraeducators can work with students in a quiet environment. The area leads to the restroom and has two exits, including one to the classroom. The second exit leads to the hallway outside of the classroom.

On the occasions when the student was moved to the "calm-down area" of the classroom, he was accompanied by the special education teacher who allowed time for the student to express his feelings and prompted his use of calming strategies while ensuring that the student did not injure himself. Once the student had calmed, he was encouraged to talk about why he was upset. The special education teacher engaged with the student to reinforce positive behaviors. Per an email from the Director of Special Education to the parent dated November 20, 2025, the student was typically able to become regulated in "about 5 minutes."

Summary and Conclusions

One of the annual goals included in the student's November 2024 IEP specifically states that use of the calm-down space will be one of the strategies he can use when "faced with disappointment or something doesn't go the way he wanted." The special education teacher did not employ the calm-down space as a disciplinary consequence but rather a strategic intervention designed to provide the student with a safe, quiet space to become regulated. Movement of the student to the calm-down space is consistent with the implementation of the student's annual goal. The three examples provided by the parent do not meet the definition of a disciplinary removal of the student. A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Two

No Prior Written Notice (PWN) for initial provision of IEP services and placement was provided to the parent.

Position of the Parent

It is the position of the parent that – without notice and without her consent - the student was removed from the classroom for more than 25% of his school day.

Position of the LEA

It is the position of the LEA that the interventions implemented by the teacher in response to the student's dysregulation did not represent a change in placement for the student.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

An LEA must obtain the informed written consent of the parent before initially providing special education and related services to an exceptional child (K.A.R. 91040-27(a)(2)) and must obtain the written consent of the parent before making a material change in services to, or a substantial change in the placement of, an exceptional child (K.A.R. 91-49-27(a)(3)) thereafter.

A "substantial change in placement" is defined as movement of an exceptional child for more than 25% of the child's school day, from a less restrictive environment to a more restrictive environment or from a more restrictive environment to a less restrictive environment (K.S.A. 77-3404 (aa)).

Investigative Findings

The initial evaluation of the student to determine his eligibility for special education services was conducted in December 2023 - more than 12-months prior to the date this complaint was received by KSDE.

Concerning the parent's allegation regarding a change in placement for the student, no evidence was provided by either party to show the precise amount of time the student spent in the calm-down area (cubby room) adjacent to the main classroom. In an email to the parent dated November 20, 2025, the Director of Special Education stated that she had determined that the student was typically able to become regulated after "about 5 minutes."

The LEA identified 6 occasions over 6 different days when the student and the teacher moved to the calm-down area to allow the student to focus on calming strategies.

At the time these interventions were implemented, the student's school day was 3 hours in length. The student's November 2024 IEP stated that the student would > "…participate in the general education setting more than 40% but less than 80% of the time due to receiving services in an ECSE class setting with limited access to general education [peer models] for a portion of the day…[and] receive services through the [speech language pathologist] 15 min, 3 times per week on 3 of 4 weeks and on the 4th week receives indirect services to the IEP team for 15 min…"

Summary and Conclusions

The parent asserts that the student had been removed from a less restrictive environment to a more restrictive environment for more than 25% of his school day. Based on the student's November 2024 IEP, the student could – on a non-speech day - spend anywhere from 72 minutes to 144 minutes in the "less restrictive" main ECSE classroom area. Assuming the student spent 5 minutes in the calm-down area working exclusively with the teacher apart from his peers, that amount of time would represent approximately 7% of a day when the student was in the main classroom environment for 72 minutes. On a day when the student was spending 144 minutes in the main classroom, that 5 minutes would represent 3.5% of the student's day. Assuming that a move to the calm-down space actually does represent a move to a "more restrictive environment," the periods of time when the student was in the calm-down area would represent far less than the threshold 25% of the school day that would require the LEA to obtain written parental consent.

Under these circumstances, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Three

Violation of the student's right to a free appropriate public education (FAPE)

Position of the Parent

The parent asserts that the student was moved outside of the main ECSE classroom without first exhausting less restrictive alternatives or utilizing positive behavior supports thereby denying the student access to a full continuum of behavioral support options.

Position of the LEA

The LEA asserts that the student's IEP was implemented as written and contends that a variety of options were utilized with the student to help him regulate when frustrated.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

Investigative Findings

The student's November 2024 IEP does not require the use of any specific positive behavior supports. Nonetheless, the special education teacher utilized a number of positive behavior supports to help the student including

- "warm fuzzies" to encourage pro-social behaviors;
- Making "green choices" with classmates to earn a class party;
- Verbal praise for appropriate behavior;
- Demonstrating strategies he could use with sensory toys;
- Use of a positive reward chart with a treasure chest or other identified rewards;
- Processing the student's feelings with classroom staff;
- Exploring with the student opportunities for him to get to do something he was not allowed to do at a given time;
- Offering the opportunity and staff support to move from a "red choice" to a "green choice; and
- Use of the "Peace Corner" – a space in the main ECSE classroom where the student could go when upset or frustrated.

The Peace Corner in the classroom housed a number of sensory toys which the student could use to regulate his emotions. The special education teacher demonstrated to the student how these toys could be used.

If the student became dysregulated, the special education walked the student through strategies he could use to calm himself. Once the student was calm, the special education teacher or paraeducator would validate his "big feelings" and talk with the student about why he was upset, about choices he had made, and how he might later have opportunities to access the item or activity he had wanted prior to becoming dysregulated.

Progress reports covering the period of March through November 2025 show that the student made gains on both his annual goals. At the time the student's IEP was written, he was responding to disappointment or a need for redirection by stomping his foot, crying, or yelling at teachers 70% of the time. By March 14, 2025, he was utilizing self-calming strategies after one verbal prompt 50% of the time and was "more willing to go to the Peace Corner…" When progress was monitored on May 23, 2025, the student was using self-calming strategies 55% of the time with one verbal prompt and was observed to be "mindful when given choices to take breaths when suggesting options to help himself feel better when he is upset or move to the peace corner when he is upset."

Summary and Conclusions

Evidence obtained during this investigation shows that positive behavior supports have been provided to the student. Between the time the November 2024 IEP was developed for the student and the end of the 2024-25 school year, the student was increasing in his ability to use self-calming strategies in the classroom. Because there is no evidence to show that the student has been denied a FAPE, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Four

Failure to use a variety of assessment tools and resources.

Position of the Parent

The parent asserts that while the student's IEP was developed "for speech services," the special education teacher unilaterally identified behavioral issues without first conducting a Functional Behavioral Assessment (FBA) and without first consulting the school's care team thereby hindering the student's progress and creating unnecessary boundaries to his learning.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

The purpose of an initial evaluation in special education is to determine if a child has a disability (by meeting one of the disability categories established by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act or IDEA) and needs special education services. Once eligibility has been established, it is the job of the IEP team – at the time the first IEP for the student is developed and when reviewing/revising the student's IEP thereafter – to address each of the educational needs identified in the Present Level of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance that results from the child's exceptionality. At K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(2), Kansas statutes state that it is the duty of the IEP team to consider the academic, developmental, and functional needs of the child at the time of the development of the initial IEP for the student and at each annual review and/or reevaluation.

Schools must ensure that a reevaluation of each child with an exceptionality is conducted if conditions warrant a reevaluation, or if the child's parents or teacher requests a reevaluation, but at least once every three years.

When developing an evaluation plan for an initial evaluation or a reevaluation, the evaluation team may determine that an FBA should be included. The development and/or review of an FBA is critical when a serious disciplinary consequence is being considered such as a removal from the educational environment of more than 10 school days or placement in an alternative educational setting for 45 school days. Certainly, an FBA can be a useful tool for an IEP team to use when a student with an IEP develops new, severe, or persistent behaviors, or when existing ones worsen. However, special education laws and regulations do not prohibit IEP teams from developing behavior related goals without first conducting an FBA.

Investigative Findings

In December 2023, shortly before the student's third birthday, he was evaluated by staff from the LEA to determine whether he was eligible for and in need of special education services. The evaluation team included a speech/language pathologist, a school psychologist, an Early Childhood teacher (who became the student's special education teacher), a representative of the agency that was providing services to the student at the time of the evaluation, and the student's parents.

Because at the time of the evaluation the student had limited expressive communication skills, a play-based evaluation of the student was conducted. At the time of the evaluation it was noted that the student "will get frustrated when he is not understood and will shut down and has bitten or hit others when he is frustrated and cannot get his message across to others." According to the report of the evaluation, the assessment team did "not have concerns regarding [the student's] cognitive, social/emotional, self-help or motor development" but did deem the student to be eligible for and in need of special education services due to delays in his speech and expressive communication development.

When the student's IEP team – which included the parent – conducted the annual review of his IEP in November 2024, they noted that – in addition to previously identified communication delays – the student was not responding appropriately to disappoint at a developmentally appropriate level, and they therefore developed an annual goal to address this identified need. According to the student's November 26, 2024 IEP, these behaviors were not impeding his learning or that of others at that time.

Both the parent and the LEA report that, beginning in the late third quarter of the 2024-25 school year, the student began to display an increase in the frequency of episodes when the student became frustrated. There is no evidence to show that the LEA or the parent felt that any additional testing was needed to address this change. Neither party asked for a review of the student's IEP.

In this district, the "CARE Team" is described as a "Mental Health Team." According to the Director of Special Education, this team has several responsibilities designed to ensure that students' basic needs are met, including working with families. The team may be called in if a teacher needs assistance with a student. However, the decision to call in the team is made by the teacher.

Summary and Conclusions

At the time of the student's initial evaluation to determine his eligibility for special education services in December 2023, the student was reported to have demonstrated some developmentally inappropriate responses to frustration. When the annual IEP review for the student was conducted in November 2024, the student was still demonstrating frustration when he perceived there had been "a miscommunication when he wants something to go his way, but does not get it." The IEP team – which included the parent – opted to develop a goal to address this need. There is no evidence to show that anyone on the team felt that additional testing was warranted or that any additional input from LEA staff outside of the IEP team was needed in order to address the student's behavior.

The decision to address an identified behavioral need was not made unilaterally by the special education teacher but rather was made by the student's IEP team – which included the parent. A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Five

Emotional and psychological harm inflicted on the student while in the ECSE program.

Position of the Parent

In this issue, the parent asserts that during the spring semester of 2025, the special education teacher routinely utilized Emergency Safety Interventions (ESI) by placing the student in a back room without witnesses and failed to provide the required documentation of these incidents. The parent contends that the student was "subjected to emotional abuse and the improper and illegal use of seclusion."

Position of the LEA

It is the position of the LEA that the special education teacher did not implement an ESI-defined seclusion because the teacher was present and meaningfully engaging the student at all times.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations, Investigative Findings, Summary and Conclusions

An ESI involves the use of a physical restraint or seclusion when a student presents an immediate danger to themselves or others. ESIs should be considered as a "last resort" after less restrictive interventions have been attempted and deemed ineffective. ESIs are not to be used for punishment or convenience.

The authority to investigate issues related to the implementation of ESIs fall outside the purview of a special education complaint investigator. Beginning at 91-42-1, Kansas Administrative Regulations address ESIs. At 91-42-3, regulations require districts to develop and implement written policies to govern the use of ESIs including the development of written policies to govern procedures for a parent to file a complaint with the local school board if a parent believes an ESI has been used in violation of state regulations. Regulations require districts to develop policies regarding a parent's right to request an administrative review by the state board as specified in K.A.R. 91-42-5.

If a parent believes that an emergency safety intervention has been used with the parent's child in violation of the State Board's emergency safety intervention regulations or the district's emergency safety intervention policy, the parent may file a complaint with the local board of education. The complaint must be filed within 30 days of the date on which the parent was informed of the use of that emergency safety intervention. The local board's final decision must be in writing and include findings of fact and any corrective action required by the district if the local board deems these actions necessary. The local board's final decision must be mailed to the parent and KSDE within 30 days of the local board's receipt of the complaint.

Any parent who filed a written complaint with their local board of education regarding the use of emergency safety intervention and is either not satisfied with the local board's final decision, or did not receive a final decision within 30 days, may request an administrative review by the Kansas State Board of Education.

While the investigation of the specific circumstances regarding the implementation of an ESI is the responsibility of a district's school board, investigation of allegations regarding the provision of a free and appropriate public education (FAPE) falls under the purview of a special education complaint investigator. FAPE ensures that children with disabilities receive specially designed instruction and related services that enable the student to make appropriate progress in light of the student's circumstances.

The issue of the student's right to a FAPE was addressed above under Issue Three. Because this investigation determined that the student's right to a FAPE was not violated, this issue was not investigated further.

Issue Six

Refusal to collaborate with private service providers during OT evaluation process.

Position of the Parent

It is the opinion of the parent that the special education teacher displayed a dismissive attitude toward outside professional input and was unwilling to engage meaningfully with outside providers regarding an Occupational Therapy evaluation of the student.

Position of the LEA

The LEA contends that while encouraged, collaboration with outside agencies by an individual teacher is not required. The LEA further asserts that the special education teacher did not refuse to collaborate with outside service providers but rather asked that a requested telephone call take place at a time that did not require the teacher to be absent from classroom instruction.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Parents have every right to pursue an outside evaluation to address the needs of their child. The LEA is obligated to consider the results of any outside evaluation presented by the parent. However, special education statutes and regulations do not address how an LEA must respond to a parent's request for LEA participation in an outside evaluation.

Investigative Findings

On April 17, 2025, the parent sent an email to the special education teacher telling the teacher that the student's private speech therapist had recommended an Occupational Therapy (OT) evaluation for the student. According to the email, the therapist would be reaching out to the teacher to schedule a three-party call including a private OT.

The private speech therapist sent an email to the special education teacher on April 21, 2025 with a release of information signed by the parents allowing the parties to speak and asking the teacher for a good time for a phone call. The teacher responded by email on April 22, 2025 stating that "any day between 11:20 and noon is my plan time." The speech therapist wrote back suggesting a call at 12:40 on April 29, 2025 and asking for a phone number for the call.

After being contact by the parent about the telephone call, the special education teacher sent an email to the speech therapist on May 13, 2025 apologizing for a delayed response. The teacher told the therapist that she had a break between 11:20 and 12:30 with no students when she would prefer to talk with the therapist and the OT. The parties agreed to speak on May 15, 2025 at 11:30 and the teacher provided a number for the therapist to call.

Summary and Conclusions

The evaluation process specified by the parent in her complaint was related not to an in-district assessment but rather to an outside OT evaluation suggested by the student's private speech therapist. On April 17, 2025, the parent notified the special education teacher the private speech therapist would be in touch to set up a conference call to talk about the student. The teacher responded the next day to an April 21, 2025 email from the therapist which allowed the parties to share information about the student and told the therapist she would be available to talk any day during a specified 70-minute window. The speech therapist responded immediately but suggested holding the phone conference at a time the teacher was not available. There was no contact between the parties until May 15, 2025, when after prompting from the parent, the special education teacher reached out to the speech therapist and a time and date for the phone call was set.

While it would have been courteous for the special education teacher to have followed up with the outside speech therapist after having been offered a time for a conference call that did not work for her, the teacher was not under any obligation established by special education statutes and regulations to do so. Under these circumstances, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has not substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations on issues presented in this complaint. Therefore, no corrective actions are required.

DATE OF REPORT: OCTOBER 19, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, -------, by their parents, ------- and -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parents as "the Parents."

The Complaint is against USD #512, Shawnee Mission Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #512.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on September 22, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on October 22, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), provided the Parents with the criteria and reasons for its denial of homebound instruction. K.A.R. 91-40-26(a), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2), K.S.A. 72-3432; 34 § C.F.R. 300.503.

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied the Parents meaningful participation by limiting "communication to one-way written statements, not interactive dialogue." K.A.R. 91-40-17; 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.322, 300.501.

ISSUE THREE: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided a free appropriate public education (FAPE) when it denied homebound instruction and failed to provide the Student with tutoring, homework, or educational services for more than three weeks. K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.17, 300.101.

Investigation of Complaint

The Complaint Investigator interviewed the Parents by video conference on October 7, 2025. The LEA's Special Education Teacher was interviewed on October 7, 2025.

In completing this investigation, the Complaint Investigator reviewed documentation provided by the Parents and the LEA. Although additional documentation was provided and reviewed, the following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

1. District Response, 10/01/25
2. District Letter to the Parent of [the Student], 09/12/25
3. Prior Written Notices, 09/12/25, 09/22/25
4. Communication Log, 09/01/25-09/30/25
5. Artifact 9: Work for [the Student], 09/23/25

Background Information

This investigation involved a seventh-grade student who was enrolled in a center-based classroom at a middle school in USD #512. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA. In September 2025, following an incident involving Emergency Safety Interventions (ESI), the Parents notified the LEA the Student would no longer be attending the School due to concerns for their safety. Communication ensued between the Parents and the LEA regarding homebound instruction, interim homework, and alternative placement options.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parents and staff in the LEA.

1. On August 29, 2025, a Notice of Meeting indicated a virtual meeting had been scheduled for August 29, 2025, at 9:30 a.m. with the Parents. The notice indicated the meeting date was confirmed with the Parents on August 25, 2025, via electronic communication. The form indicated the purpose of the meeting was to "discuss possible changes in your child's" IEP. The form indicated it was hand-delivered to the Parents on September 3, 2025.
2. On August 29, 2025, according to the Special Education Teacher's Communication log, the Special Education Teacher emailed virtual meeting links to the Parents at 8:52 a.m. and 9:40 a.m. According to the log, the Special Education Teacher called Parent 1 at 11:46 a.m. to discuss an incident that occurred while they and the Parents were meeting virtually. At 12:04 p.m., the Special Education Teacher texted the Parents stating the Student had requested a staff member, whom they had hit earlier in the day, to walk the Student out when it was time to leave. At 12:19 p.m., the Special Education Teacher called Parent 2 to let them know the Student "was escalating and had eloped outside of the building."

3. On September 1, 2025, a communication log belonging to the Secondary Special Education Coordinator indicated a meeting was scheduled by the Principal to discuss the behavior that was occurring at school. The meeting was scheduled for September 3, 2025, at 1:30 p.m. The Notice of Meeting was hand-delivered to the Parents on September 3, 2025, with the box checked acknowledging the Parents planned to attend the meeting.
4. On September 2, 2025, the Parents emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator, confirming the Student displayed behaviors when they were experiencing stress and anxiety. The Parents stated the start of the school year had been "challenging, stressful, and anxiety-inducing" for the Student. The Parents continued, due to the experiences thus far in the school year, they believed the School administration lacked "the capacity and understanding to support the Student's needs." The Parents stated they "communicated repeatedly with everyone involved about what to expect from [the Student] and how to prepare." The Parents explained the Student had not managed to complete a full school day.
   The Parents' concerns regarding the School's handling of the Student were reportedly heightened following the emergency meeting on August 29, 2025 where the Student exhibited troubling, recurring behaviors that continued throughout the day, culminating in a "complete meltdown and an aggressive attack." Upon Parent 1's arrival, the Student was emotionally distraught following an incident for which the Parents did not receive documentation, leaving the procedure for how the Student was handled unclear. Furthermore, communication was problematic when the Principal initially told Parent 1 they "preferred" the Student not return to school, only acknowledging it was an official suspension after Parent 1 asked directly.
   The Parents stated their priority was to keep the Student from hating school. They added that their second priority was keeping the Student from being labeled as someone "who has basically battered everyone" at the School. The Parents asked to open a discussion to find "what options there are and what support the district can/will provide." They stated the Student would not attend the School because the Parents believed there were "other places that can support [the Student's] needs."
5. On September 3, 2025, the Secondary Special Education Coordinator responded to Parent 2's email from September 2, 2025. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator stated they were agreeable to talk about their concerns. They stated they had left messages on both the home and work numbers. They provided their phone number. They stated they were happy to talk via phone or in person. The email ended by asking Parent 2 if they still planned on attending the meeting scheduled for that day at 1:30 p.m. or preferred to cancel.

6. On September 3, 2025, the Secondary Special Education Coordinator documented in their communication log a virtual meeting with the Parents in which they discussed the concerns outlined in Parent 2's email. Parent 2 asked about Off-Campus Educational Services (OCES), or homebound instruction. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator stated they would gather more information and get back to them.
7. On September 5, 2025, Parent 2 emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator stating they had not received the release of information form and questioned whether that would come "once a school [had] been identified." The Secondary Special Education Coordinator emailed Parent 2 stating they were sending the release of information form so they could identify potential out-of-district programs. Parent 2 emailed the signed release back to the Secondary Special Education Coordinator.
8. On September 9, 2025, the Secondary Special Education Coordinator emailed Parent 2 stating they forwarded the release to the Assistant Special Education Director, who would contact potential placements. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator explained the next steps in the process were to "stay put," which meant the Student could return to the School "between now and finding another placement." They stated they had looked into [OCES] but indicated the "guidelines [were] very specific and [did] not apply in this situation."

   Parent 2 emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator to state they were disappointed regarding their current "impasse." Parent 2 stated the Student would not be returning to the School and added, "This decision remains non-negotiable." They reiterated their primary concern was the safety of the Student. Parent 2 stated they are not willing to "take that risk" of having another incident like those that occurred on August 28 and August 29, 2025. Parent 2 stated those events posed a threat to the Student's physical and mental well-being and also the "staff members who may not be adequately prepared to handle the situation." Parent 2 also emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator to request a copy of the guidelines for homebound instruction.
9. On September 11, 2025, Parent 1 emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator requesting a response to the email that was sent on September 9, 2025.
10. On September 12, 202, the Parents emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator requesting a call back. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator emailed the Parents stating they could call them at 12:15 p.m. The Parents emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator, stating they tried to call and left a message. They confirmed they would be speaking at 12:15 p.m. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator called the Parents and documented they asked for homework to be sent home for the Student. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator documented how they discussed OCES and why it would not be appropriate for the Student.
11. On September 12, 2025, the LEA responded to the Parents' notification of their intent not to return the Student to the School by issuing both a letter and a PWN. The School Psychologist's letter referenced Kansas law, outlining the Parents' duty to ensure the Student attended school for IEP services or pay for them privately. The PWN documented the Parents' "unilateral decision" made on September 2, 2025, and clarified that no other options were considered since the IEP team did not make the decision. Both communications stated the LEA "stands ready, willing, and able" to provide the special education services listed in the Student's IEP dated November 14, 2024. The PWN indicated it was emailed to the Parents.

12. On September 15, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed the LEA's "Ready, Willing, and Able" (RWA) Letter and the corresponding PWN. Parent 2 responded to the School Psychologist's email asking for clarification about the RWA letter. The School Psychologist responded to Parent 2, stating it was just for the interim, and they were looking at placement options in the meantime. They added the Secondary Special Education Coordinator would be able to give the Parents updates once they knew more.
13. On September 16, 2025, Parent 1 emailed the School Psychologist and asked when the Secondary Special Education Coordinator would be available to talk about the RWA and PWN. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator replied to Parent 1, stating they were out sick and could talk when they returned. Parent 1 emailed back and asked to speak with the School Psychologist since the Secondary Special Education Coordinator was not available.
14. On September 17, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed Parent 1 back and stated they were unable to talk with Parent 1 that day, and added the Secondary Special Education Coordinator would be back the next day.
15. On September 17, 2025, according to the Special Education Teacher's communication log, the Special Education Teacher emailed the Parents at 8:18 a.m. the work they had requested for the Student. Parent 1 replied at 2:10 p.m. with, "Thanks."
16. On September 19, 2025, the Secondary Special Education Coordinator emailed the Parents to inform them they had a meeting with Placement Option 1 on September 26, 2025, at 11:00 a.m. and asked if the Parents were available to meet virtually. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator added they were "also exploring other placement options." Parent 2 emailed back to say they were available.
17. On September 22, 2025, the LEA issued a PWN, which indicated the following:
    a. Proposed or refused action: The Parents had requested consideration of a homebound, OCES placement for the Student until an out-of-district placement could be secured. The LEA denied OCES.
    b. Explanation: The Student required "a highly structured setting with established routines and relationships." OCES would require the Student to change routines twice and work with unfamiliar staff. The Student could continue services at the School "pending an out-of-district placement."
    c. Options considered:
        i. Providing OCES to the Student, which was rejected because it would require a transition to a short-term placement during which the Student would work with unfamiliar staff members and then would transition again to another placement.

ii. Return to the School for services outlined in the Student's IEP, which was rejected because the Parents elected to not access services at the School pending an out-of-district placement.

d. Basis for decision: IEP services, behavior intervention plan, and most current evaluation.

e. Other factors: The PWN reiterated the Student received services in a "Structured Learning Classroom (SLC)," per their IEP, due to their need for a "highly structured setting with established routines and relationships." The PWN also added the Student was not receiving services while they were not attending school.

f. Documentation indicated the form was emailed to parents.

g. None of the options requiring parental consent were selected on the form.

18. On September 22, 2025, the Parents emailed the School Psychologist regarding the PWN and RWA dated September 15, 2025, stating they disputed "the District's characterization that [the Student's] removal from [the School] was a unilateral decision." They stated the Student's removal was due to unsafe conditions at the School, "including inappropriate physical handling by staff." Parent 2 stated that because the LEA was looking for placement options, it contradicted the School, stating they were "ready, willing, and able" to implement the Student's IEP at the School. The Parents added their "requests for homebound services and written homebound guidelines" were denied or ignored. They stated they had not received the guidelines. Parents stated they requested homework to be sent home multiple times and had "finally received some," but stated the delay deprived the Student of access to educational materials. The Parents also stated the LEA limited communication to "one-way written explanations," which prevented the Parents from "engaging in a meaningful dialogue."
19. On September 23, 2025, the Parents emailed the Secondary Special Education Coordinator expressing their disagreement with the PWN rejecting OCES. The Secondary Special Education Coordinator documented in their communication log they had discussed those concerns the same day in a phone call.

Parent 2 Interview

20. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Parent 2 reported the District provided "one-way responses," meaning staff often responded to anticipated questions via email at the end of the day or failed to return voicemails, which prevented verbal conversation. Their primary concern involved an RWA form and a PWN sent by the LEA, stating the Parents had "unilaterally declined" services. Parent 2 explained the services were declined not due to the IEP itself, but because of safety concerns regarding the assigned school environment, a nuance they felt the document's language failed to capture. Despite multiple attempts through email and voicemail to discuss the language of the form and gain clarity, the Parents were never afforded a direct conversation with any staff member to address their specific concerns about the documentation.

21. Parent 2 explained the Student was without educational services for a period of three weeks following the incident and a two-day suspension. Parent 2 reported the District initially declined their requests for supplemental homebound services and did not provide the guidelines or reasons for the denial. Parent 2 noted it was not until after they filed the complaint the LEA began sending homework, which they described as inadequate, consisting of printed-out, pre-answered computer slides, not suitable for the Student's learning needs. Parent 2 mentioned the LEA recently (after the complaint period range) offered off-site tutoring and questioned why that was not an option earlier when the Student had been out of school and they requested homebound services. Parent 2 expressed concern that the LEA only offered the Student services, despite an earlier denial, after the complaint was filed.

Special Education Teacher Interview

22. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Education Teacher stated they had the Student in their structured learning classroom for the 2025-26 school year.
23. The Special Education Teacher recalled the meeting held on August 29, 2025, with the Parents and the School staff to discuss strategies for addressing the Student's behavior. They described the Parents' practice of picking the Student up early at 1:00 p.m., and a plan was verbally agreed upon to gradually increase the Student's time in school, with the goal of achieving full-time attendance after winter break. The Special Education Teacher shared they had completed the necessary paperwork after the meeting, which had not been signed or predetermined, and explained they had planned to present this documentation to the Parents at a follow-up meeting that ultimately did not occur.
24. When asked about the events that took place after the meeting, the Special Education Teacher recalled that behavioral incidents occurred immediately before and after the strategy meeting, which they believed contributed to the lack of signed agreement. During the meeting, a staff member activated an emergency alert when the Student was outside. Things escalated when the Student hit a staff member after returning indoors. The Student had also spat at a peer as they returned to the room. The Special Education Teacher recalled they informed the Parents of this incident via phone call. They recalled later that the Student asked for a specific staff member, whom they had aggressed toward, to walk them out for early pickup. When this request was denied, the Student eloped from the classroom and then eloped outside toward a busy street, necessitating staff intervention to block access and safely return the Student to the back of the building. The Special Education Teacher shared that at this point, they had texted and phoned Parent 2. Parent 2 responded they would be coming to get the Student.

25. When asked about the work being sent home to the Student on September 17, 2025, the Special Education Teacher shared that they were instructed to send homework on September 16, 2025. They began sending work home digitally on a weekly basis on September 17, 2025. The work was from an "adaptive curriculum" which included a chapter reader, a math activity (or two), and a reading activity related to the news. They were unsure when the official request for work was made, as they were not the person the Parents initially reached out to.
26. The Special Education Teacher stated the Student was still on their roster and each day the Student was excused as "Parent Request."
27. When asked about communication with the Parents, the Special Education Teacher stated, "I [had] a lot of communication with the [P]arents." When they found out Parent 1 had requested the Student no longer attend the School, they added, "… I was directed by the middle school coordinator to hold off on communicating with [the] [P]arents." The Special Education Teacher shared since being instructed to send work, all their communication was done via email.
28. The Special Education Teacher was unaware of the Parents' request for homebound instruction, as they were not part of that request. The Special Education Director clarified the Parents requested a "unilateral placement of homebound services" via an email, and the LEA responded with a PWN outlining the Student required the specialized classroom setting to meet their needs. The Special Education Director also noted the Parents requested and maintained the 1:00 p.m. pickup and later requested the Student be kept at home while the LEA actively worked on finding an out-of-district placement tailored to the Student's needs, during which time the LEA honored the Parents' request for homework materials. The Student remained an enrolled student and was welcome to attend school for the full day if the Parents chose that option.
29. When asked if there was anything else they'd like to share, the Special Education Teacher added the Student pick up time [of 1 p.m.] was, "[P]arent initiated."

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parents with the criteria and reasons for its denial of homebound instruction. K.A.R. 91-40-26(a), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2), K.S.A. 72-3432; 34 § C.F.R. 300.503.

According to K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2), and 34 § C.F.R. 300.50 the parents of exceptional children shall have the right to written prior notice whenever an agency proposes to initiate or change or refuses to initiate or change, and/or the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a FAPE to the child.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26(a) and K.S.A. 72-3432, and 34 § C.F.R. 300.503, the notice shall include a description of the action proposed or refused by the agency, and an explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action. The notice must contain a description of other options that the agency or IEP team considered, along with the reasons those options were rejected. Additionally, it must include a description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action. The notice shall include a description of any other factors relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal, as well as a statement that the parents have protection under the procedural safeguards of this act.

The Parents alleged that on September 9 and 12, 2025 they requested homework and interim instruction be provided by the LEA while placement options were being determined. They alleged the LEA did not provide "an explanation of why our [child] did not qualify" despite the requests. The LEA stated they provided a PWN for the request for OCES.

Regarding the criteria and reasons for denying homebound instruction, the LEA did not violate the core PWN requirements. The PWN issued on September 22, 2025, provided a clear and explicit explanation for the refusal of OCES/homebound instruction. The LEA articulated the Student required a "highly structured setting with established routines and relationships," and that OCES was inappropriate because it would necessitate two disruptive transitions and placement with unfamiliar staff, which contradicted the Student's documented needs. Furthermore, the PWN documented the other options considered, OCES and the Student's return to the School, and the specific reasons why those options were rejected. Although the Parents repeatedly requested the separate written homebound guidelines and did not receive them (a procedural oversight), the PWN itself successfully articulated the specific criteria and rationale that governed the denial, thereby satisfying the essential regulatory mandate to communicate the reasons for its refusal.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parents with the criteria and reasons for its denial of homebound instruction.

Issue Two

> Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied the Parents meaningful participation by limiting "communication to one-way written statements, not interactive dialogue." K.A.R. 91-40-17; 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.322, 300.501.

According to 91-40-17, and C.F.R. 300.322, 300.501, each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place, and providing written notice to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting. The notice shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the IEP team meeting, the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency, and include, if appropriate, any other agency invited to send a representative to discuss needed transition services.

If a parent of an exceptional child cannot be physically present for an IEP team meeting, the agency shall attempt other measures to ensure parental participation, including individual or conference telephone calls. An agency shall take action to ensure that parents understand the discussions that occur at IEP team meetings.

The Parents alleged communication from the LEA was "one-way," consisting of written responses, and not via an "interactive dialogue." However, LEA staff asserted they have communicated with the Parents through a variety of formats, including in-person and virtual meetings, phone conversations, and email correspondence. Additionally, the LEA stated they responded to parental requests for information and clarification in a timely manner, and provided written documentation of decisions and proposals as required by the IDEA, to supplement, not replace, interactive discussions.

The District provided multiple, specific opportunities for interactive dialogue, particularly in the initial stages, including a meeting on September 3, 2025, to discuss the Parents' concerns, and numerous communication exchanges via email, text, and phone throughout September 2025. The Parents initiated the disruption in services by making the unilateral, "non-negotiable" decision to remove the Student from the School, which then shifted the nature of the District's obligation from providing a FAPE to documenting the new status (via the RWA letter and PWN) and exploring placement options. When the Parents sought further dialogue to challenge the specific language of the RWA and PWN on September 16 and 17, 2025, staff unavailability due to reasonable circumstances, such as illness or prior commitments, temporarily delayed the interactive follow-up. However, the Parents utilized the procedural rights afforded to them by disputing the documentation via email, and the District continued to engage in active steps to find a new placement and provide work for the Student. Given the frequency of overall communication and the reasonable justification for brief delays, the District met the requirement under IDEA to afford the Parents the opportunity to participate in decisions and communications regarding their child.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is not substantiated* that the LEA denied the Parents meaningful participation.

Issue Three

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided a FAPE when it denied homebound instruction and failed to provide the Student with tutoring, homework, or educational services for more than three weeks. K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.17, 300.101

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), and 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.17, 300.101, a "Free appropriate public education" and "FAPE" mean special education and related services that meet the following criteria: are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge, and meet the standards of the state board.

The Parents alleged their child was without educational services for three weeks. They requested homework and interim instruction on September 9 and 12, 2025, while the LEA considered placement options, but, according to the Parents, these services were not provided.

The LEA maintained they remain "ready, willing, and able" to provide the Student with a FAPE in accordance with their current IEP at the School. The LEA stated, "The services and supports outlined in the IEP are available and have been offered consistently." Despite this, the LEA claimed the Parents have made the "unilateral decision" to keep the Student at home while the possibility of an alternative placement is explored. Still, the LEA stated they have provided homework for the Student as requested and have sought alternative placements to address the Parents' concerns.

The Student's lack of attendance from the beginning of September 2025 onward was the result of the Parents' unilateral decision to remove the Student from the School due to perceived safety concerns. The LEA correctly maintained that its FAPE obligation remained at the Student's existing placement and documented this position in the RWA letter and subsequent PWN. The denial of homebound/OCES was justified, as the LEA asserted the Student's documented need for a "highly structured setting with established routines and relationships" precluded the temporary, less structured OCES placement. According to the information provided, the Parents requested homework on September 12, 2025, the Special Education Teacher received instructions to send materials on September 16, 2025, and began doing so on September 17, 2025. Because the Parents unilaterally removed the Student, the District's primary FAPE obligation remained at the School with the existing IEP, and the denial of OCES was justified based on the Student's need for a structured setting.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide a FAPE to the Student.

Evidence Reviewed

This complaint was originally assigned to another KSDE investigator, but was reassigned to Dr. Donna Wickham, when the previous investigator had to excuse herself from completion on November 19, 2025. During the investigation, the Complaint Investigator, Donna Wickham, reviewed all evidence and documentation provided by the Local Education Agency and the parent. The investigator interviewed the parent by phone on December 1, 2025 and the Assistant Director of Special Services, Special Services Coordinator, and School Psychologist for USD #233 on December 4, 2025 as part of this investigation.

The following materials predated the one-year consideration and were reviewed for context: 1) Academic Language–Reading Evaluation, dated February 10, 2022; 2) OT Outpatient Evaluation, dated March 23, 2022; and a letter from the Student's primary care physician, dated March 31, 2022 but were not used in consideration of the findings and conclusions of the investigation.

The following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

Documents:

1. District Response dated November 21, 2025
2. Evaluation report, dated January 15, 2025
3. Individualized Education Program (IEP), dated January 24, 2025
4. Prior Written Notice and Request for Consent (PWN), dated January 24, 2025, signed consent by Parent on January 24, 2025
5. Prior Written Notice for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent, dated November 4, 2024, signed consent by Parent on November 11, 2024

Background Information

The subject of this complaint is a ten-year-old, fifth-grade student during the 2025-2026 school year who lives at home with their mother.

The Student's most current Evaluation Report date January 15, 2025 confirms the Student qualifies for special education services under the eligibility category of specific Learning Disability. The Student has been medically diagnosed with dyslexia, dysgraphia, and ADHD. The Student's most current IEP dated January 24, 2025 includes seven accommodations for learning and testing and four goals in reading, writing and mathematics. The IEP lists 60 minutes of special education services 5 days every week in the general education classroom, 60 minutes of special education services 5 days every week outside the general education classroom and 20 minutes of special education services 2 days every week outside the general education classroom. In addition, the Student receives 10 minutes of indirect Occupational therapy services one time every four weeks.

It is noted that the Student was initially diagnosed with dyslexia on February 10, 2022 during an Academic-Language-Reading evaluation at a Hearing and Speech Clinic at a hospital clinic. The Parents reported in the February 10, 2022 evaluation report that the Student was struggling with reading, spelling, math, and handwriting. The following findings were reported: 1) voice, articulation/phonology, phonological processing, phonological awareness, and receptive language were within normal limits. A mild deficit was found with phonological memory and rapid naming. As a result, the report stated, "Reading: Given findings from this evaluation, a diagnosis of dyslexia is appropriate." The report further stated the following areas of impaired reading: 1) phonological memory, 2) rapid naming, 3) sight word reading, 4) phonemic decoding, 5) word reading accuracy, 6) word reading rate, 7) spelling regular words, 8) spelling irregular words, 9) paragraph reading accuracy, 10) paragraph reading rate, 11) reading fluency, and 12) reading comprehension. Educational recommendations were provided with the report. An occupational therapy evaluation was conducted on March 23, 2022 at an outpatient occupational therapy clinic at a hospital setting. Limitations were noted and outpatient therapy and a home exercise program were recommended. The Student was diagnosed with dysgraphia on March 31, 2022, based on the stated reason for the visit with the Student's primary care physician as, "Diagnosed with dysgraphia and needing the diagnosis from pcp as well." .

Issues Investigated

Issue One

Did USD #233, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), fail to follow IDEA regulations when it did not identify the academic areas of Dyslexia and Dysgraphia in the exceptionality section on the student's current IEP?

Applicable Law

According to KA.R. 91-40-10(b) and KSDE guidance, districts are required to report eligibility within the evaluation report. There is nothing in state or federal regulation that requires eligibility categories or subcategories to also be reported on a student's IEP. To the contrary, a KSDE reference document states:

> "When the initial evaluation and eligibility determination are completed, the evaluation team must prepare a written evaluation/eligibility report. The report must include not only the evaluation results but also document the eligibility determination. The evaluation report serves as the documentation of the child's eligibility. The evaluation report and the documentation of eligibility must be provided, at no cost, to the parent (KAR 91-40-10(b); 34 CFR 300.306(a)(2))." The document further states, "It is not required that the specific category of exceptionality be identified on any special education forms that parents would see." (KSDE Eligibility Indicators, version 5.9, pg. 54 (July 2025))

The Kansas Special Education Process Handbook says, "Kansas regulations, at K.A.R. 91-40-10(a)(1)(A), require that the evaluation report include a statement as to whether the child has an exceptionality. These regulations do not require that the evaluation report include the particular category of exceptionality in which the child has been identified."

Parent Position

The child complaint stated that while the January 15, 2025 Evaluation Report of the Student confirmed Specific Learning Disability (SLD) as the eligibility category and explicitly stated the Student "meets the criteria for Dyslexia" the Student's IEP does not list any SLD qualifying areas, does not list sub-areas, omits specific academic areas of impact. Specifically, the Student's mother alleged that the Student's confirmed diagnoses of Dyslexia and Dysgraphia are only listed under the parent report section, not under the exceptionality section. The Parent alleges that these errors prevent the IEP team from creating appropriate goals and supports for the Student's IEP.

Local Education Agency Position

The LEA responded in their November 21, 2025 response that the eligibility determination was written in the Evaluation Report dated January 15, 2025 documenting the Student's eligibility for special education services. The LEA further responded that there is nothing in the state or federal regulation that requires eligibility categories or subcategories to also be reported on a student's IEP.

1. The Evaluation Report dated January 15, 2025 summary section documents, " …[Student] has an active IEP due to Dyslexia and a Specific Learning Disability in Math. Current data indicates that [Student] continues to qualify in these areas although [student] is making progress. [Student] has made significant progress in visual motor skills. [Student] will continue to benefit from consultative support through occupational therapy. [Student] would benefit from specially designed instruction." The evaluation team reached consensus that the Student exhibits the following exceptionality: Specific Learning Disability. The Specific Learning Disability Eligibility Determination documents that the Student was found eligible as a student with a Specific Learning Disability (SLD).
2. The Evaluation Report states that the Student has been diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia, and dysgraphia in the Student Health Records section as reported by the Parents. The LEA staff stated during their interview with the Investigator on December 4, 2025 that they do not have documentation with the dysgraphia diagnosis but agreed the student had needs in writing and dysgraphia falls under the umbrella of dyslexia.
3. The IEP dated January 24, 2025 documents the Student qualifies for Special Education services under the exceptionality of specific learning disability (page 16) and refers to the impact of the Student's specific learning disability in the present level of academic and functional performance. Further, in the Relevant Medical Information section it is documented that the Student has been diagnosed with has been diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia, and dysgraphia. The Math Current performance section (page 3) identifies gaps in 2nd and 3rd-grade math skills which lead to difficulty in understanding more advanced math concepts. struggles in organizing thoughts and complete word problems without help from the teacher. Further, this section states that the Student's specific learning disability (SLD) affects [student's] ability to retain and apply foundational math skills. Baseline reports Grades 2 and 3 numbers and operations and word problems. The Student's current performance in reading report struggles recognizing and applying various phonic patterns, which impact reading fluency and writing abilities. It is written that the Student's specific learning disability significantly impacts the Student's ability to engage with the general curriculum, especially in reading and writing tasks. The inconsistency in understanding phonics patterns hinders the Student's ability to read fluently, comprehend texts, and express ideas effectively through writing. The current performance for spelling report difficulties with spelling that hinder the Student's writing fluency and ability to express ideas through writing with reported baseline. In writing, current performance records difficulties when expressing ideas through writing. When given writing prompts, the Student often rushes to complete responses, leading to simplified thoughts, spelling errors, and lack of details/vocabulary. Overall, the Student struggles to convey complex ideas and demonstrate writing skills at grade level.

4. The PWN dated January 24, 2025 section about a Description of Action Proposed or Refused records ," Continues to be eligible under the category of Dyslexia and Specific Learning Disability in Math Calculation." Parental Consent was signed on January 24, 2025.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the Local Education Agency met the Kansas and federal regulations in writing the exceptionality section of the Student's current IEP and is IN compliance. No corrective action is required.

Issue Two

Did USD #233, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), fail to follow the IDEA and KSDE regulations to develop an appropriate IEP, providing specially designed instruction aligned, services and supports to the student's disability needs?

Applicable Law

Federal regulation at 34 C.F.R. §300. 306(2) and state statute at K.S.A. 72-3429 state that when developing a child's IEP, the IEP team shall consider: (1) The strengths of the child and the concerns of the parents for enhancing the education of their child; (2) the results of the initial evaluation or most recent evaluation of the child; (3) the academic, developmental and functional needs of the child; (4) in the case of a child whose behavior impedes the child's learning or that of others, the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports and other strategies to address that behavior; (5) in the case of a child with limited English proficiency, the language needs of the child as such needs relate to the child's IEP; (6) in the case of a child who is blind or visually impaired, provide for instruction in Braille and the use of Braille unless the IEP team determines, after an evaluation of the child's reading and writing skills, needs, and appropriate reading and writing media, including an evaluation of the child's future needs for instruction in Braille or the use of Braille, that instruction in Braille or the use of Braille is not appropriate for the child; (7) the communication needs of the child, and in the case of a child who is deaf or hard of hearing, consider the child's language and communication needs, opportunities for direct communications with peers and professional personnel in the child's language and communication mode, academic level, and full range of needs, including opportunities for direct instruction in the child's language and communication mode; and (8) whether the child requires assistive technology devices and services.

KSDE reference documents note, "Once a child is identified as a child with a disability, determination of services to be provided are based on the child's needs, not on the child's label." The document continues, "For children determined to be eligible for special education and related services as a child with an exceptionality, the Present Levels of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance (PLAAFPs) of the IEP should contain the evaluation information that describes the child's needs." "The PLAAFPs must include information regarding academic achievement, functional performance, and the impact of the exceptionality on the child's ability to access and progress in the general education curriculum." (KSDE Eligibility Indicators, version 5.9, pg. 5 (July 2025))

Parent Position

The complainant alleged that while the evaluation showed significant deficits in foundational reading skills such as decoding, encoding, spelling, reading comprehension, handwriting and written expression with Dyslexia and Dysgraphia, the IEP goals does not include structured literacy, decoding, fluency, spelling, comprehension, spelling, or writing. Further, the goals are generic and unrelated to the Student's disability and provides minimal or inappropriate services. Finally, the accommodations do not target Dyslexia or Dysgraphia needs, and the specially designed instruction is not based on the Student's evaluation.

Local Education Agency Position

The LEA responded that following the reevaluation on January 15, 2025, the IEP team met to develop an IEP. The LEA contends that the Student's IEP contains a sufficient amount of information, from a variety of sources and includes information related to the Student's reading, writing, math, and spelling. It accurately reflects the Student's exceptionality as evidenced by the information contained within the Present Levels of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance on the IEP, which included information regarding the Student's strengths, weakness, baseline data, and impact of exceptionality related to reading, writing, math, and spelling. The LEA further responded that the IEP addresses the Student's unique needs through specially designed instruction and contains goals and accommodations for reading, spelling, math, and writing based on the Student's educational needs. The LEA stated that the IEP does not name a specific structured literacy program for reading, however that is not required to be included in an IEP, however, in the January 24, 2025 PWN the IEP team discussed structured literacy curriculums.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The findings of Issue One are incorporated herein by reference.

The Evaluation Report dated January 15, 2025 presents the findings of the special education re-evaluation in the areas of reading, math, writing, spelling, and fine motor. The areas are evaluated through standardized testing, observation, and state assessments. As well, progress from the previous IEP are reported.

The IEP dated January 24, 2025 contains the following:

(1) The strengths of the child are categorized under the following headings: Math, Social/Emotional, Reading, Writing/Spelling, and Fine Motor. The concerns of the parents for enhancing the education of their child are recorded on page 6 as "[Parent] knows that [Student] needs support in phonics and Dyslexia. However, she is concerned that [Student] will not be making progress unless [Student's] goal is on grade level. She wants to ensure that fluency and comprehension are addressed through the IEP. She would like the team to review the recommendations from [2022 evaluation report] and ensure [Student] is receiving instruction through the correct curriculum. [Mother] is concerned about [Student's] progress in written language. She wants to ensure that [Student] works on [Student's] written language skills and does not rely too heavily on a speech-to-text device. [Mother] would like a goal to address [Student's] written expression skills to ensure [Student] is progressing. [Mother] shared that [Student] does have a lot of anxiety about testing and she knows this can impact [Student's] performance. [Mother] also requested that the math goal be specific and ensure it covers math application skills. Concerns for the amount of time spent out of the classroom were also addressed during the meeting.

(2) It is checked "yes" on page 6 that the team considered the results of the most recent evaluation of the child. (page 6)

(3) Pages 3-5 of the IEP list the "Needs as They Affect Learning" section as Current Performance, Impact of Exceptionality and Baseline for Math, Reading, Writing, and Fine Motor. They are copied and/or paraphrased from the January 15, 2025 report.

(4) It is checked "no" that the Student has behavior that impedes the child's learning or that of others in needing to consider positive behavior supports.

(5) It is checked "no" that the Student has limited English proficiency to consider instruction.

(6) It is checked "no" that the Student is blind or visually impaired to consider Braille or other vision accommodations or instruction.

(7) It is checked "no" that the Student is deaf or hard of hearing to consider sign language or other hearing accommodations.

(8) It is checked "no" that the Student requires assistive technology devices and services.

The IEP dated January 24, 2025 lists four goals,

1. When given a list of 30 words containing previously taught phonic patterns (examples below), [Student] will read the words with 85% accuracy across 2/3 data days by 1.14.26. The LEA staff stated that this goal addressed the Student's needs for phonemic awareness, decoding and fluency.

2. When asked to write 20 words that contain previously taught phonic patterns CVC, Digraphs/Blends, glued endings ng/nk, letter teams, silent e, open syllable, and suffixes (s, es, ed, ing, er, est, en, ish, ly, y, full, ness, less) [Student] will spell the words with 85% accuracy across 2/3 data days by 1.14.26. The LEA staff stated that this goal addressed the Student's needs for phonemic awareness, and writing skills (fine motor and legibility) as well as incorporating phonic basics with writing.

3. When given 10 two-step word problems using all operations, [Student] will accurately solve the problems independently using pre-taught strategies and manipulatives with 80% accuracy across 2/3 data days by 1.14.26. The LEA staff stated that this goal addressed the Student's needs for numerical operations and using math vocabulary to solve word problems. It focuses on application.

4. After reading a passage at her instructional level, [Student] will brainstorm (about 1 minute), write a response (3 minutes), and edit her work (about 1 minute) to write 22 correct writing sequences on 2/3 samples by 1.23.26. The LEA staff stated that this goal addressed the Student's needs for in executive functioning for organization, the conventions of spelling, writing, written expression and is consistent with many of the skills identified with a student with dyslexia.

The LEA staff stated that the District uses an Orton-Gillingham based reading program that is consistent with the 2022 initial dyslexia diagnosis, but the Student's foundation of specially designed instruction is the goals and special education services specific to the Student's identified needs as written in the IEP.

The IEP dated January 24, 2025 lists seven accommodations to include: 1) accommodated assignments and assessments (word work, Math Module assessments, reading responses, etc. since the Student's current math and reading levels are below peers. This accommodation in math, reading and writing may be needed to accommodate the current level. 2) additional adult support to assist with checks for understanding, attention to task, work correction, and completion during independent math, writing and reading activities. 3) alternative ways to respond to writing since the student's current phonic and encoding skills hinder quick rate of completing writing tasks and readable level. Speech-to-text, oral responses, word banks and other ways to respond to writing. 4) Read Aloud during reading tasks above grade level and for directions. 5) Extended Time on work tasks and tests. 6) Chunked/ work cut apart during math, reading, writing work and tests. 7) Occupational therapist consult with the team regarding handwriting supports including using district device to access voice to text to support student's participation in writing tasks and activities.

Conclusion

It is found that the Local Education Agency developed an IEP that is based on the Student's most current re-evaluation and data and student performance. Further, it is found that the Student has goals developed for decoding or phonological instruction, writing, math, comprehension spelling, and writing. The Student receives structure literacy using a District program that is based on the Orton-Gillingham reading program, but more importantly receives specially designed instruction to support that program and address the Student's academic and functional needs. The Student's accommodations do address accommodations for the student's reading, writing, spelling, and math needs. According to federal and state regulation the LEA did develop an appropriate IEP, providing specially designed instruction, aligned services and supports consistent with the Student's disability needs and is IN compliance.

Background Information

This investigation involved a high school-aged student enrolled at Washburn Rural High School in USD #437. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a primary disability of autism and secondary disability of intellectual disability, per the IDEA. Toward the beginning of the 2025-26 school year, the Parent was notified by the Assistant Principal the Student's case manager would be changing. Upon researching the Case Manager's teaching license, the Parent discovered it was an "emergency substitute license" through the Kansas State Department of Education and subsequently filed the Complaint.

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parents and staff in the LEA.

1. The Student's December 17, 2024 IEP noted a primary disability of "Autism" and a secondary disability of "Intellectual Disability." IEP team meeting participants included the General Education Teacher, the Former Case Manager, the LEA Representative, the Former Occupational Therapist (OT), the Case Manager (in the role of behavior technician (BT)), the Parent, and the Adapted PE Teacher (in the role of Special Education Teacher). The following were relevant items included in the IEP:
    a. Transition services were present.
    b. Eight goals were included in the IEP, with four of them specific to Extended School Year (ESY). Goals were relevant to math, English Language Arts (ELA), communication, and fine motor skills.
    c. The parent input section noted the Parent's input would be emailed.
    d. The Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) and Positive Behavior Supports included the following relevant items:
        i. Problem behaviors, precursor behaviors, setting events and antecedents, hypothesis of behavior function, and replacement behaviors were each outlined specifically to the Student's needs.
        ii. "Proactive strategies: What should staff do to prevent the problem behavior?" were noted as:
            1. "Ensure that [the Student] has access to two staff members who are trained in de-escalation strategies and who are familiar with [their] routines and behavior plan."
            2. "Ensure that [the Student] has access to two staff members who know how to access additional help for emergent situations, such as knowing the number for the office and knowing the location of the intercom button."

3. "Ensure that staff are aware of the [Pro Re Nata or 'as needed'] PRN medication that the nurse keeps available to [the Student]."
4. Pre-teaching routines, educating the Student in a familiar setting, visual separation from distraction, pre-teaching common phrases for expectations, verbal reminders of expectations, frequent non-contingent breaks, choices, hallway walks, reinforcement, social stories, "describe, name, acknowledge," provide icons, least-to-most prompting, errorless teaching, teach on-task behavior, and teach boundaries were listed strategies to be used.
5. Instructions for sleep, bathroom, "gym eating inedible object," and bussing were included.

iii. "Reactive Strategies: What should staff do if the problem behavior occurs?" were noted as:

1. "At [the] first indication of aggressive behaviors, such as head banging and whining, contact the nurse to administer PRN medication. This should be a known procedure by [the Student's] staff, administration, and the nursing staff, to prevent questions during a time of crisis."
2. Reminders of expectations, visuals, changing the activity, offering preferred items, offering breaks, and a clear directive to go to the "calm down space" were included.
3. Instructions for sleep, bathroom, "gym eating inedible object," aggressive behaviors in and out of the classroom, and bussing were included.

iv. Data collection methods included daily data collection, Antecedent Behavior Consequence (ABC) data and "data will be shared with family on a daily basis; a daily sheet outlining [the Student's] schedule and providers [they are] working with will be sent home daily."

v. Staff training procedures were:

1. "Include necessary staff training in the IEP."
2. "[The Student] has a PRN medication kept by the nursing staff. This should be a known procedure by [the Student's] staff, administration, and the nursing staff, to prevent questions during a time of crisis."
3. "A staff member who is [Crisis Prevention Intervention] CPI trained should oversee de-escalation when [the Student] is in crisis."
4. "New staff working with [the Student] need to be trained on de-escalation strategies."

5. "At the beginning of the year, staff working with [the Student] will need to know the strategies [the Student] responds best to; how [they] learn, and information regarding [their] education."
6. "Staff will have access to [the Student's] behavior plan."

e. ESY was deemed necessary based on current and available data.
f. There were 19 program modifications and supports listed.
g. Special transportation was required, and considerations were outlined.
h. Relevant services listed were:
    i. "School nurse services," provided by the school nurse, 8 minutes per day for 5 days every week.
    ii. "Attendant Care- A non-instructional paraeducator," provided by the special education classroom teacher, 27 minutes per day for 5 days every week.
    iii. "Attendant Care- A non-instructional paraeducator," provided by the special education classroom teacher, 64 minutes per day for 5 days every week.
    iv. "Occupational Therapy," provided by the occupational therapist with direct service for 20 minutes per day for 1 day per week and indirect service for 15 minutes per day for 1 day every 4 weeks.
    v. "Adapted PE," provided by the special education classroom teacher 20 minutes per day for 1 day every 2 weeks.
    vi. "Speech and Language as a related service," provided by a [Speech Language Pathologist] SLP, 15 minutes per day for 3 days every week.
    vii. "Special Education Services" provided by a special education classroom teacher for the following:
        1. 144 minutes per day for 5 days every week.
        2. 149 minutes per day for 1 day every week.
        3. 169 minutes per day for 2 days every week.
        4. 184 minutes per day for 2 days every week.

2. In a March 7, 2025 email to the Former Case Manager, the Parent indicated they found out the BT for the Student was changing and noted they had "not received any communication regarding this transition." They inquired about the timeline of the transition, along with who it would be and what their training was, noting the Student's IEP "specifies [the Student] requires a trained [BT]."
3. In an April 29, 2025 email reply to the Parent who was inquiring about support staff following the Student's food plan, the LEA Representative relayed the Former Case Manager was not at work, "but in the meantime, I will connect with [the Student's] support staff to review their current procedures."

4. In a May 16, 2025 email to the Former Case Manager, the Parent stated "The [BT] working with [the Student] does not appear to understand [the Student's] IEP or how to implement it."
   The Former Case Manager replied to the Parent the same day and indicated they had a meeting with the Behavior Technician, the Former Behavior Technician, and the Principal to discuss "key details" about the Student's care, provide some insight, and "[The Behavior Technician] and [the Former Behavior Technician] very much care about doing a good job for [the Student]."
5. In a May 26, 2025 email to the Parent, the Former Case Manager mentioned "[the Case Manager] will be back at the high school next year to run the [behavior] classroom and has requested to be back in rotation with [the Student]."
6. In a May 28, 2025 email to the Director, the Parent requested an employee "not be involved in any part of the assessment process" for the Student due to "prior experience … that raised serious concerns, including a document [they] submitted to the [KSDE] that contained false information."
7. In an August 22, 2025 email to the Parent, the Director assured them the Student's Functional Behavior Assessment (FBA) would be "completed by a qualified school psychologist. The district determines which personnel conduct FBAs based on expertise, availability, and scheduling in order to make the best use of resources. For this FBA, a school psychologist who is employed by [the LEA] but does not work at [the School] will be assigned."
   The Parent replied the same day and noted their concern about the BT working with the Student, who "was not trained in restraints/CPI [and] is not supposed to be performing these actions. … [The Student's] BIP was not followed." They added on August 20, 2025, the Student "hit [the Bus Paraeducator] and became physically aggressive with [themself] while on the bus" and the Bus Paraeducator is "mostly on [their] phone or computer rather than supervising [the Student]" during bus rides.
8. In an August 27, 2025 email to the Parent, the Director relayed that on the afternoon bus, the Student engaged in "hitting and head-banging behaviors" and the support staff "provided reminders and reassurance and followed the behavior plan, and once the bus was headed home, [the Student] calmed and no further incidents occurred."
9. In a September 18, 2025 email to the Parent, the Assistant Principal stated they were changing the Student's case manager, it would begin immediately, and the Case Manager "is aware and ready to help support."
   The Parent replied the same day and asked who made the decision and why it was made. The Assistant Principal replied on September 21, 2025 and stated, "All case management assignments are determined by the special education assistant principal. This ensures that students' needs are best supported and that staff responsibilities are balanced appropriately across the building. The change was made in that context, and the new case manager will continue to coordinate services and serve as your main point of contact."

10. In a September 23, 2025 email to the Case Manager, the Parent shared concerns about the Bus Paraeducator's "training on [the Student's] needs." The Case Manager replied they were not sure about the Bus Paraeducator's training, "but I will be working with [the Bus Paraeducator] moving forward to make sure [they are] up to speed."
11. In a September 30, 2025 email to the Parent, the School Psychologist, and the Assistant Principal, the Case Manager informed them about the creation of an amendment as a follow-up from the September 29, 2025 meeting. "As [the Student's] case manager, it is very important to me to get everything we discussed included in [the Student's] documentation." They asked the Parent to review the amendment and let them know if there were questions, concerns, or changes.
12. In an October 1, 2025 email to the Parent, the School Psychologist attached the PWN for the fidelity plan, noted it was a draft that "outlines our plan moving forward from now until the annual IEP review in December," and invited the Parent to let them know if anything needs to be added or changed.
13. In an October 6, 2025 email reply to the Parent, the Case Manager answered questions regarding the Student's "attendant care" at meals and the bus, noting meals were covered by special education teachers and a BT, while the bus is covered by the Bus Paraeducator, "who is receiving continuous training to make sure [they are] supporting [the Student] as per [their] IEP.
14. In an October 9, 2025 email to the Assistant Principal, the Parent described a situation on the bus where the Student was "physically aggressive toward the Bus Paraeducator" and "learned that [the Behavior Technician] noted [the Student] was 'hot' when [they] put [the Student] on the bus, meaning [the Student] was already escalated before boarding." The Parent added the incident raised concern about staff adherence to the Student's BIP and "it is also evident that the current plan and training approach are not working."

    The Parent requested a "certified [BT] on the bus, and for safety reasons, this should be a male staff member." The Assistant Principal replied they would work to get more specific information and would be in contact.
15. The following is relevant information regarding LEA employee licensure:
    a. The SLP had a verified "Speech Language Pathologist License" with an expiration date of October 31, 2026.
        i. They were a member of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association with an expiration date of December 31, 2025.
        ii. They held a license through the Kansas State Board of Education as an "Emergency Substitute Teacher" effective August 15, 2025, with an expiration date of June 30, 2026.
        iii. They had a "primary source verification" from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, verifying they held a "Certificate of Clinical Competence" in SLP with an expiration date of March 31, 2026.

b. The Case Manager held a license through the Kansas State Board of Education as an "Emergency Substitute Teacher" effective August 15, 2025, with an expiration date of June 30, 2026.
c. The School Nurse held a Registered Nurse (RN) license with an expiration date of March 31, 2027.
d. The OT held an authorization to practice through the Kansas State Board of Healing Arts with an expiration date of March 31, 2026.
e. The Adapted PE Teacher held a license through the Kansas State Board of Education as a "High-incidence Special Education" teacher, effective December 10, 2024, with an expiration date of December 14, 2025 and a "Physical Education" teacher, effective June 14, 2014, with an expiration date of December 14, 2025.

16. In a summary of staff and training for the LEA, the following relevant information regarding training was listed:
    a. The Case Manager- CPI training expires June 14, 2026, and de-escalation training completed in August of 2025.
    b. The Former Case Manager- CPI and de-escalation training completed May 1, 2025.
    c. The BT- CPI training completed September 23, 2025, and de-escalation training on August 5, 2025.
    d. The Bus Paraeducator completed CPI training on October 16, 2025, and de-escalation training on August 5, 2025.
    e. Also noted was, "when the Student is working with a staff member who is not CPI trained (i.e. SLP, OT), [they are] also with a staff member who is CPI trained in order to be in compliance with the student's BIP."

Parent Interview

17. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated their concerns involved the Case Manager holding an emergency substitute teacher license and not having the certification to be "the special education implementer of [the Student's] IEP." In addition, the Parent stated they had asked for the credentials for the Paraeducator but had not received that information. The Parent added they were concerned they couldn't "talk to anybody" on the Student's IEP team to learn how the Student was doing and whether the IEP was being implemented with fidelity.
18. The Parent described an IEP meeting they attended, during which they discussed the Student's accommodations and explained they had not received any documents showing the items they agreed on were "being implemented." The Parent reported the food plan was not being implemented. Additionally, they were not getting documentation regarding the Student's water intake. The Parent also recalled the Student being released early from class, which was contrary to the LEA's corrective action. The Parent confirmed that the Case Manager was supposed to implement the IEP changes.

19. The Parent recalled the change in case managers occurred in September, [2025], and said the Assistant Principal made the decision. The Parent added, they never received "anything."
20. The Parent shared they did not want School Psychologist 2 to be involved in the assessment process for the Student because they had "provided false information" and "said things in writing" that were not accurate for a different child. The Parent clarified that complaints against School Psychologist 2 were pending and added it as a "conflict of interest."
21. The Parent indicated the LEA was not in compliance because it did not implement the changes to the IEP discussed at the September 29, [2025] IEP meeting for the Student. The Parent added the Case Manager was supposed to check off everything the Paraeducator did to ensure compliance, but stated the accommodation changes were not included in what the Case Manager was signing off on.

22. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Parent 2 stated their concerns regarding the implementation of the IEP, specifically the case manager change without a PWN. Parent 2 stated they had "no part" in the decision-making. Additionally, Parent 2 said they were concerned because the Case Manager was listed as an "emergency substitute" according to the Kansas Department of Education, and added, "the credentialing [was] not there." Parent 2 described the Student's needs as "very specialized" and explained the Student needed to have somebody to "implement that IEP correctly."
23. Parent 2 stated they were concerned the IEP was not being implemented, "or very little of it." They added, the Case Manager was "not knowledgeable enough" to implement the Student's IEP. Parent 2 described the communication plan as affecting the LEA's ability to communicate directly with them and added, as a result, Parent 2 did not know what the LEA was doing when it came to implementing the Student's IEP.
24. Parent 2 recalled attending an IEP meeting for the Student on October 28, [2025], during which amendments were made, and confirmed they did not receive a copy of the changes until they emailed after 14 days had passed. Parent 2 added the IEP team members who were supposed to attend this meeting did not attend.

Case Manager Interview

25. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager described their CPI training, "The majority of it is talking about de-escalation and methods to use before we need to get into any sort of restraint." They noted they have completed behavior courses through Kansas Technical Assistance System Network (TASN), which was 40 hours of training that covers "de-escalation, behavior management, data recording, and then collaborative problem-solving." They detailed the collaborative problem-solving training as "solving problems with students versus just putting down our authority and will on them."

26. When asked about their role with the Student's IEP, they noted they had worked with the Student previously as their one-on-one paraeducator for "a year and three quarters" and this familiarity with the Student has facilitated better knowledge of the Student's needs and increased collaboration with service providers. "It was a pretty natural choice for me to be [the Student's] case manager." They indicated they facilitate the IEP meetings, reach out for parent input, adjust goals when needed, collect data, and ensure the Student can be successful at the School.
27. The Case Manager confirmed they had an emergency substitute teaching license and were finishing their degree at a university. They shared they have received "ongoing professional development through [the LEA]" and "[The LEA] has a very wonderful handbook that lays out anything and everything we need to do as a case manager, step-by-step."
28. The Case Manager stated, "I don't think there's really been a whole lot of change" in the quantity, quality, or consistency of the Student's special education and related services since changing case managers. "[The Student's] IEP has been followed through with from the start. … [The Student's] plan has been followed through with fidelity from the get-go."

Assistant Principal Interview

29. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Principal explained the rationale for changing the Student's case manager. They cited the Case Manager's familiarity with the Student as the primary reason and noted the Case Manager "saw [the Student] through the day and interacted with the para[educator] that supported [the Student]. … [The Case Manager had] more contact through the day with [the Student]. So I thought it would be a good way to provide more cohesive support for [the Student] through the day."
30. When asked about the support the Case Manager received from the School as a new case manager, the Assistant Principal indicated there were people who support teachers for behavior, for IEP writing, for development of the IEP, and for supporting students medically.
31. The Assistant Principal recalled the October 9, 2025 bus incident with the Student "was actually handled quite appropriately" and the Bus Paraeducator "followed the plan." They noted the actual events were less escalated than the Parent claimed in their email and staff "were able to actually very much appropriately calm [the Student] down. … [The Student] actually had responded much better than in past incidents." They added the Bus Paraeducator had completed and was up-to-date on their CPI and de-escalation training.

Director Interview

32. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director reported that all classified employees participated in mandatory de-escalation training provided at the beginning of the school year. Additionally, any staff who worked with the Student were trained on "not just general de-escalation, but [de-escalation] specific to [the Student]." Additionally, the LEA held CPI training "at different times throughout the year. … CPI training is active for two years for our staff members, and so if they're needing to get trained again, we will get them slated into a time that is appropriate for them" prior to their training expiring.
33. The Director confirmed the LEA granted the Parent's request to have School Psychologist 2 removed from assessing the Student. However, the Director was uncertain about the specific details regarding events that led the Parent to make this request.
34. The Director explained the Student's case manager changed for the 2025-26 school year because the Former Case Manager needed a change in assignment. They chose the Case Manager because they "not only [have] been working with [the Student] the past several years, but [are] also now in a position [they are] able to function as a teacher." The reasons for their choice were, the Case Manager worked "extremely well" with the Student, and they previously had extensive one-on-one experience with the Student.
35. The Director provided an overview of the licensure procedures in the state of Kansas and the LEA. They explained a teacher with an emergency substitute license could be placed on a waiver if they provided the LEA with their course of study, enrollment details, and proof of making progress. This waiver would then require approval by the KSDE. "We have every reason to believe that an [emergency substitute] license on a waiver is able to function as a teacher of record and a special education teacher." They confirmed the Case Manager met this criteria and their waiver "is good for the [20]25-26 school year."
36. The Director expressed the challenges with hiring special education teachers, "Our first and best idea is to hire fully certified individuals who come in, and they have a [Special Education] SPED endorsement as part of their license, and they can step into the classroom and begin teaching and case managing right away. Unfortunately, that's not our reality." They elaborated on their collaboration with building principals and KSDE to ensure "we are putting appropriate people in positions who are appropriately licensed."
37. The Director indicated the process to share teacher licensure with families was outlined in the "Right to Know Act, which talks about if a family requests, how is my child's teacher licensed, … we share that information with them. We are not obligated to proactively share licensure information with families." When asked if the Parent requested teacher licensure information, the Director responded, "Only via formal complaint."

38. The Director outlined training and professional development for case managers who were new to the profession and noted a "robust" day at the beginning of the school year, with follow-up throughout the year. They added they have been a resource to the Case Manager, along with multiple "districtwide instructional facilitators" and an Assistant Director of Student Support Services who also have provided support.
39. When asked if it would be typical to issue a PWN for a case manager change, the Director stated, "No, that is not something that we would do. … It doesn't impact services or placement one bit, and so a [PWN] would not be appropriate, but informing the family would absolutely be appropriate so that they know who a point of contact could be."

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to ensure special education services were managed and delivered by licensed and qualified staff. K.A.R. 91-1-203, K.S.A. 72-3404(j) ; 34 § C.F.R. 300.156(a)(c)(1)(2).

According to 34 § C.F.R. 300.156(a)(c)(1)(2), the agency must establish and maintain qualifications to ensure that personnel are appropriately and adequately prepared and trained, including that those personnel have the content knowledge and skills to serve children with disabilities.

The qualifications must ensure that each person employed as a public school special education teacher in the State who teaches in an elementary school, middle school, or secondary school has obtained full State certification as a special education teacher (including certification obtained through an alternate route to certification as a special educator, if such alternate route meets minimum requirements), or passed the State special education teacher licensing examination, and holds a license to teach in the State as a special education teacher, except that when used with respect to any teacher teaching in a public charter school, the teacher must meet the certification or licensing requirements, if any, set forth in the State's public charter school law. The qualifications must also ensure that each person employed as a public school special education teacher has not had special education certification or licensure requirements waived on an emergency, temporary, or provisional basis, and holds at least a bachelor's degree.

A teacher will be considered to meet the standard if that teacher is participating in an alternate route to special education certification program under which the teacher receives high-quality professional development that is sustained, intensive, and classroom-focused in order to have a positive and lasting impact on classroom instruction, before and while teaching, participates in a program of intensive supervision that consists of structured guidance and regular ongoing support for teachers or a teacher mentoring program, assumes functions as a teacher only for a specified period of time not to exceed three years, and demonstrates satisfactory progress toward full certification as prescribed by the State; and the State ensures, through its certification and licensure process, that the provisions of the regulations are met.

According to K.A.R. 91-1-203, each applicant for a substitute teaching license shall submit to the state board an official transcript from an accredited institution verifying the granting of a bachelor's degree, verification from an accredited institution of completion of an approved teacher education program, an application for substitute teaching license, and the licensure fee.

For a provisional teaching endorsement license, each applicant shall hold a currently valid initial teaching license or professional teaching license at any level and shall submit to the state board, verification of completion of at least 50 percent of an approved teacher education program in the requested endorsement field, a deficiency plan to complete the approved program requirements from the licensing officer of a teacher education institution, verification of employment and assignment to teach in the provisional endorsement area, an application for a provisional teaching endorsement license, and the licensure fee. Each applicant for a provisional teaching endorsement license for high-incidence special education, low-incidence special education, deaf or hard-of-hearing, gifted special education, or visually impaired shall hold a currently valid initial teaching license or professional teaching license and shall submit to the state board verification of completion of coursework in the areas of methodology and the characteristics of exceptional children and special education, and completion of a practicum in the specific special education field, a deficiency plan to complete the requirements from the licensing officer of a teacher education institution, verification of employment and the assignment to teach in the provisional endorsement area, an application for a provisional teaching endorsement license, and the licensure fee.

According to K.S.A. 72-3404(j), "Special teacher" means a person, employed by or under contract with a school district or a state institution to provide special education or related services, who is qualified to provide special education or related services to exceptional children as determined pursuant to standards established by the state board, or assist in the provision of special education or related services to exceptional children as determined pursuant to standards established by the state board.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to ensure special education services were managed and delivered by licensed and qualified staff.

The LEA contended all staff members providing services to the Student hold the appropriate licensure or approval required by the KSDE. The Student's current case manager holds a valid Emergency Substitute License and is serving under a Special Education Waiver, which authorizes them to function as the teacher of record for the Student while completing certification requirements. All other service providers assigned to the Student are traditionally licensed in their respective areas.

The Case Manager held an Emergency Substitute Teacher license, which the Parent believed was insufficient for implementing the specialized IEP. The Director, however, confirmed the Case Manager was operating under a KSDE-approved waiver for the 2025-26 school year, allowing them to function as a teacher of record and a special education teacher. The Director justified the appointment due to the Case Manager's prior experience as the Student's one-on-one paraeducator for almost two years, extensive training in de-escalation and behavior management, and compliance with state procedures for temporary licensure. Furthermore, the licenses for all other related service providers, including the SLP, OT, and School Nurse, were confirmed as current and appropriate.

The Parent noted in August 2025 that the BT "was not trained in restraints/CPI" and the BIP was not followed. However, the LEA asserted that all classified employees participate in mandatory de-escalation training, and any staff working with the Student were trained on "not just general de-escalation, but [de-escalation] specific to [the Student]." The Assistant Principal specifically indicated that the Bus Paraeducator had completed and was up-to-date on CPI and de-escalation training. The Case Manager also confirmed they were CPI trained. Ultimately, while the Case Manager lacked a standard special education endorsement, the LEA provided evidence that this was a temporary appointment covered by a KSDE waiver, which they deemed sufficient to meet the licensing requirements.

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that LEA failed to ensure special education services were managed and delivered by licensed and qualified staff.

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied the Parent participation when the LEA switched the special education case manager immediately and without including the Parent in that decision. K.A.R. 91-40-17; 34 § C.F.R. 300.501(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17, each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and informing the parents of the information specified in this regulation, and except as otherwise provided by law, providing written notice, in conformance with this regulation, to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting. The notice required shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the IEP team meeting and the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency, including, if appropriate, any other agency invited to send a representative to discuss needed transition services. The notice shall inform the parent that the parent has the right to invite to the IEP team meeting individuals whom the parent believes to have knowledge or special expertise about the child.

A regular education teacher of an exceptional child, as a member of an IEP team, shall participate to the extent appropriate in the development, review, and revision of the child's IEP. This participation shall include assisting in determining the appropriate positive behavioral interventions and strategies for the child, the supplementary aids and services needed by the child, and the program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided to assist the child.

According to 300.501(b), the parents of a child with a disability must be afforded an opportunity to participate in meetings with respect to the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of the child, and the provision of FAPE to the child. Each public agency must provide notice to ensure that parents of children with disabilities have the opportunity to participate in meetings. A meeting does not include informal or unscheduled conversations involving public agency personnel and conversations on issues such as teaching methodology, lesson plans, or coordination of service provision. A meeting also does not include preparatory activities that public agency personnel engage in to develop a proposal or response to a parent proposal that will be discussed at a later meeting.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to ensure parent participation when it switched the SPED case manager, and that the decision was made effective immediately without their participation.

The LEA contended personnel assignments, including case management, are administrative staffing decisions that do not require parental participation under state regulations. According to the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook (Ch. 5, p. 5–35), the IEP identifies the services necessary for a FAPE, not the specific personnel assigned to deliver them. Staffing and personnel assignments are administrative decisions made by the LEA, not determinations requiring parent participation. The change did not alter the Student's IEP, placement, or services. The Parent was appropriately notified once the case management change occurred, consistent with LEA procedure.

The selection and assignment of school personnel, such as a special education case manager, is an administrative staffing decision made by the LEA. The LEA is responsible for ensuring that all services outlined in the Student's IEP are implemented by appropriately qualified personnel. While parental input is vital regarding the services, placement, and content of the IEP, the assignment of a specific staff member to deliver those services is generally not considered a decision that requires parental participation under the procedural safeguards of IDEA, as it does not constitute a change in the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child, or the provision of FAPE. The LEA's actions and stated rationale focused on administrative needs and utilizing a staff member with a high degree of familiarity with the Student, which they believed would provide more cohesive support. The evidence indicates the LEA made an administrative decision to change the case manager and properly notified the Parent.

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA denied the Parent participation when the LEA switched the special education case manager immediately and without including the Parent in that decision.

Issue Three

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide the Parent with PWN when the LEA changed the case manager. K.A.R. 91-40-26 (a)(b), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2); 34 § C.F.R. 303.421 (a)(b), 34 CFR §300.503(a)(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26 (a)(b), in providing any notice to the parent or parents of an exceptional child regarding any action proposed or refused by an agency, each agency shall ensure that the notice includes a description of other options that the agency considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. The notice shall be written in language understandable to the general public and provided in the native language of the parent or other mode of communication used by the parent, unless it is clearly not feasible to do so.

According to K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2), the parents of exceptional children shall have the right to written prior notice whenever an agency proposes to initiate or change, or refuses to initiate or change, the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a FAPE to the child.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide a PWN, and was told the case manager change was already made.

The LEA contended a change in case manager does not constitute a change to the Student's identification, evaluation, educational placement, or provision of a FAPE. Therefore, PWN was not required. The staffing adjustment was administrative in nature and did not result in any change to the Student's IEP or the services provided.

The Parent indicated they should be proactively informed about staff changes with a PWN. The Director stated a PWN is not issued for case manager changes as it does not impact services or placement. This is corroborated by K.A.R. 91-40-26, which outlines a PWN is a formal communication used to inform parents whenever a school district proposes or refuses to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of a child or the provision of a FAPE to the child.

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parent with PWN when the LEA changed the case manager.

Issue Four

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide the Student with a FAPE due to the IEP allegedly being implemented by unqualified personnel. K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), a FAPE means special education and related services are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge, meet the standards of the state board, include an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education, and are provided in conformity with an individualized education program.

According to 34 CFR § 300.101, a FAPE must be available to all children residing in the State between the ages of 3 and 21. Each State must ensure that the obligation to make a FAPE available to each eligible child residing in the State begins no later than the child's third birthday and an IEP or an IFSP is in effect for the child by that date. Each State must ensure that a FAPE is available to any individual child with a disability who needs special education and related services, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade, and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination that a child is eligible must be made on an individual basis by the group responsible within the child's LEA for making eligibility determinations.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide the Student with a FAPE due to the IEP being implemented by unqualified personnel.

The LEA contended they have continued to implement all components of the Student's IEP with fidelity. Services were delivered by appropriately licensed and supervised staff, ensuring compliance with the IDEA and state requirements.

The evidence indicates the LEA staff were either appropriately licensed under state waiver procedures or had received relevant training (CPI, de-escalation, behavior management) and extensive relevant experience with the Student, suggesting the Student was not denied a FAPE solely on the basis that the implementing personnel were unqualified.

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Student with a FAPE due to the IEP allegedly being implemented by unqualified personnel.

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #501
ON OCTOBER 10, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: NOVEMBER 10, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, ------- by their parent, -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD # 501, Topeka Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD # 501.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on October 10, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on November 9, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #501, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), developed an Individualized Education Program (IEP) for the Student that included positive behavioral interventions, supports, and other strategies to address their behavior needs. K.A.R. 91-40-18(b); K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(4); 34 § C.F.R. 300.320(a).

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #501, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented the Student's IEP as written when addressing the Student's behavior needs, particularly when the Student was suspended or sent home instead of given space to calm down or access to other behavior support strategies. K.A.R. 91-040-16(a)(b)(3-5); 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.323 (a)(d).

Background Information

This investigation involved a first-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in the LEA. The Student is not currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA. The Student enrolled at the School on September 19, 2025, which was not their neighborhood school, but due to late enrollment, was the school assignment closest to their home school with class availability. The Student was homeschooled for their kindergarten year.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. A Neurodevelopmental Evaluation Report from an outside agency dated August 20, 2025 showed the Student was evaluated on June 24 and July 28, 2025. The Parent arranged the evaluation due to "longstanding difficulties [for the Student] related to inattention, distractibility, emotion regulation difficulties, and hyperactivity." The evaluation recommendations included the following:
    a. A multi-faceted approach to address challenges with inattention, hyperactivity, and impulsivity consistent with an Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) diagnosis.

b. A consultation between the Parent and a physician or psychiatrist to evaluate medication as part of the Student's treatment.
c. Therapeutic interventions for the family, specifically, continued individual therapy for the Student, Behavioral Parent Training (BPT) for the Parent to learn skills to manage problem behaviors, and the use of tools like The Zones of Regulation to teach self-regulation skills.
d. For the school setting, numerous accommodations and supports were advised, focusing on emotional and behavioral management, such as:
    i. Behavioral supports for emotion regulation;
    ii. Seating the Student near the teacher;
    iii. Reducing the length of assignments;
    iv. Providing scheduled "brain breaks";
    v. Strategies to manage the Student's difficulty with task-switching (e.g., chunking similar tasks and using transition time);
    vi. The use of visual supports and timers to aid attention and organization; and
    vii. Breaking down multi-step directions.

2. District documentation notes for the Student from September 19, 2025 through October 10, 2025, indicated the following:
    a. September 19, 2025: The Parent requested a special education evaluation for the Student due to behavior concerns, and noted the Student was homeschooled for kindergarten and early first grade.
    b. September 23, 2025: First day of school for the Student.
    c. September 25, 2025: A daily point chart was implemented. Focus areas included expected location, safe body/calm hands, following directions, a midday reward, and an end-of-day reward. The Mental Health Mentor also called the Parent on this day because the Student was "struggling in the classroom." The Parent stated the Student demonstrated the same behavior at home.
    d. October 2, 2025: The Assistant Principal called the Parent and discussed behavior concerns during school and on the bus. The Parent stated, "I have other kids to pick up; I can't come get [the Student]. … [the Student] has behavior problems at home too." It was also noted the daily point chart was deemed "ineffective."
    e. October 3, 2025: A token board with a behavior data collection form was implemented. It was noted the Student could earn preferred rewards throughout the day for following directions, completing work, using calming strategies, and staying with the class. The Student would earn a break for every 10 tokens earned, with no limit on the number of rewards the Student could earn each day.

f. October 6, 2025: An outside agency evaluation was received, including cognitive, social-emotional, behavioral, and attention/executive functioning data. It was determined that academic, motor, and speech areas still required evaluation.

g. October 7, 2025: A GEI meeting was held during which an intervention plan with a token board was developed. The hypothesis was listed as: "We believe [the Student] struggles to complete classroom assignments because of [their] behavior, seeking adult attention, work avoidance, and an inability to self-regulate." The goal was for the Student to elope fewer than three times per day. Additionally, it was noted the plan was to minimize time out of the classroom, ensure the Student returned promptly after eloping, and make any time out of class "unappealing" and focused on schoolwork.

    i. A GEI Referral Plan with a start date of October 6, 2025, also documented this and other contact log conversations and stated the plan would run concurrently with a special education evaluation.

h. October 7, 2025: An email from the School Counselor confirmed the "parent-initiated referral and ADHD diagnosis" and stated the suspected exceptionality was listed as Other Health Impairment (OHI). It was also noted the Parent mentioned the Student was already receiving therapy and was not interested in additional services.

i. October 8, 2025: It was noted a Behavior Support Plan (BSP) would be developed to ensure consistent staff responses.

j. October 9, 2025: School staff initially were unable to contact the Parent or the emergency contact regarding an active safety concern, as both voicemails were full at 11:04 a.m. When the Parent was reached at 11:12 a.m. concerning the Student's repeated elopement, the Parent refused to come to the School to assist with de-escalation and subsequently hung up. The School sent the suspension paperwork home with the Student at 3:25 p.m. A later attempt to verbally notify the Parent of the suspension was blocked by a full voicemail again. During a 5:30 p.m. call where staff discussed the Student's aggression and confirmed the suspension, the Parent threatened to contact KSDE.

k. October 9, 2025: The special education evaluation referral was processed, and the consent was ready to be signed. The Parent also notified the School they had submitted a formal complaint.

l. October 10, 2025: The School Psychologist contacted the Parent regarding their complaint and asked what support the Parent wanted. The Parent asked for another teacher to be added to the classroom to help and signed the consent for the special education evaluation.

3. An undated BSP for the Student documented the following:

    a. Targeted behaviors: Eloping, noncompliance, and physical aggression.

    b. Prevention strategies: Modified work, choices, a timer, frequent praise, additional reward "bucks," and a delayed start to assignments and tasks.

c. Teaching strategies: Calming strategies and asking for help.
d. Replacement behaviors: Using the classroom "Peace Corner" instead of running out of the classroom; using independent calming strategies; and asking for an adult to talk to or a break outside of the classroom if needed.
e. Reinforcement plan: Token board, check-in/check-out, a calming space outside of the classroom, and bus rewards.
f. Response plan: Detailed staff responses for the first incident and additional incidents for each target behavior.
g. Data collection: Behavior data collection form and a token board tracking form.
h. A data tracking form indicated columns to record the date, day of the week, time frame, location, activity, antecedent, behavior, staff response, and duration of behavior.

4. Behavior data collection for the Student from September 25, 2025 through October 9, 2025 indicated the School implemented a daily point chart from September 25 to October 2, 2025, after which they transitioned to a token board to provide more immediate reinforcement. During the initial period, the Student demonstrated inconsistent performance on behavioral goals, earning points for staying in the expected location most days, but scoring low in areas like "calm body / safe hands." Behavior incident data from October 3 through October 9, 2025, indicated that the primary challenging behaviors were noncompliance, elopement, and physical aggression, with the highest frequency of incidents occurring during whole-group instruction, within the general education classroom, and most often triggered by a task demand. Incident frequency peaked on October 8 and October 9, 2025 and a majority of incidents (over 80%) occurred between 9:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. In terms of staff response, verbal redirects were the most frequently used intervention, while alternate location and offering a break were used less often.
5. A Prior Written Notice for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent (PWN) dated October 10, 2025 indicated:
    a. The PWN was hand-delivered to the Parent.
    b. The District proposed to conduct an initial evaluation, which required parental consent.
    c. New data would be sought for health and motor ability, social-emotional and behavioral status, general intelligence, academic performance, communicative status, and transition skills.
    d. Existing data would be reviewed for vision and hearing.
    e. Explanation: The Student was referred for a comprehensive evaluation by the general education team and the Parent to determine whether the Student would qualify for special education services.
    f. Options considered: Not conducting a comprehensive evaluation, which was rejected due to the need for a comprehensive evaluation to determine special education eligibility.

g. Data used: Parent information, teacher information, review of records, and GEI records.
h. Other factors: The Student would miss some class time for testing during the evaluation.
i. The consent form was electronically signed by the Parent on October 10, 2025 indicating receipt and understanding of the proposed action and parental rights, as well as giving consent for the evaluation.

6. A Student Discipline Profile for the 2025-26 school year documented the following:
    a. The student exhibited an escalation of "major" behavior incidents over a three-week period, with the key issues being:
        i. Elopement: This was the most frequent issue, with the Student leaving the classroom repeatedly (and up to five times a day).
        ii. Noncompliance/Refusal: The Student frequently refused to follow directions, participate, or complete work.
        iii. Physical Aggression: On the final documented day (October 9), the Student was recorded hitting and kicking staff members, resulting in a one-day out-of-school suspension.
    b. Frequency: There were 11 documented incidents (9 major, 2 minor) in the 12-day period.
    c. Intervention: "Conference with the student" was noted five times.
    d. Escalation: The severity escalated, moving from off-task behavior to refusal, then to frequent elopement, and finally to physical aggression against staff.
    e. Parent/Guardian Involvement: On October 6, 2025, the Parent could not be reached, but an emergency contact came to the School and took the Student home (no suspension).
7. A Daily Attendance Profile for the 2025-26 school year indicated the Student enrolled on September 19, 2025, and had one tardy, two 0.25 absences, one 0.50 absence, and one out-of-school suspension (October 10, 2025).

Parent Interview

8. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated they were told by an Early Childhood Program employee that the District was "specialized in behavior problems" and by enrolling the Student there, the District had "two weeks or 30 days or something like that to get [the Student] an IEP, which still [had] not taken place." The Parent explained they enrolled the Student and immediately gave the School evaluation information from an outside agency and informed them the Student needed to be assessed for an IEP.
9. The Parent claimed they were unaware of a behavior support plan, and claimed the School did not communicate with them about interventions that were being used. Instead, they only communicated when the Student displayed negative behavior. The Parent also shared that strategies from an outside therapist working with the Student had not helped the Student "at all" during the last six months.

10. The Parent explained they filed a complaint because they believed the Student's disabilities were being overlooked, the Student was suspended when the School "already knew that an IEP was going into place" for the Student's behaviors, and the Parent "was told from [the District] in the beginning that it would take no more than 30 days" for an IEP to be put in place.

Interim Executive Director of Special Education Interview

11. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Interim Executive Director of Special Education stated they were not on the IEP team and so could not specify how the externally-submitted neurodevelopmental evaluation was used, but confirmed the team had considered the document. They noted the external report focused on medical and neurological needs, lacking an academic component, which necessitated the District's own academic evaluation within the ongoing 60-day window. The Student re-entered the school system on September 23, 2025 after being homeschooled, and the staff began monitoring their progress immediately. Prior to the Student's enrollment, the Parent had requested an evaluation, and the team subsequently implemented increasingly intensive positive behavior support interventions, such as point systems, which appeared unsuccessful as the supports became more focused. The team ultimately sought and received written permission from the Parent on October 10, 2025 to conduct their own full evaluation.
12. The Interim Executive Director of Special Education also stated the District staff developed a safety plan to address elopement and ensure the Student remained safely in the building. As a team, staff members discussed possible root causes for elopement, such as avoidance of work, to inform their response plan. On the day of the Student's suspension, the Student had a "very difficult day" and required direct adult supervision throughout. Staff called the Parent to request their presence and arranged for an outside mental health therapist to arrive early to help de-escalate the situation. Despite the therapist's intervention, the Student escalated again, attempted to elope, and ended up hitting and kicking staff members. The team tried unsuccessfully to reach the Parent by phone throughout the afternoon and finally communicated the suspension and incident via a note in the Student's backpack and a later phone call.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #501, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, developed an IEP for the Student that included positive behavioral interventions, supports, and other strategies to address their behavior needs. K.A.R. 91-40-18(b); K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(4); 34 § C.F.R. 300.320(a).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-18(b) and K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(4), if an IEP team determines that a child needs behavioral interventions and strategies, accommodations, assistive technology devices or services, or other program modifications for the child to receive Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE), the IEP team shall include those items in the child's IEP. In the case of a child whose behavior impedes the child's learning or that of others, the use of positive behavioral interventions and supports, and other strategies to address that behavior.

According to 34 § C.F.R. 300.320(a), the term individualized education program or IEP means a written statement for each child with a disability that is developed, reviewed, and revised in a meeting and that must include statement of the child's present levels of academic achievement and functional performance, including how the child's disability affects the child's involvement and progress in the general education curriculum (i.e., the same curriculum as for nondisabled children).

The Parent alleged the School did not develop an IEP the Student needed for their behavior concerns. According to the Parent, the School told them they would do "other things" besides sending the Student home for behavior, but did not. The Student was also suspended.

In the District's Response, they noted the Student has not yet been evaluated for special education, and therefore, does not currently have an IEP in place. However, the Student has received general education interventions for behavior since their first attendance day, and consent for an evaluation was signed by the Parent on October 10, 2025, initiating a 60-day evaluation timeline.

Based on the evidence provided, the Student is not currently receiving special education services, and no IEP was in effect during the period of the complaint. IDEA's requirements for the contents of an IEP, including the provision for positive behavioral interventions and supports, only become binding after a student has been evaluated and determined eligible for special education, and the IEP has been formally developed.

However, the evidence shows the LEA did address the Student's behavior needs and outside evaluation. Upon the Student's enrollment, and following the Parent's referral request, the school team initiated a variety of behavioral supports under the GEI program. The LEA also obtained signed parental consent on October 10, 2025, to begin the initial comprehensive special education evaluation, which initiated the 60-day timeline to determine eligibility and, if eligible, develop the initial IEP.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to develop an IEP with the required positive behavioral supports.

Issue Two

Whether USD #501, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented the Student's IEP as written when addressing the Student's behavior needs, particularly when the Student was suspended or sent home instead of given space to calm down or access to other behavior support strategies. K.A.R. 91-040-16(a)(b)(3-5); 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.323 (a)(d).

According to K.A.R. 91-040-16(a)(b)(3-5) and 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.323 (a)(d), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. Each agency is also responsible for ensuring that an IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year.

The child's IEP should be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP and understand the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

The Parent alleged the School suspended the Student and sent them home for behavior instead of giving the Student space to calm down or implementing other behavior support strategies according to the Student's IEP.

The regulations regarding the implementation of an IEP are not applicable because the Student was not yet determined eligible for special education, and there was no IEP in place for the District to implement.

Regarding the suspension, the evidence showed the incident on October 9, 2025 involved a sequence of progressively challenging behaviors (repeated elopement, noncompliance, and physical aggression toward staff). The out-of-school suspension was ultimately issued following the Student hitting and kicking staff members. While the Parent claimed the Student was suspended "instead of" being given space to calm down, the District's account demonstrated that a series of in-school de-escalation efforts had occurred prior to the physical aggression that resulted in the suspension. Since the Student did not have an IEP, the standard disciplinary procedures were reasonably applied.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the IEP's behavioral strategies, particularly during the suspension incident.

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #495
ON NOVEMBER 3, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 8, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, ------- by their parent, -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #495, Larned Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #495.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on November 3, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on December 3, 2025.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #495, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), ensured, to the maximum extent appropriate, the Student was educated with children who were nondisabled, and special classes, separate schooling, or other removal of the Student from the regular educational environment occurred only when the nature or severity of the disability was such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily. K.A.R. 91-40-21 (a)(b)(1)(2)(c)(1)(A)(B)(2); 34 CFR §300.114 (a)(1)(2).

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #495, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, initiated an abbreviated school day, resulting in a denial of a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) for the Student. K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(b)(1)(e), K.A.R. 91-40-27(3); 34 CFR §300.101(a).

Background Information

This investigation involved a kindergarten-aged student enrolled at Larned Elementary School in USD #495. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. Relevant information from the LEA's Response indicated:
    a. All regular education peers in four-year-old preschool attended 180 minutes per day, four days a week, as no classes occurred on Fridays.
    b. The LEA stated the preschool program operated from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m.
    c. The Student's kindergarten classroom had a demographic makeup of 81.25% nondisabled peers and 18.75% students with disabilities.
2. An undated screenshot of the Student's profile showed they had perfect attendance for the months of August, September, and October during the 2025-26 school year.
3. The Student's IEP, dated October 25, 2024, indicated:
    a. Based on the most recent evaluation and ongoing data collection, the Student had needs in the following areas which required special education or related services: communication, motor, adaptive/daily living skills, social emotional, reading, and math.
    b. The box stating "Yes - Placement is in the General Education Classroom" was checked.
    c. The box "Yes - Additional services/supports have been added to this annual IEP to ensure participation in the general educational environment to the maximum extent possible" was checked.
    d. Additional notes stated it was determined the Student needed one-on-one support to be successful in the preschool classroom. The Student would have limited time away from general education students when they received pullout services, which would lead to minimal harmful effects. Data used to support the least restrictive environment (LRE) decision included the Student's 2022 AEPS scores. It was found the Student qualified in all development domains, and the team felt they would benefit by placement in the general education preschool classroom with paraprofessional support throughout their entire school day.
    e. The "no" box was checked for the question "Will the benefits of a more restrictive setting outweigh the benefits of remaining in the general education classroom?"

f. The following items were checked for the question "As a result of the recommended placement, what potential harmful effects, if any, have been identified by the team?":
    i. Potential stigma associated with receiving special education support;
    ii. Lack of access to general education peers and/or curriculum/instruction when removed from the general education classroom to receive services;
    iii. Limited exposure to peer modeling when removed from the general education setting to receive services in the special education setting; and
    iv. Potential of student to become overly dependent on adult support for academics or behavioral reminders and prompts.

g. Placement options considered at the IEP meeting included full, partial, and no inclusion in the general education setting.

h. The Student would have the opportunity to participate in all non-academic and extracurricular activities to the same extent as non-identified peers.

i. Accomodations/Modifications/Supplementary Aids, located in the regular education classroom, special education/mixed abilities room, occupational therapy (OT) and speech language pathology (SLP), from October 25, 2024 through October 24, 2025 included:
    i. Visual Picture Flip Schedule for four days per week during the preschool year and five days per week upon transitioning into kindergarten for the duration of the school day;
    ii. Verbal and/or non-verbal prompts for a minimum of one prompt per activity after directions were given during the preschool day, for no less than 5-10 seconds for the Student to comprehend what is being asked of them; and
    iii. Attend a two-hour abbreviated school day "each day school is in session until which time the team determines that an increase in time at school is appropriate … commencing upon the Student's transition into Kindergarten in August 2025."

j. Special Education and Related Services for October 25, 2024 through October 24, 2025 included:
    i. OT services in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    ii. Physical Therapy in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    iii. Speech Language Therapy in the special education area, two times a week for 20 minutes; and
    iv. Special Education in the early childhood classroom, four times a week when school is in session for the duration of the day.

k. Special Education and Related Services for August 20, 2025 through October 24, 2025 included:
    i. Special Education services in the general education classroom setting/building, five days a week when school is in session for 30 minutes;
    ii. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school is in session for 130 minutes;
    iii. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school is in session for 135 minutes; and
    iv. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, one day a week when school is in session for 150 minutes.
l. The Parent signed the IEP on October 25, 2024.

4. A PWN, dated October 25, 2024, summarized the aforementioned IEP. Relevant additional information included:
    a. "The team will continue to work towards supporting [the Student] and integrating [the Student] through a full day of school."
    b. Upon transitioning into kindergarten in the fall of 2025, it was proposed for the Student to receive special education support services through the Mixed Abilities Special Education Resource Room, which was designed for students with a range of needs. The support would include front loading, visual supports, sensory accommodations, structured work systems, and social skills.
        i. "It is further proposed for [the Student] to attend a 3[-]hour abbreviated school day commencing upon [their] transition into Kindergarten in August 2025." On the PWN, it was originally typed as a two-hour abbreviated school day. The "2" was crossed out and "3" was handwritten in its place.
    c. Explanation of why the action was proposed or refused:
        i. "When [the Student] enters Kindergarten, changes to services and placement are necessary in order to address [their] individual IEP goals. The Mixed Abilities resource room and staff will be able to support [the Student] in making individual gains with supports tailored towards [their] individual abilities and needs."
    d. Options considered and why the options were rejected:
        i. The team considered full-day services, but determined the Student was not able to attend full-day kindergarten at the time. The team rejected leaving the services and placement the same for the 2025-26 academic year because the Student's educational programming would look different than preschool.

e. The team used the following data for their decision: classroom skills, current performance, teacher input and observations, therapy sessions/observations, special education provider input, parent input, and annual IEP and team discussion.
f. The team considered potential harmful effects, but determined the benefits of special education services outweighed the possible effects.
g. The Parent checked the "I give consent" box and signed the PWN on October 25, 2024.

5. Meeting notes dated October 25, 2024 indicated the Pre-K Special Education Teacher stated the Student would be attending three hours in kindergarten, and would like to increase the Student's time the second week after Christmas by 15-30 minutes.
6. The Student's progress report for the 2024-25 school year indicated:
    a. Adaptive Goal
        i. December 19, 2024 and May 22, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    b. Social Emotional Goal
        i. December 19, 2024 and May 22, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.

        ii. May 22, 2025 - the Student made moderate improvement.

        i. December 16, 2024 - the Student made moderate improvement.
        ii. May 20, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    f. Communication Goal
        i. December 16, 2024 and May 13, 2025 - the Student maintained performance.
    g. Motor Goal #2

        i. December 16, 2024 - the Student maintained performance.
    i. Motor Goal #4
        i. December 16, 2024 - the Student maintained performance.
        ii. May 19, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.

   j. Adaptive Goal #2
      i. December 19, 2024 - the Student had a slight regression.
      ii. May 22, 2025 - the Student maintained performance.

7. A PWN, dated January 9, 2025, documented changes to the Student's services.
   a. "It is further proposed for [the Student] to attend a 3[-]hour abbreviated school day commencing upon [their] transition into Kindergarten in August 2025."
   b. The Parent checked the "I give consent" box and signed the PWN on January 9, 2025.
8. Meeting Minutes dated January 9, 2025 indicated the Pre-K Special Education Teacher stated the only change to the Student's IEP was their preschool day minutes increased by 60 minutes. It was documented the Student would attend lunch with the class.
9. Relevant information from meeting notes dated August 18, 2025 included:
   a. There was an informal meeting scheduled by the Principal for a meet-the-teacher appointment. The purpose was to discuss the Student's schedule. The notes stated there were 180 minutes of IEP and three hours of Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA). It stated school time was from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. and ABA was from 12:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. The Grandparent would transport the Student, and the Student would have paraprofessional support 100% of the time during school. The Other Parent was present at the meeting.
10. Relevant information from a reevaluation report dated October 20, 2025 included:
    a. The Parent reported the Student had problem behaviors at home and at school.
    b. The Student had been attending a special education preschool classroom with a child-to-adult ratio of 3:1.
    c. The Student's behaviors and characteristics relevant to autism eligibility consideration could be impacting their ability to access the general education curriculum.
    d. The report findings suggested the need for targeted interventions to support the Student's social communication, behavioral regulation, and sensory integration.
    e. Recommendations for educational planning included modifying the Student's environment to reduce sensory overload.
11. The Student's IEP, dated October 20, 2025, indicated:
    a. Based on the most recent evaluation and ongoing data collection, the Student had needs in the following areas which required special education or related services: communication, motor, adaptive/daily living skills, social emotional, reading, and math. It stated the Student's current levels would impact their progress in the general education curriculum.
    b. The "no" box was checked next to the question "Can the student be successful within the general education classroom and curriculum for the entire school day with services/supports provided?"

c. The "yes" box was checked next to the question "Are there additional service(s) or support(s) that can be provided that would enable the student to be successful in the general education classroom/curriculum?" A statement beside the "yes" box stated additional services/supports had been added to the IEP to ensure participation in the general education environment to the maximum extent possible.
    i. The document stated, "Attempts at inclusion: 1-2 attempts daily for at least 25 minutes. During recess [the Student] does a wonderful job playing with [their] peers. In the classroom, [the Student] is learning to work amongst [their] peers. At times … [the Student] is in need of a break or seeks out sensory breaks. Data to support LRE decision: In the preschool setting [the Student] was able to participate in classroom activities as they were center based and each activity was able to be modified to meet [the Student's] needs. In the kindergarten classroom, [the Student] is not able to focus long enough to engage [wholly] to whole classroom learning or discussions. [The Student] is always in need of a 1 on 1 paraprofessional or teacher to assist [them]. This allows [the Student] to take breaks as they are needed and to accommodate [their] needs in the general education setting."
d. The IEP team determined the benefits of the proposed service setting may have some potentially harmful effects, but due to the nature and severity of the Student's disability, the team determined the benefits of a special education placement outweighed any potential harmful effects.
e. The team identified potential harmful effects as potential stigma associated with receiving special education support, and limited exposure to peer modeling when removed from the general education setting to receive services in the special education setting.
f. Special Education and Related Services for October 20, 2025 through October 19, 2026 included:
    i. Occupational Therapy services in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    ii. Physical Therapy in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    iii. Speech Language Therapy in the special education area, two times a week for 20 minutes;
    iv. Special Education services in the general education classroom setting/building, five days a week when school was in session for 45 minutes;
    v. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school was in session for 175 minutes;

vi. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school was in session for 180 minutes; and

vii. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, one day a week when school was in session for 195 minutes.

g. The Student would have partial inclusion in general education.

h. The Student would have the opportunity to participate in all non-academic and extracurricular activities to the same extent as non-identified peers.

i. Accommodations/Modifications/Support Aids, from October 20, 2025 through October 19, 2026, in the regular education classroom, special education/mixed abilities room, OT, and SLP:

i. Visual schedule including three activities coming up, for four days per week during the preschool year and five days per week upon transitioning to kindergarten, for the the duration of the school day; and

ii. Verbal and/or non-verbal prompts for a minimum of one prompt per activity after directions are given during the preschool day, for no less than 5-10 seconds for the Student to comprehend what was being asked of them.

iii. The Parent signed the IEP on October 20, 2025.

12. Relevant information from a PWN, dated October 20, 2025, included:

a. For the remainder of kindergarten and anticipating starting first grade, it was proposed for the Student to receive special education support services through the Mixed Abilities Special Education Resource Room. The support would include front loading, visual supports, sensory accommodations, structured work systems, and social skills.

i. "It is further proposed for [the Student] to attend a 3[-]hour abbreviated school day considering [their] ABA schedule and data reporting, extending [their] day would not be in [the Student's] best interest as [the Student] [is] showing statistically that [they] [are] tired and ready for the change to ABA by 11:30 daily."

b. Explanation of why the action was proposed or refused:

i. "The team agrees that the services as proposed meet [the Student's] needs best at this time, taking into account [their] least restrictive environment."

c. The team used the following data for their decision: classroom skills, current performance, teacher input and observations, therapy sessions/observations, special education provider input, parent input, administrative input, formal assessments, and annual IEP and team discussion.

   d. The PWN stated the Student would miss instructional time with general education peers, but considering the Student's needs and the LRE, the team agreed the benefits outweighed the potential harmful effects.
   e. The Parent checked the "I give consent" box and signed the PWN on October 20, 2025.

13. Communication between the Parent and the Special Education Teacher on October 29, [2025] indicated:
   a. The Parent asked if the Student could stay at school until 3:00 p.m. because they would no longer have ABA services. They said, "I don't want [the Student] to scale back on time cause [they] really need the time at school to help [them] better acclimate so [they] can at some point do a full day."
   b. The Special Education Teacher replied, "As we discussed during the IEP meeting, we will wait to adjust [the Student's] school schedule until the [ABA program] is established and ready to begin. Making significant changes before that time would not be in [their] best interest. … we have observed that [the Student] becomes increasingly frustrated after about two and a half hours each day. At this time, I would not recommend increasing [their] classroom time."
   c. The Parent stated the Student would lose time and attend from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.
   d. The Special Education Teacher reiterated the Student was not losing any school time, their schedule would not change, and they would continue to attend for the amount of time agreed upon in the IEP. They stated the team's goal was to work toward a full school day for the Student, but they would continue to follow the Student's pace. They said, "… [the Student] is showing us that three hours in the classroom is challenging enough without reaching a point of total frustration or meltdown. … For now, keeping [their] routine consistent is what's best for [the Student]."
14. A Memo to File, dated October 30, 2025, indicated that on the same day, the Grandparent visited the LEA office and expressed concern and dissatisfaction regarding the Student's shortened school day. The Special Education Director spoke to the Grandparent and learned they were upset because they believed the Student's school day was shorter due to their autism. The Special Education Director explained each student's schedule and programming were based on their individual needs, goals, and tolerance levels, and the decisions were made by the IEP team.
15. Relevant information from the Student's current schedule, dated November 3, 2025, included:
   a. Their schedule was from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.
   b. The schedule detailed specific times the Student engaged in peer interaction.
16. A PWN, dated November 19, 2025, was regarding any additions to the Student's special education and related services or educational placement, to enable the Student to meet their annual goals and to participate, as appropriate, in the general education curriculum. It included the following relevant information:

a. The Student would be educated, to the maximum extent possible, with other children in the general education classroom. The Student would be removed from the general education classroom only when the nature or severity of their disability was such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily.
b. There would be a material change in services, which required consent.
c. The IEP team, including the Parent, proposed a 33% increase in the Student's day. The Student would attend school from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. They had currently attended school from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. during the 2025-26 school year. The IEP team proposed to meet quarterly to discuss adding more time to the Student's day based on the most current data. No changes were made to the Student's goals or accommodations. The proposed changes reflected an additional 60 minutes daily for special education services in the special education classroom.
d. Special Education and Related Services for November 19, 2025 through October 19, 2026 included:
    i. Occupational Therapy services in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    ii. Physical Therapy in the special education area, once a week for 15 minutes;
    iii. Speech Language Therapy in the special education area, two times a week for 20 minutes;
    iv. Special Education services in the general education classroom setting/building, five days a week when school is in session for 45 minutes;
    v. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school was in session for 175 minutes;
    vi. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, two days a week when school was in session for 180 minutes; and
    vii. Special Education services for reading, math, social, and adaptive goals in the special education classroom, one day a week when school was in session for 195 minutes.
e. The IEP team proposed the change in order to increase the Student's tolerance for school activities and allow more work toward their goals. The change allowed for more social interaction at meal times, school entry, and goal work.

f. The IEP team considered increasing the Student's time to a full day of 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., but determined the significant increase did not serve the Student's best interests at the time.

17. Relevant information from the Student's 2025-26 log included:
    a. September 2, 2025 - During snack time, the Student sat with their peers and attempted to share food. There was an incident of pinching staff after 11:00 a.m.
    b. September 3, 2025 - The Student pinched a paraprofessional and escalated quickly when given a non-preferred activity.
    c. September 4, 2025 - The Student had a pinching incident at 11:35 a.m.
    d. September 8, 2025 - The Student struggled from 11:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. and engaged in pinching, hitting, and self-injurious pinching.
    e. September 9, 2025 - The Student bit a staff member.
18. The Student's progress report for the 2025-26 school year indicated:
    a. Adaptive Goal
        i. October 10, 2025 - the Student made moderate improvement.
    b. Social Emotional Goal
        i. October 10, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    c. Reading Goal
        i. October 10, 2025 - the Student made moderate improvement.
    d. Math Goal
        i. October 10, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    e. Motor Goal
        i. October 8, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    f. Communication Goal
        i. October 3, 2025 - the Student made moderate improvement.
    g. Motor Goal #2
        i. October 9, 2025 - the Student made moderate improvement.
    h. Motor Goal #3
        i. October 9, 2025 - the Student mastered the goal.
    i. Motor Goal #4
        i. May 19, 2025 - the Student made slight improvement.
    j. Adaptive Goal #2
        i. October 10, 2025 - the Student maintained performance.

Parent Interview

19. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated the Student was enrolled for a full day of school when they started kindergarten in August 2025. They explained a full day was from 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., but the Student only attended school from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., and then was "handed off" to a separate entity which provided ABA services.

20. The Parent stated the School did not provide reasons for why the Student had a shorter day, "… other than they felt like [the Student] couldn't tolerate being up there all day" and the School wanted to incrementally ease the Student into more time. The Parent indicated that as of the time of the interview, the Student's time had increased and they were currently attending school from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.
21. The Parent shared the Student spent about 20 minutes in the general education classroom. They indicated the School had recently increased that to 45 minutes, and considered lunchtime, recess, and general education with peers as part of that time. The Parent explained the Student was in the classroom for 20 minutes completing calendar time with their peers, and then was pulled out for services such as speech, PT, OT, and specialized education in another classroom.
22. The Parent explained they had initiated several IEP meetings, including one at the end of October [2025] in which they asked for the Student to have more time at school. They indicated the School told them they would "get there" and were going at the Student's pace. The Parent stated the School told them the Student did well with their peers during calendar time, but was pulled out during other times because they could not sit through the teacher's lesson and could not sit at the desk like the other students in the classroom. The Parent indicated the Student was pulled out to do "certain educational things" the way the Student wanted to do it and at their pace. Afterwards, the Student was "handed off" for ABA services. The Parent shared they learned in October [2025] the School was not going to give the Student anymore time because the School did not feel the Student was ready for it. The Parent perceived the Student was only participating in 45 minutes of regular school, at the time of the interview.
23. The Parent stated the Student attended a preschool in the LEA from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. They indicated the Student completed two years of preschool because of their autism diagnosis. The Parent explained the Student only attended school for two hours during their first year of preschool, their time was increased in small increments, and the second year was when the Student was allowed to attend full time. The Parent expressed they were confused when the School did not start the Student's kindergarten day at 8:00 a.m. During the interview, the Grandparent shared that once the ABA provider arrived, the Student stayed at the School for another three hours with the provider. The Parent explained the ABA services were separate from the School, and the School only provided a place for the provider to facilitate the services.
24. The Parent perceived the Student spent only a small amount of time in the general education classroom with peers during preschool, and 90-95% of it was specialized instruction or receiving services such as speech, OT, and PT.
25. The Parent stated during the IEP meeting in October [2025], they realized the Student was only attending kindergarten from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. The Parent perceived "normal kids" were being offered more time and education than the Student. They said, "… [the Student] is not even getting half a day, [they] [are] only getting 45 minutes … ."

The Parent expressed concern that the Student's only time with peers during the school day was during calendar time.

26. The Parent perceived the Student's IEP was "penalizing" them because the School was keeping the Student out of the classroom because they could not tolerate sitting at a desk during the teacher's lesson. The Parent indicated the Student was only in the general education classroom for 45 minutes, which was less than their peers. They indicated that while they were glad the Student was receiving needed services, they were concerned the School was not providing the type of education to which the Student was entitled. The Parent believed the Student would fall behind their peers if the School did not push them more.
27. The Parent said, "… I want [the Student] treated like a normal kid. Just because [the Student] [is] autistic doesn't mean [they] should be treated differently. And the school feels like they're not treating [the Student] any different, but they are. They're not allowing [them] to do a full day." The Parent explained the School's reasoning for the Student not receiving a full day was because they wanted the Student to start small and build up time, but that after several months, there had been no increase in time and the Student was still attending from 9 a.m. to 11:00 a.m.
28. The Parent said, "I feel like they're robbing [the Student] of [an education] every time that they cut [them] short because [the Student] [is] autistic. … but I don't think that they should penalize [the Student] like they are and say [the Student] doesn't deserve to be in the classroom."
29. The Parent explained the Student was offered speech, PT, OT, and specialized instruction in a specific classroom during preschool. They indicated the Student was currently receiving speech services twice a week for 15 minutes each day, in addition to PT, OT, and specialized instruction.
30. During the interview, the Grandparent stated the Student had attended preschool from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., and was attending school for an hour less during kindergarten. The Grandparent perceived the School was cutting the Student's time, letting the Student "make the call" about their education, and not pushing the Student to succeed.
31. The Parent had the impression the School was only providing minimal services to the Student.

Special Education Director Interview

32. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Education Director explained when the Student came to the LEA as a Part C to Part B transition student, they were on an abbreviated schedule as determined by their Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP). They indicated the Student remained on a shortened day when they started preschool, as determined by the data and the IEP team. They stated the Student's preschool schedule was later increased to a full day.
33. The Special Education Director shared that during preschool, the Student attended from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., Monday through Thursday, which was the same schedule as non-disabled preschool students. They explained throughout the 2024-25 school year, the IEP team discussed what the Student's kindergarten year would look like, which was reinforced several times to the Parents. The Special Education Director explained the Other Parent met with an administrator on August 18, 2025 and agreed the Student would have a "soft start" to kindergarten, which was 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., and the IEP team would review the length of the Student's school day after nine weeks of data collection. The Special Education Director indicated the soft start was at the request of the Student's Parents because the Student also engaged in ABA services at the School from an outside provider. They shared the Student received ABA services at the School as a convenience for the Parents because the outside provider did not offer the service on weekends, after school, or in the home.

34. The Special Education Director stated there was no state requirement for all-day kindergarten. They shared it was an hour requirement and some LEAs did a shortened day. They said, "I can't say all other kindergarteners. A regular education student would presumptively go from eight [sic] to 3:30."
35. The Special Education Director explained that during the 2024-25 school year, the Student was in a mixed classroom, with about 89% of the peers being non-disabled and 11% were students with IEPs. They stated the Student attended from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. and other than time spent on pull-out services, OT, PT, and speech services, the Student was with their non-disabled peers.
36. Regarding the 2025-26 school year, the Special Education Director said, "... we're continuously adding time as [the Student] goes into a general education kindergarten classroom, it's very overwhelming for [them]. So they've started off slowly and continuously added time as they've collected data. [The Student] is with [their] regular education teacher 25 minutes out of the time that [the Student] is there. And ... 81% of the students in that classroom are non-disabled peers. [The Student] also has full access to [their] non-disabled peers at recess."
37. According to the Special Education Director, for the 2025-26 school year in the general education setting, the Student had a one-on-one paraprofessional, ate lunch with their peers, had pull-out time with the Special Education Teacher, and received additional related services. When asked how effective the supports had been for the Student, the Special Education Director indicated they had seen "tremendous growth and progress" with the Student. They indicated the Student's Parents had also commented on the Student's growth.
38. When asked about the data used to determine the Student's abbreviated school day for 2024-25 school year, the Special Education Director explained they used the Peabody Motor Scales, a FastBridge screening and testing, a preschool assessment diagnostic program, and observational data from teachers and paraprofessionals. For the 2025-26 school year, the Special Education Director stated the IEP team reviewed the Student's progress on their goals and their most current progress report. They explained observational data showing when the Student reached a threshold of frustration was a factor in determining the length of the Student's day in kindergarten. They stated the IEP team was concerned the Student transitioning from a center-based preschool classroom to an instructional kindergarten classroom was a "dramatic jump." They said, "… the team was concerned that the threshold point for frustration and observational data, the self-interest behavior, et cetera, was the determining factor. The team had always looked at adding on slow increments of increasing time … ."

39. The Special Education Director stated there had been a request from the Parent to increase the Student's day from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., which would have been a 133% increase. They indicated the Special Education Teacher and the IEP team were concerned the request was not based on the data.
40. The Special Education Director indicated the Grandparent was unhappy the Student was not attending a full day, and was unhappy the Student was receiving speech services, physical therapy, and occupational therapy. They said, "[The Grandparent] just wanted [the Student] to be in a kindergarten classroom and not receive that." In response to the Grandparent's perception the LEA did not have appropriately trained staff, the Special Education Director shared the LEA had a full autism team which received technical assistance from the state. They explained the head of the autism team gathered observational data of the Student, which was used to help the IEP team make decisions about extending the Student's day. They said, "It is always our goal to extend that school day. We just wanted to do that with appropriate data … ."
41. The Special Education Director indicated a PWN from October 25, 2024 proposed the Student would have a two-hour day upon starting kindergarten, but then the IEP team determined it should be three hours.
42. When asked why the Student's day did not start at the same time as their regular education peers, the Special Education Director explained on November 19, 2025, the IEP team decided to increase the Student's day to 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. They indicated the Student started the day at the same time as their peers.
43. The Special Education Director said, "… [the Student] has made tremendous progress. But that time has been built slowly based on data decisions to add those increments to where we are today."

Special Education Teacher Interview

44. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Education Teacher explained minutes were continually added to the Student's day as they progressed through the 2024-25 school year. They explained the Student's IEP team met in October 2024 and agreed to meet after the winter break and review the data to see whether the Student's day should be extended. They stated the team met in January 2025 and determined the Student would attend preschool from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. four days a week, which was the same as their regular education peers.
45. The Special Education Teacher explained there was a meeting on August 18, 2025, called by the building administrator, to discuss the Student's plan for the 2025-26 school year and the Student having a three-hour school day. They indicated the Student's parents requested the Student start school at 9:00 a.m. due to a daycare situation, so the School had the Student attend from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. They explained this schedule was an extension of the Student's school minutes from the 2024-25 school year because the Student would now be attending school five days a week. They stated the Student participated in ABA services at the School from an outside provider from 12:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.

46. When asked what data supported the Student receiving three hours of instruction, the Special Education Teacher explained the data they collected showed a nearly daily trend of the Student having a strong start to the day, completing their academic tasks, and taking some sensory breaks, but still showing several refusals. They stated the Student would have meltdowns generally between 11:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. They indicated they tried redirection to be able to get the Student to stay that amount of time without having meltdowns, but it was not successful. The Special Education Teacher described they scaled back on the Student's academics and changed to doing more functional work between 11:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m., but the Student still struggled.

    The Special Education Teacher indicated the Student had fewer meltdowns over the course of nine weeks and the data showed the Student was improving, but they continued to observe the Student having meltdowns between 11:30 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. They explained the Student was going to recess and receiving preferred time at the start of the 11:00 a.m. hour. They said, "We do have [the Student] going with peers that entire 11 to noon hour as much as we possibly can. However, if [the Student] [has] shown that [the Student] [is] not regulated, if [the Student] [is] showing that [they] [are] not able to sit at a table safely, then we do have to redirect [them] to our classroom to finish [their] lunch just due to safety precautions. [The Student] will run … elope … try and go into classrooms and it's not in [the Student's] best interest to constantly be having to be redirected for those kinds of behaviors, but we are still … working on them."

47. The Special Education Teacher stated the Student had three instructional hours during the 2025-26 school year, and was physically at the School until 3:00 p.m. They shared the Student participated in ABA services from 12:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the School. They explained an IEP team meeting was proposed for October 2025 to review adding time to the Student's day. However, due to issues regarding the Student's ABA services, the Special Education Teacher felt it was in the Student's best interest to have continuity in their schedule and wait on adding time to their school day until the IEP team had more information. They elaborated the additional information they wanted to receive was the dates, times, and duration of how long the Student would be engaging in ABA services with a new provider. The Special Education Teacher stated once they had this information from the new provider, then the IEP team would look at changing the Student's minutes at school. They said, "It was always our intention every nine weeks to look at adding minutes to [the Student's] daily schedule if [the Student] was not already attending in the building a full day between our classes and ABA, but … I just did not have the information as to the days, times and duration that [the Student] would be attending with [their] new ABA."

48. The Special Education Teacher described the Student as "a very schedule-based child" and said, "[The Student] [is] very scheduled and so I did not feel it was in [their] best interest to change [their] day multiple times if we did not have to."
49. The Special Education Teacher stated the Student was with their non-disabled peers during the 2025-26 school year. They explained the Student started off with ten minutes in the classroom, "just being around [their] peers … . [The Student] does attend [recess] and … lunch … preparing for the lunch hour … ." They indicated the Student was currently in the classroom for 20 minutes every day with their non-disabled peers, in addition to recess and lunch. They said, "But as far as academic and cognitive education, [the Student] is at that 20 minutes during [their] three hours and then [the Student] attends recesses and lunch and we work on other things within the classroom as well. … [the Student] [is] around other kids a predominant part of [their] day."
50. According to the Special Education Teacher, during a meeting in August 2025, it was determined they would review the data in nine weeks regarding increasing the Student's school day. They indicated it was always their intention to add minutes to the Student's day and get them as close to a full day as the data indicated was possible. They stated since the meeting in August 2025, another hour had been added to the Student's school day.
51. The Special Education Teacher stated at the start of the 2025-26 school year, the Student's day was from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. They indicated on November 20, 2025, the Student's day was increased by one hour, and currently started at 8:00 a.m.
52. When asked what supports the Student was offered in the general education setting, the Special Education Teacher stated they remained with the Student on a one-on-one basis. They explained the Student had a portable visual schedule carried with them at all times, and the Student was offered a copy of the work being completed on the board, sitting in a preferential chair, having fidgets available, and the Student was allowed to stand to "get those wiggles out a little bit … ." They said, "… we do everything we can to be able to keep [the Student] in the classroom as much as possible. It's always my hope to be able to add more time. … we've already added 50% more time from the beginning of the year."
53. In the special education setting, the Special Education Teacher explained the Student had a curriculum based on their individual needs and received accommodations for academics. They explained the Student had preferential seating, sensory areas, sensory breaks, and a visual schedule. The Special Education Teacher indicated the visual schedule had been effective and the Student was currently modulating their own schedule. They said, "[The Student] is also having so many more words. [Their] verbalizations are up. [The Student] is talking to us more. [The Student] is sharing [their] refusals … likes, dislikes, preferreds and non-preferred. So we're seeing a lot more back and forth communication with [the Student] … . [The Student] [is] also starting to do some fine motor tasks that we did not see at the beginning of the year."

They added, "… I feel like all of the modifications that we are doing to [the Student's] academics are providing [them] this success."

54. The Special Education Teacher described the Student's preschool experience as more center-based and play-based, but the structure of the kindergarten classroom was not. They explained that was why it was important to have the Student complete some of their learning in the resource room, where the Student could learn through an activity rather than a "pen and paper activity". They explained the Student was learning the same things as their peers, but was doing it in the resource room in a way that helped the Student be more successful.
55. The Special Education Teacher explained the nature of the Student's disability sometimes resulted in them being more verbal than their peers and occasionally eloping. They described the Student's behaviors could become a distraction to themselves and other students. The Special Education Teacher explained a curriculum was developed to work with the Student so they were able to be more successful than if they were "just sitting and listening in [their] classroom without someone with [them]." They stated the IEP team felt the Student's disability facilitated the Student needing someone working with the Student one-on-one, in order for the Student to remain safe within a classroom and be able to work to their best ability.
56. The Special Education Teacher explained the IEP team discussed and rejected the Student spending their entire day in the regular education classroom, and rejected the Student spending their entire day in the resource room. They stated it was determined neither option was in the Student's best interest because they wanted the Student to get as much education from the regular education classroom as possible, but that the Student would not learn to their "best extent" if they were entirely in the general education classroom due to how the material was delivered. They explained data was collected to help in deciding how much time the Student would spend in the general and special education settings. The Special Education Teacher explained it started with the Student spending ten minutes in the general education setting for academic time, and later increased to 20 minutes. They stated the Student also had other peer interactions during recess, lunch, and now, during breakfast.
57. The Special Education Teacher described the Student had progressed, including speaking in phrases and being able to do some academic work independently. They indicated it was never the IEP team's intention to keep the Student's school day abbreviated and they always wanted to add more time. They stated it was more difficult to determine when to make decisions regarding increasing the Student's school day when they did not know the days and times the Student would be working with the ABA provider.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #495, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured, to the maximum extent appropriate, the Student was educated with children who were nondisabled, and special classes, separate schooling, or other removal of the Student from the regular educational environment occurred only when the nature or severity of the disability was such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily. K.A.R. 91-40-21 (a)(b)(1)(2)(c)(1)(A)(B)(2); 34 CFR §300.114 (a)(1)(2).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-21 (a)(b)(1)(2)(c)(1)(A)(B)(2), each agency shall ensure that the children with disabilities served by the agency are educated in the least restrictive environment. Each agency shall ensure that a continuum of alternative educational placements is available to meet the needs of children with disabilities. These alternative educational placements shall include instruction in regular classes, special classes, and special schools, instruction in a child's home, and instruction in hospitals and other institutions. Each agency shall make provision for supplementary services, including resource room and itinerant services, to be provided in conjunction with regular class placement.

In determining the educational placement of a child with a disability, including a preschool child with a disability, each agency shall ensure that the placement decision shall be made by a group of persons, including the child's parent or parents and other persons who are knowledgeable about the child, the meaning of the evaluation data, and the placement options. Each agency will ensure the decision shall be made in conformity with the requirement of providing services in the LRE.

The Parent alleged at the October 20, 2025 IEP meeting, no staff from the LEA were at the meeting to discuss extending the Student's school day.

The LEA stated the Student's IEP teams met on October 25, 2024 and October 20, 2025, and made placement decisions based on current, individualized data. At each meeting, the team examined the full continuum of placement options, considered potential harmful effects, and documented the supports necessary to maintain the Student in the general education environment.

According to the LEA, the Student's kindergarten classroom demographic makeup was 81.25% non-disabled students and 18.75% students with disabilities, indicating the Student interacted with a large percentage of non-disabled peers in that classroom. The Student's IEPs from October 2024 and October 2025, in addition to the accompanying PWNs, documented the IEP team's consideration and determination of the Student's least restrictive environment. The IEP team considered full, partial, and no inclusion options in the Student's October 2024 IEP, and in the October 2025 IEP, determined the Student would have partial inclusion in the general education classroom. The Student's IEPs also included supplementary services to support them in the general education classroom, which showed the IEP team reviewed a variety of educational placements for the Student to meet their specific needs.

The Student's October 2025 IEP indicated their current levels would impact their progress in the general education curriculum, and included documented attempts at inclusion (1-2 attempts daily for at least 25 minutes). The IEP indicated the Student played with their peers during recess and was learning to work with peers in the classroom. The IEP team proposed a placement which included special education services in the general and special education classrooms, while ensuring the Student had the opportunity to participate in non-academic and extracurricular activities with their peers. A PWN from October 20, 2025 indicated the IEP team used the several forms of data to support their decision regarding the Student's least restrictive environment. The evidence demonstrated the IEP team, including the Parent, participated in the decision-making process regarding the Student's least restrictive environment.

According to the Special Education Teacher, and corroborated by a portion of the Student's log for the 2025-26 school year, there was evidence the Student had behavior incidents which often occurred between 11:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. The Special Education Teacher indicated this was a factor in determining the Student's placement and length of school day. The Parent perceived "normal kids" were being offered more time and education than the Student and believed the Student's IEP was penalizing them. However, the Special Education Teacher described the Student's preschool experience as more center-based and play-based, but the structure of the kindergarten classroom was not. They explained this difference was a factor in why it was necessary to have the Student complete some of their learning in the resource room, where the Student could learn through activities. They explained the Student was learning the same things as their peers, but was doing it in the resource room in a way that helped the Student be more successful.

Documentation and interviews indicated the Student was spending anywhere between 20-45 minutes in the general education classroom, showed the Student had access to their peers during other times of the day, and that the Student engaged in services. Overall, the evidence demonstrated the IEP team's decisions regarding the Student's least restrictive environment, and the Student's time spent in and out of the general education classroom, were based on data and the Student's individual needs.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA failed to ensure the Student was educated in their least restrictive environment.

Issue Two

Whether USD #495, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, initiated an abbreviated school day, resulting in a denial of a FAPE for the Student. K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(b)(1)(e), K.A.R. 91-40-27(3); 34 CFR §300.101(a).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(b)(1)(e), each agency shall provide a FAPE. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-27(3), each agency shall obtain parental consent before making a material change in services to, or a substantial change in the placement of, an exceptional child.

The Parent alleged that, effective at the start of the 2025-26 school year, the LEA implemented a new schedule for the Student, 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., an hour later than other students and a reduction from the prior year's schedule of 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

The LEA stated they did not shorten the Student's instructional schedule for disciplinary, administrative, or convenience-based reasons. They indicated any adjustments to the Student's day were made strictly through the IEP team process and based on current data.

During the interviews, there were some incorrect statements made by the Parent and the Special Education Director about the length of the Student's day during the 2024-25 and 2025-26 school years. As described in meeting notes and the LEA's Response, the Student ultimately attended preschool from 8:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. for four days a week, which was the same as their non-disabled peers. According to investigative materials, the Student attended kindergarten from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. On November 19, 2025, 60 minutes were added to their school day.

According to the Special Education Director, the Student had a history of being on an abbreviated schedule, dating back to their IFSP. The IEP team implemented an abbreviated school day as an aspect of the Student's placement, based on the Student's unique needs and tolerance levels, and with parental consent, as documented in IEPs and PWNs the Parent signed. There was no evidence to show the decision to implement an abbreviated school day was arbitrary or resulted in a denial of a FAPE. The IEP team used a variety of information to inform their decision, including the Student's classroom skills and current performance, and observational data. A pattern emerged from the evidence which showed the School made data-driven decisions about the Student's placement and length of their school day. As seen in statements made by School staff and various documentation, the team's stated goal remained consistent, which was to work toward increasing the Student's time to a full day, as long as the decision was grounded in data. Evidence showed the IEP team also added time to the Student's day based on available data (i.e., increasing their minutes in January 2025 and in November 2025).

According to the Special Education Director, for the 2024-25 school year, the determination of the Student's abbreviated day was based on assessment data, and staff observational data. For the 2025-26 school year, the IEP team utilized the Student's progress reports and observational data—specifically noting the Student's threshold for frustration and self-interest behavior—to incrementally increase their time. The Student's progress reports for the 2024-25 school year indicated the Student showed slight or moderate improvement in six out of nine goals, and the Student's performance for the start of the 2025-26 school year indicated they made progress (or had reached mastery) in nine out of ten goals. The Special Education Director and Special Education Teacher stated they observed the Student's supports were effective and the Student made progress. This evidence indicated the Student's abbreviated day was not having a negative impact on their progress or ability to access a FAPE.

The evidence demonstrated the decision for the Student to have an abbreviated day was made by the IEP team, was based on current and previous data concerning the Student's specific needs and tolerance, and was subject to continuous review and parental consent. Additionally, evidence from interviews and documentation showed the Student was making progress on their goals, which did not indicate there was a denial of a FAPE.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA initiated an abbreviated school day which resulted in a denial of a FAPE for the Student.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #383, MANHATTAN/OGDEN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 23, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with the Kansas State Department of Education against USD #383 Manhattan/Ogden Public Schools on behalf of xxxxxx by her parents xxxxxx. In the remainder of the report, xxxxx will be referred to as "the student" andxxxxx as "the parents" or "the complainants".

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student. In this case, the complaint is against USD #383 Manhattan/Ogden Public School; this LEA provides its own special education services. During the 2025-2026 school year the student is attending 4th grade at Oliver Brown Elementary School which will be referred to as "the elementary school" in the remainder of the report. Messages sent through Parent Connect, the LEA's communication system will be referred to as "the communication platform" in the remainder of this report. School and LEA staff will be referred to In the remainder of this report as follows:

- Jessica Nelson, director
- Amber Cook, principal

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a complaint from the date in which it was filed. A complaint is considered filed on the date in which it was received by KSDE. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on November 24, 2025.

Evidence Reviewed

During the investigation, the complaint investigator reviewed all evidence and documentation provided by the LEA and the parent. Additionally, the complaint investigator contacted the parents and director on November 25, 26, December 1, 8, and 18, 2025 by email to clarify evidence and documentation.

In completing this investigation, the complaint investigator reviewed documentation provided by the complainant and LEA. Although additional documentation was provided and reviewed, the following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

Documents -

1. Student's IEP dated February 21, 2025.
2. LEA Staffing Summary and Discussion Summary of the September 17, 2025 IEP team meeting.
3. PWN dated September 18, 2025.
4. Message from principal to parents via communication platform, re: followup comments from September 17, 2025 IEP meeting, including offer for continuation meeting, communication issue and Drs orders, sent September 18, 2025.
5. Reply from parents on Sept 19, 2025 citing concerts with the content of the PWN.
6. District reply to allegations sent on December 8, 2025.
7. Email exchange between the director and investigator on December 8, 2025.

Background Information

The student named in this complaint is attending the fourth grade at one of the LEA's elementary schools during the 2025–2026 school year. According to the LEA, the student attended early learning services in the current district and first qualified for IEP services in 2019. The student uses a wheelchair and walker due to spina bifida.

The IEP provided by the LEA is dated February 12, 2025 and includes the following:

Goals -

1. Safety related to clearing the environment of mobility hazards, safe sitting and walker use
2. Independently open exterior doors from walker level
3. Catch a small ball thrown overhanded

Special Education and Related Services -

1. Physical Therapy direct services for 25 minutes, one day per week.
2. School Nurse direct services for 15 minutes, daily.
3. Attendant Care - a non instructional paraeducator for lunch coverage, 10 minutes, daily.
4. Special Education Services- adult support for mobility in specials, recess and classroom for 245 minutes, one day per week.
5. Special Education Services- adult support for mobility in specials, recess and classroom for 270 minutes, four days per week.

6. Although not reflected in the IEP shared with the investigator, the September 18, 2025 PWN adds, "...the IEP team believes that close proximity support is an appropriate accommodation and will be added specifically for recess and physical education to promote safety while also supporting independence and peer interaction."

Service -

1. Teacher consultation- Physical therapist and special education teacher will consult with classroom teacher, specials teachers, and other staff members regarding the student's needs, 5 minutes, monthly in the special education classroom.

Modifications/Accommodations -

1. Adult check In/Check Out for organization.
2. Alternative seating, activities, etc., may be needed in order for the student to be most successful at school.
3. Visual organizational prompt on student desk.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaints and interview with the complainants, two concerns that fall under IDEA or Kansas regulations were identified, one of which was already under investigation. Therefore one issue will be investigated.

Issue One

Did USD #383 amend the student's IEP to include changes made at the IEP meeting on September 17, 2025, and confirmed in the September 18, 2025 PWN, as required by 34 CFR §300.324(a)(6)?

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 CFR §300.324(a)(6) require that changes to the IEP may be made either by the entire IEP Team at an IEP Team meeting, or as provided in paragraph (a)(4) of this section, by amending the IEP rather than by redrafting the entire IEP. Upon request, a parent must be provided with a revised copy of the IEP with the amendments incorporated.

Parent Position

The parent's complaint states that the LEA did not update the student's IEP to reflect the amendment of "close proximity" in the student's IEP as promised in the September 18, 2025 PWN.

LEA Position

"As a matter of federal and Kansas law, the September 18, 2025, Prior Written Notice documented proposed changes; it did not, by itself, amend the student's operative IEP because the parent did not provide the written consent that Kansas law requires before a material change in services or substantial change in placement can be implemented."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

1. The PWN issued on September 18, 2025 states, "Instead, the IEP Team believes that close priority support is an appropriate accommodation and will be added specifically for recess and physical education to promote safety while also supporting independence and peer interaction."
2. The PWN indicates in different two places that parent consent was not required for any of the actions proposed or refused.
    a. "Other changes to IEP, not involving services or placement. (Parental Consent Not Required)" and,
    b. "The [LEA] refuses to initiate or change the identification, educational placement, or provision of special education and related services as explained below. (Parental Consent Not Required)"
3. The PWN does not indicate that the changes proposed are "Material changes in services" which do require parental consent.
4. The student's IEP dated February 21, 2025 was not amended to include the proposed change stated in the September 18, 2025 PWN of "close proximity."
5. In a reply to the principal's message which included the September 18, 2025 PWN the parents cited concerns with the content of the PWN and stated, "Before signing or taking our next steps, we plan to consult the Disability Rights Center of Kansas for guidance. It is our understanding that two of the attorneys we are working with are or will soon be out of the office, so we will respond regarding the proposed date and time for the next meeting after we have their input."
6. The LEA's response to the complaint includes the following, "Here, the changes discussed at the September 17, 2025, IEP meeting and described in the September 18, 2025, PWN involved altering the student's accommodations, that is, the supplementary aids and services that enable the student to access instruction. Under Kansas law, any change that increases or decreases the frequency or duration of such support by 25 percent or more is a "material change in services" that cannot be implemented without written parental consent, unless the district pursues and prevails in mediation or due process. In this case, the parent affirmatively declined to sign the consent section accompanying the September 18 PWN and expressly objected to the accuracy of the proposed revisions. That refusal is the opposite of the "agreement" contemplated in 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(a)(4) for amendments by written document and triggers the Kansas specific requirement that any material change in services may proceed, if at all, only through mediation or due process, not by unilateral district action. Rather than implement the proposed changes over the parent's objection, USD 383 continued to provide services and accommodations under the last fully agreed upon IEP and did not treat the September 18, 2025, PWN as an operative amendment. This approach is fully consistent with Kansas authority such as Clasen v. Unified School District No. 266, in which the court deferred to state administrative findings applying the Kansas 25 percent "material change" and "substantial change in placement" rules and recognizing that parental consent is required when those thresholds are crossed. Because there was no mutual agreement to amend the IEP and no written parental consent for a material change in services, USD 383 did not amend the IEP within the meaning of 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(a)(6); the September 18, 2025, PWN accurately functioned as notice of a proposed action only, and the student's IEP remained unchanged."

7. In an email from the principal to the investigator December 8, 2025, at 8:12 a.m. they state, "On item # 1 of the PWN we have listed that we are proposing to add 'close proximity.' We need parent permission to add this as an accommodation. You will see in [the student's] current IEP, that accommodation is not listed due to not having parent permission."
8. Email sent by principal to the investigator on December 8, 2025, 10:40 a.m. "Here is the parent communication that was sent with the PWN. Since the PWN is our offering, the parent has a choice to sign consent or do not consent. They chose to not respond to the PWN or the request for another meeting. "

Conclusion

Prior Written Notice documents the LEA's proposal to initiate or change, or refusal to initiate or change, the identification, evaluation, educational placement, or provision of FAPE. Whether parent consent is required depends on the nature of the proposed or refused action. The PWN informs parents of any actions requiring consent to amend the IEP and identifies proposals or refusals that the LEA may implement or maintain consistent with IDEA, regardless of parental agreement.

In this case, on page two of the September 18, 2025 PWN, section 3, titled "Change in Services" has two check boxes. One box indicates that consent is not required and the other indicates consent is required. Neither box is checked. This failure to check the "consent is required" box was an error because in Section A, the PWN says, "Instead, the IEP team believes that close proximity support is an appropriate accommodation and will be added specifically for recess and physical education…" That provision added a supplementary service that had not previously been provided. As such, that provision required parent consent but the PWN did not notify the parent that consent was needed. Thus, the error resulted in a defective PWN.

However, this PWN error was a procedural error that did not substantively interfere with the parent's right to participate in educational decision making. As noted in Finding 5, above, in a written reply to the September 18, 2025 PWN, on the very same day, September 18, 2025, the parents stated, "Before signing or taking our next steps, we plan to consult the Disability Rights Center of Kansas for guidance. It is our understanding that two of the attorneys we are working with are or will soon be out of the office, so we will respond regarding the proposed date and time for the next meeting after we have their input." In short, the parents exercised their right to delay signing the PWN, which effectively prevented the district from implementing the "close proximity" proposal. The parents still have not provided the necessary consent. Despite the omission of checking the consent box on the PWN, these subsequent actions indicate that more likely than not, both parties understood that the new "close proximity" proposal was a proposed material change in services and so could not be implemented without the written consent of a parent.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA was not able to amend the IEP as stated in the PWN issued September 18, 2025 because it did not have the requisite consent to do so. The LEA is IN compliance, and corrective actions are not required.

Summary of Conclusions/Corrective Action

1. ISSUE ONE: A violation of 34 CFR §300.324(a)(6) was not found. No corrective action is required.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #233
ON DECEMBER 8, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: DECEMBER 24, 2025

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, --------, by the Complainant, --------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the complainant as "the Complainant."

The Complaint is against USD #233 Olathe Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #233.

Background

The Student transferred from Paola School District at the start of the 2025-2026 school year with an IEP. The IEP team at Olathe East High School adopted Paola's IEP and offered comparable services. Following this, an IEP meeting was held on September 24, 2025. The Complainant stated that she was an active participant in that team meeting and all technical requirements relating to the IEP meeting were completed by the LEA.

On October 28, 2025, a Temporary Order of Protection was filed by the Student's father on behalf of himself against the Complainant. The Order stated that the Complainant "shall not enter or come on or around the premises, the residence, the property, school, or place of employment of the Protected Person or other family or household member." The LEA interpreted the Order to include the Student because the Student is a family member and household member of the Protected Person.

The Complaint Investigator interviewed the Complainant on December 15, 2025. The following LEA staff were interviewed on December 17, 2025: the Assistant Director of Special Services and the School Principal.

In completing this investigation, the Complaint Investigator asked the Complainant and the LEA for all relevant information. The Complainant did not provide any documentation. The Complaint Investigator reviewed all documentation provided by the LEA. The following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

LEA Materials

1. Response to Formal Complaint
2. Email correspondence between the Complainant and school staff
3. Complainant's ParentVue account activation
4. Complainant's Access to ParentVue (log-in log)

Factual Findings

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and LEA staff.

1. ParentVue is an online portal and mobile app for parents to monitor their child's education in real time.
2. ParentVue provides access to grades, attendance, assignments, discipline records, and student information through a single login.
3. The Complainant activated her ParentVue account on August 13, 2025.
4. The Complainant accessed ParentVue a total of 291 times between August 13, 2025 and December 8, 2025.
5. The Complainant receives notifications regarding the Student's attendance, discipline, and health.
6. The Complainant did not request, either verbally or in writing, to inspect and review the Student's attendance record.
7. The Complainant did not request, either verbally or in writing, to inspect and review the Student's counseling service record.

Issue Analysis

Issue One

Did USD 233 deny the Complainant's right to examine her child's education records, including attendance data and health data? 34 C.F.R. 300.613; K.A.R. 91-40-25.

The Complainant alleges that the School denied her the right to examine her child's educational records, including attendance records and counseling service records. The LEA asserts that there is no indication that the Complainant ever requested, verbally or in writing, to inspect and review the Student's educational records.

LEAs must permit parents to inspect and review any education records relating to their children that are collected, maintained, or used by LEA. The agency must comply with a request without unnecessary delay and in no case more than 45 days after the request has been made. 34 C.F.R. 300.613(a). Parents shall have the opportunity to examine all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child. K.A.R. 91-40-25. Education record means any document or medium on which information directly related to one or more students is maintained by a LEA or School (Kansas Special Education Process Handbook (KSEPH), p. 154). Education records include attendance data and health data (KSPEH, p. 154).

There is no evidence that the Complainant requested to inspect and review the Student's education records, specifically the Student's attendance data and health data. The LEA provided the Complaint Investigator email correspondence between school staff and the Complainant. These emails do not contain a written request from the Parent to review and inspect the Student's education records.

The Complaint Investigator emailed the Complainant to clarify whether the Complainant verbally requested to view the Student's education records. The Complaint Investigator asked the Complainant whether she verbally requested the Student's education records and when and where the request was made. The Complainant failed to respond with any details regarding the alleged education records request.

In this situation, a complaint investigator uses the preponderance of evidence standard. The standard requires a party to show that their version of events is more likely true than not. In other words, there must be more than a fifty-percent probability that an event occurred. To support a finding, there must be some evidence to support that a request for education records occurred.

Here, there is no such evidence. The LEA was forthcoming in its search for email correspondence between the Complainant and school staff and provided email correspondence relating to the Student's attendance and health. On the other hand, the Complainant failed to provide details regarding the alleged request, such as when and how. Therefore, it is not probable that the Complainant requested, either verbally or in writing, the Student's education records.

Conclusion

It is not substantiated that the LEA denied the Complainant's right to examine her child's educational records, including attendance data and health data.

Background Information

This investigation involved a third-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in the LEA. The Student qualifies for a developmental delay as a child with a disability per the IDEA and is placed in a "categorical special education classroom that provides a level of structure and service to meet [the] Student's unique needs".

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. An email dated November 19, 2024 was labeled by the LEA as "Email regarding iPad and Speech." The email was sent to the Parent, from the Principal, and provided a reason why staff were unable to locate the iPad the previous day. "[Classroom staff] realized after [the Student] left that [the Student] had snuck the iPad in where regular devices are charged and stored." The Former Special Education Teacher was assured that, instead of the Student missing services, the Former Speech Language Pathologist (SLP) would record with their phone if there were concerns. (D95)
2. The Student's February 26, 2025 IEP included the following relevant information:
    a. The Student's primary disability was "developmentally delayed". (D340)
    b. The Student required a health care plan for seizure activity. The Student's orientation and mobility strengths included "independent travel skills" indoors, use of a long white cane, and active participation and listening. (D133-D134)
    c. The Student required supervision on the stairs and on outdoor terrain due to "possible instability".
    d. The Student had "right-sighted hemiparesis," which meant their right was affected, " making bilateral tasks very difficult". The Student needed encouragement to use their right hand and had a "variable range of motion" on their right hand and arm. The Student lacked vision on the right side of both eyes. (D135)
    e. The Student's Special Education and Related Services included 15 identified services.
    f. Relevant accommodations for the duration of the IEP were:
        i. "Prompts/staff assistance and supervision during the day for mobility and safety," "as needed during mobility on [the] stairs, when obstacles or terrain may be unsafe or when [the Student] is unaware of obstacles due to sensory neglect or visual impairment," in the school building or on school grounds, throughout the day.
        ii. "Staff assistance and supervision during prescribed exercise program and during physical education [PE]," "daily supervision; assistance as needed for correcting incorrect technique; problem-solving adaptations to PE class activity as needed," during PE or exercise in the classroom, for the duration of the exercise or activity.
        iii. "Adult support will be provided for [the Student] throughout the day … for all daily activities in all settings," in general education and special education classes, throughout the school day. (D146-D147)
    g. Supports for School Personnel included trainings "at the beginning of the year, as needed, and when staffing changes":

i. Management of Assaultive Behavior (MAB) training.
ii. How to use the iPad recording device and "how to document noticeable seizure/potential seizure activity and abnormal behaviors."
iii. Annual training provided by a school nurse for seizure recognition.
iv. Training on auditory processing disorder provided by an audiologist.
v. Training on the Student's cane and use of a human guide provided by a Certified Orientation and Mobility Specialist (COMS).
vi. Training on the Student's visual diagnoses and use of accommodations provided by a Teacher of Students with Vision Impairments (TVI). (D148)

h. Special considerations noted: "Per the Parent's request[,] written documentation of noticeable seizure/potential seizure activity [will] be documented in the notebook in [the Student's] red backpack. Written documentation of daily abnormal behaviors is to be recorded and emailed to the IEP team daily. Any noticeable seizure/potential seizure activity is to be recorded on the iPad device. [The Student's] red backpack, cane, iPad recording device, and documentation paperwork are to go with [them] everywhere within the school building. [The Student's] red backpack and cane go home with [them] daily and are returned the next day to school for use." (D149)

3. The Student's Health Care Plan for the 2024-25 school year included the following relevant information:
    a. Diagnoses were Epilepsy, Hemiplegic Cerebral Palsy, Cerebral Visual Impairment, and Right Homonymous Hemianopia.
    b. Five medications were listed.
    c. "Presenting problem" was "absence and generalized tonic clonic seizures."
    d. Non-urgent treatment/care was, "Staff will note the time of the onset of seizure activity and [the Student's] iPad will be used to record [them]. [The Student] will be brought to the nurse, or the nurse will be called to [their] location for any possible Absence Seizures. [The] Parent will be called after [the Student] has been assessed by health room staff."
    e. Signs of a medical emergency were "abnormal movements of [sic] any time, or if [the Student] becomes unresponsive." Instructions were provided for a medical emergency. (D170, D172)
4. An undated Seizure Action Plan for the Student outlined the seizure types, the medications, and a description of the Student's seizures. The plan for the Student specified, "If [the Student] has any type of seizure, lasting three or more minutes, [nasal spray] will be administered. Note the time of the onset of the seizure, make sure the seizure is being recorded with [the Student's] iPad and call the nurse to [the Student's] location. If [they are] unconscious, turn [them] to [their] side and remove any objects from around [them] that could hurt [them]. Staff will need to remove other students from the area, remembering to talk in a calm quiet voice." (D173)

5. In a July 15, 2025 email to the Current Special Education Teacher, the Principal, the Occupational Therapist (OT), the Certified Occupational Therapy Assistant (COTA), the SLP, the TVI/COMS, the Nurse, and the Audiologist, the Physical Therapist (PT) inquired about days and times to schedule a training "prior to school starting," with the Student and the Parent present. (D530)
   The same day, the PT emailed the Parent requesting this training for August 11, 2025. The Parent replied and confirmed. (D539)
6. A July 17, 2025 digital calendar invitation from the PT indicated the following people were invited to a training for the Student on August 11, 2025: the SLP, the TVI/COMS, the COTA, the OT, the Nurse, the Current Special Education Teacher, the Principal, the Audiologist, and two other LEA employees. The invitation noted the Parent would be bringing the Student for this training "re: safety information." (D544-D545)
7. In a July 22, 2025 email to the PT, the Parent inquired who would be included in the August 11, 2025 training and stated, "I was assured by [the Assistant Director] there would be a bus aide and they would be trained regarding the seizure action plan and [the Student's] iPad, as well as rescue meds."
   The Assistant Director replied on July 30, 2025 and reported, "All bus personnel receive seizure training, and we will make sure the bus para has a copy of [the Student's] seizure plan."
   The Parent followed up with an email to the Assistant Director, the PT, and the Principal, indicating the Transportation Employee would "send the driver and aide to our training session on [August] 11th, [2025]." (D541-D543)
8. An August 1, 2025 agenda for "Lifting and Transfers: Transportation" noted a 30-minute training with "gait belt," "safe lifting and transfers," and "stairs" as the three agenda items. For "stairs," it was recommended that classroom staff transfer students with balance deficits on or off the stairs when possible and to walk "downhill" from a student while they are on the stairs. (D613-D614)
9. A sign-in sheet for an August 1, 2025 transportation training noted Bus Drivers 1 and 2 provided signatures verifying their presence at the training. (D684, D686)
10. Slides for a "Transportation Training 2025" included the following:
    a. Expectation of participants being "responsible for reviewing and understanding the material presented."
    b. Contact information for those providing the training.
    c. An agenda including "gait belt: description and brief demonstration," "basic lifting and transfers," and "stairs," with each topic having informational slides included. (D9-D21)
11. Undated slides for an "Audiology Processing Disorder" training included descriptions and symptoms of the disorder, classroom "do's and don'ts," treatments, and an opportunity for questions with the Audiologist's contact information. (D28-D34)
12. In an August 9, 2025 email to the Principal, the PT indicated they were getting a "training drive ready for Monday" and inquired which paraeducators would be serving in the special education classroom for the school year so they could "add them to the drive." (D43)

13. An August 11, 2025 document titled "[The Student's Initials] Training" indicated a 1:00 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. training attended by the Principal, the Current Special Education Teacher, the TVI/COMS, the COTA, the PT, the OT, Bus Driver 1, the Audiologist, the Nurse, the Parent, and the Student. Topics discussed included: updates from the Parent regarding "new medical information from this summer," information about transportation and seizure medication administration from the Nurse, information about "walking, daily checklist, visual diagnosis information, white cane use, equipment, and stairs" from the PT and the TVI/COMS, information from the OT, information about speech, and classroom information stating "iPad will go home with [the Student] (in red backpack) so that it is on the bus in the morning and afternoon." (D35-D36)
14. In a September 3, 2025 email to the Current Special Education Teacher, the Principal, the Nurse, the Audiologist, and the TVI/COMS, the PT confirmed Paraeducators 1, 2, and 3 were trained "this afternoon on basic safety information (including mobility)," on the new medical information from the Parent, and on the Student's "daily functional checklist." (D54)
15. A screenshot depicted a "Bus Staff Training [Google] Drive" shared with 103 people, and owned by the LEA. The drive included folder links to the August 1, 2025 training, multiple other years' trainings, and folders titled "gait belt," "wheelchair on bus handouts," "training videos," and "stairs handouts." (D58)
16. A screenshot depicted a "[The Student] Training" Google drive shared with 20 people, and owned by the LEA. The drive included folder links to the 2024-25 and 2025-26 school years training, and folders titled "bubble letters/words," "Videos," "Mobility," "Equipment," and "Exercises." It also included a slide show titled "[20]25-[20]26 Vision/O&M Training." The most recent "date modified" for the folders was August 11, 2025. (D59)
17. In a November 19, 2025 email to the Assistant Director, the Parent shared there was "a mechanic named [Bus Driver 2] filling in as driver and bus aide" that morning. The Parent noted Bus Driver 2 had sunglasses on, did not introduce themself, and "reached for [the Student's] right hand to assist. … Anyone who works with [the Student] knows [their] right hand doesn't work." (D97-D98)
18. Bus attendance logs for the 2025-26 school year showed the Student on the bus both a.m. and p.m for November 19, 2025. (D104)
19. A handwritten calendar titled "Fall [20]25 Bus Staff" included a key that indicated "Driver in blue [ink,] Aide in red [ink]." The November 19, 2025 entry depicted Bus Driver 1 in blue ink and Bus Driver 2 in red ink for both the a.m. and p.m. entries. (D109)
20. In a December 1, 2025 email to the Principal and the Director, the Current Special Education Teacher stated, "When [the Parent] handed [the Student] off to me [the Parent] had a gentle ahold [sic] of [the Student's] right hand. [The Parent] said [they] were just worried about the strength in [the Student's] leg without the [brace]." This hand-holding was agreed to by the Parent and the Student due to them not having their brace. (D612)
21. In a December 4, 2025 email to the Director, the OT stated "I do not have any specific information indicating that [the Student's] arm is fragile." When asked by the Director if the Parent had ever shared "concerns about the fragility of this side [right side] of the body," they declared, "none at all." (D688)

22. In a December 4, 2025 email to the Director, the Current Special Education Teacher stated, "I go with third grade to morning meeting, specials, lunch, and recess. So, I am with [the Student] anytime [they are] out of the room." (D26)
23. The December 4, 2025 District Response stated, "The IEP does not explicitly state that [the] Student requires a bus aide. While a bus aide is present on the route, that individual is assigned to assist all students and is not required by [the] Student's IEP." (D5)
24. The December 4, 2025 District Response clarified "[The Current Special Education Teacher] who accompanies [the] Student in all environments was trained in the presence of the [P]arent on August 11, 2025. Classroom paraprofessionals were returning staff familiar with [the] Student, and newly assigned staff received follow-up training on September 3, [2025]." It was noted for the [D]istrict procedure, "once a staff member is trained, that training remains in effect unless the nurse or therapist identifies a change that requires new or updated training." (D5-D7)

Parent Interview

25. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent described the Student's "weak fragility" on their right side, "which is from cerebral palsy." They added the Student has "zero use of [their right] hand. [They] can't open it … You just have to be extremely careful with the bones. They are all so weak." The Parent clarified the incident with Bus Driver 2. "[Bus Driver 2] did not grab [the Student's] arm, [they] grabbed for [the Student's] arm. [They] went to grab for it in order to help [the Student] up the steps." The Parent recounted Bus Driver 1 and Bus Driver 2 were both present that day, and Bus Driver 2 was above the Student going up the steps, while the Parent was behind the Student. (P1-P2, 01:28, 02:19, 03:21, 03:35)
26. When asked about medical documentation specifically documenting fragility on the Student's right side, the Parent stated, "I'm sure there's something. I don't have anything right offhand that I can show you." They reported there was an email chain with the LEA "about the need to support [the Student] open-handed … [The LEA] even acknowledged that you cannot hold onto [the Student] on [their] right side, close-handed" and recalled the PT and the TVI/COMS acknowledged the fragility of the right arm and "not closing your fist around it and grabbing it." (P2, 04:38)
27. The Parent indicated the Student "was approved for a bus attendant" during ESY when the Assistant Superintendent was included. The Parent contended an attendant on bus transportation was included in the IEP, but also stated, "It's just not specifically concrete in the IEP. The adult supervision throughout the day for all daily activities and in all settings, but again, not concretely for transportation." (P3, 08:13)
28. The Parent recalled in a December 3, 2025 meeting, the Director offered them payment to transport the Student to and from school. The Parent expressed in the meeting they wanted the Student to learn how to maneuver public transportation because it would be "something that [the Student's] going to need because [they'll] never be able to drive." They also shared their concerns with the safety of the "parking lot and the areas that I [would] have to drop [the Student] off." The LEA listened to those concerns and also told the Parent they would make contact if the bus aide or driver were absent. The LEA also assured the Parent all the bus drivers were trained, but the Parent's concern was "training is only good if you're actually exercising that training properly." (P4-P5, 14:05, 16:14)

29. The Parent confirmed they put the Student on the bus every day, and the Student's high school-aged sibling gets the Student off the bus every day. (P5, 18:59)
30. The Parent reported after they filed their complaint, they realized the iPad incident they cited as being in May of 2025 was actually in November of 2025, which was beyond the one-year statute of limitations for IDEA. (P3, 10:29)

Director Interview

31. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director stated the school-supplied iPad was specifically for recording the Student's seizures. They indicated classroom staff were responsible for charging it every day. The Director reported the iPad was always available, "typically either in [the Student's] red bag or it's set in a specific area of the classroom." They asserted in the event the assigned iPad was not available, an iPad from the classroom set could be used. They shared the Student had hidden the iPad in the past because "sometimes [the Student] just doesn't like all the attention." (P2, 02:41, 03:42, 03:52)
32. The Director stated they did not have knowledge of or an explanation for the date discrepancy on the report of the missing iPad. (P1, 02:24)
33. The Director stated all bus staff were trained in all seizure protocols on August 1, 2025, including the drivers for the Student's bus. The Director reported the Student and the Parent met with bus staff on August 11, 2025 to discuss the Student's specific medication. They indicated the Student's IEP did not include one-on-one paraeducator support on the bus. (P2, 04:06; P3, 05:18)
34. The Director stated issues with bus personnel were handled by the transportation department. However, when they were made aware of an issue with a bus paraeducator's attendance, they stated they quickly initiated a staffing change. (P4, 06:53; P5, 08:03)
35. The Director shared "there's just a lot of inconsistencies" with the way each of the Student's family members handled the Student's disability. They reported the Parent "does everything in a very specific way and wants everyone trained in a very specific way[,]" while the rest of the family tends to be more lax. This has led to the Student not bringing their supports to extracurricular activities if they attend without the Parent. (P5, 10:04)

Assistant Director Interview

36. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Director confirmed the Student did not have one-on-one support on the bus in their IEP. (P1, 01:07)

37. Regarding a "bus mechanic" assisting the Student, the Assistant Director stated the paraeducator assigned to the bus was not present that day; however, the driver of the bus [Bus Driver 1] was trained in the Student's protocols. They stated they discussed the situation with the Principal and ultimately determined there was a qualified staff member on the bus. (P2, 02:59, 03:29)

Principal Interview

38. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Principal stated the only time the iPad was unavailable to staff was when it was hidden by the Student, "which is not uncommon." They shared they did not know why the SLP did not have the iPad during the incident referenced in the complaint. (P1, 02:10)
39. Regarding the date discrepancies, the Principal indicated the November 2024 date was an instance of the Student hiding the iPad. Classroom staff were unable to locate the iPad, but did not want the Student to miss their services. The Principal was unaware of any incidents on or around May 19, 2025, and believed the situation with the SLP recording the Student on their cell phone happened prior to March 13, 2025. They stated they would check their records and forward any documentation of that incident. (P1, 02:10; P3, 08:03, 10:14; P4, 10:53)
40. The Principal reported the Parent never contacted them about the incident involving the SLP recording the Student on their phone. They stated the Parent reached out directly to a school board member, who contacted an assistant superintendent, who subsequently informed the Principal. The Principal then followed up with the SLP. (P2, 06:13)
41. The Principal indicated there was no official "Plan B" for recording the Student's behavior, as an iPad should always be available to staff. The Principal acknowledged most staff members have a cell phone and it would be considered reasonable for them to use it to quickly document a behavior if an iPad was not immediately available. The Principal stated they believed the SLP "was attempting to [document] in good faith." (P1, 02:10; P2, 04:34)
42. The Principal confirmed the bus staff received "district-level seizure training" at the beginning of the school year. While they did not know the specifics of the training, the Principal shared they knew the Parent was concerned "if an absent seizure was addressed." (P4, 13:46)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #260, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, the LEA implemented the Student's IEP when a bus aid or adult support was not provided throughout the day, and the assigned adults did not have access to the school-issued iPad. K.A.R. 90-40-16, K.A.R. 91-40-1 (ccc)(1)(B)(W)(X)(kkk)(1)(A)(2)(ttt); 34 CFR § 300.323 (a)(d).

According to K.A.R. 90-40-16, each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. Each agency shall ensure that an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child.

Those services for which written consent has been granted as specified by law must be implemented not later than 10 school days after parental consent is granted unless a reasonable justification for a delay can be shown. An IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1 (ccc)(1)(B)(W)(X)(kkk)(1)(A)(2)(ttt), "related services" means developmental, corrective, and supportive services that are required to assist an exceptional child to benefit from special education, including assistive technology devices and services, transportation, and other developmental, corrective, or supportive services. "Special education" means specially designed instruction, at no cost to the parents, to meet the unique needs of an exceptional child, including instruction conducted in the classroom, in the home, in hospitals and institutions, and in other settings, and paraeducator services, speech-language pathology services, and any other related service, if the service consists of specially designed instruction to meet the unique needs of a child with a disability. "Supplementary aids and services" means aids, services, and other supports that are provided in regular education classes, other education-related settings, and extracurricular and nonacademic settings to enable children with disabilities to be educated with nondisabled children to the maximum extent appropriate.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP, specifically by not providing bus aid or adult support "throughout the day." Additionally, the assigned adults did not have consistent access to the Student's school-issued iPad.

The LEA contended that based on the IEP, staff schedules, and documented practices, they implemented the Student's IEP regarding adult support, and the Student received continuous adult support in all school environments.

The Student's IEP contained specific mandates for adult supervision and assistance, and the Current Special Education Teacher confirmed they accompany the Student in all environments, including morning meetings, specials, lunch, and recess, ensuring coverage anytime the Student is out of the special education room. The LEA maintained that the IEP does not explicitly state the Student requires a "bus aide." While the Parent contended a bus aide was included, they acknowledged it was "not specifically concrete in the IEP" for transportation, though they believed it fell under the umbrella of "adult supervision throughout the day."

On November 19, 2025, Bus Driver 2 filled in as the bus aide because the regularly assigned aide was absent. The Assistant Director noted that while the aide was a substitute, the primary bus driver (Bus Driver 1) was fully trained in the Student's specific protocols, which is evidenced by the August 11, 2025 Student-specific training and the District-wide transportation training. Although a substitute was used on the bus, the LEA provided a trained driver and a secondary staff member to assist. The IEP's requirement for "adult support ... in all settings" was met by the presence of trained District personnel, even if those personnel were not the Student's preferred or typical staff.

The LEA implemented the IEP as written. The IEP mandated "adult support" throughout the day, which the District provided through trained classroom staff and transportation personnel. Because the IEP did not "concretely" or "explicitly" mandate a one-on-one aide for transportation, the use of a trained bus driver and a substitute aide does not constitute a failure to implement the IEP.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP when a bus aid or adult support was not provided throughout the day. Additionally, through investigation, it was discovered the allegation specific to the iPad was outside the statute of limitations for IDEA investigation.

Issue Two

Whether USD #260, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, fulfilled its obligation to train staff to deliver the special education and related services described in the Student's IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(4)(5), K.A.R. 91-38-3(f); 34 CFR § 300.323(d).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(4)(5), the child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

According to K.A.R. 91-38-3(f), each school district shall, before transportation, notify the transportation supervisor of any student with special health care concerns, special needs for transportation, or an individualized education program requiring transportation. The supervisor shall ensure that all drivers, substitute drivers, and attendants are informed of these needs and receive any training that is necessary to safely transport the student or to accommodate the student's special needs.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to train all staff on the Student's IEP, specifically with regard to bussing staff.

The LEA contended they provided systematic, multidisciplinary training to transportation, classroom, and related-service staff before and during the 2025–26 school year. They also asserted no medical or IEP-based restriction regarding the fragility of the Student's arm was provided to the LEA, and their staff acted within their training and responsibilities when assisting the Student.

The LEA provided evidence of extensive training for staff and transportation personnel to implement the IEP's safety requirements, including bus drivers and aides trained on August 1, 2025. On August 11, 2025, a dedicated session was held with multiple staff members who work regularly with the Student, which covered safety and medical items specific to the Student. Classroom paraprofessionals, who were already familiar with the Student, received follow-up training on September 3, 2025, regarding the Student's safety information and daily functional checklist.

The Parent reported concerns regarding the substitute aide (Bus Driver 2) reaching for the Student's right arm, an area of physical fragility due to hemiplegic cerebral palsy. While the Parent describes the right side as "extremely fragile," the OT stated they had no specific information or prior concerns shared by the Parent indicating the arm was medically fragile beyond the diagnosed hemiparesis. The Current Special Education Teacher noted the Parent and the Student had previously agreed to "gently" holding the Student's right hand as a form of support when the Student was not wearing their AFO.

The LEA documented a comprehensive training schedule at the start of the 2025-26 school year that included all specialists and required protocols identified in the IEP. While the Parent raised concerns regarding a substitute aide's lack of familiarity with the Student's physical fragility on November 19, the LEA demonstrated that the primary driver present was trained.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to fulfill its obligation to train staff to deliver the special education and related services described in the Student's IEP.

Background Information

The student is 12 years old and currently enrolled in the 7th grade at Kingman Middle School in USD #331 for the 2025-26 school year. The student was initially evaluated and found eligible for special education and related service under the exceptionality category of Specific Learning Disability at the end of third grade and has had an IEP since that time. During his most recent reevaluation on March 7, 2025, the parent reported the student was diagnosed with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) but did not provide any documentation and the multidisciplinary team determined the student continued to be eligible for special education due to Specific Learning Disability.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaint, three issues were identified and investigated.

Issue One

USD #331, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to implement the student's IEP, specifically the accommodation for extra time to complete schoolwork, which negatively impacted grades and resulted in the student not being able to participate in extracurricular activities during the 2025-26 school year.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.320(a)(4)(ii) require that each public agency include a statement in each student's IEP describing the special education and related services and supplementary aids and services, based on peer-reviewed research to the extent practicable, to be provided to the child, or on behalf of the child, and a statement of the program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided to enable the child to be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum and to participate in extracurricular and other nonacademic activities.

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.323(c)(2) require school districts to ensure that as soon as possible following the development of the IEP, special education and related services are made available to the child in accordance with the child's IEP.

1. The student's current IEP was developed on March 7, 2025 and amended on October 17, 2025. This IEP includes an accommodation for "extended time on daily assignments, projects or tests" and describes this accommodation as "Student will receive a time extension of 1 ½ time of the required assignment / test / project time to complete the assignment / test / project". The frequency of this accommodation is for all assignments, projects, and tests and the location is in both general and special education classrooms.
2. The written descriptions of extended time accommodation implementation from the student's 7th grade Math Teacher, English Teacher, Science Teacher, History Teacher, Fine Arts Appreciation Teacher, and Special Education Teacher all reflect a practice of allowing the student to turn in completed work for full credit at any time prior to the end of the grading period. The Special Education Teacher stated, ". . . the middle school teachers don't even have hard deadlines for [the student]. As long as he turns in his assignments before the end of the quarter, he is given full credit. His teachers will accept his work any time before the end of the grading quarter".
3. The Athletic Director and the Principal explained, and the Academic Eligibility Policy states that a student must be passing all classes to be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities. Any student earning a cumulative grade of "F" in a class will be placed on the Delinquent List and will have one week to improve the grade to passing and will still be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities during that one week. However, if the student continues to have a cumulative grade of "F" in a class the next week, the student will be placed on the Ineligible List and will not be able to participate in extra-curricular activities. These school staff also noted that per school board policy, students who were suspended in-school or out-of school were not able to participate in extra-curricular activities during the duration of the suspension.

4. The Principal and Athletic Director indicated students who are placed on the D&I List receive intensive support to bring up their grades through small group targeted instruction during What I Need (WIN) time during the week they are on the list. These school staff reported that the student received this extra assistance in addition to other additional support from the 7th grade Special Education Teacher during the two weeks the student was on the 2nd Quarter D&I List.
5. The Assistant Basketball Coach reported, and the D&I List shows that the student was placed first place on the Delinquent List on November 5, 2025 due to a failing grade in the 7th grade History class but was still eligible to participate in extra curricular activities during the week of November 10 – 14, 2025. The student was place on the Ineligible List on November 12, 2025 due to the 7th grade History grade remaining an "F" and was ineligible to participate in extracurricular activities during the week of November 17 – 21, 2025.
6. In an email dated November 6, 2025, the 7th grade History Teacher explained to the parent that the student's failing grade was the result of missing assignments and poor test grades. She noted that the student could turn in the completed assignments for full credit and could re-take the test for a higher grade; however, the student was refusing to work in class, often off-task, and reluctant to accept support from his paraprofessional in the classroom.
7. In an email dated November 6, 2025, the 7th grade Special Education Teacher stated, . . . I would like you to know that I have already been pulling him into one of my WIN groups everyday this week to help him catch up on his assignments. This was even before he got a D- in Science and an F in Kansas History. But [the student] refuses to work. On red days this week, I had him for WIN (30 mins), Study Skills (75 mins), and Power Hour (20 minutes) back-to-back for a total of 125 mins. I sit with him 1:1 to work with him giving him consistent motivations, but I can hardly get anything from him. It's not like we're asking him to do something that he cannot do. If anything is hard, we simplify it for him and modify the assignment to help him out. But he still chooses not to work. Like in ELA class today, the class was working on Characters assignment as a whole group. I gave him my sample and asked him to copy only the underlined words. He was just not even willing to make the effort to get started. The class had moved on the next activity which was creating a "Wanted Poster". He wanted to participate in that activity. I informed him that he needs his character assignment to help with the "Wanted Poster". He quickly completed the entire assignment in two minutes so he can participate in making his "Wanted Poster".

Conclusion

In this case, the student's IEP requires he receive an accommodation of extra time, specifically 1 ½ the time to complete assignments, tests, and projects as compared to peers. However, based on Interviews and documentation, the student is allowed to turn in completed work for full credit at any time prior to the end of the grading period and is allowed to re-take tests to demonstrate mastery of the material. Reports from the 7th grade History Teacher and the 7th grade Special Education Teacher indicate the student's failing grade in 7th grade History was not a result the LEA's failure to implement the student's IEP and that supports were provided to enable to student in improve his grade to passing and be removed from the D&I List.

Based on the foregoing, the LEA is determined to be IN compliance with federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.323(c)(2) which require that each public agency implement the student's IEP as written.

Issue Two

USD #331, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to follow the appropriate procedures to respond to the parent's request to add participation in sports to the student's IEP during the 2025-26 school year.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.324(b)(1)(ii) require each public agency to review and revise a student's IEP, as appropriate, to address any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum; the results of any reevaluation; information about the child provided to, or by, the parents; the child's anticipated needs; or other matters.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

1. Issue One, Finding #1 is incorporated herein by reference. The October 17, 2025 IEP amendment added an accommodation for texts to be read aloud, either through a human reader or technology.
2. The parent requested an IEP team meeting to discuss changing the student's placement to full-time in the special education setting on November 7, 2025.
3. The 7th grade Special Education Teacher responded to the parent's request in an email dated November 10, 2025 explaining her opinion of why the student would not benefit from removal from the general education setting to increase focus and offering suggestions for interventions including the introduction of a self-monitoring behavior chart and reward system for on-task behavior in all classes. The parent replied in an email that same day stating, "That sounds like a good plan".
4. The parent stated in her interview that she is concerned about the amount of playing time the student gets during the basketball games. Even though he regularly attends basketball practices, the student has not learned the plays or the responsibilities of each position. She believes the student is not playing more because he doesn't know the plays and what is needed is the student needs to have help learning the plays during his special education classes.

5. On November 13, 2025, the parent sent an email to the Head Basketball Coach, the Principal, the Athletic Director, and the 7th grade Special Education Teacher requesting assistance for the student to learn the basketball plays in the special education classroom.
6. During the interview, the parent acknowledged that she did not request an IEP team meeting to discuss her request for assistance from the 7th grade Special Education Teacher to help the student learn the basketball plays. Instead, she made a direct request for assistance through an email.

Conclusion

In this case, there is no evidence to support a finding that the LEA failed to respond to a parent request to add participation in sports to the student's IEP during the 2025-26 school year.

Based on the foregoing, the LEA is determined to be IN compliance with federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.324(b)(1)(ii) which require that each public agency review and revise the student's IEP, as appropriate to consider any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum; the results of any reevaluation; information about the child provided to, or by, the parents; the child's anticipated needs; or other matters.

Issue Three

USD #331, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities in the manner necessary to afford the student with an equal opportunity for participation in those services and activities.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.107 require that each public agency must take steps, including the provision of supplementary aids and services determined appropriate and necessary by the child's IEP Team, to provide nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities in the manner necessary to afford children with disabilities an equal opportunity for participation in those services and activities. Nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities may include counseling services, athletics, transportation, health services, recreational activities, special interest groups or clubs sponsored by the public agency, referrals to agencies that provide assistance to individuals with disabilities, and employment of students, including both employment by the public agency and assistance in making outside employment available.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

1. Issue One, Findings #3, #4, #5, and #6 are incorporated herein by reference.

2. The parent believes that it is unfair to use grades for determining eligibility for participation in the basketball games because of the student's learning disability and his attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. She thinks another standard should be used for students with IEPs.
3. The Assistant Basketball Coach indicated the student plays on the B-Team for the school and can attend all practices. Practices are held Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays after school until 5:30 p.m. The B-Team practices consist of more repetition during drills to help students learn the plays. Plays are hands-on during practice with step-by-step instructions. Playing time is based on student effort during practices and the Assistant Basketball Coach noted that the student appears to prefer watching on the sidelines during practice but that he often stays after to practice shooting hoops.
4. According to interviews with the Assistant Basketball Coach, the Athletic Director, and the Principal, the basketball season started on November 3, 2025. Games are played on Mondays and Wednesdays in the evenings.
5. According to an email dated October 31, 2025, the Head Basketball Coach had informed all the basketball players and their parents multiple times that a mandatory practice was scheduled for October 31, 2025 even though there was no school that day and it was Halloween and the only excuse for missing the practice was being out-of-town. The parent emailed the Head Basketball Coach on October 30, 2025 indicating the student would not be at practice as he had a doctor's appointment that day. One other student also missed the practice without an appropriate excuse both boys would not be allowed to play in the first game on November 3, 2025.
6. The Assistant Basketball Coach provided the following information regarding the student's participation in the basketball games during the 2025-26 season:
    - November 3, 2025: Did not play due to missing practice
    - November 6, 2025: Did not play due to serving in-school suspension
    - November 10, 2025: Played in two quarters
    - November 13, 2025: Played in three quarters
    - November 17, 2025: Did not play due to academic ineligibility
    - November 20, 2025: Did not play due to academic ineligibility
    - November 24-28, 2025 – No games due to Thanksgiving Break
    - December 1, 2025: Played in two quarters

Conclusion

In this case, there is a preponderance of evidence to support a finding that the student was provided with an equal opportunity for participation in the extracurricular basketball program offered by USD #331.

Based on the foregoing, the LEA is determined to be IN compliance with federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.107 which require that each public agency must take steps to provide nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities in the manner necessary to afford children with disabilities an equal opportunity for participation in those services and activities.

Background

The Student attends South Gray Junior High School and is in the eighth grade. The Student has focal cortical dysplasia, a neurodevelopmental disorder. In early 2025, the Student's parents sough special education services to address parental concerns, including the Student's handwriting. On March 27, 2025, the individualized education plan (IEP) team met to discuss the parent's concerns, the Student's strengths and weaknesses, and the Student's current performance. On April 9, 2025, the Student's IEP was initiated.

Factual Findings

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and LEA staff.

1. The LEA consistently tries to recruit an in-person, full-time certified special education teachers by:
    a. Advertising for a certified special education teacher since Spring 2025 and had no applicants as of September 12, 2025.
    b. Advertising through Educate Kansas, Indeed, and the LEA's social media accounts.
    c. Attending job fairs at Kansas Colleges and Universities and in other states.
2. To ensure students receiving special education services are provided with some in-person instruction, the LEA hired the certified special education teacher.
3. The certified special education teacher lives three hours from the Student's school.

4. To ensure that the certified special education teacher can provide some in-person special education instruction, the LEA pays for the certified special education teacher's lodging and mileage when the certified special education teacher travels to the student's school.
5. The certified special education teacher is a full-time, online and in-person, special education teacher with twenty-four years of experience.
6. The LEA hired the paraeducator [full-time, in-person employee] as an emergency substitute teacher.
7. The paraeducator has an emergency substitute license.
8. The paraeducator is in the school building full-time to facilitate services when the certified special education teacher, is absent or online.
9. The Student has an IEP that requires direct services in written expression four times per week for twenty-seven minutes.
10. The Student's IEP written expression goal states that, by the end of the IEP year, the Student "will obtain a correct writing sequence of 56 from a three-minute writing CBM [curriculum-based measurement]."
11. The Student's baseline for a correct writing sequence is 41.
12. On May 6, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 35.
13. On August 29, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 41.
14. On September 30, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 50.
15. On October 22, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 48.
16. On November 5, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 50.
17. On December 2, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 45.
18. The certified special education teacher is the Student's teacher of record.
19. The certified special education teacher provides online, synchronous instruction for the Student one to two times per week.
20. When the certified special education teacher is providing written expression instruction online, the paraeducator is with the Student to ensure the Student attends the Zoom meeting and stays on task.
21. Online delivery over Zoom was not discussed or agreed upon as an IEP team.
22. When the certified special education teacher is absent, the paraeducator provides the Student with written expression instruction.
23. The certified special education teacher took leave and was absent once, on September 24, 2025, when the Student was scheduled to receive direct services in written expression.
24. Prior to when the certified special education teacher is absent and on leave, she and the paraeducator meet to discuss the Student's direct services in written expression.

25. The purpose of the certified special education teacher and the paraeducator's meetings are to ensure the paraeducator understands the Student's assignment and expectations.
26. The paraeducator provides written expression instruction when the certified special education teacher is absent and on leave.
27. When the certified special education teacher is absent and on leave, the paraeducator emails the certified special education teacher and the Principal with a summary of the Student's assignments and progress.
28. When the certified special education teacher is absent and on leave, the paraeducator is supervised by the Principal.

Issues Analysis and Conclusions

Issue One

Did USD 476 fail to employ a qualified special education teacher to provide special education instruction to the Student?

The federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) require state education agencies to establish qualifications for special education personnel. These qualifications must allow paraprofessionals and assistants who are appropriately trained and supervised, in accordance with State law, regulation, or written policy, to be used to assist in the provision of special education and related services to children with disabilities. 34 C.F.R. 300.156(b)(2)(iii). Kansas policy regarding special education personnel is found in the Kansas Reimbursement Guide. The guide states that paraeducators may assist in the delivery of special education and related services if a supervision requirement is met. Kansas Reimbursement Guide, p. 29. The supervision requirement states that instructional paraeducators must be directly supervised a minimum of 10% of the time they are working with students. Id. Further, when the assigned special teacher is not present, a paraeducator must have a designated principal or teacher available in the building for assistance and supervision as needed. Id.

Here, the LEA employs a full-time certified special education teacher. The LEA utilizes the full-time, in-person employee as a paraeducator, not an emergency substitute teacher. The paraeducator supports the certified special education teacher by ensuring the Student attends the Zoom meeting and stays on task during online written expression direct instruction.

The paraeducator does not assist in the delivery of special education and related services without supervision. The paraeducator is supervised by the certified special education teacher when the certified special education teacher is in the school building or on Zoom. The Principal also supervises the paraeducator when the certified special education teacher is not in the school building but on Zoom. Thus, the requirement that an instructional paraeducator be directly supervised a minimum of 10% of the time they are working with students is met. The requirement is met when either the certified special education teacher or the Principal supervises the paraeducator. Therefore, the paraeducator may assist in providing the Student with special education and related services, including written expression direct instruction. Thus, the physical or online presence of a certified special education teacher when a qualified and adequately supervised paraeducator was physically present is not a failure to provide qualified staff.

In addition, the Complainant noted that the paraeducator delivers the Student's written expression direct instruction when the certified special education teacher is absent and on leave. Here, the certified special education teacher was absent and on leave once on September 24, 2025. When the certified special education teacher is unable to deliver the Student's written expression direct instruction, the certified special education teacher and the paraeducator meet to discuss the Student's direct services in written expression to ensure the paraeducator understands the assignment and expectations.

On September 24, 2025, the paraeducator acted as an emergency substitute teacher. The paraeducator is licensed as an emergency substitute teacher. An emergency substitute teacher cannot teach for more than 25 days in the same assignment or more than 75 days in a semester. K.A.R. 91-31-34(b)(5)(A). The paraeducator was an emergency substitute teacher for one day. Therefore, the paraeducator had the authority to deliver services to the Student because the paraeducator is a licensed emergency substitute teacher and the single assignment lasted no more than one day. Thus, the absence of a certified special education teacher when a qualified emergency substitute teacher is present is not a failure to provide qualified staff.

Issue Two

Did USD 476 fail to provide the Student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE), specifically by providing online, synchronous special education instruction?

FAPE is defined, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an IEP. 34 C.F.R. 300.17(d). To provide FAPE, a LEA must offer students with a disability a "basic floor of opportunity," according to Board of Education of the Hendrick Hudson Central School District v. Rowley, 553 IDELR 656 (U.S. 1982), and an IEP reasonably calculated to enable a child to "make progress appropriate in light of the child's circumstances" per Endrew F v. Douglas County School District RE-1, 69 IDELR 174 (U.S. 2017). The Endrew F. standard addresses the amount of progress an IEP must be designed to enable a child to receive FAPE. It does not guarantee a certain level of progress.

Nothing in the IDEA requires an IEP to include specific instructional methodologies. Statement of Special Education and Related Services, 71 Fed. Reg. 46665 (August 14, 2006). While the IDEA mandates the required components to be included in each student's IEP to ensure that the student's identified educational needs can be addressed, the IDEA does not mandate that the particular teacher, materials to be used, or instructional methods be included in a student's IEP. Letter to Hall, 21 IDELR 58 (OSEP 1994). In Rowley, the Supreme Court held that the primary responsibility for choosing instructional methodology lies with the local school district. 553 IDELR 656 (U.S. 1982).

In this case, the LEA constantly tries to recruit certified special education teachers. The LEA advertises through Educate Kansas, Indeed, and the LEA's social media accounts. Further, LEA administrators attend job fairs at Kansas Colleges and Universities and in other states. The LEA undergoes these efforts to ensure students within the LEA's boundaries are provided with FAPE and special education services as required by law. The LEA's search for a full-time, in-person, certified special education teacher was unsuccessful.

The LEA chose to provide the Student's special education instruction using an online and in-person model. The LEA hired a certified special education teacher with twenty-four years of experience. The certified special education teacher lives three hours from South Gray Junior High School. To ensure that the certified special education teacher can provide some in-person special education instruction, the LEA pays for the certified special education teacher's lodging and mileage. Some days the Student receives online, synchronous instruction and on other days the Student receives in-person instruction. The LEA's chosen method for delivering special education services to the Student complies with federal regulations, Office of Special Education Program guidance, and Rowley.

The Complainant seems to argue that the Student would have made more progress had special education services been provided in-person, not online and synchronically. This is not the standard.

The appropriate standard is that the Student make appropriate progress considering the Student's circumstances. The Student's IEP written expression goal states that, by the end of the IEP year, the Student "will obtain a correct writing sequence of 56 from a three-minute writing CBM." The Student's baseline correct writing sequence is 41.

On May 6, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 35. Testing stopped when summer began and resumed at the start of the 2025-2026 school year. On August 29, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 41. On September 30, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 50. On October 22, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 48. On November 5, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 50. On December 2, 2025, the Student obtained a correct writing sequence of 45.

This data shows that the Student has made progress toward the goal of obtaining a writing sequence of 56. It is true that the Student's progress has wavered. However, this is not abnormal. Students may regress because of summer break, upcoming events, holidays, or how they are feeling the day of the assignment or test. The Student's progress is appropriate considering the Student's correct writing sequence history and the Student. Therefore, the Student was not denied FAPE because the Student is making appropriate progress considering the Student's circumstances. Thus, the LEA's chosen method of delivering special education instruction did not deny the Student FAPE.

Conclusions

ISSUE ONE: It is not substantiated that the LEA failed to employ a qualified special education teacher to provide special education instruction to the Student.

ISSUE TWO: It is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Student with FAPE when it chose to provide online, synchronous special education instruction.

If, after five days, no required corrective action has been initiated, the agency shall be notified of the action that will be taken to assure compliance as determined by the department. This action may include any of the following:

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 476,
Copeland Public Schools: 26FC476-001

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on December 9, 2025, by -------- (Advocate) on behalf of the student, --------. In the remainder of this decision, -------- will be referred to as "the complainant," and -------- will be referred to as "the student." On January 13, 2026, the student's parent sent an email to Special Education and Title Services saying, "I consent to include -------- on all future correspondence regarding this complaint."

An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on January 2, 2026. That Complaint Report concluded that there was no violation of special education statutes and regulations

Thereafter, the complainant filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the complainant, the Complaint Report, the complainant's notice of appeal, and the district's response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The Appeal Committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The report identified two issues. The complainant has appealed the conclusion in both issues and the Appeal Committee has reviewed both issues and issued this final decision.

Issue One

Did USD 476 fail to employ a qualified special education teacher to provide special education instruction to the Student?

In this issue, the complaint investigator concluded that the emergency substitute teacher met the requirements of Kansas licensing regulations at K.A.R. 91-31-34(b)(5)(A), and so the district's use of the emergency substitute teacher was not a violation of law.

Error I

In her appeal, the complainant referred to this conclusion as Error 1. The complainant's appeal states that,

> While Kansas permits paraprofessionals to assist in service delivery when supervised, IDEA requires that special education be provided by personnel who are appropriately and adequately prepared and trained. 34 C.F.R. Section 300.156. Federal guidance makes clear that states may not waive special education certification requirements on an emergency or temporary basis, and that staffing shortages do not excuse noncompliance. OSEP Memorandum 22-01 (October 4, 2022). Page 3 of 5

This description appears to allege that Kansas licensing regulations are inconsistent with federal regulations. the Appeal Committee disagrees with this assessment.

The investigator correctly cited the requirement referenced by the complainant in 34 C.F.R. 300.156, saying:

> The federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) require state education agencies to establish qualifications for special education personnel (emphasis added). These qualifications must allow paraprofessionals and assistants who are appropriately trained and supervised, in accordance with State law, regulation, or written policy, to be used to assist in the provision of special education and related services to children with disabilities. 34 C.F.R. 300.156(b)(2)(iii). Kansas policy regarding the qualifications for special education personnel is found in the Kansas Reimbursement Guide. The guide states that paraeducators may assist in the delivery of special education and related services if a supervision requirement is met. (Kansas Reimbursement Guide, p. 29). The supervision requirement states that instructional paraeducators must be directly supervised a minimum of 10% of the time they are working with students. Id. Further, > when the assigned special teacher is not present, a paraeducator must have a designated principal or teacher available in the building for assistance and supervision as needed. Id. (Report, p.5-6, emphasis added).

This district did not "waive special education certification requirements on an emergency or temporary basis," nor did it use staffing shortages to "excuse noncompliance." It used the authority provided to it by the Kansas Special Education Reimbursement Guide. That guide is the Kansas state policy regarding the qualification requirements for Kansas special education providers, including teachers, paraprofessionals, and related service providers.

When the current federal regulations were published, the Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) responded to questions about the extent to which states could set their own certification standards for special education providers. It responded to these questions in the Federal Register as follows:

> States are responsible for establishing certification and licensing standards for special education teachers. Each State uses its own standards and procedures to determine whether teachers who teach within that State meet its certification and licensing requirements*. Teacher qualifications and standards are consistent from State to State to the extent that States work together to establish consistent criteria and reciprocity agreements.* It is not the role of the Federal government to regulate teacher certification and licensure (emphasis added). Federal Register, August 14, 2006 (p. 46554)

These comments added:

> Section Sec. 300.156(b) specifically requires the qualifications for paraprofessionals to be consistent with any State-approved or State-recognized certification, licensing, registration, or other comparable requirements that apply to the professional discipline in which those personnel are providing special education or related services.
> We believe these requirements are sufficient to ensure that children with disabilities receive services from paraprofessionals who are appropriately and adequately trained. Therefore, we decline to include additional standards for paraprofessionals. Federal Register, August 14, 2006 (p. 46554)

In other words, states have wide discretion in setting the licensing standards for their special education providers. Given that discretion, the Appeal Committee finds nothing in Kansas licensing standards that are inconsistent with federal law.

The investigator found that:

- The LEA employs a full-time certified special education teacher.

- The paraeducator is supervised by the certified special education teacher when the certified special education teacher is in the school building or on Zoom.
- The principal also supervises the paraeducator when the certified special education teacher is not in the school building but on Zoom
- The requirement that an instructional paraeducator be directly supervised a minimum of 10% of the time they are working with students is met. (Report, p. 6)

The complainant does not contest any of these findings in her appeal.

The investigator correctly concluded that, in accordance with the state licensing provisions, "the absence of a certified special education teacher when a qualified emergency substitute teacher is present, is not a failure to provide qualified staff."

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report on this issue and so the conclusion of the investigator is sustained.

The remaining alleged errors of the complaint investigator relate to Issue Two.

Issue Two

Did USD 476 fail to provide the Student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE), specifically by providing online, synchronous special education instruction?

The report describes this issue as follows:

> The LEA chose to provide the Student's special education instruction using an online and in-person model. The LEA hired a certified special education teacher with twenty-four years of experience. The certified special education teacher lives three hours from South Gray Junior High School. To ensure that the certified special education teacher can provide some in-person special education instruction, the LEA pays for the certified special education teacher's lodging and mileage. Some days the Student receives online, synchronous instruction and on other days the Student receives in-person instruction. The LEA's chosen method for delivering special education services to the Student complies with federal regulations, Office of Special Education Program guidance, and Rowley. (Report, p. 8)

Error II

Error II of the complainant's appeal argues that the conclusion of the investigator is an "Improper Characterization of Unilateral Changes as Methodology" because the district altered the mode of service delivery, including use of virtual instruction, changed service providers, and implemented inconsistent scheduling without convening the IEP Team or issuing prior written notice. These changes implicate location, provider, and frequency of services, which are core components of the IEP under 34 C.F.R. Sections 300.320 and 300.324 (emphasis added)."

To the extent the district changed service providers and implemented scheduling without convening the IEP Team or issuing a prior written notice, these kinds of changes are within the authority of school administration and are not subject to approval by an IEP Team nor do they require a prior written notice.

Regarding the "methodology" issue, one problem with the complainant's analysis is that the alleged action itself is described in the appeal as the district having "altered the mode of service delivery." That is precisely what the report is referring to when it refers to "methodology." A change of educational methodology (service delivery) is no less change of educational methodology just because it was done unilaterally.

The complainant cites R.E. v. New York Department of Education, in support of her contention that a "mode of service delivery" cannot be changed "post hoc" without convening the IEP Team or issuing prior written notice because: "These changes implicate location, provider, and frequency of services, which are core components of the IEP."

That is not what this (cited) court said.

In R.E. v. New York Department of Education, 694 F.3d 167, 59 IDELR 241, (2nd Cir. 2012), the parents contested a proposed IEP that did not include the parent's preferred teaching method of a 1:1 Applied Behavior Analysis. The court said that a state review officer erred when considering testimony about services that were not in the proposed IEP but that the school would have provided anyway if the parents had accepted the proposed IEP. That is, the court said, hearing officers and courts "'must evaluate the adequacy of an IEP prospectively as of the time of the parents' placement decision and may not consider "retrospective testimony" regarding services not listed in the IEP." In lay terms, this court was saying that when it assesses the duty a school district owes to a child, it looks at the written IEP and not at extraneous promises or expectations that are not included in an IEP (such as a specific teaching methodology).

That court added:

> if an IEP states that a specific teaching method will be used to instruct a student, the school district may introduce testimony at the subsequent hearing to describe that teaching method and explain why it was appropriate for the student. The district, however, may not introduce testimony that a different teaching method, not mentioned in the IEP, would have been used. Similarly, if a student is offered a staffing ratio of 6:1:1, a school district may introduce evidence explaining how this structure operates and why it is appropriate. It may not introduce evidence that modifies this staffing ratio (such as testimony from a teacher that he would have provided extensive 1:1 instruction to the student).

The parents prevailed in this case only because the evidence supporting their position was substantial. The court said, in summary: "Because the SRO's conclusion was against the weight of the evidence and thus flawed, deference to it is not warranted." The Appeal Committee finds that this case supports the school district's position because this student's IEP did not specify any teaching methodology and the complainant has not shown that in-person instruction was necessary for the student to progress. Thus, deference is warranted. When an IEP does not specify any specific teaching methodology, school districts have wide discretion in how services are presented to a student.

The following cases are illustrative:

In R.B. v. New York City Dept. of Ed., 64 IDELR 126 (2nd Cir. 2014), this same court that is cited by the complainant (2nd Cir.) said the omission of a particular methodology in an IEP is not a procedural violation unless the student needs that particular methodology exclusively in order to receive educational benefits. In R.E.B. v. State of Hawaii Dept. of Ed., 74 IDELR 125 (9th Cir. 2019), the court said a school is not required to specify a particular methodology in an IEP unless there is a "single right choice" that would always be effective (which may make it necessary to specify the methodology). Where multiple methods could be effective, the court will "accord deference" to the district's determination that teachers need flexibility in teaching methodologies. In Hendrick Hudson Dist. Bd. Of Ed. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 102 S.Ct. 3034, 553 IDELR 656 (1982), the United States Supreme Court held that the primary responsibility for choosing instructional methodology is left with the local school district. Also see Johnson by Johnson v. Olathe Dist. Schs. Unified Sch. Dist. No. 233, 316 F. Supp. 2d 960, D. Kan. 2003, 41 IDELR 64, where a Kansas district court said that "So long as the court determines that a child's IEP is reasonably developed to provide the child a FAPE, then the court must leave questions of methodology to the school district.").

In short, when, as in this case, there is not a sufficient showing that only one instructional method will be effective for this student, there is no requirement for the district to specify an instructional method in either an IEP or a PWN. Accordingly, the failure to do so is not a violation of law, and district personnel have discretion to choose from a variety of teaching methods.

Error III: Failure to Analyze Meaningful Parent Participation and Predetermination

The two issues presented in this complaint were whether the district failed to employ a qualified special education teacher to provide special education instruction to the Student and whether the district failed to provide the Student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE), by providing online, synchronous special education instruction. Meaningful parent participation and predetermination were not issues presented in the complaint and are thus not reviewable on appeal. In addition, these are two areas (teacher/para credentials and instructional methods) in which school district administrators, as opposed to IEP teams, have general authority, except under unusual circumstances, not occurring in this instance. Accordingly, as explained earlier, the actions taken by school officials regarding teacher/para credentials and instructional methods are matters of wide discretion and not a violation of law, except under unusual circumstances not present in this complaint. As such, these two issues are not related to parent participation or predetermination of IEP service or placement decisions.

Error IV: Improper Reliance on Student Progress to Negate Violations

The appeal states:

> The State Complaint Investigation Report relied heavily on reported progress data to conclude that no denial of FAPE occurred. This analysis is legally flawed.
>
> Progress does not excuse failure to implement an IEP as written, nor does it cure procedural violations. Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District, 580 U.S. 386 (2017), requires that progress be evaluated in light of the services actually provided with fidelity.
> Absent an analysis of whether services were delivered as required, progress data cannot negate noncompliance.

It appears that the complainant is arguing that the United States Supreme Court has said that a school must be perfect in providing services exactly as specified in an IEP. If so, a short review of that notion is in order.

Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District, 137 S.Ct. 988, 117 LRP 9767 (S.C. 2017) is the United States Supreme Court case upon which the complainant relies. It said that a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) is an "IEP reasonably calculated to enable a child to make progress appropriate in light of the child's circumstances." It did not say that progress must "be evaluated in light of the services actually provided with fidelity." No court that we know of has said that an IEP must be perfectly implemented. There have, however, been a number of courts following the Endrew F. decision specifically concluding that the FAPE standard does not require perfect implementation of an IEP.

In Abigail P. v. Old Forge School District, 124 LRP 21769 (3d. Cir. 2024), the 3rd Circuit joined the 4th, 5th, 8th, 9th, and 11th Circuits saying an IEP implementation failure must be material to be actionable, adding "Indeed, a requirement of perfect adherence 'would ignore the realities and the challenges that the IDEA was built to accommodate.' A materiality standard affords local agencies some flexibility while still holding those agencies accountable for material failures and for providing the disabled a meaningful education benefit." Also see, L.J. v. School Board of Broward County, Florida, 119 LRP 24771 (11th Cir. 2019), where the court cited the 5th, 2nd, and 4th, Circuit decisions, and said the statute is violated when there is a material deviation from the IEP, and added, "We see nothing in the text of the IDEA holding schools to a standard of perfect implementation..."

As for the argument that it was error for the investigator use what the complainant referred to as "Improper Reliance on Student Progress to Negate Violations," the Appeal Committee disagrees. Progress is a very important part of the analysis.

In Letter to Clarke, 48 IDELR 77 (OSEP 2007), OSEP stated that neither the statute nor regulations address when missed services need to be made up. Accordingly, OSEP states that whether a missed service needs to be made up is a matter of FAPE and must be addressed on a case-by-case basis with emphasis on the impact of the missed service on the child's ability to continue to progress and meet the annual goals in the IEP (emphasis added). Also see: OSEP's Letter to Wolfram and Mandlawitz, 80 IDELR 196 (OSEP 2022) in the context of guidance it issued due to the COVID-19 pandemic. OSEP summarizes its missed service guidance across multiple documents in stating:

> the decision to provide 'make up' or compensatory education when there is a disruption in the provision of educational services, and the nature and amount of the special education and related services that are to be provided as compensatory education, is an individualized determination made by the [IEP] Team in accordance with the requirements in 34 CFR §§300.320-300.324. That is, the IEP Team must determine whether the child was denied educational benefit because of the disruption in educational services and whether compensatory education is needed to 'make up' for the denial including addressing any skills that may have been lost (emphasis added).

Thus, the extent to which missed, or the delivery method of, services have affected the expected progress of a student is an essential element in assessing whether a FAPE has been denied and whether compensatory services are needed. It was appropriate, and not error, for the investigator to rely on the student's progress to assess whether the use of synchronous special education instruction prevented the student from receiving a FAPE.

Error V: Failure to Consider the Systemic Impact of the Identified Violations

The Appeal Committee will not address this alleged error for two reasons:

1. There was nothing in the complaint alleging that there was a systematic failure of any kind; and
2. The complaint investigator determined that there was no violation of law which could have a systemic impact.

For these reasons, the Appeal Committee finds that the investigator had no evidence or reason to consider a systemic impact.

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report on this issue.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 4th day of February 2026.

Background

This complaint involves an 11-year-old boy who is enrolled in the sixth grade at a local middle school. The student previously attended a nearby Elementary School from Pre-K to fifth grade. The student was initially evaluated for special education services on February 28, 2017 and was found eligible for special education services under the primary educational exceptionality of Autism. The student was re-evaluated as a part of the required triennial cycle on January 22, 2020 and November 28, 2022, and most recently via a re-evaluation dated November 6, 2025. At each review, the student was determined to continue to be eligible for special education services under the exceptionality of Autism. The student currently receives the related services of physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech and language.

This complaint is focused on two incidents. The first occurred on October 29, 2025 (first incident/incident 1) and the second on November 4, 2025 (second incident/incident 2). While the complaint investigator has not viewed the security video footage of either incident, a description of the events was provided by both the LEA and the parent to the investigator during their respective phone calls. Those descriptions generally align. The LEA also provided written timelines of the second incident prepared by the LEA and by an officer from the KCKPD.

In an email to the parent dated November 5, 2025, the LEA's Director of Special Services recounted the events of the first incident. At that time, the student was walking adjacent to a staff member who was pushing a different child in a wheelchair. A third child [student A] was walking slightly behind the student, and without warning struck the student in the back of the head three times. In an email to the parent dated November 14, 2025, the LEA indicated that the nurse was alerted to the incident at 12:18 PM, some 41 minutes after it occurred; the parent was then called by the nurse at 1:09 PM to explain the situation – approximately 90 minutes after the incident happened.

The second incident occurred four school days after the first. In an email to the parent dated November 5, 2025, the LEA's Director of Special Services indicated that the student was in the cafeteria/commons area on November 4, 2025 practicing tasks for the Job Skills Olympics. A staff member was engaged with a number of students during this time and walked back and forth among them. At some point, while the paraprofessional was redirecting the student, both the student and student A stood up. Student A subsequently walked over and struck the student twice on the back of his head. The student was escorted to the nurse's office, where an assessment was conducted. After that assessment was completed, the nurse contacted the parent; the parent then came to the school and took the student home.

Issues

A formal complaint must allege that a violation of special education laws or regulations has occurred within the 12-month period prior to the date the complaint is received and filed by the commissioner of education (K.A.R. 91-40-51(a) and (b)). For this compliant, the parent has raised seven concerns/issues and asserted that the LEA did not comply with a number of federal and Kansas state regulations which will be discussed below.

Issue One

Multiple safety incidents involving the student.

Position of the Parent

In her written complaint, and during the phone call with the investigator, the parent stated that the LEA failed to ensure the student's safety by failing to provide adequate supervision. The parent cites "…34 C.F.R. §300.323 – obligation to implement the IEP," and "K.A.R. 91-40-3 – student protections and supervision" – as regulations where there was non-compliance by the LEA. The parent contends that as a result of these failures by the LEA, the student was denied a free appropriate public education (FAPE).

Position of the LEA

The district asserts that no violations of special education statutes and regulations occurred, and states that the student was not denied FAPE. In both events at issue, district staff acted promptly, consistently, and reasonably to maintain student safety. It is the position of the LEA that these events involved unexpected peer behavior rather than failures in supervision or protocol.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

The parent, in her complaint, identified 34 C.F.R. §300.323 as a regulation relevant to the provision of FAPE, i.e. the failure of the LEA to implement the students IEP. The cited regulation is entitled "When IEPs must be in effect." Under "General," the regulation states that an IEP must be in effect at the beginning of each school year for a child with a disability. Other subsections apply to children ages three through five, initial IEPs, accessibility of the IEP to teachers and others, and children who are transferring from another location.

There is no allegation in the parent's complaint that an IEP was not in place at the beginning of the school year. Records reflect that an IEP was in effect at the time of both incidents. The student is older than five years of age and has not transferred from another location. The student was initially identified for special education services on February 28, 2017, with triennial re-evaluations after that date. Given these facts, the federal regulation cited by the parent does not apply to the issues raised by the parent.

The parent also identified K.A.R. 91-40-3 as related to the LEA's non-compliance with state regulations. This regulation is entitled "Ancillary FAPE Requirements" and its goal is that "Each agency shall ensure that children with disabilities have available to them the same variety of educational programs and services that are available to nondisabled children served by the agency, including art, music, industrial arts, consumer and homemaking education, and vocational education." The parent has not indicated in her complaint that the student was denied access to any educational programs that the LEA provides to nondisabled students, therefore, this regulation is not relevant to this issue.

Investigative Findings

An annual review of the student's IEP was conducted on November 19, 2024, and the parent participated in that meeting. An LEA Conference Form with that same date summarizes the meeting agenda, identifies the meeting participants, and outlines the focus of the meeting. The form notes that parent input was considered and that parent input was written into the draft IEP. The Conference Form does not contain any reference to the student's specific supervision or any safety concerns while away from the special education classroom, nor does it contain any reference to paraprofessional support in any setting.

The parent indicated a transition to the P.E. location was the setting for the first incident. The "Consideration of Special Factors" section of the November 19, 2024 IEP has the "regular P.E."

box checked under Physical Education. The IEP indicates that the student would require assistance to fully participate in physical education, but P.E. activities had not begun at the time of the incident.

The "Supplementary Aids and Services section of the student's November 19, 2024 states:

> "Describe the supplementary aids and services that will be provided in the general education classroom and other education-related settings to enable the child to be educated with nondisabled children to the maximum extent appropriate."

The "Not Applicable" box for that section was checked.

There is no indication in the November 19, 2024 IEP that a paraprofessional or other dedicated staff member was required to supervise or specifically ensure the safety of the student in a way different than that of his non-disabled peers.

The Prior Written Notice (PWN) dated November 19, 2024 summarizes the student's changes in placement and services. The form does not contain any reference to a safety plan for the student, to special supervision for the student in the general education setting or while away from the special education classroom, or to the provision of support by a paraprofessional.

The student's IEP was amended on May 1, 2025 with a substantial change in placement beginning May 22, 2025 to accommodate the student's move from the elementary school to the sixth grade at the middle school. An IEP team meeting was held to accomplish this task. The PWN for the amendment indicates that other than the change in placement, and the change in time and duration of the services listed, no other changes were made to the student's services. The parent consented to the changes on May 1, 2025. An LEA Conference Form dated May 1, 2025 for the IEP team meeting shows that the parent participated and offered inputs regarding the student's growth and environment, and agreement with the proposed placement.

An IEP team meeting was held on November 6, 2025 for the annual review of the IEP and to review the triennial re-evaluation of the student. The LEA's Conference Form dated November 6, 2025 for the meeting reflects that the parent expressed her concerns about the student's safety. This same concern is included in the Parent Input/Concern paragraph of the "Present Level of Achievement and Functional Performance" section of the student's November 6, 2025 IEP. The "Supplementary Aids and Services" section of that IEP indicates that "A safety plan outlining supervision procedures and communication supports will be implemented and attached to this IEP." That section also states that "A daily communication note summarizing [the student's] and any notable events or needs will be sent home." The referenced safety plan includes a stated purpose of ensuring "…[the student's] safety through consistent supervision, effective communication supports, and structured transition." Included in the safety plan is a requirement for an adult to remain within arm's length of the student when he is away from the special education classroom. The safety plan indicates that any incidents related to the student will be immediately reported to the building administrator and school nurse. The plan also indicates that the parent will be notified of incidents, but there is no time frame associated with that reporting.

The LEA, through the middle school handbook and the district's Board of Education Policies and Regulations for students, does not identify or impose any specific measures for student safety or supervision for exceptional students that are different from those for non-disabled peers.

Summary and Conclusions

The student was struck by another child twice during the first semester of the 2025-26 school year. For the first incident, the student was transitioning to regular P.E. The student was near a staff member who was pushing another student in a wheelchair. The November 2024 IEP in place for the student at the time contained no requirement for additional supervision or support beyond what was being provided when the incident occurred. The IEP did not contain any specific requirement for supports or staff for transitions from the special education classroom to other locations. The IEP indicated that the student would receive regular P.E. and he would require assistance there, but the P.E. class had not yet begun.

For the second incident, the student was near a staff member who was providing services to multiple students. The November 2024 IEP in place for the student at the time contained no requirement for additional supervision or support beyond what was being provided when the incident occurred.

While a safety plan is now in place for the student, that plan was not in effect at the time when either incident occurred.

The investigation of this issue determined that there are no LEA safety measures or regulations applicable to an exceptional student that are different from those of non-disabled peers. The investigation also revealed that the student's IEP did not contain any specific supervision, supports, or safety requirements beyond what the LEA was providing at the time each incident occurred.

A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Two

Lack of appropriate supervision leading to physical and emotional harm.

Position of the Parent

The parent, during the phone call with the investigator, shared that the student was not sleeping, that his behavior had changed, and that he now cries a lot. She alleges these symptoms are related to the physical and emotional harm resulting from being struck by another child. It is the position of the parent that the lack of supervision by staff allowed these assaults to occur.

Position of the LEA

The district reviewed all relevant documentation related to the concern regarding supervision and did not find evidence that supervision was inadequate. Following each reported event, the student was evaluated by the school registered nurse in accordance with the district's head-injury procedures. The LEA contends that the peer's behavior was unexpected and not the result of a lapse in supervision.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

Investigative Findings, Summary, and Conclusion

The parent's complaint does not clearly differentiate between the issues 1 and 2, and she did not establish a clear difference between these issues during her phone call with the investigator on December 19, 2025. The investigator found the two issues to be duplicative as both focus on the LEA's lack of supervision. As was established under Issue One, a violation of special education statutes and regulations was not substantiated with regard to supervision

Inappropriate or delayed staff responses to accidents and assaults.

Position of the Parent

It is the position of the parent that the LEA failed to appropriately respond to physical assault and safety incidents regarding the student. The parent further asserts that the LEA's response to incident one was especially delayed and inconsistent.

Position of the LEA

It is the position of the LEA that its response was timely and appropriate.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations, Investigative Findings, Summary, and Conclusion

There are no applicable Kansas or federal statutes or regulations that mandate, define, or guide an LEA's response for an injury to an exceptional child. An LEA may have district policy for its management and response to such incidents for all students, and in this case the LEA's board policy JGFG for Student Accidents likely applies.

This investigator has the authority only to investigate violations of special education statutes and regulations. Concerns regarding the implementation of district Board policy fall outside of the investigator's authority. If the parent is dissatisfied with the LEA's response to these events, then the parent may complain to the local board of education.

Issue Four

Failure to follow the IEP or provide required supervision supports.

Position of the Parent

The parent, during the phone call with the investigator, indicated she had questions about which staff member(s) were near the student during each incident. The parent also stated she was unaware the student was going to general education P.E.

Position of the LEA

The LEA contends that it has met its obligation under FAPE to follow the IEP and provide the required supervision support. At no time were the accommodations, modifications, or services outlined in the IEP dated November 19, 2024, not implemented.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

Investigative Findings, Summary, and Conclusion

As was established under Issue One, the November 2024 IEP in place for the student at the time of the two incidents identified by the parent contained no requirement for additional supervision or support beyond what was being provided when the incidents occurred. The IEP did not contain any specific requirement for supports or staff for transitions from the special education classroom to other locations. The IEP indicated that the student would receive regular P.E. and he would require assistance there, but the P.E. class had not yet begun.

For the second incident, the student was near a staff member who was providing services to multiple students. The November 2024 IEP in place for the student at the time contained no requirement for additional supervision or support beyond what was being provided when the incident occurred.

While a safety plan is now in place for the student under his November 6, 2025 IEP, that plan was not in effect at the time when either incident occurred.

A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Five

Missed instructional and related services following the incident.

Position of the Parent

During the phone call with the investigator on December 19, 2025, the parent stated that the student had received a doctor's excused one-week absence from school following incident two. The parent asserts that the LEA did not provide any services to the student while he was home during that period and contends that he was denied a FAPE and is due compensatory services.

Position of the LEA

The LEA denies that a denial of FAPE occurred, as the student was evaluated by the school RN and determined to be medically safe to remain in the school setting. At no point was the parent asked to pick the student up from school, monitor him at home, or seek medical attention. The school implemented appropriate interventions to ensure the student's safety within the learning environment, and access to services was never restricted or withheld. It is the position of the LEA that the parent chose to keep the student home following the event.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

As has been previously noted, federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

The parent, in her complaint, identified 34 C.F.R. §300.101 (described immediately above) and 34 C.F.R. 300.323(c) as regulations relevant to the provision of FAPE due to missed services. The latter regulation is entitled "When IEPs must be in effect," and subsection (c) concerns initial IEPs. There is no allegation in the parent's complaint that an IEP was not in place at the beginning of the school year; records reflect that an IEP was in effect at the time of the incidents and that particular IEP was dated November 19, 2024. The student was initially identified for special education services on 2/28/17, with triennial re-evaluations after that date. Given these facts, the federal regulation 34 C.F.R. 300.323(c) cited by the parent do not apply to the issues in her complaint.

Investigative Findings

The student's November 19, 2024 IEP with its May 1, 2025 amendment, in place at the time of both incidents, indicates that services were to be provided in the Life Skills classroom at the middle school. Regular P.E. was to be provided at TMS along with any extracurricular activities. There is no indication in the IEP of services to be provided virtually or outside of TMS or in any setting other than the Life Skills classroom.

Incident 2 occurred on Tuesday, November 4, 2025. The parent picked up the student after she was notified of the event and kept the student out of school on Wednesday November 5th, indicating he would return to school the following Monday. The parent kept the student out of school on Thursday November 6th. Friday November 7th was a professional development day when no students were in attendance. The student attended school on Monday November 10th. The parent took the student to the doctor on Tuesday November 11th and obtained a doctor's note for an excused absence from that date until November 18th for medical reasons. The student was absent from school on November 12, 13, 14, and 17. In total, the parent kept the student out of school for 7 school days.

The school nurse prepared a head injury notification following both incidents; the report for the second incident is dated "11/4/26 (sic)," the date of the incident. The form shows that the student was seen by the nurse beginning at 8:15 AM; he was discharged at 9:02 AM with a note that after returning to baseline behavior he was released back to class. The nurse did not identify any injury or other reason to keep the student in the nurse's office, send the student to the emergency room or other medical facility, or to send the student home from school.

In an email on November 11, 2025 at 3:58 P.M., the parent told the Director of Special Services that the student had been seen by a doctor and that the student would not return to school until November 18th; the doctor's note was attached to the email. The Director of Special Services responded that all absences would be updated from "excused" to "medical." At the close of the email, the Director of Special Services invited the parent to respond with any additional questions regarding absences.

No emails or other documented communications were provided during the investigation to show that the parent and the LEA discussed the student's absence during this time in further detail. There is no evidence to show that the parent requested an IEP team meeting to specifically address services missed during the student's time away from school.

An annual IEP team meeting was held on November 6, 2025 – the second day of seven days when the parent held the student out of school after the second incident. There is no indication in the Conference Form notes for that meeting that missed instruction time was a concern of the parent and that the LEA should consider compensatory services.

Summary and Conclusions

No evidence was presented during this investigation to show that the LEA was not ready, willing, and able to provide services to the student at school in accordance with his IEP. The parent chose to keep the student at home in the same manner as if the student had been ill with the flu. There is no requirement in the student's IEP for him to receive services when he is absent from school. The parent made no request for an IEP team meeting to consider make-up services for the time missed by the student due to an absence classified as "medical," nor was this discussed at the previously scheduled annual IEP team meeting on November 6, 2025.

In consideration of the above determinations and evidence reviewed during the course of this investigation, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Six

Failure to provide timely and accurate communication to the parent.

Position of the Parent

The parent contends that the LEA failed to appropriately communicate with the parent and that the LEA's communication was not timely or complete. During the phone call with the investigator, the parent stated that the LEA failed to provide her with enough information about what happened during both incidents and to give her a better overall understanding of the occurrences and that a viewing of the video recording of the incidents was essential for her understanding of what had taken place. The parent asserts that the LEA failed to provide the parent with timely access to view the security video of the two incidents.

Position of the LEA

The district denies failure to provide timely and accurate communication to the parent. According to the LEA, communication with the parent was provided in a reasonable amount of time based on the event details and the medical assessment conducted by school staff. The LEA contends that in both instances the parent was notified within a reasonable timeframe based on the nurse's medical assessment and the absence of symptoms of head trauma. The district's head-injury form was completed and sent home on the same day as each event. The district stands firm that the parent was provided with timely and accurate communication and that she has had multiple opportunities to meaningfully participate in the IEP process.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.613, require an LEA to permit parents to review and inspect any education records relating to their child "… that are collected, maintained, or used by the agency under this part." In addition, the LEA must comply with a request made by a parent to inspect their child's education record "…without unnecessary delay…and in no case more than 45 days after the request has been made." Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-50(3)(b) adopt the federal regulation by reference.

Investigative Findings

Documents reviewed during this investigation regarding the first incident (of October 29, 2025) show that a head injury report was prepared by the school nurse on October 29, 2025 – the date of the incident. The LEA asserts that this report was sent home on the same day as the event. The middle school contact log for the school nurse indicates that a voicemail was left for the parent at 1:10 PM on that day, and that no call back was received. Neither party to this complaint provided any evidence that further communication between the parent and the LEA occurred regarding the first incident, and no requests for additional information or access to the student's educational record were made between October 29, 2025 and November 4, 2025.

The second incident occurred on November 4, 2025. A head injury report dated "11/4/26 (sic)" was prepared by the school nurse and according to the LEA it was sent home that same day. The middle school contact log for the school nurse indicates that a phone call was made to the parent at 9:10 AM on the day of the incident. The log also indicates that the parent made a request to view the security video footage for that incident.

On November 4, 2025 the parent made her first request via email to the LEA and asked that the security video footage of both incidents be added to the student's educational record. She also formally asked for access to and a copy of the videos. On November 5, 2024 the Director of Special Services replied to the parent's email and indicated that she had undertaken an investigation into both incidents; she described what had happened during each incident and the nurse's evaluation and assessment that took place after each incident. The Director of Special Services acknowledged the parent's request to view the video footage of both incidents, and stated that since other students were present, and since the footage is considered a part of those students' education record and thus protected, the videos could not be shared with the parent. The Director of Special Services also acknowledged the parent's request that the video footage be attached to the student's educational record; she indicated that as a result the footage had since been sent to the LEA's technology department and were preserved under the student's record.

On November 5, 2025 the parent replied back to the email from the Director of Special Services and reiterated her request to view the security video footage and supported her request by observing that the footage was a part of the student's educational record. As noted above, this had been acknowledged by the LEA some 90 minutes earlier that evening.

The annual IEP meeting for the student occurred on November 6, 2025. There is no indication in the documents for that meeting that any discussion occurred regarding the parent's access to the student's records.

On November 14, 2025, the Director of Special Services replied to the parent's November 5, 2025 email. In that communication, she included the answer to the parent's request for the district's legal interpretation supporting prior denial of access to the video footage the parent had made under the Kansas Open Records Act (KORA) and Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA):

> "The school security video footage you have requested access to is not a public record subject to disclosure under the Kansas Open Records Act ("KORA"). See K.S.A. 45-221(a)(1) & (12). Security video footage is also generally exempt from disclosure as an educational record under FERPA. 20 U.S.C. 1232g(a)(4)(B)(ii) and 34 CFR §§ 99.3 and 99.8."

On November 18, 2025 the parent replied to the above email and asked for additional clarification about the LEA's denial of her access to the security video footage of the two incidents.

On November 20, 2025 the Director of Special Services sent an email reply to the parent indicating a close to its investigation into the two incidents, and that no further communications on the matter would be forthcoming.

On November 18, 2025 the parent wrote an email to the LEA that included the district Superintendent, and again asked about her request to view the security video footage of the two incidents. On November 24, 2025 the Superintendent replied to the parent and repeated the LEA's legal interpretation stated by the Director of Special Services in her November 14, 2025 email. However, the Superintendent closed his message stating

> "However, under the circumstances, the school district is willing to provide you with the opportunity to view the security video. If you would like to do so, please advise and we will make arrangements for you to view it at a mutually agreeable date and time."

On November 28, 2025 the parent replied with an acknowledgement, and on December 2, 2025 she suggested either December 9 or December 12, 2025 as a date for her to view the footage. The LEA's law firm coordinated the final timing and the parent ultimately viewed the video footage on December 12, 2025.

The time between the parent's first request to view the security video footage – which she maintains is a part of his educational record – and the time that she was able to view the footage was 38 calendar days.

The LEA's board policy JGGA covers the use of surveillance cameras. The policy states, in part:

> "Surveillance footage of personally identifiable students depicting their involvement in an altercation or other violation of law or district policy shall be considered a student record [emphasis added] and shall be subject to current law for the release of student record information."

Summary and Conclusions

The student was clearly involved in two altercations with student A. Board policy JGGA states that the resulting surveillance video footage would be considered a student record. The parent requested that the resulting video footage be maintained by the district, and the Director of Special Services agreed to the request, indicating that the footage would be attached to the student's educational record and would be maintained by the LEA's technology department. Although later communication from the LEA to the parent suggested that the video footage was not considered a part of the student's educational record and thus not accessible to the parent, this position contradicts the board's policy concerning such video footage and the commitment made by the Director of Special Services to characterize the footage as a part of the student's educational record and to maintain it.

The LEA, for 20 days after the parent's first request, denied her access to the video footage. Thirty-eight (38) calendar days after the parent made her request she was finally able to view the surveillance video footage of the two incidents involving the student. Federal regulations require an LEA to allow a parent to review their child's educational record no more than 45 days following the initial request, and the LEA met that timeline.

In consideration of the above determinations and evidence reviewed during the course of this investigation, a violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Issue Seven

Failure to take appropriate steps following parent concerns and grievances.

Position of the Parent

It is the position of the parent that special education law requires meaningful parent participation. The parent contends that with regard to the two incidents identified in her complaint, the LEA's communication was not timely or complete, preventing the parent from participating in safety and service decisions. The parent further asserts that the LEA failed to address the needs of a student with autism and limited communication and did not provide appropriate supports or interventions.

Position of the LEA

The LEA denies that it failed to take appropriate steps to address parent concerns and grievances and asserts that it has communicated with the parent in a timely manner regarding all requests and provided multiple opportunities for meaningful participation in the decision-making process. It is the position of the LEA that the parent has participated in and agreed to the services, accommodations, and modifications designed to support the student's needs. In addition, the parent expressed concerns related to communication and behavior during the November 6, 2025, meeting. The LEA contends that the IEP team considered the parent's concerns and responded by proposing to conduct an FBA and to consider communication needs related to AAC.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

The parent, in her complaint, identified 34 C.F.R. §300.304 through 300.324 as regulations the LEA failed to comply with, indicating the district did not provide appropriate supports or interventions tailored to the student. This range of regulations defines the entirety of the IEP process including reevaluations. Some of the regulations within this range are applicable to this issue as outlined below

At 34 C.F.R. 300.322 and K.A.R. 91-40-17 special education laws describe in detail that the parents must be members of the IEP team. The parents are equal partners and play an active role in providing critical information about their child's abilities, interests, performance, and history. They are involved in the decision-making process throughout the development of the IEP. Notice of IEP team meetings must be given to parents and include the purpose, time, and location of such meetings.

A parent is also an important part of the re-evaluation process for an exceptional child, providing valuable information about the child's progress, needs, and current abilities (34 C.F.R. 300.303 – 304; 300.305(a)(1)(i) and (a)(2); K.S.A. 72-3428).

Investigative Findings

A Notice of Meeting (NOM) dated October 30, 2024 was provided to the parent for an IEP team meeting to be held on November 19, 2024. The parent signed the NOM on November 14, 2024 indicating she planned to attend the meeting. According to an LEA Conference Form dated November 19, 2024, the parent participated in the IEP team meeting that day. The parent initialed the section of the Form indicating she provided input in the development of the IEP; the summary section of the Form states that the parent's input was written into the draft IEP. The parent signed the Conference Form on November 19, 2024. The "Academic Performance" section of the November 19, 2024 contains a full paragraph of parent input. The parent signed the IEP signature page on November 19, 2024. A Prior Written Notice (PWN) for the November 2024 IEP was delivered to the parent on November 19, 202,4 and the parent provided consent for the implementation of the services described in the IEP on that same date.

A NOM dated April 8, 2025 was sent to the parent via the student's backpack for an IEP team meeting on May 1, 2025. The meeting was held to discuss the student's transition to middle school and his placement for the 25 – 26 school year. The parent acknowledged receipt of the NOM on April 9, 2025 and indicated she planned to attend the meeting. An LEA Conference Form dated May 1, 2025 reflects the parent's participation in the meeting, with her initials showing she provided input in the development of the IEP. An IEP Amendment between Annual IEP Meetings was developed by the IEP team on May 1, 2025, and the parent signed the agreement on that date. A PWN for the May Amendment to the IEP was delivered to the parent on May 1st, and she signed consent on that same date.

A PWN for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent was sent to the parent as a result of the LEA's proposal for the three-year reevaluation of the student. The parent provided consent on August 15, 2025. In preparation for the reevaluation the parent completed a parent questionnaire on August 15, 2025.

A NOM dated October 14, 2025 was sent to the parent via the student on October 15, 2025 for an annual IEP team meeting to be held on November 6, 2025. The parent signed the NOM on October 21, 2025 indicating she planned to attend the meeting as scheduled. The parent completed a Parent Input Form on November 6, 2025. An evaluation report (reevaluation) was prepared by the LEA and dated November 6, 2025; the report includes information from the parent questionnaire and from an interview with the parent. The parent signed the reevaluation report indicating agreement with its conclusions.

An IEP for the student was developed at the November 6, 2025 IEP team meeting. The Academic Performance section of the IEP captures parent input/concerns, and reflects that the parent voiced concerns about the student's safety and provided input on choices, processing requests, goals, and daily living skills for the student. The parent also requested a Functional Behavior Assessment (FBA) and an evaluation for Assistive Augmentative Communication (AAC). Finally, she requested the development of a safety plan and a daily communication note. The parent signed the IEP signature page on November 6, 2025.

A PWN dated November 6, 2025 indicates that a safety plan and daily home-school communication note would be added under Supplemental Aids and Services. The parent provided consent on November 19, 2025. A safety plan was created with an initial draft dated November 13, 2025 provided during this investigation. A PWN for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent dated November 11, 2025 was provided to the parent and signed by her on November 12, 2025. This PWN was in response to the parent's request to the team for conducting a Functional Behavior Assessment as well as an evaluation for AAC systems to support communication.

Summary and Conclusions

In the twelve months prior to this compliant the parent was involved in an annual IEP team meeting (November 2024), an IEP team meeting for an amendment in May 2025, a three-year reevaluation of the student, another annual IEP team meeting (November 2025), the creation of a safety plan and daily communication notes requirements, and the consent for an FBA and evaluation for AAC. All NOMs for the three IEP team meetings were timely and complied with regulatory requirements. The parent actively participated in all three IEP team meetings, and the IEP team responded to, considered, and included her inputs. The parent actively participated in the November 2025 reevaluation of the student, providing her input via questionnaires and an interview. The parent consented to all services identified in all three PWNs following the three IEP team meetings.

The IEP team, at the November 6, 2025 IEP meeting, responded to the parent's concerns about the student's safety and drafted a safety plan to be implemented by staff. The team also generated a daily communication and significant events protocol to keep the parent informed.

In short, the parent has meaningfully participated in decisions made about services for the student, including her safety and communication concerns.

The parent has consented to all services and to the results of the most recent reevaluation. No evidence was provided to show that the parent expressed any concerns or questions about how supports or interventions for the student were developed, or that any of those supports or interventions were inappropriate or should be changed.

A violation of special education statutes and regulations is not substantiated on this issue.

Background Information

This investigation involved Student A, who is a ninth-grade enrolled at a High School in USD # 437 who is creative and artistic. Student A's primary exceptionality is autism, and their secondary exceptionality is Other Health Impairment (OHI). Student A is currently receiving special education and/or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA.

Additionally, this investigation involved Student B, a high school-aged enrolled at Washburn Rural High School in USD #437. Student B is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a primary disability of autism and secondary disability of intellectual disability, per the IDEA.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

Student A

1. Student A's IEP dated October 24, 2024, included an amendment dated April 24, 2025, and described the following:
    a. Transition assessments were identified, and service descriptions were listed for August 11, 2025 through May 23, 2029.
    b. The following goals were listed:
        i. "When [Student A] is given a directive to follow by an adult or peer, [Student A] will be able to follow directions on the first request by not arguing, negotiating, or seeking an alternative response with adults or peers at 95% by the end of the IEP as measured by Anecdotal Records. [Student A] will be able to follow directions on the first request by not arguing, negotiating or seeking an alternative response with adults or peers 95% of the time."

ii. "When given a modified assignment or assessment, [Student A] will be able to complete the assignment or assessment on time with at least 80% accuracy at 90% of the time by [the] end of the IEP as measured by Anecdotal Records."

iii. "When feeling dysregulated, [Student A] will be able to verbalize [their] feelings and ask for a break at 50% of the time by [the] end of the IEP as measured by Anecdotal Records."

iv. "When eating breakfast or lunch, practicing self-care of hygiene, [Student A] will be able to demonstrate socially appropriate eating behaviors by practicing table manners, pacing [themself] during meals (eating slowly and steadily), using polite behaviors (e.g., saying 'please' and 'thank you,' chewing with [their] mouth closed, not talking with food in [their] mouth, wiping [their] face with a napkin), engaging in appropriate mealtime conversations, reducing the amount of food on [their] clothing and proper nose blowing at 4 out of 5 observed opportunities by the end of the IEP as measured by Anecdotal Records."

c. The "Parent Input" section included concerns regarding Student A's lunch location and training for bus personnel regarding Student A's BIP.

d. Considerations indicated:

i. The IEP team considered Student A's strengths, the concerns of the Complainant, the results of the most recent evaluation, and the academic, developmental, and functional needs of Student A.

ii. Student A's behavior hindered the learning of others and was addressed through a BIP, goals, and accommodations.

iii. Student A needed assistive technology and services and had a documented health condition that impacted their participation and progress in the general education curriculum and classroom setting.

e. A BIP and PBS document dated October 30, 2023, was included in the IEP:

i. Student A's problem behaviors were described as defiance (refusing directives, arguing, and attempting to manipulate situations) and being off-task (inappropriate peer talk, working on unrelated assignments, and misusing technology during instruction).

ii. Behaviors occurred when given a "non-preferred" activity, which led to avoidance of the task.

iii. The settings and antecedents were described as Student A's behaviors were most frequent during ELA, where their compliance with directives was lowest at 70%. They also showed slightly lower compliance in social studies and PBS (92.5% and 90%, respectively). Conversely, they exhibited high compliance (97.5%–100%) in art, science, math, an unknown course, and advisory.

iv. The function of Student A's behavior was "to gain access to preferred activities and to avoid the task that is being asked of them."

v. Student A required instruction in replacement behaviors that addressed several lagging skills across three main categories: Attention and Working Memory, Emotion and Self-Regulation, and Cognitive and Flexibility Skills. Specifically, Student A struggled with tasks such as persisting with difficult activities, managing feelings of annoyance or disappointment, and coping with changes to routines or rules.

vi. Proactive Strategies stated the staff should prevent the problem behavior and listed the following strategies:

1. "Give [Student A] praise when [Student A] is on task and completes tasks/directives."
2. "When [Student A] is beginning to demonstrate behaviors that include non-compliance with adult tasks/directives, [they] will be given up to three prompts to get back on task."
3. "When [Student A] is not responding to the directives given by the adult, staff will respond by telling [Student A], 'This is a non-negotiable.'"
4. "[Student A] will use self-regulation strategies to resist peer pressure / self-directed inappropriate activities, such as continuing to argue."
5. "[Student A] will leave [their] classroom materials in each classroom needed for the subject and [they] will not bring any other supplies with [them]."
6. "Teachers will refrain from giving [Student A] school supplies, food (unless a class party), or any other items."
7. "When [Student A] needs access to technology, [they] will be monitored and [their] [one] on [one] para[professional] will keep & carry the computer until [they] need it. [They] [are] not to use technology unless it pertains directly to the classroom assigned."
8. "Once [Student A] [is] on the bus [they] are not allowed to exit the bus until [they] have gotten to school or home."
9. "[Student A's] behavior will be documented on a behavior tracking sheet provided by the school."
10. "During the unstructured times and passing periods, teachers will be monitoring the environment and will wait until the teacher enters the room before [Student A] enters the room [sic]."
11. "[Student A] will be escorted to the bus at the end of the day for [them] to get there on time."
12. "When [Student A] is found stealing from the cafeteria, [Student A] will make restitution to the school for the item/s."

13. " [Student A] will check out with an adult at the end of the day to review [their] day."
14. "[Student A] will have direct social skills instruction."
15. "Staff will refrain from having any personal conversations or educationally relevant information with or around [Student A]."

vii. Reactive Strategies for staff for when Student A demonstrated "resistance" to working in class included:

1. "Working or completing a task/following a directive for the first time given."
2. "Taking a 5-minute break with a preferred list of activities, such as drawing, writing, or reading (this needs to be monitored to ensure it is school-appropriate after completion of the designated task required by the adult[)]."
3. "When refusing to work, arguing, or defying adult requests to comply with simple requests, [Student A] will be given up to three redirections."
4. "If still exhibiting the above-mentioned behaviors, [Student A] will be sent to a 'buddy room' or 'office.'"
5. "If [Student A] refuses to leave and/or argues with the adult a member of the mental health team or support staff will be notified to come and walk [Student A] to an alternate location."
6. "If the behavior is considered to be a major behavior and/or a chronic behavior, [Student A] will have an Office Discipline Referral written and have a phone call home."
7. "[Student A] will then spend time in an alternate setting for a designated time according to the behaviors exhibited."
8. "All of this will be documented on [Student A's] tracking sheet."

viii. Progress monitoring methods included "Daily data collection."

ix. Staff training procedures indicated, "Include necessary staff training in the IEP. Staff should be trained with PBS and other reinforcement systems in order to implement the BIP with fidelity. [Student A's] bus staff needs to be trained in [Student A's] morning routine and when to be released from the bus. Bus staff and [one] on [one] para[professional] need to be trained on [Student A's] expectations, accommodations for [Student A][,] and provided with a copy of the BIP. [Student A's] para[professional] will help facilitate when there is a sub[stitute] in the class. Adults will be trained in trauma[-]informed responses along with [their] specific diagnosis (Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), Reactive Attachment Disorder (RAD), Oppositional Defiant Disorder (ODD), Other Specified Disruptive Impulse Control and Conduct Disorder associated with developmental disability, Generalized Anxiety Disorder

f. Program Modifications and Supports with a start date of October 24, 2024 (no end date noted) indicated the following:
   i. An alternative setting for all subjects when provided an assessment until the assessment was completed.
   ii. Preferential seating for all subjects when provided a seating assignment for the length of the class.
   iii. Allow frequent breaks for all subjects when feeling dysregulated for no more than 10 minutes.
   iv. Frequent reminders of rules for all subjects when Student A was unable to regulate their behavior, no more than 2 times.
   v. Allow time for the organization of materials for "Other end of the day" once or twice a week for no more than 5 minutes.
   vi. Alert Student A to transitions for all subjects at the end of each class period for 1-2 minutes prior to transition."
   vii. PBS system for all subjects at the end of each class period, all day.
   viii. When using a computer, there will be direct supervision by Student A's one-on-one paraprofessional or the teacher for all subjects when needing to use a computer until the assignment/assessment is complete.
   ix. Shorten assignments for all subjects when provided with an assignment or assessment until the assessment or assignment is complete.
   x. When dysregulated, Student A will be escorted by their one-on-one paraprofessional to the PBS room for 5-10 minutes to regulate. Student A will have the option to return to class or stay in the PBS room to work on academics with their one-on-one paraprofessional support. Occurrences need to be documented in all subjects when Student A is dysregulated or staff notice Student A's dysregulation for 5-10 minutes to regulate.
   xi. Eating breakfast in the PBS room, "other" or before school, when Student A was eating breakfast, they would remain in the room until their one-on-one paraprofessional escorted them to their first class until the beginning of the first class.
   xii. Eating lunch in the PBS room (wellness room / side room in the PBS room) with one-on-one paraprofessional for lunch when Student A is eating lunch until the lunch period is completed.
   xiii. One-on-one paraprofessional support to the bus to avoid wandering the halls looking to collect items/things or starting issues with peers at "other" and the bus when Student A is going to the bus until Student A has loaded the bus.

xiv. One-on-one paraprofessional support to the nurse's office to avoid wandering halls, collecting items, or starting issues with peers at "other" or the nurse's office when Student A is going to the nurse's office until Student A has taken [their] medication.

xv. One-on-one paraprofessional support when Student A goes to the restroom. Student A will not go during passing time, but at the end of the 3rd hour, lunch, and before Student A gets on the bus to go home. The paraprofessional support will wait for Student A and then escort them back to the class at "other" or the restroom when [Student A] is going to the restroom until Student A is finished with the restroom.

xvi. One-on-one paraprofessional support will follow the protocol of escorting Student A to the PBS room. A special education teacher will be contacted and determine if it is appropriate to call a social worker and/or the Principal in "other" and classrooms when Student A demands to see the social worker and/or the Principal after the protocol has been followed and the special education teacher determines who Student A needs to speak to.

xvii. One-on-one paraprofessional support will help monitor Student A wearing their glasses for all subjects, all the time, not just for computer use, during the school day.

xviii. One-on-one paraprofessional support will escort Student A from the bus to breakfast and then to the PBS room at "other" and arrival time. An adult will escort Student A from the bus to breakfast and back to the PBS room during the school day.

xix. When Student A argues or questions an adult on a directive, the adult will respond to Student A, "This is non-negotiable" in all subjects when teachers and staff are providing items to other students during the school day.

g. The "Transportation" section indicated special transportation was required to and from school and noted Student A's behavior was not safe to themself and/or others on the bus. Options included fewer people aboard the bus and preferential seating. Additionally, support for transportation personnel indicated, "[Student A's] bus staff need to be trained in [Student A's] morning routine and when to be released from the bus. Bus staff and [one][-]on[-][one] para[professional] need to be trained on [Student A's] expectations, accommodations for [Student A] and provided with a copy of the BIP."

6. "Staff will have access to [Student B's] behavior plan."

c. Relevant services listed were:

i. "Attendant Care- A non-instructional paraeducator," provided by the special education classroom teacher, 27 minutes per day for five days every week.

11. In an email dated October 29, 2025 to the Case Manager, the Resource Parent shared an attachment with an agenda with items they had wanted to discuss at the meeting on October 28, 2025. Items included in the attachment were:
    a. Change of wordage on page 14 of Student B's IEP regarding usage of the Language Acquisition through Motor Planning Software (LAMP) to use "[Student B] knows this device as [their] "talker" and should be referred to as such."
    b. The LEA provided training to all staff that provide any assistance for Student B.
    c. Change of verbiage on page 28 in Student B's IEP to, "As soon as precursor behavior(s) are displayed, staff should either hand [Student B] or point to the school issued iPad and ask [them] 'What is wrong? Or what is the problem?' Staff should then make an effort to help [Student B] work through the issue."
    d. An LEA provided iPad for Student B.

e. Change of verbiage on page 30.
f. An additional accommodation to be written into the IEP to remain in the 7th hour of the instructional setting until the end of the scheduled class period.
g. Fidelity training plan.
h. The additional accommodation of daily communication to be provided between the school-based Speech Language Pathologist (SLP) and an external foundation.
i. Lack of progress reporting.
j. "Occupational Therapy was not discussed in the meeting of October 28, 2025. There are discrepancies within the IEP on OT service minutes to be provided. Both 15 minutes per week of direct services and 20 minutes per week of direct OT services are listed. This needs to be corrected within the IEP. In addition, [Student B's] IEP needs to reflect that 'virtual' or 'remote' OT services [was] not an effective method of delivery for [them]. Direct, in-person, OT service must be provided." (D47-D49)

Interview Summaries

The Complainant Interview

12. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Complainant explained they had been asking for an IEP meeting "since May" [2025] and their understanding was the October 28, 2025 meeting was to review their concerns and "talk about … what needed to be changed … and just get more information." (P2, 05:40)
    The Complainant listed the participants of the meeting as the Case Manager, the LEA's Counsel, the LEA Representative, Assistant Principal and the School Nurse. They shared the OT and and Behavior Tech were neither present nor gave input for the meeting. (P1, 02:33)
    The Complainant explained they spoke during the meeting about their concerns regarding Student B's "additional talker" and the Behavior Tech's use of one to model to Student B to invoke more communication, and the Case Manager was in agreement with the use of the additional talker. Then, the Complainant explained they received a PWN denying the accommodation and shared, " … I've never had an attorney run a meeting … like that…. it didn't feel like an IEP meeting at all that I have ever attended." (P2, 03:43)
13. The Complainant shared Student B's behavior tech was switched with no "consultation." Student B's new behavior tech had no "training" nor a "transition" was not completed. (P5,13;25,14:40, 15:28, 16:56)
14. The Complainant indicated the LEA could not find anyone to do services in-person for OT, so they hired a virtual OT. They shared there was nothing in Student B's IEP for "accommodations or anything that says that it can be done virtually." They also shared the LEA did not send a PWN and " … there was no changes to [their] IEP that allowed for virtual OT." (P6, 22:09)

Case Manager

15. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager confirmed they had emailed the Complainant a copy of Student B's active IEP the morning of the October 28, 2025 meeting. (P1, 04:12)
16. The Case Manager shared the purpose of the October 28, 2025 meeting was a parent-called "team meeting" with the Complainants, to prepare for the upcoming IEP to discuss changes and amendments. (P2, 05:03, 05:58)
    The Director of Secondary Services clarified that the Complainant's Counsel called the meeting on October 28, 2025, the Complainant signed the notice of meeting which clarified the meeting as a team meeting. (P4, 08:36) The Director of Secondary Services explained " … we prepared an agenda and facilitated the meeting and got through all of our items. When we finished … they said they had some items they wanted to talk through, and so we spent another hour together talking through their items." (P3, 09:10)
17. The Case Manager shared they felt the meeting ended "fine." They explained the Complainant and the Resource Parent had a list prepared of items which they shared after the meeting and added additional items at the bottom of the list. They shared during the meeting, the team had asked numerous times if there were any other questions or concerns the Complainant and the Resource Parent had, then they received this information with additional items via email a few days later. (P5, 10:21)

The Director of Secondary Services

18. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director of Secondary Services shared the LEA sent the agenda for the October 28, 2025 meeting to the Complainant and their counsel ahead of the meeting so they were aware of the content. (P2, 03:24)
19. The Director of Secondary Services explained that Student B received OT services virtually last school year and families were notified via email. They shared the frequency, duration, location and the service itself did not change. (P4, 07:48)
20. The Director of Secondary Services shared the Case Manager was Student B's behavior technician at the middle school. Once Student B moved to the high school, the LEA had to make personnel changes and provided "a robust training plan" for the incoming behavior technician. They explained the instructional facilitator for autism and low incident support confirmed the transition of the new behavior technician was "okay." (P5, 09:12)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Student A

Issue One

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the individual assigned as the PBS teacher for Student A holds the full, appropriate Kansas State licensure/endorsement (e.g., Special Education) for the continuous assignment of providing and implementing special education services, including IEPs and BIPs, and has not exceeded the permissible day limits for teaching in the same assignment while holding a temporary or Emergency Substitute Teacher credential. K.S.A. 72-3404(j), K.A.R. 91-31-34(b)(1-5); 34 CFR § § 300.156(a-c), 300.207.

According to K.S.A. 72-3404(j), "Special teacher" means a person, employed by or under contract with a school district or a state institution to provide special education or related services, who is qualified to provide special education or related services to exceptional children as determined pursuant to standards established by the state board, or assist in the provision of special education or related services to exceptional children as determined pursuant to standards established by the state board.

According to K.A.R. 91-31-34(b)(1-5), except as otherwise provided by law, in filling positions for which a license or certificate is issued by the state board, each education system shall employ persons who hold licenses or certificates with specific endorsements for the positions held. If a teacher holding an appropriate license or certificate is not available, the education system shall use a substitute teacher holding a valid Kansas teacher or administrator license or certificate at any level or in any field or subject. An education system shall not allow any person holding a Kansas teaching license or certificate to substitute teach for more than 140 days in the same assignment. If a substitute teacher holding a valid Kansas teacher or administrator license or certificate is not available, the education system shall use a substitute teacher holding a valid Kansas substitute teaching license or certificate. An education system shall not allow a person holding a substitute teaching license or certificate to teach for more than 90 days in the same assignment.

If a substitute teacher holding a valid Kansas substitute teaching license is not available, the education system shall use a person who holds a baccalaureate degree and an emergency substitute teaching license or certificate. An education system shall not allow a person who holds a baccalaureate degree and an emergency substitute teaching license or certificate to teach for more than 45 days in the same assignment. If a person holding a baccalaureate degree and an emergency substitute teaching license is not available, the education system shall use a person who has been licensed or certified by the state board as an emergency substitute teacher. An education system shall not allow any person who does not hold a baccalaureate degree to teach for more than 25 days in the same assignment or more than 75 days in a semester. If a governing body documents that there is an insufficient supply of substitute teachers, the governing body may appeal to the commissioner for authority to allow individuals holding an emergency substitute teaching license or certificate to continue to teach for an additional length of time.

The Complainant alleged the LEA had an individual listed on Student A's IEP as the PBS teacher who holds an Emergency Substitute Teacher credential and is not certified in special education or behavior support. Additionally, this teacher is helping implement IEPs, BIPs, and other behavioral supports that require proper training and licensure.

Respondent/LEA Position

The LEA contended the Case Manager providing services to Student A holds a valid emergency substitute license issued by the State. Although an emergency license issued by the State holds a day-limit restriction when functioning as a substitute teacher, said limits do not apply when serving under an approved Special Education Waiver.

The Case Manager holds a State Board of Education Emergency Substitute Teacher License (PreK-12); however, subsequent documentation indicated the State granted the Case Manager a "Quality Performance Accreditation" Waiver on November 12, 2025, for the 2026 school year. Furthermore, the LEA had a signed contract with the Case Manager for the 2025-26 school year, and the job description was for the Resource Teacher position, which involved planning and implementing IEP goals.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that LEA failed to ensure special education services were managed and delivered by licensed and qualified staff.

Issue Two

> Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, denied Student A a FAPE by failing to ensure the individual providing special education PBS services was appropriately trained and qualified. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 CFR § § 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday. An IEP shall be in effect by the child's third birthday. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination of whether a child who is advancing from grade to grade is a child with a disability shall be made on an individual basis in accordance with child find activities and evaluation procedures. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Complainant alleged the LEA denied Student A a FAPE by not ensuring their special education PBS services were provided by a qualified, licensed, and trained staff.

The LEA contended that Student A's special education services have been consistently overseen by the assigned Case Manager, who was appropriately qualified and trained. They hold the appropriate licensure or approval by the KSDE and were actively pursuing full special education licensure through university. The LEA maintains that at no point has Student A been denied a FAPE, as all services and supports have been delivered with no interruptions.

Student A's amended IEP dated October 24, 2024, outlined numerous positive behavior strategies and explicitly stated that necessary staff must be trained on the BIP, PBS, and trauma-informed responses. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager shared they had training in collaborative problem solving, trauma-informed, ABA, and CPI through the LEA. On November 12, 2025, the State granted a "Quality of Performance Accreditation" waiver for the Case Manager, allowing them to teach low-incidence special education.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide Student A with a FAPE by not ensuring their special education PBS services were provided by a qualified, licensed, and trained staff.

Student B

Issue Three

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured meaningful parental participation in the IEP process when it held an IEP meeting for Student B on October 28, 2025, for a purpose different from the purpose stated in the original notice without notifying the Complainant, and presented a pre-drafted IEP document without providing the Complainant a genuine opportunity to collaboratively develop, review, and revise the IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b), K.A.R. 91-40-25(a), K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(1); 34 CFR § § 300.322(a)(b), 300.501(b), 300.324(a)(1)(ii).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b), each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and informing the parents s and except as otherwise provided by law, providing written notice to the parents s of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting.

The notice required shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the IEP team meeting and the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency, including, if appropriate, any other agency invited to send a representative to discuss needed transition services. The notice shall inform the parents that the parent has the right to invite to the IEP team meeting individuals whom the parent believes to have knowledge or special expertise about the child.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25(a), each agency shall allow the parents s of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child, and the provision of FAPE to the child.

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(d)(1), in developing each child's IEP, the IEP team shall consider the strengths of the child and the concerns of the parents s for enhancing the education of their child.

According to 34 CFR § 300.501(b)(3), a meeting does not include informal or unscheduled conversations involving public agency personnel and conversations on issues such as teaching methodology, lesson plans, or coordination of service provision. A meeting also does not include preparatory activities that public agency personnel engage in to develop a proposal or response to a parent proposal that will be discussed at a later meeting.

The parent alleged the LEA denied meaningful parental participation by unilaterally changing the purpose of a scheduled IEP meeting for Student B without notifying the parent, and presenting a complete, pre-drafted "corrective action IEP" that had never been shared, thereby preventing the parent from being an equal participant in the review and revision process.

The LEA contended the October 28, 2025 meeting was held per the Complainant's legal counsel written request with the stated purpose of, "to discuss any needed changes to [Student B's] IEP/BIP ...". Per standard practice, the LEA prepped their agenda to facilitate said meeting and shared Student B's current, active IEP with the Complainant.

On October 21, 2025, a Notice of Meeting was sent to the Complainant for a meeting scheduled on October 28, 2025, which was identified as a "Team Meeting" and attended by the Complainant, who waived the 10-day notice requirement. The Complainant understood the meeting, which they had been requesting "since May," was to "review their concerns and 'talk about... what needed to be changed.'" The LEA's internal Meeting Notes, however, indicated the purpose was more specific: to "review and revise the IEP and BIP in response to recent findings from the formal complaint process." The Director of Secondary Services explained that the LEA "prepared an agenda and facilitated the meeting," which was shared with the Complainant's Cnsel prior to the meeting, and after completing their items, they "spent another hour together talking through the Complainant items." The Case Manager confirmed that the team had asked "numerous times if there were any other questions or concerns during the meeting," but the Complainant subsequently shared a detailed list of items via email on October 29, 2025, which included requests for specific verbiage changes, a fidelity training plan, and corrections to conflicting OT service minutes.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA denied the Complainant meaningful Parent participation in the IEP process when it held the IEP for Student B on October 28, 2025 for a purpose different from the purpose stated in the original notice without notifying the Complainant.

Issue Four

> Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the attendance of a properly constituted IEP Team for Student B at the October 28, 2025 meeting by designating personnel who did not meet the required qualifications for the special education teacher/provider and the LEA representative, and excusing the attendance of other required IEP team members without obtaining the necessary written agreement or written consent from the Complainant, and/or without documenting the excused members' written input prior to the meeting. K.A.R 91-40-17(h)(i)(j), K.S.A. 72-3404(u), K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1-3)(e); 34 CFR § 300.321(a)(d)(e).

According to K.A.R 91-40-17(h)(i)(j), a regular education teacher of an exceptional child, as a member of an IEP team, shall participate to the extent appropriate in the development, review, and revision of the child's IEP. This participation shall include assisting in making the appropriate positive behavioral interventions and strategies for the child, the supplementary aids and services needed by the child, and the program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided to assist the child. If qualified to do so, an agency member of the IEP team may serve in the role of two or more required members of a child's IEP team. In asking individuals with knowledge or special expertise about a child to be members of the child's IEP team, the party asking the person to participate shall have the sole discretion in determining whether the invited person has knowledge or special expertise regarding the child.

According to K.S.A. 72-3404(u), "Individualized education program team" or "IEP team" means a group of individuals composed of the parents s of a child, at least one regular education teacher of the child if the child is, or may be, participating in the regular education environment, at least one special education teacher or, where appropriate, at least one special education provider of the child, and a representative of the agency directly involved in providing educational services for the child, who is qualified to provide or supervise the provision of specially designed instruction to meet the unique needs of exceptional children, knowledgeable about the general curriculum, and knowledgeable about the availability of resources of the agency. The team must also include an individual who can interpret the instructional implications of evaluation results, and at the discretion of the parent or the agency, other individuals who have knowledge or special expertise regarding the child, including related services personnel as appropriate, and whenever appropriate, the child.

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1-3)(e), except as otherwise provided by law, each IEP of an exceptional child and any amendment or modification of an IEP shall be made by the child's IEP team. Upon agreement of the parent and the agency, an IEP team can meet in person or by alternative means, including telephone conference calls and video conferences.

A member of a child's IEP team shall not be required to attend an IEP meeting, if the parent of the child and the agency agree that the attendance of such IEP member is not necessary because the IEP member's area of curriculum or related service is not to be discussed or modified at the meeting. The parent's 's agreement shall be in writing. A member of a child's IEP team may be excused from attending an IEP meeting when the meeting is to involve a discussion of, and possibly a modification to, the IEP member's area of the curriculum or related service, if the parent and the agency consent to the excusal, the IEP member submits, in writing to the parent and the IEP team, input into the development of the IEP prior to the meeting, and the parent 's consent to the excusal is in writing.

The regular education teacher of the child, as a member of the IEP team, to the extent appropriate, shall participate in the development of the IEP of the child, including the determination of appropriate positive behavioral interventions supports, and other strategies and the determination of supplementary aids and services, program modifications, and support for school personnel, and the review and revision of the child's IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to ensure the attendance of a properly constituted IEP Team for Student B on October 28, 2025 by using an emergency substitute teacher as the special education case manager and having the LEA's attorney act as the LEA representative, while also allowing other required members to be missing without providing proper written excusal or documentation of their input.

The LEA contended the October 28, 2025 IEP meeting was held not for purposes of an annual IEP or reevaluation meeting. It was held for a limited purpose to discuss potential amendments as requested by the Complainant Counsel. Due to the nature of the meeting, full IEP team attendance was not legally mandated.

A Notice of Meeting dated October 21, 2025, for a "Team Meeting" regarding Student B on October 28, 2025, which the Complainant planned to attend listed participants as the Case Manager (alleged to be an emergency substitute), Nurse, Special Education Assistant Principal, Education Advocate, Secondary SPED Director, and Counsel, though the Complainant noted the Occupational Therapist and Behavior Tech were neither present nor provided input. The meeting notes confirm that the team discussed and agreed upon revisions to the IEP and the purpose was to "review and revise the IEP."

Based on the foregoing, it is substantiated the LEA did not ensure attendance of a properly constituted IEP Team for Student B at the October 28, 2025 IEP meeting by designating the required IEP team members or excusing the attendance of other required IEP team members without obtaining the necessary written agreement or written consent from the Complainant, and/or without documenting the excused members' written input prior to the meeting.

No regular education teacher was listed as present, nor was there documentation provided to show the Complainant and LEA agreed to excuse members in writing, nor was there documentation of their written input prior to the meeting (34 CFR § 300.321(e); K.A.R 91-40-17(h)).

Issue Five

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented material changes to Student B's IEP without convening the IEP Team to review and revise the IEP, specifically: (a) Removing the long-term behavior technician without discussing the change's impact, planning for transition, or ensuring proper training for the replacement staff; and (b) Changing the delivery, location, and method of Student B's OT services from in-person to virtual. K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1)(4)(A)(c)(4)(7), K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b); 34 CFR §300.324(b).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1)(4)(A)(c)(4)(7), each IEP of an exceptional child and any amendment or modification of an IEP shall be made by the child's IEP team. Upon agreement of the parent and the agency, an IEP team can meet in person or by alternative means, including telephone conference calls and video conferences. After the annual IEP meeting for a school year, the parent of an exceptional child and an appropriate representative of the agency providing services to the child may agree to develop a written document amending or modifying the child's current IEP, without convening an IEP meeting.

The IEP for each exceptional child shall include a statement of the special education and related services and supplementary aids, services to be provided to the child, or on behalf of the child, and a statement of the program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided for the child to advance appropriately toward attaining the annual goals, to be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum and to participate in extracurricular and other nonacademic activities, and to be educated and participate with other exceptional and nonexceptional children. The IEP will include the projected date for the beginning of the services and modifications and the anticipated frequency, location, and duration of those services and modifications.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. Each agency shall ensure an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child, those services for which written consent has been granted as specified by law are implemented not later than 10 school days after parental consent is granted unless reasonable justification for a delay can be shown, an IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year, and the child's IEP is accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation.

Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

According to 34 CFR §300.324(b), each public agency must ensure that the IEP team reviews the child's IEP periodically, but not less than annually, to determine whether the annual goals for the child are being achieved, and revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum, if appropriate. The IEP Team must meet to review the results of any reevaluation conducted, Information about the child provided to, or by, the parents, or the child's anticipated needs. In conducting a review of the child's IEP, the IEP Team must consider any special factors as described in the law. A regular education teacher of the child, as a member of the IEP Team, must participate in the review and revision of the IEP of the child.

The Complainant alleged the LEA removed the support of Student 2's long-term behavior technician without discussing the change in an IEP meeting to plan for the transition, potential impact, or training plan for the staff who took over the support. Additionally, the Complainant alleged the LEA changed the delivery, location, and method of Student 2's OT services without convening an IEP meeting to discuss the change.

The LEA contends no implementation of a material change happened to Student B’s IEP without convening an IEP team meeting. Both issues of OT and the behavior technician reassignment, the LEA contends were administrative changes, not material changes to the IEP itself.

Student B’s December 17, 2025 IEP indicated the use of a one-on-one instructional behavior technician during instructional time and OT minutes, frequency, and duration. A Staffing Transition Planning document dated February 28, 2024, through April 2, 2024, outlined a rationale for the Case Manager to take over the 'entire program' with support and training for the Case Manager. Additionally, the Case Manager received further training from the LEA. Behavior technician services remained materially unchanged, and documentation of staff professional development continued during staffing transitions.

The Director of Secondary Services indicated last year that Student B received OT services virtually and that no minutes, duration, or location changed. The service itself was not altered. No material change to OT services was altered.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated the LEA implemented material changes to Student B's IEP. There was no material change to Student B's IEP requiring an IEP team meeting.

Issue Six

> Whether USD # 437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided appropriate PWN and/or obtained parental consent before implementing material changes to Student B's program, specifically: (a) Removing the long-term trained behavior technician from their daily program and reassigning the staff in March 2025; and (b) Changing the delivery model of Student B's OT services from in-person to virtual. K.A.R. 91-40-26, K.A.R. 91-40-27(a)(3)(g), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2)(6); 34 CFR §300.503.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26, in providing any notice to the parent or parents of an exceptional child regarding any action proposed or refused by an agency, each agency shall ensure that the notice includes a description of other options that the agency considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. The notice shall be written in language understandable to the general public and provided in the native language of the parent or other mode of communication used by the parent, unless it is clearly not feasible to do so.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-27(a)(3)(g), each agency shall obtain parental consent before making a material change in services to, or a substantial change in the placement of, an exceptional child. An agency shall not be required to obtain parental consent for a reevaluation or a proposed change in services or placement of the child if the agency has made attempts to obtain consent but the parent or parents have failed to respond.

According to K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2)(6), the parents s of exceptional children shall have the right to a PWN whenever an agency proposes to initiate or change, or refuses to initiate or change, the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a FAPE to the child. Parents have a right to a PWN to consent, or refuse to consent, to the evaluation, reevaluation or the initial placement of their child and to any substantial change in placement of, or a material change in services for, their child, unless a change in placement of their child is ordered by law, or the agency can demonstrate that it has taken reasonable measures to obtain parental consent to a change in placement or services, and the child's parent has failed to respond. If the parent fails to respond to the request for parental consent to a substantial change in placement or a material change in services, the agency must maintain detailed records of written and verbal contacts with the parent and the response, if any, received from the parent.

The Complainant alleged in March 2025, Student B's long-term trained behavior technician was removed from their daily program and reassigned without providing any PWN for the material change. Additionally, the Complainant alleged the LEA changed Student B's in-person OT services to virtual OT without providing PWN and without obtaining parent consent.

First, the LEA contends there was no material change to Student B's IEP, which would constitute a PWN, and second, the LEA contends there was no material change in OT services, just a methodology change, which does not constitute a PWN.

Student B's December 17, 2025 IEP indicated the use of a one-on-one instructional behavior technician during instructional time and OT minutes, frequency, and duration. A Staffing Transition Planning document dated February 28, 2024, through April 2, 2024, outlined a rationale for the Case Manager to take over the 'entire program' with supports and training for the Case Manager. Additionally, the Case Manager received more training provided by the LEA. The Complainant shared the LEA was unable to find an in-person OT and hired a virtual OT and Student B's behavior technician was switched with "no consultation" with no training or transition. The Director of Secondary Services indicated Student B's OT services materially did not change.

Conclusion

Based on the review in Issue Five, consequently, the requirement for the LEA to provide a PWN is not substantiated based on the review as no material changes were made to Student B's IEP.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations for Student B. A violation occurred in the following area:

A. Federal regulations at (34 CFR § 300.321(e); K.A.R 91-40-17(h)) specifies the LEA must ensure the IEP meeting includes one regular education teacher participating in the IEP meeting. IEP team attendance is not required to attend IEP meetings in whole or in part if the parent and LEA agree, in writing, that the attendance of the member is not necessary or if they are excused from attending in whole or in part in writing, or if the member submits in writing input prior to the meeting.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #437 did not obtain teacher input from a general education teacher before the start of the meeting, nor did it obtain parent consent for the excusal of the whole IEP team.

Based on the foregoing, USD #437 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 15 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #437 shall submit a written statement of assurance to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) stating that it will comply with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) at 34 CFR § 300.321(e); K.A.R 91-40-17(h) by following the IEP Team Members and IEP Team Member Excusal procedures correctly.
2. Within 30 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #437 shall hold an IEP meeting with all members of Student B's IEP team, gather input prior to said IEP meeting of members who cannot attend, and/or obtain parent consent for excusal of IEP members who are unable to attend.
3. Within 45 calendar days of this report, all special education staff case managing shall receive approximately 1 hour of professional learning related to:
    i. Notice of IEP Meetings
        b. LEA shall contact the SEA to schedule professional learning sessions no later than insert date, by contacting:
        c. Professional learning must be completed no later than insert date. Professional learning may take place over multiple sessions and may occur virtually. Professional learning may not take place during the regular school day such that educators require substitute teachers.
        d. LEA shall provide evidence of completion, including documentation of participation (sign-in sheet or similar record of attendance) to the SEA within ten days of professional

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 437,
Auburn/Washburn Public Schools: 26FC437-008

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on November 17, 2025, by ----- the current Education Advocate for ----- (Student B). In the remainder of this decision, ----- will be referred to as "the complainant," and "student B" will continue to be referred to as Student B. An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on December 31, 2025. That Complaint Report concluded that there was a violation of special education statutes and regulations

Thereafter, the district filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the complainant, the Complaint Report, the district's notice of appeal, and the complainant's response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The appeal committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The only issue under appeal is Issue Four, which was described in the report as follows:

Issue Four

> Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the attendance of a properly constituted IEP Team for Student B at the October 28, 2025 meeting by designating personnel who did not meet the required qualifications for the special education teacher/provider and the LEA representative, and excusing the attendance of other required IEP team members without obtaining the necessary written agreement or written consent from the Complainant, and/or without documenting the excused members' written input prior to the meeting. K.A.R 91-40-17(h)(i)(j), K.S.A. 72-3404(u), K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1-3)(e); 34 CFR § 300.321(a)(d)(e).

In its appeal, the district asserts that the October 28, 2025 meeting was not, and was never intended to be, an IEP meeting and so none of the requirements of K*.A.R 91-40-17(h)(i)(j), K.S.A. 72-3404(u), K.S.A. 72-3429(b)(1-3)(e); 34 CFR § 300.321(a)(d)(e)* applied. The Appeal Committee agrees that the investigator's conclusion on this issue rests on the finding that the meeting was an IEP meeting.

While there was no specific finding in the report regarding this essential element of the analysis, the investigator pointed out that there was (1) a Notice of Meeting dated October 21, 2025, titled "Team Meeting" and (2) meeting notes confirming "that the team discussed and agreed upon revisions to the IEP and the purpose was to "review and revise the IEP." From these two findings, the investigator concluded that, "Based on the foregoing, it is substantiated the LEA did not ensure attendance of a properly constituted IEP Team for Student B at the October 28, 2025 IEP meeting…" Report, p. 31-32.

In its appeal, the district submitted three exhibits:

Exhibit 1 is a copy of a letter, dated September 30, 2025, from a law firm representing the student's father and the student's foster parent (the complainant in this complaint). in the "Conclusion" portion of that letter, it asks:

> (2) that an IEP Team meeting be held for (the student) as soon as practicable for all parties, to discuss any needed changes to his IEP/BIP, based on the data and circumstances that have arisen over the last year, as well as whether any compensatory education is owed to (the student) due to the aforementioned deviations…" (Emphasis added).

Exhibit 2 is a copy of an e-mail response to the law firm from the school district's legal representative at the Kansas Association of School Boards (KASB), dated October 14, 2025, stating:

> I am representing USD 437 in the issues involving (the student). The district has forwarded me your letter for review. The (sic) are looking into the claims made and we would like to discuss scheduling the requested IEP meeting. In talking with Heidi Carlson, it sounds like the soonest the school could meet is the week of October 27th*. I think it would be best if ----- and Ms. Carlson work on scheduling that – I do not want to cause delay by acting as middlemen for our clients in scheduling. If you prefer that works through us, let me know. (Emphasis added).*

Exhibit 3 is an email, dated October 15, 2025, to the KASB attorney from the law firm representing the student's father and foster parent saying in relevant part:

> Thanks again for your note below. I have shared it with my client and her preference is to work through me to schedule the IEP team meeting*. Note that my client would like for me to attend the meeting, and so I am respectfully requesting that the meeting be held via Zoom. My client and I are available to* hold the IEP team meeting *on the following dates and times, please let me know what works best for you and your client: · Monday Oct. 27 between 9:30AM-3:00PM (*any IEP team meetings must be concluded before 3:00PM during this week) · Tuesday Oct. 28 between 9:30AM-3:00PM · Thursday Oct. 30 between 11:00AM-3:00PM. (Emphasis added).

The district also attached a document, dated 1028/25 (the date of the meeting) titled "Attorney Agenda Email," and "Student Meeting – 10/28/25" stating that the purpose of the meeting is to, "Review and revise the IEP and BIP in response to recent findings from the formal complaint process. Participants: Case Manager, Nurse, Special Education Assistant Principal, Education Advocate, Secondary SPED Director, Counsel"

The district's meeting agenda includes a lengthy list of agenda items, including to:

- Clarify intent: to ensure full implementation of the IEP and address all substantiated findings
- Add health care plan to the IEP
- Discuss responsibilities for BIP and medical plan implementation
- Discuss recent communication (10/27) with doctor's note
- Identify how fidelity of implementation will be monitored
- Confirm that parent requests are being addressed through the IEP team process
- Discuss feedback on PWN and amendment sent 10/16/25
- Review whether the process with the school psychologist has been helpful to the parent
- Confirm procedures for ensuring IEP/BIP access and understanding for all staff (including transportation and ESY staff)
- Case manager to share plan for regular check-ins with service providers
- Review placement during lunch and non-academic settings
- Discuss whether any changes to supervision or setting are warranted

There was apparently a misunderstanding about whether this meeting was intended to be an IEP meeting or a less formal meeting to seek agreement on a significant number of agenda items that would be remedied through the IEP amendment process. If so, the misunderstanding was entirely on the district. in all of the correspondence between the parties the approaching meeting was referred to as the "IEP meeting." it is beyond any reasonable interpretation of this correspondence that the law firm representing the student's father and the student's foster parent made anything other than a written request for an IEP meeting to discuss the pertinent issues. Further, the district's legal representative, in an email, dated October 15, 2025, acknowledged receipt of the request for an IEP meeting, stating that her client was working through her to "schedule the IEP team meeting" and that she and her client were available on specified dates to "schedule" and "hold" the "IEP team meeting."

If at any time during the scheduling of this meeting, knowing that an IEP team meeting had been requested in writing, the district determined that there would not be such a meeting, it was required to provide a Prior Written Notice (PWN) refusing the parent's request for an IEP meeting. The fact that no such PWN was issued is another indication that both parties had committed to holding an IEP team meeting.

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued the 5th day of February, 2026.

Background Information

The Student attended a special day school and a high school in the LEA. According to the Complainant, the Student has both intellectual disability and schizophrenia; no comprehensive evaluation was provided to further document the Student's disability and special education needs. In October 2024, at 17 years of age, the Student was removed from the Parent's home in another Kansas school district and placed first with his grandparents and later with a foster parent in the LEA. After a manifestation determination review and a long-term suspension hearing, the Student was suspended from the LEA in December 2024. The Student was placed in a psychiatric treatment facility from January through April 2025. The Student remained in foster care and for a time attended an online school arranged by the foster parent during the 2025-26 school year. The Student was not successful with the online school and stopped attending. In October 2025, the Complainant contacted the LEA to arrange for the Student to return to school. The Student turned 18 years of age in early November 2025.

Issues Investigated

1. ISSUE ONE: Whether the LEA provided special education and related services to the Student following the period of suspension/expulsion according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(c)(2) and K.S.A. § 72-3429(a)(1)
2. ISSUE TWO: Whether the LEA properly informed the Student of parental rights under IDEA that transfer when the Student reached the age of majority according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.520; K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(9)), and K.A.R.91-40-18(e)
3. ISSUE THREE: Whether the LEA followed the proper procedure when the Student revoked consent and the LEA ceased to provide special education services according to C.F.R. § 300.300(b)(4); K.A.R. 91-40-27(i), (k) and (l), and K.A.R. 91-40-1(l)(3)
4. ISSUE FOUR: Whether the LEA afforded the Student procedural safeguards and acquired informed consent from the Student when the Student revoked consent for special education services, according to C.F.R. § 300.9; C.F.R. § 300.635 and K.A.R.91-40-1(l).

Issue One

Whether the LEA provided special education and related services to the Student following the period of suspension/expulsion according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(c)(2) and K.S.A. § 72-3429(a)(1).)

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.323(c)(2) require school districts to ensure that as soon as possible following the development of the IEP, special education and related services are made available to the child in accordance with the child's IEP. Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.503(a) require school districts to provide parents with prior written notice a reasonable time before they propose or refuse to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of FAPE (free appropriate public education) to a child who has or is suspected of having a disability. State regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-27(a)(3) require school districts to obtain parent consent before making a material change in services or a substantial change in placement.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The Complainant alleged that the LEA failed to provide services to the Student, who had an established disability and lived in the LEA The Complainant alleged that in mid-October, 2025, she made the LEA aware that the Student was unsuccessful in the online school in which he had been enrolled and that the Student needed to return to the school in the LEA.

The LEA responded that this issue is a duplication of Issue One of a prior complaint filed by the same Complainant on behalf of the same Student and showed that the Complaint Investigator stated that the same issue would not be investigated twice. The LEA stated: "An explanation, however, is provided to assist you in understanding the timeline and events. The incident for [the Student] occurred on 12.5.24. [The Student] received an OSS for 10 school days, 12.5.24-12.18.24. Manifestation Determination Review was held on 12.13.24. [The LEA] Long-term Hearing was held on 12.18.24. [The Student] was withdrawn as a student from [the LEA] on 12.19.24. [The Student] was no longer enrolled as a student in [the LEA] beginning 12.19.24-11.17.25. Since [the Student] was not a student in [the LEA] there was no obligation to provide special education services."

Findings of Fact

The following findings are based upon a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

Duplication of investigated issue: The District responded that Issue One was a duplication of a previously filed complaint's Issue One, which stated: "Whether USD#465 in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education (IDEA) failed to implement the Student's IEP during their suspension/expulsion (italics added). This present investigated issue states "Whether the LEA provided special education and related services to the Student following the period of suspension/expulsion according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(c)(2) and K.S.A. § 72-3429(a)(1).

The LEA reported that the period of the Student's OSS was December 5 to December 18, 2024. In its response, the LEA declined to provide documentation of the dates of suspension/expulsion resulting from the long-term hearing. However, the LEA later provided a copy of the Assistant Superintendent's letter dated December 2, 2024, which stated that the Student's period of expulsion lasted till May 23, 2025, and that the Student could return schoolwork to the school for high school credit.

In an interview with the current LEA Principal, the Principal affirmed that the LEA ordinarily did not unenroll a student when long-term suspended and that student could earn credits if work was completed during a long-term suspension.

Student Enrollment in the LEA: The LEA reported that the Student was suspended from December 5, 2024 to December 18, 2024, and a Manifestation Determination Review (MDR) was held on December 13, 2024, finding that the offense was not a result of the Student's disability. A letter from the Assistant Superintendent dated December 2, 2024 to the Student's parents stated that the student was suspended until May 23, 2025.

According to the LEA Enrollment History record, the Student entered the LEA on November 12, 2024, exited on December 16, 2024. The LEA Drop Slip was dated December 19, 2024. According to the Assistant Special Education Director in an interview, at the time of the MDR, the fostering Grandparent stated that the Student would be leaving their care and moving to another school district. The Kansas Individual Data on Students (KIDS) showed that the Student was listed as in the LEA as of January 8, 2025, and in another Kansas school district as of January 14, 2025.

The Therapeutic Center, where the Student was placed for 90-day treatment, requested educational documents from the LEA on January 27, 2025. The Student attended the Therapeutic Center from January 25, 2025 to April 25, 2025, according to the Complainant.

The Complainant reported that the Foster Parent believed that the Student had been expelled for one year and did not attempt to register the student for classes in the LEA in August, 2025, because it had not yet been one calendar year since the Student's long-term suspension. According to the Complainant, the Foster Parent, with assistance from the Complainant, enrolled the student in an online school program, where the Student was unsuccessful.

The Complainant reported that she notified the LEA that the Student needed to attend school in the LEA rather than an online school and that in mid-October 2025, she contacted the Special Education Director to begin the process of getting the Student in school in the LEA. The Complainant provided an email dated October 21, 2025 at 12:02 p.m. to the LEA's Director of Public Information, which requested information regarding the Student' suspension and special education services.

The Complainant provided a call log of 3 phone calls to or from the LEA in October 2025: October 21, 2025 at 11:53am to the LEA Special Education Cooperative Office, October 22, 2025 at 8:34 a.m. from the Special Education Director, and October 23, 2025 at 1:06 p.m. from the LEA High School Principal. When asked if the Complainant notified the LEA High School Principal or the Special Education Director that the Student had returned to live in a town in the LEA, the Complainant emailed, "Each time I spoke to them I had said that I was trying to enroll him, get sped services, and find out when his suspension was up. They kept delaying me and telling me he couldn't come back yet."

In an interview with the Principal, the Principal agreed that she had received a phone call from the Complainant regarding the Student in October, and she passed the information to the Special Education Cooperative to locate the IEP and contacted the Registrar to determine the Student's earned credits. According to the Principal, the Foster Parent was assisted to set up a username and password and school staff offered the office computer for the Foster Parent to complete the online enrollment at the same time. However, the Foster Parent declined the offer to use the computer and did not complete the online enrollment form until a few weeks later, on November 18, 2025.

The Special Education Director reported that they became aware of the Student's enrollment in the LEA on November 18, 2025. The Special Education Director placed 4 phone calls to the Complainant on November 19, 2025 according to the Complainant's call log; however, the Complainant reported that she was not available to take the phone calls.

According to an interview with the LEA Assistant Special Education Director and the District Response, the LEA Special Education Director and Assistant Special Education Director visited the Student at the Foster Parent's home on November 20, 2025, after failing to contact the Student or Foster Parent by phone or text. At the time of the home visit, the Student signed a Revocation of Consent, dated November 20, 2025 and the LEA provided Prior Written Notice to cease all special education services, dated November 20, 2025. Both documents, which were provided to the Investigator, were handwritten and signed by the Student and Foster Parent. According to LEA documentation, typewritten copies of the Revocation of Consent and PWN dated November 20, 2025 along with the handwritten copies of each document and the Parent Rights document were mailed to the Student on November 23, 2025.

According to the LEA Enrollment History and an interview with the Principal, the Student was enrolled and attended high school on December 3, 2025.

Conclusion

In this case, the Student was known to be a student with a disability in the LEA and had an IEP at the time of a disciplinary incident resulting in a long-term suspension. At the time of the MDR, the fostering Grandparent reported to the LEA that the Student would be leaving their care during the period of long-term suspension ending on May 23, 2025. LEA and KIDS records indicate that the Student did indeed leave the LEA at that time, sometime between their un-enrollment on December 19, 2024 and January 15, 2025 when the Student was known to be enrolled in another school district.

As of October 21, 2025, when the Complainant notified the LEA, the LEA was aware that the Student resided in the LEA and in need of special education and related services. At that time or in a reasonable time thereafter, the Foster Parent was provided with online enrollment support, and the Foster Parent delayed but completed the online enrollment by November 18, 2025. The LEA reported calling and texting the Foster Parent prior to the home visit on November 20, 2025. The Special Education Director called but was unable to reach the Complainant on November 19, 2025. The LEA Special Education Director and LEA Assistant Special Education Director contacted the Student and Foster Parent at home on November 20, 2025, when the Student revoked consent for special education services. Therefore, the Student was not enrolled in the LEA from December 19, 2024 until November 18, 2025 and the LEA was not responsible for providing special education and related services to the Student following the long-term suspension which ended May 23, 2024. At the time of the Student's reenrollment in the District, the LEA administration appropriately contacted the Complainant and the Student to initiate special education services, which were declined when the Student revoked consent on November 20, 2025.

Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide special education and related services to the Student following the period of suspension/expulsion according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(c)(2) and K.S.A. § 72-3429(a)(1).)

Issue Two

Whether the LEA properly informed the Student of parental rights under IDEA that transfer when the Student reached the age of majority according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.520; K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(9), and K.A.R. 91-40-18(e).

Applicable Law

Federal /State statutes and regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.520 and K.S.A. 72-3431 state require that, when a child with a disability reaches the age of majority under State law that applies to all children (except for a child with a disability who has been determined to be incompetent under State law), the public agency must provide any notice required by this part to both the child and the parents, and all rights accorded to parents under Part B transfer to the child, and the agency must notify the child and the parents of the transfer of rights. State statutes and regulations at K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(9) and K.A.R. 91-40-18(e) require that the IEP for each exceptional child shall include, beginning at least one year before the child reaches the age of majority under state law, a statement that the child has been informed of the child's rights, if any, that will transfer to the child on reaching the age of majority.

K.S.A. 72-962 (m) defines parent as: "(m) "Parent" means: (1) A natural parent; (2) an adoptive parent; (3) a person acting as parent; (4) a legal guardian; (5) an education advocate; or (6) a foster parent, if the foster parent has been appointed the education advocate of an exceptional child."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The Complainant alleged that the LEA persuaded the Student to sign away rights to special education.

In its response, the LEA stated: "In the IEP Notice of Meeting for the prior IEP when [the Student] was initially enrolled at [the LEA High School] in November 2024 (IEP meeting occurred 11.11.24), [the Student} was notified verbally and in writing that parental rights transferred to him when he turned 18 years of age. This is documented on that Notice of Meeting Form. [The Student] was verbally informed of his rights (i.e., parental rights), offered a copy of the parental rights during the 11.20.25 visit to the home of [the Foster Parent] and it was stated that [the Foster Parent] and [the Student] could come to the [LEA] office at [address] later in the day to pick up the copy. Since they did not come to the [LEA] office on Friday, 11.20.25 and get the copy, a copy of the parental rights was mailed to the home of the foster parent where [the Student] lives on Monday, 11.23.25."

Findings of Fact

The findings of Issue One are incorporated herein by reference.

The following findings are based upon a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

An IEP Amendment for the Student dated November 11, 2024, included no participant signatures or names for any person representing IEP team membership listed as: "Legal Education Decision Maker, Educational Representative, Special Education Teacher/Provider, General Education Teacher."

According to interviews with the Special Education Director and Assistant Special Education Director, no education advocate had been appointed for the Student; additionally, the LEA reported that the Father was "not in the picture" during the initiation of special education services in the LEA.

The IEP Amendment dated November 11, 2024 included a section entitled transfer of rights at age of majority, which stated: "In accordance with law, this statement is notice to you, the student, that, beginning on the date you turn eighteen (18) years of age, this agency will provide both you and your parent(s) with all notices required by special education law and regulations. All other rights afforded to parent(s) under special education laws and regulations will be transferred to you, the student, or, if you have a legal guardian, rights will transfer to the legal guardian."

The copy of the IEP Amendment dated November 11, 2024 provided to the Complaint Investigator did not include any reference to a copy being provided to the Student or the Student's Parent. According to a follow up email with the Special Education Director, the participants at the November 8, 2024 meeting were: The Special Education Director, the Foster Grandparents, an LEA special education teacher, a LEA social worker, the previous principal of the LEA high school, and LEA school psychologist. According to the Special Education Director's email, the Student did not attend the meeting and a copy of the IEP was provided to the Students Foster Grandparent.

Two copies of PWNs dated November 8, 2024 were provided to the Investigator. A handwritten copy was signed by the Grandparent giving consent for a material change in services and a substantive change in placement, as determined in an IEP meeting on November 8, 2024. Both the handwritten and typewritten copies of the PWN stated that a copy of the PWN was hand delivered to "LEDM" listed as follows: [Grandparent first name]/[Parent first name] [Grandparent last name]/[Parent last name]. According to an interview with the Assistant Special Education Director, the Grandparents were in regular contact with the Student's Father.

In an interview with the Assistant Special Education Director and the MDR dated December 13, 2024, the Father and Grandparent were present virtually during the MDR.

The Assistant Special Education Director reported that Parent Rights were discussed with the Student on November 20, 2025 and documentation showed that a copy of the Parent Rights were mailed to the foster home with copies of the PWNs and Revocation of Rights signed by the Student on November 23, 2025.

Conclusion

In this case, the Student was placed in foster care and living away from the Father and no other educational legal decision maker had been appointed for the Student. At the time of the IEP amendment dated November 11, 2024 that documented the LEA's communication of the transfer of rights at the age of majority to the Student, the Father was not available to participate in the Student's IEP Amendment meeting. The LEA contacted and obtained the Father's participation for the Manifestation Determination Review on December 13, 2024. The Complainant alleged that the Student had not been properly informed of his rights to special education. While the IEP amendment included a statement of transfer of rights, there is no evidence that the Student or Parent received a copy of this amendment or attended the IEP Amendment meeting on November 8, 2024. However, these events precede the 12-month timeframe for this formal written complaint and therefore, no determination on compliance is being made regarding notice to the Student and Parent of the transfer of rights one year prior to the age of majority.

The LEA verbally reviewed and provided a copy of the Parent Rights when it provided PWN and copies of the Revocation of Rights to the Student following the November 20, 2025 meeting. In the course of the investigation, it was discovered that the LEA inconsistently provided information to the Student's Father when the Student was in the foster care provided by the Student's Grandparent.

Federal and state regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.520 and K.S.A. 72-3431 require that both the Student and the Student's Parent receive notice of the transfer of rights at the age of 18. In this case, the LEA was able to contact and engage the Father during the MDR on December 13, 2024; however, no documentation states that the Father was provided notice as was the Student when the Student turned 18. Therefore, it is found that the LEA did provide required notice of rights to the Student but did not provide the notice of rights to the Parent at that time, as required. It is noted that the LEA did provide information to the Grandparent who was acting as foster parent for the Student when the LEA initiated the IEP in November 2024. However, no notice was provided to the Parent in November 2025, after the Parent's rights had transferred to the Student on their 18th birthday.

Based on the foregoing, it is substantiated that the District failed to implement 34 C.F.R. § 300.520 and K.S.A. 72-3431 by providing notice to both the Student and Parent of the transfer of rights upon the age of majority.

Issue Three

Whether the LEA followed the proper procedure when the Student revoked consent and the LEA ceased to provide special education services according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.300(b)(4); K.A.R. 91-40-27(i), (k) and (l), and K.A.R. 91-40-1(l)(3)

Applicable Law

Federal/State statutes and regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.300(b)(4) require that, if the parent of a child revokes consent for special education and related services in writing for the continued provision of special education and related services, the public agency may not continue to provide special education and related services to the child but must provide prior written notice in accordance with § 300.503 before ceasing the provision of services and will not be considered in violation of the requirement to make FAPE available to the child or to convene an IEP Team meeting or develop an IEP for the child for further provision of special education and related services. KAR 91-40-27(l) requires that if a parent who revoked consent subsequently requests the child to be enrolled in special education, the agency shall conduct an initial evaluation to determine qualification before re-enrolling the child.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The Complainant alleged that the LEA delayed responding to the Student's need for special education and soon after the Student turned 18, approached the Student in the family home, where the Student was persuaded to forfeit his right to special education.

The LEA responded that after the LEA administration became aware that the Student was enrolled in the LEA for the 2025-26 school year, the special education administration attempted to contact the Student and the Foster Parent by phone and text. The Special Education Director and Assistant Director made a home visit on November 20, 2025.

Findings of Fact

The findings of Issue One and Issue Two are incorporated herein by reference.

The following findings are based upon a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

The LEA reported in its written response and the Assistant Special Education Director in an interview that, prior to visiting the Foster Parent and Student at their home, the special education administrators called and texted the Foster Parent to follow up on enrollment and special education planning. The Complainant and the LEA agree that the home visit on November 20, 2025 occurred, with the Student, Foster Parent, Special Education Director and Assistant Special Education Director present.

As found in Issue One, the Student signed a Revocation of Consent for special education services on November 20, 2025, and a Prior Written Notice to cease all special education was provided to and signed by the Student. Written copies of these documents were mailed to the Student on November 23, 2025.

The Student was enrolled in the LEA High School and attended school on December 3, 2025. No special education was provided at that time, according to an interview with the Principal.

Conclusion

In this case, the Student revoked consent for special education after being enrolled in the LEA by the Foster Parent. The LEA provided PWN to the Student after the Student revoked consent for special education services. The Student subsequently attended the LEA high school and the LEA properly did not provide special education to the Student. Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to follow the proper procedure when the Student revoked consent and the LEA ceased to provide special education services according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.300(b)(4); K.A.R. 91-40-27(i), (k) and (l), and K.A.R. 91-40-1(l)(3).

Issue Four

Whether the LEA afforded the Student procedural safeguards and acquired informed consent from the Student when the Student revoked consent for special education services, according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.9; 34 C.F.R. § 300.635 and K.A.R.91-40-1(l).

Applicable Law

Federal/State statutes and regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.9 and K.A.R.91-40-1(l) define consent, meaning that all the following conditions are met: (1) the parent has been fully informed of all the information relevant to the activity for which consent is sought, (2) the parent understands and agrees in writing to the carrying out of the activity for which consent is sought and the consent describes that activity and lists the records, if any, that will be released and to whom, and (3) the parent understands the following: (A) the granting of consent is voluntary and may be revoked at any time (B) if the parent revokes consent the revocation is not retroactive and does not negate an action that has occurred after consent was given and before consent was revoked, and (C) the parent may revoke consent in writing for the continued provision of a particular service or placement only if the child's IEP team certifies in writing that the child does not need the particular service or placement for which consent is being revoked. As required by 34 C.F.R. § 300.635 the rights of privacy and records also transfer to the child upon age of majority and notice must be provided.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The Complainant alleged that the Student was persuaded to revoke consent for special education rights by being told that, if he revoked consent, he could go to the high school. The Complainant alleged that the Student was told he would have to go back to the special day school if he remained in special education.

The LEA denied this allegation.

Findings of Fact

The findings of Issue One, Issue Two and Issue Three are incorporated herein by reference.

The following findings are based upon a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and staff in the LEA.

The Assistant Special Education Director, in an interview, acknowledged that the special day school was her opinion of the best placement for the Student. The Assistant Special Education Director described the home visit with the Student and the Foster Parent on November 20, 2025, which included asking the Student what he wanted to do after high school and whether he wanted to acquire a GED. According to the Assistant Special Education Director, several effects of revoking consent were explained to the Student: (a) no resource room teaching, (b) no discipline help without special education, (c) no alternative room would be provided, (d) the Student needed many credits to graduate with a regular diploma, and (e) the question of Student would attend and be successful at the high school. According to the Assistant Special Education Director, the student repeatedly stated that he wished to revoke his consent for special education and wanted to attend the high school. The Assistant Special Education Director reported that Parent Rights were discussed with the Student, and documentation showed that a copy of the Parent Rights was mailed to the foster home with copies of the PWNs and Revocation of Rights signed by the Student.

Conclusion

In this case, the Student reached the age of 18 and revoked consent for special education. At the time that the Student revoked consent, the effects of the decision were explained by the LEA administrators, who also provided an oral explanation of the Parent Rights and a copy of the Parent Rights document by mail. Based on the foregoing, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to afford the Student procedural safeguards and acquired informed consent from the Student when the Student revoked consent for special education services, according to 34 C.F.R. § 300.9; 34 C.F.R. § 300.635 and K.A.R.91-40-1(l).

Background Information

This investigation involved a fifth-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in the LEA. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services with a primary eligibility of Emotional Disturbance (ED) and a Secondary disability of Learning Disability (LD) per the IDEA. The Student enjoys spending time outside, working with their hands, and having one-on-one time with adults.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On October 28, 2024, an IEP for the Student was developed. The IEP was developed while the Student was enrolled in a virtual school; therefore, no safety concerns were noted, and the Student's behavioral needs were addressed through "outside supports." (D193)
2. On March 26, 2025, a Team Meeting Notes document indicated the IEP team met to propose a schedule for the Student's return to the School. Notes indicated:
    a. The Parent requested an evaluation in Math.
    b. The Student would participate in a small-group math session in the general education setting.

c. The Student would take a break in room 408.
d. An adult would be assigned to "assure [the Student's] safety during recess."
e. The Student would attend specials for the entire time.
f. The team would screen to determine if the Student required support during intervention time.
g. The Student would need support during the LEA's reading curriculum.
h. The Student would eat lunch in the cafeteria with support from room 408.
i. The Parent recommended access to flexible seating for the Student.
j. The Parent asked to see the daily behavior chart either through email or Dojo.

The Parent requested half days, citing a recommendation from the Student's pediatrician for attending half days while they work up to full days due to the Student's mood disorder. The Principal indicated half days would be extreme. The Adaptive Special Education Teacher noted the Student's skills were near those of their peers. The Principal indicated they could work on skills if the Student were in school all day. The team decided on four full days a week with one earned day off each week when the Student met their behavior goals.
    b. The Team discussed setting a goal to reduce elopements to zero incidents. The Parent asked for targets that included no hands-on anyone, no cussing in front of peers, and no running off. (D13-D15)

o. A material change in services occurred.

p. A substantial change in placement occurred. (D26-D27)
The notice explained the Student required these changes because they were moving from a virtual school model to an in-person school. The Parent indicated they wanted the Student to be included with their peers, and the team built a schedule to provide those opportunities. (D29)
The Parent provided consent for these changes on April 17, 2025, and was hand-delivered a copy of the PWN on the same day. (D31)

        iv. The third social-emotional goal stated that, given a work/break routine and a reward system for the use of replacement behaviors, the Student would decrease elopement, such as leaving the classroom without explicit permission, or leaving an adult who is escorting them without explicit permission. 8. On August 10, 2025, the Adaptive Special Education Teacher emailed the Parent, the Principal, and additional general education staff to share the Parent wanted "all staff that work with [the Student]" to know the Student was on their third Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) medication since July, and added the Parent noticed "some good changes." (D3)
   On August 11, 2025, the Parent replied to the Adaptive Special Education Teacher's email to clarify they wanted to be informed of the Student's "behaviors, suicide attempts or thoughts, any physical touching of any staff or peers," and added it was important, with new meds, also to be informed of the Student's appetite.    The Student crawled under a table and began to choke themself, first with their hands and then with a chair. They then grabbed a sweatshirt and wrapped it around their neck, and pulled. When the Student's face turned red, a paraeducator unwrapped it as the Student "went limp" and moved them to the Turn Around Room (TAR). The Student continued to pretend to choke, ran out of the room, and hit a staff member. A paraeducator pushed the "help" button. (P38)

When the Social-Emotional Coach and Student Support Coordinator arrived, the Student yelled three times, "I'm going to kill myself." The Social-Emotional Coach asked the Student what they wanted control over, and the Student replied, "I want to go home." The Student continued to be disruptive with the lights, yelled at a student who tried to enter the room, flipped a table, and yelled at the Social-Emotional Coach to "shut the fuck up" and "shut the hell up" when told to go to TAR. The Student's mental health worker entered the room, and the Parent was called to be informed of the events. (P38)

10. On September 26, 2025, the Student's daily behavior goals sheet documented the percentage they met their goals in all areas by their morning check-in. They indicated they had been provided a copy of their Parents' Rights/Procedural Safeguards. (P33) (D84-D86)

(P1, 02:53) The Parent explained the Student had been harming themself at school since September and had a safety plan since they were in third grade. They added the safety plan had been updated around the crisis calls and stated it was always "pretty much the same." The Parent stated they shared the safety plan with the school every time there was a "crisis call." (P2, 04:04)

(P1, 02:53) The Parent stated the Superintendent told them staff couldn't remove items from the Student's classroom because it was not a "behavior room." (P2, 09:48)

(P2, 03:49) They shared the Student struggled with attendance and believed the Parent was "battling" the Student's desire to be at home. (P2, 04:47)
30. The Principal described the Student's behaviors as involving language such as, "I'm going to hurt myself. I'm going to harm myself. I don't feel safe." Additionally, the Student would engage in behaviors where they would put items in their mouth and threaten to swallow them, such as screws. (P2, 05:32) They described the Student attempting to "drink" the liquid from a dry-erase marker and stating, "I'm going to drink this so I kill myself." (P2, 06:34)
    The Principal confirmed the Student engaged in choking themself with their hands and other objects "pretty often." They described the staff response as taking the Student's hands down or removing the sweatshirt. They clarified they never felt the Student required medical attention for anything they had done physically. They added the only thing they recommended was a mental health crisis screening for the statements or actions. (P7, 24:23)
31. The Principal stated, although the Student engaged in unsafe talk and behaviors, there was a "motivating factor," or the Student was trying to gain access to something. They confirmed they took it seriously every time by having an adult present and by never leaving them unattended. (P4, 14:28)
    The Principal noted the Parent was upset because the Student was gaining access to objects and indicated that would be an "unreasonable" expectation in a school environment. They added the Student used their hands and a sweatshirt, suggesting there was "always something" the Student could access if they were "in that state of mind." (P8, 27:40)
32. The Principal stated they communicated verbally with the Parent when safety incidents occurred. They recalled an incident when the Student wrapped a sweatshirt "fairly tight" around their neck, adding they were around adults the entire time. The Principal confirmed they met with the Parent in person to discuss the incident after the Parent requested the meeting. (P5, 15:41)
    The Principal indicated the staff wrote down "certain words" that could be "interpreted or miscommunicated" and stated they told staff to be "very intentional" about the mode of communication and how they were communicating it. (P5, 16:45)

The Principal shared the Parent was concerned because they weren't notified until the end of the day, rather than when it happened. The Principal indicated they interviewed staff who stated they did not have "a medical or a safety concern for the [Student]" following the incident.

33. The Principal noted they felt they needed to communicate with the Parent to let them know what was happening, and to do so in a way that was "effectively" conveying what needed to be shared. (P5, 17:43) The Principal added the Student's plan indicated they were to have daily behavior charts sent home, and confirmed they made sure this was happening after the Parent notified them they weren't receiving them daily. (P5, 18:38)
    The Principal confirmed daily communication occurred through the behavior teacher and stated they would make a phone call in the event of a crisis safety situation. The Principal stated they and the Parent agreed the Principal would text the Parent as soon as they knew the Student was safe to reduce the Parent's anxiety, rather than receiving a call from the School. (P6, 21:17)
    The Principal stated ESI was separate from the Student's plan and was taken as needed. (P8, 28:35) They described, in general, they used ESI when a Student was being extremely dangerous or was going to cause immediate harm. They noted in those cases, they would use seclusion or a restraint, and all the incidents would need to be documented and communicated to the parent. The Principal recalled there was a "very small amount" of seclusions recorded for the Student during the Semester and indicated they would all have been given to the Parent on the day of the incident. (P8, 29:01, 30:01)
34. The Principal stated during both the incident on November 18, 2025, when the Student tried to swallow push pins, and during the incident on November 20, 2025, when the Student tried to swallow loose screws from the desk, there were multiple staff present and noted the Student willingly handed the objects over "after a certain point." The Principal stated the Student used them as a negotiation tactic. The Principal said the Student told them, "You know I'm not really going to swallow this." (P7, 25:43)
35. The Principal stated the Student was lying on their stomach and placed the objects in the front of their mouth. They shared they talked the Student through the situation until the Student was calm and regulated, and then the Student handed the objects to the Principal. The Principal stated the Student was seeking attention, and they gave it to the Student in that moment so the Student could regulate and move on to the next thing. (P7, 26:44)

Superintendent Interview

36. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Superintendent confirmed the people on the recorded phone call on November 20, 2025, were the Superintendent, the Parent, and the Director. (P1, 01:01, P2, 04:57)
    They stated the Parent had requested the meeting to discuss what was going on at school with the Student and their safety. The Parent mentioned they were waiting for the Student to be screened by mental health. (P2, 04:07)

37. The Superintendent described the best way to ensure the Student's safety at school was by having "active supervision" of the Student. They stated in all cases brought to their office, there was always adult supervision. (P2, 05:54)
    The Superintendent stated they told the Parent they did not believe the Student could create an unsafe situation with their own hands and added they could de-escalate a situation "far better" through communication than through hands-on intervention with a student. They said they wouldn't intervene physically until it got to the point where they felt like the Student was "truly unsafe." (P2, 06:50)
    The Superintendent explained the law stated they couldn't use ESI unless there were an immediate danger or harm to the Student. They indicated staff had to make their "best judgment" at the time to determine whether there was immediate danger. The Superintendent stated they did not believe any of the incidents involving the screws, sweatshirt, or the Student's hands required physical intervention. (P3, 07:48) The Superintendent stated they felt the safest place for the Student was at school every day. (P3, 10:20)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #413, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented the Student's IEP, specifically by providing a safe educational environment and all necessary safety-related supports and services as written in the IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b); 34 CFR § 300.323(a)(c)(2).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b), each agency shall ensure that an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child. Those services for which written consent has been granted as specified by law must be implemented not later than 10 school days after parental consent is granted unless a reasonable justification for a delay can be shown. An IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

The Parent alleged the School was not keeping the Student safe, not following the IEP regarding removing objects to prevent immediate safety issues for the Student, and not following the safety/crisis plan that is part of the IEP.

The LEA responded they had fully implemented the safety plan as developed by the IEP team. Staff had taken proactive steps to maintain a safe learning environment, including inspecting classroom furniture for loose screws, removing or securing potential hazards, and ensuring that the physical environment remained appropriate given the Student's identified needs. The LEA maintains the measures were consistent with the LEA's obligation to provide a safe educational setting while implementing the IEP with fidelity. The LEA further stated all actions taken had been consistent with the IDEA requirements and the guidance outlined in the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

The "deference" the United States Supreme court instructs that is to be given to school officials on these matters occurs when school districts have a "a cogent and responsive explanation for their decisions." In this case, the school officials have provided that cogent and responsive explanation for their decisions.

The evidence indicates this Student was never left alone, was under constant observation, and staff used their "best judgement" to determine whether the Student was "truly unsafe." ESI was used on two occasions when staff made the judgement that intervention was necessary.

The evidence further indicates that the Student has used this behavior as a "negotiating tactic," and on at least one occasion admitted that, "You know I'm not really going to swallow this." The Principal correctly noted that removing every conceivable object that could be used for self-harm would be an "unreasonable" expectation in a school environment" and that there was "always something" the Student could access if they were "in that state of mind."

All of these observations by the school officials are valid points. Equally valid is the observation that immediate physical intervention when there is no immediate danger to the Student is not permitted by law. Hence, other techniques must be attempted before using physical restraint. In short, school districts are not required by special education law to completely insolate a student from the physical school environment, even if that was possible. Perhaps a more restrictive environment should be considered for this student (of course that would require parent consent).

The allegation that the district failed to implement the Student's IEP, specifically by not providing a safe educational environment and all necessary safety-related supports and services as written in the IEP is not substantiated.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has not substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. No corrective action is required. It is suggested that if the IEP team believes the present school environment is unsafe for this student the Team should consider alternative environments.

Background Information

This investigation involved a middle school-aged student who was newly enrolled at Eisenhower Middle School in USD #383 for the 2025-26 school year. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA. The Parent contacted USD #383 multiple times prior to the Student's enrollment and was particularly interested in the Student being provided with smaller school setting. The Student enrolled on July 30, 2025 and school started on August 12, 2025. The LEA accepted the Student's eligibility and transfer IEP from the Former LEA, which was in-state, and held an IEP meeting shortly after school started.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. In an undated Diagnosis and Treatment Plan from the Psychiatrist, the Student was diagnosed with "generalized anxiety disorder" (GAD) and "Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder" (PTSD).
2. In a March 14, 2025 email to the Parent, the Coordinator thanked them for the conversation "today" and encouraged them to reach out with "any other questions or concerns."

3. In a May 5, 2025 PWN, the Former LEA proposed changes to the IEP, not involving services or placement.
    a. The PWN noted a May 5, 2025 meeting to review data and determine any additions, changes, or modifications needed for the IEP.
    b. The description included the specific changes to Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) in the IEP.
    c. The explanation was "[The Student's] IEP has come due and [the Student] continues to show a need in reading and math remediation skills."
    d. Options considered were the Student having a study skills class, but this was rejected due to the Student wanting to continue with two electives within the general education setting.
    e. The data used were the Student's reading program scores, curriculum work, assessment program scores, and progress reports.
    f. The request for consent was signed by the Parent on May 6, 2025. The delivery page indicated the Former Case Manager sent the PWN with the Student on May 2, 2025.
4. A May 5, 2025 Conference Summary IEP Team Considerations documented the Student's IEP meeting and noted the Parent "stated concerns about [the Student] doing fine on daily work but then performing poorly on quizzes" in science class. The Parent also "requested a 'translation' pen to help [the Student] read individual words," and the Former LEA agreed to purchase one for school use and amend the IEP "to reflect use of [the] translation pen" when the pen arrived.
5. The Student's May 5, 2025 IEP listed a primary disability of Other Health Impairment (OHI) with the most recent evaluation being completed on May 7, 2024. The IEP included the following relevant information:
    a. Parent input was to "discuss assistive technology and supports for school personnel."
    b. The Student required a goal in reading because their "dyslexia shows in [the Student's] ability to read accurately and fluently." The Student was "at least two to three grades lower than that of [their] peers in reading skills." The reading goal was:
        i. "In 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will read at 90% accuracy in digraph[s], vowel teams, and blends in sentence form from a set list in a literacy program in two out of three trials." There are four benchmarks for the reading goal.
    c. The Student required a goal in math because they were "more than two grades below the level of [their] peers" and their dyslexia "hinders [the Student's] ability to read numbers in the correct order." The math goal was:
        i. "In 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will solve 4th[-]grade geometry problems with 70% accuracy based on 2 out of 3 trials." There were four benchmarks for the math goal.

d. The Student required a goal in written language because they struggled "with the words that [they] cannot decode phonetically and irregularly spelled words" and they are "at least two to three grades lower than that of [their] peers in writing skills." The written language goal was:
    i. "In 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will spell digraphs, vowel teams, and blends, from a set list in a literacy program at 90% accuracy in two out of three trials." There were four benchmarks for the math goal.
e. Accommodations, modifications, and supplementary aides for the duration of the IEP included the following for all core subjects:
    i. Break down directions, when multi-step directions were given, one to two directions at a time;
    ii. Directions in order, when multi-step directions would be misunderstood in the sequence, until the task was completed;
    iii. Simplified writing answers, when answers were to be in complete sentences, unless being assessed for complete sentence writing, until the writing was completed;
    iv. Preferential seating, with a seat close to the teacher or door in math/reading, during the class period;
    v. Quiet location for testing, for any assessment, until the assessment was completed; and
    vi. Assignments and assessments were to be read aloud when the assignment or assessment was at grade level, until the assignment or assessment was completed.
f. Additional accommodations, modifications, and supplementary aides for the duration of the IEP included:
    i. Modified notes, when note-taking was more than five continuous minutes, "up to 50% filled in of that of a peer," for science and social studies;
    ii. Speech to text, when paragraph writing was presented, until the paragraph was completed, in English Language Arts (ELA); and
    iii. Math manipulatives, when math computations were presented until math computations were completed in math and science.
g. Assistive Technology Services/Devices included the use of a translation pen when the Student was working independently, in all of their classes, during the Student's "choice and however long [the Student] needs it," from August 11, 2025 through May 4, 2026. It was noted during a team meeting the use of the translation pen was to "help create independency [sic] in reading materials," the pen would be purchased for the 2025-26 school year, and the pen would be for "school use only."
h. Special education and related services for the duration of the IEP included:

   i. In-class support, "Special Ed[ucation] Direct Services in Reg[ular] Ed[ucation] Classroom," for 75 minutes, 5 days per week.
   ii. Pull out services, "Special Ed[ucation] Classroom in Reg[ular] Ed[ucation] Class Building," for 90 minutes, 5 days per week.

i. The Student would participate in the "general version of all assessments."

j. Beginning May 5, 2025, "[the Student] will have the opportunity to participate with non-identified peers in all general education classes and curriculum except for when [the Student] is pull[ed] for 90 minutes x 5 days a week for reading and math."

k. Beginning August 11, 2025, "[the Student] will have the opportunity to participate with non-identified peers in all general education classes and curriculum except for when [the Student] is pull[ed] for 90 minutes x 5 days a week for reading and math."

l. The IEP was signed by the Parent on May 6, 2025.

m. IEP meeting participants included the Parent, a general education teacher, a Former LEA representative, and the Former Case Manager. A copy of the IEP was provided to the Parent by the Former Case Manager on May 12, 2025.

6. The Student's Progress Report for the end of the 2024-25 school year indicated the Student was "Making Progress" on their reading and writing goals, and "Making Progress" with benchmark 1.1 for each goal, for "Period 4" of the 2024-25 school year. Each goal, along with benchmark 1.1 for the goals, contained comments and data specific to the Student's progress.
7. The Student's May 12, 2025 Progress Report for IEP Goals reported the following relevant progress:
   a. Reading Goal progress was listed as "moderate improvement" on May 1, 2025, March 31, 2025, and December 20, 2024. The report was "hand-delivered" on May 12, 2025 and April 1, 2025.
   b. Written Language Goal progress was listed as "moderate improvement" on May 1, 2025, March 31, 2025, and December 20, 2024. The report was "hand-delivered" on May 12, 2025 and April 1, 2025.
   c. Math Goal progress was listed as "mastered" on May 1, 2025, and "moderate improvement" on March 31, 2025, and December 20, 2024. The report was "hand-delivered" on May 12, 2025 and April 1, 2025.
8. In a June 12, 2025 PWN, the Former LEA proposed changes to the IEP, not involving services or placement.
   a. The PWN noted a June 12, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services, the appropriate placement, and any additions, changes, or modifications needed for the IEP.

b. Description: The Parent requested a due process hearing on June 3, 2025, and a team met to "resolve the issues that were listed in the request" on June 12, 2025.
    i. The proposed resolutions from the Former LEA were:
        1. An Independent Educational Evaluation (IEE) to take place right away;
        2. Removal of parts of the recent evaluation that referred to "lack of instruction"; and
        3. Compensatory services for January through May, 2024.
    ii. The proposed resolutions from the Parent were:
        1. The Former LEA would pay for a private school placement; and
        2. Reimbursement "for all tutoring done during the time that [the Student] was homeschooled."
c. The explanation for each of the proposals was as follows:
    i. For (i)(1), the Parent refused the IEE "because [they are] getting other testing" for the Student, they didn't want the Student to "go through testing again," and the Parent "stated that [they] didn't think it would change anything."
    ii. For (i)(2), the Parent refused the removal of the reference because it would not accurately reflect how the Parent "felt during the meeting," which was "being targeted for homeschooling [the Student]."
    iii. For (i)(3), the Parent refused the proposal of compensatory minutes because they were not going to send the Student to the Grade School. It was noted the Student "entered the [Former LEA] with an outdated IEP by 2.5 years" and the Former LEA was unsure of when the Student's teacher was made aware of the IEP, and also unsure how many minutes of services were served during the time prior to the evaluation being completed and the IEP being written, which was the reason for offering compensatory services.
    iv. For (ii)(1), the Former LEA refused to pay for private school tuition for the Student because the Student received a FAPE at the Grade School, made gains on IEP goals, passed their classes, and showed improvement on test scores.
    v. For (ii)(2), the Former LEA refused to reimburse for tutoring because the "tutoring was done while the Student was being homeschooled."
d. Options considered were to continue services at the Grade School, but the Parent had "exited" the Student.
e. The data used were the Student's evaluation report, progress reports, assessment program scores, and grades.

f. The other relevant factors section noted, "[The] harmful effect of not coming to a resolution is [that] now[,] the team will have to participate in a due process hearing."

g. The delivery page and request for consent did not include any writing or documented attempts.

9. On a July 23, 2025 "phone notes" call log, the Coordinator documented a call with the Parent. Notes included "Dr. recommended smaller school - PTSD- Dyscalculia- initial concern," "Agreed to send documentation," "Last Eval[uation] 2024," "Told [the Parent, the Student] must be enrolled," "wants [the LEA] to pay for [private school]," and "Probably recording me- did not disclose."

10. In a July 25, 2025 email to the Coordinator, the Parent attached "the new diagnosis" and asserted their desire to "go by the guidance and recommendations of [the Psychiatrist] … and request to have it added to [the Student's] IEP for [the Student] to attend a smaller school environment." They stated their preference for which school they wanted the Student to attend and added, "I don't see how [the School] can meet [the Psychiatrist's] recommendations and concerns for [the Student's] needs with this disability, without restricting [the Student's] environment." The Parent inquired whether they needed to wait until school started to have a meeting.

11. In an August 4, 2025 letter, the Speech Language Pathologist (SLP) declared their agreement with the Psychiatrist's recommendation for the Student to attend a "smaller, more supportive school setting." The letter consisted of general information about how PTSD can impact a student's functioning and noted the Student's recent diagnosis of PTSD and GAD.

12. In an August 11, 2025 email to 12 staff members, the Case Manager attached a document called "Infinite Campus Passport Access," which outlined instructions on how to access passports. The Case Manager informed them the document "shows how to get the passport if you need it for one of my students" and to let the Case Manager know "if you still aren't able to access any of my students." In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager described this email they sent to all the Student's teachers with specific instructions on how to access the passport, which included all the Student's pertinent IEP information.

13. In an undated document titled [the Student's] schedule, with "C" minutes referring to direct special education services provided within the general education classroom and "G" minutes referring to direct special education services delivered in a special education setting, the schedule was outlined as follows:

    a. "ELA" support from the Case Manager, "C→G";

    b. "Sci[ence]" support from an unknown staff member, "C";

    c. "Social Studies" support from the Case Manager and an unknown staff member, "C";

    d. "PE" without support listed;

    e. "[Learning Strategies] LS" with support from the Case Manager, "G";

f. "Math" with support from an unknown staff member, "C→G"; and

g. "3D Art" without support listed.

In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager described this document. "That was the hours that [the Student] had each class, and then what person was responsible for providing services that are in the IEP that hour. And so ELA, first hour was with me for the [direct services in the general education setting] and [direct services in the special education setting] split core model that we do. Second hour was science, and that one was with [a] paraeducator. Third hour was social studies, and that one was covered by a paraeducator or me on days that I had extra free time was caught up on stuff, PE doesn't have services, and Learning Strategies is [direct services in the special education setting] minutes with me. Math was [the] same as first hour where there's a [direct services in the general education setting] and [direct services in the special education setting] split core model that we do. 3D art does not have any service minutes provided in it."

14. In an August 19, 2025 Staffing Summary, the purpose of the staffing was an "IEP Meeting- Initial Placement." Those in attendance were the Parent, a LEA representative, the Case Manager, the Coordinator, and a general education teacher. Relevant discussion details were as follows:

    a. The Parent requested that the LEA pay for private school "due to PTSD diagnosis" and because the Student needed a "less stimulating, smaller environment" as determined by an outside therapist.

    b. The LEA cited "we have only known [the Student] for six days, and we don't have the data to support that this move is needed."

    c. It was noted the team wanted the Student to be in "the [Least Restrictive Environment] LRE and not isolated from peers," and they would monitor as the school year progressed.

    d. The Parent was "concerned about the risk of suicide."

    e. The LEA stated they would "not pay for a private school until there is evidence to [sic] need" and the Parent inquired what would determine need.

    f. The Parent asserted "[they do] not agree with this response."

    g. The Parent indicated the Student was still struggling with their locker and "is not able to communicate that with [an] adult."

    h. The Parent inquired what the LEA needed "to see to determine [the Student] needs an alternative" placement. The LEA cited they needed time to get to know the Student, understand their needs, and determine if the Student was making progress.

    i. The Parent reiterated the therapist's suggestion for smaller class sizes and asked the LEA to consider the alternative placement. The Case Manager recommended a release of information (ROI). The Parent did not believe the Student would show signs of "mental health struggles" at school.

15. In an August 19, 2025 PWN, the LEA proposed initial services and placement, along with a change in services.
    a. The PWN noted an August 19, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services needed and the appropriate educational placement.
    b. The description indicated the LEA was "accepting the IEP as written from [the Former LEA] with the proposal of an increase in [direct services in the general education setting] minutes." Minutes were described as "Special education services [direct services in the special education setting] for 90 minutes daily as long as school is in session. Special education services [direct services in the general education setting] for 120 minutes daily as long as school is in session."
    c. The explanation provided was the proposed services "best meet [the Student's] needs, while allowing [them] to spend as much time as possible in the general education setting."
    d. Options considered were "more or less time," but the proposed action would best meet the needs of the Student and the LRE.
    e. The data used were all from the Former LEA and included the Student's reading program scores, curriculum work, assessment program scores, and progress reports.
    f. Other relevant factors included potential harmful effects due to the "social stigma and/or absence of general education classroom activities."
    g. The request for consent did not include any signatures. The delivery page indicated the Case Manager emailed the PWN to the Parent on August 19, 2025.
16. In an August 19, 2025 email to the Parent, the Case Manager attached the PWN and parental procedures and safeguards, and included an ROI for the Student's service providers.

    The Parent replied on August 20, 2025, included the Coordinator, and indicated they were "not able to sign the PWN." They stated, "No goals have been listed, and there is no definition of success or failure during this trial period over the next month." They added they had asked about this "several times in the meeting and have yet to receive an answer." They closed with "I also have not given and do not give any permission for any unlicensed professionals, or school counselors, to visit with or discuss any mental health issues with my child."

    In the LEA's response to the complaint, it was noted the "documentation [provided] by the Parent consisted of partial and heavily redacted materials lacking identifying information for the evaluators or the facilities where the evaluations were conducted" and "the Parent declined to sign a release of information to obtain any additional records." They added "given that the documents received were incomplete, unverifiable, and in many parts redacted, [the LEA] could not legally or ethically rely on them as the basis for an IEP revision under 34 CFR §300.324(b)(1)."

17. In an August 20, 2025 PWN, the LEA refused to initiate or change the identification, educational placement, or provision of special education.
    a. The PWN noted an August 19, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services, the appropriate placement, and any additions, changes, or modifications needed for the IEP.
    b. The description indicated the LEA refused to assume financial responsibility for private school tuition because the LEA "is offering the Student a FAPE … The Student is new to the [LEA] and [the LEA] is currently implementing the Student's most recent IEP within the public school environment."
    c. The explanation of why this was refused noted, "Because [the LEA] is implementing the Student's IEP in a setting at a public school site that addresses [the Student's] needs, the obligation to fund a private school placement does not arise."
    d. Options considered were the Parent's request to fund private school, and this option was rejected "because the [LEA] is already providing an appropriate program and services in the [LRE] within the public school system."
    e. The data used was the Student's current IEP, enrollment records "documenting that the Student is new to the [LEA], and IEP team input from the most recent IEP meeting."
    f. Other relevant factors to the refusal included the LEA's commitment to collaboration with the Parent and to implementing the Student's IEP.
    g. The delivery page indicated the Director emailed the PWN to the Parent on August 20, 2025.
18. A series of note documents dated August 20, September 15, October 8 and 27, and December 8, 2025, included checkboxes for "attendance" with staff members' names (including the Case Manager and the Assistant Principal), and sections titled "Agenda," "Events," "Notes," and "Student Concerns." The Student was listed under "notes" or "student concerns" on the August 20, September 15, October 27, and December 12 documents.

    In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager described these documents as notes for "team meetings." The teams were made up of "four core teachers, the special education teacher, and then elective teachers," and "meet Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and discuss students in need. I get to let teachers know about upcoming IEPs, ask questions for data collection, [and] administration comes in, and they get their questions [answered] about student needs." The Director, who was an observer in the interview, noted this was an illustration of the LEA's process for "ongoing collaboration and consultation with general education teachers." 19. In an August 20, 2025 email to the Parent, the Director attached a PWN documenting a request the Parent made at an IEP meeting on August 19, 2025. "This notice serves to formally inform you that the district is denying your request for the district to assume responsibility for private school tuition." A PWN and Parent Rights were attached to the email.

The Parent replied to the Director on August 22, 2025, and clarified they were not "just making a request" and the request was "based on recommendations of a smaller school environment, due to the diagnosis of PTSD and anxiety, directly related to [the Student's] school experience." The Parent reiterated the LEA's "knowledge of this is known and documented."

The Director replied on August 27, 2025 to "acknowledge" the email from the Parent and to "clarify" the LEA's obligations under state and federal law. The Director expressed the Student's progress would "continue to be measured using the data collected on the goals and objectives in [the Student's] current IEP. … data collected on those goals will be the basis for documenting progress over the next month." They reiterated no new goals were added to the IEP. They also explained the need for the Parent's consent to add "C" minutes (direct services in the general education setting) to the IEP.

The Parent replied on August 28, 2025 and stated they did not know what "'C' minutes or 'G' minutes refer to" and asked for clarification regarding the amount of time the Student was pulled out of class. They also asked if the Learning Strategies class was taking the place of an elective.

The Parent replied about two hours later and inquired why the Student was in their advisory class with the Case Manager, also in the Learning Strategies class, and "how much time each day is [the Student] spending with [the Case Manager] or other special education teachers and students?"

The Director replied on September 3, 2025, included the Case Manager and the Coordinator, and clarified, "'C' minutes refer to direct special education services provided within the general education classroom. … 'G' minutes refer to direct special education services delivered in a special education setting." The Director indicated the Student's IEP reflects "a balance" between the two types of minutes, and the Student was "not being removed from general education for three and one-half hours each day." They explained the "C" minutes (direct services in the general education setting) occur as direct services in general education, and the "G" minutes (direct services in the special education setting) continued to be 90 minutes, which was reflected in the IEP the LEA and the Parent both accepted. They clarified the Learning Strategies course to be for specialized instruction in skills such as organization, executive functioning, and curriculum support, and placement in that course was "an IEP team decision." They added, the majority of the Student's day was in general education and clarified their involvement in the process and in the meetings was a reflection of the LEA ensuring "accuracy and compliance when questions arise regarding placement, service coding, or funding." They reiterated the Parent's right to "ask questions, bring individuals of your choice to meetings, and participate in all decisions regarding [the Student's] education."

20. Accommodation Log checklists dated August 21 through November 21, 2025, listed the Student's IEP accommodations with a checkmark to note the accommodation was used on the day and class "hour" listed. Accommodations on the checklist included "assignments and assessments read out loud," "break down directions," "math manipulatives," "modified notes," "one to two directions at a time," "preferential seating," "quiet location of testing," "speech[-]to[-]text," and "simplified writing answers." There were 64 school days represented, and the majority of the school days included documentation for Hour 1, Hour 2, Hour 3, Hour 5, and Hour 6.

21. In an August 27, 2025 PWN, the LEA proposed initial services and placement, and to make a material change in services.
    a. The PWN noted an August 19, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services, the appropriate placement, and any additions, changes, or modifications needed for the IEP.
    b. The description indicated the LEA was "accepting the IEP as written from [the Former LEA] with the proposal of an increase of [direct services in the general education setting] minutes listed below: Services: [August 12, 2025 through May 4, 2026]: Special education services [direct services in the special education setting] for 90 minutes daily as long as school is in session. Special education services [direct services in the general education setting] for 120 minutes daily as long as school is in session."
    c. The explanation of why this was proposed noted the team believed this best met the Student's needs and allowed them to spend "as much time as possible" in a general education setting.
    d. Options considered were more or less time, but the "proposed action is both appropriate and necessary to meet the Student's needs" in the LRE.
    e. The data used was the Student's data from the Former LEA.
    f. Other relevant factors to the proposal included a possible social stigma when services were provided, but this was "outweighed by the benefits" and necessary for the Student to receive a FAPE.
    g. The delivery page indicated the Director emailed the PWN to the Parent on August 27, 2025.
22. In a series of emails starting September 8, 2025, the Parent inquired with the LEA about a 504 evaluation. "While the IEP request was denied, I am requesting a 504 for more appropriate placement in a smaller school environment, due to the [Student's] diagnosis of PTSD and anxiety, directly related to school, as discussed with the Psychiatrist." The LEA staff connected the Parent with the School staff, who provided them with a form to complete.

    On September 9, 2025, the Director replied and added PWNs that had previously been provided and responded to the 504 request by sending "a separate email including you, our district 504 coordinator, and the [Principal]."

    On September 10, 2025, the Case Manager sent a meeting reminder and notice of meeting for the September 16, 2025 meeting.

The Parent replied to the Case Manager, the Director, and the Coordinator on September 11, 2025, that the time would work for them. They outlined their perception of requests being denied, so they were confused why the meeting was happening because they were "not clear on what we would be meeting to discuss."

The Case Manager replied on September 12, 2025, and stated the meeting was scheduled to discuss the Student's progress at the School and to "review data that has been collected based on [the Student's] current IEP."

The Parent replied the same day, inquired about progress reports, and asked to see the data that had been collected, in writing. They stated they were "still not sure if we need to keep this meeting." The Parent replied a few minutes later and requested "an accommodation log for August 2021- December 2023."

On September 15, 2025, the Parent emailed the Principal, the Director, and the Assistant Principal in the newly started 504 email chain and stated, "I have already had a formal evaluation with a diagnosis. I have sent that to the IEP team, do I need to resubmit to this team, as well?" They sent another email approximately one hour later, and added that the Psychiatrist "and team" attended an IEP meeting and introduced "this diagnosis and the diagnosis of dyscalculia." The Parent reported they had that meeting recorded, so "there will be no 'misunderstanding' of what [the Psychiatrist] told the [team]." They mentioned the "diagnosis of Auditory Processing Disorder (APD) should be in the school records from the previous school."

23. A September 16, 2025 Staffing Summary documented notes from a "staffing/case review" with the Parent, an LEA representative, the Case Manager, the Director, a general education teacher, and the Coordinator present. The Discussion details outlined the meeting as follows:
    a. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the Student's progress and the Parent declined the invitation for the Student to attend.
    b. A teacher reported the Student was "turning in quality work," and "other teachers" reported the Student was "doing well." It was noted the Student was being provided with "read aloud and oral response" in social studies, and the Student was "able to advocate and ask for support when [they were] struggling in class."
    c. The Case Manager reported the Student was getting "63% accuracy" on their spelling goal, was working on their geometry goal in a general education setting, was earning "a 93% with [their] class in geometry," averaging 70% toward the current reading goal, and "doing well in progress toward all of [the Student's] IEP goals."
    d. There was discussion about the Student starting a support group for other students on IEPs. The Director shared how the Student could go about this, and also warned they needed "to be mindful of confidentiality."

e. The Parent asked about the translator pen, and it was noted the Student "does have this, but [they] also have a lot of resources on their school-issued iPad to help [them] access the general education curriculum."

f. The Parent asked about the Learning Strategies class taking place of an elective, and it was noted "the IEP team determines [the] appropriate placement for [the Student] and the pullout service." The Parent contended the Student needed a "mental break in order to access [their] education," and the Student wanted to take a choir elective for this purpose. It was shared the process was to review data and then determine if the Student's current placement "still continues to be the most appropriate placement."

g. The Parent shared concern that the team and the School staff would not see "the side of [the Student] when [they] struggle" and the Parent continued to be concerned about the Student's placement.

h. The Parent requested that the Student do a partial schedule of choir and Learning Strategies, and the Director noted consideration of "state requirements."

i. The Parent asked the team if they had observed the Student having difficulty hearing. Nobody had observed this, and they discussed the Student's accommodation of preferential seating.

j. The Case Manager noted their willingness to collaborate with the Parent, the Director asked the Parent about the request for accommodation logs, and "it was clarified that [the Parent] was requesting the IEP services." The Director agreed to send the information.

24. On September 24, 2025 there was an in-person parent-teacher conference with the Parent and the Case Manager. The District response noted "[The Student's] IEP progress report was reviewed with the Parent" during this time.

25. In an October 3, 2025 PWN, the LEA refused to initiate or change the identification, educational placement, or provision of special education.

    a. The PWN noted a September 16, 2025 meeting to review data and determine the appropriate placement and any additions, changes, or modifications needed for the IEP.

    b. The description indicated the LEA denied the Parent's request of splitting time in choir and Learning Strategies, and the Student would continue receiving services as written in the IEP because the placement "continues to provide the supports necessary for [the Student] to work toward [their] IEP goals to ensure a FAPE in the LRE."

    c. The explanation of why this was refused noted they carefully reviewed the Student's present levels of "academic performance, progress monitoring data, and classroom functioning" and determined:

        i. The Student continued to require the support of the Learning Strategies course to make progress in their IEP goals;

ii. Reducing Learning Strategies minutes would "diminish the instructional time needed to address [the Student's] identified areas of need";

iii. Learning strategies provided "specialized instruction and targeted interventions aligned with [the Student's] IEP," which was unavailable in another setting; and

iv. "Ensuring adequate access" to Learning Strategies was necessary for the LEA to provide the Student a FAPE.

d. Options considered were the Parent's request for split time in an elective and Learning Strategies, but this was "rejected because it would reduce the instructional time and individualized support" the Student required, would "risk regression on IEP goals," and the inconsistency would reduce access to SDI and "interfere with continuity of support." Maintaining Learning Strategies as currently written in the IEP ensured "consistency of service delivery, alignment with IEP goals, and compliance with FAPE requirements."

e. The data used were the Student's most recent IEP goals and objectives, progress monitoring data collected by special education staff, general education teacher input, and the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

f. Other relevant factors included the consideration of "parental input" and the "primary responsibility of [the LEA] to ensure [the Student] receives a FAPE in the LRE. The team believes that continuing Learning Strategies services best balance access to the general curriculum with the [SDI] required for [the Student's] educational progress."

g. The delivery page indicated the Director emailed the PWN to the Parent on September 18, 2025. There were no signatures on the consent page.

26. In an October 3, 2025 email to the Parent, the Director indicated "the team feels" the Learning Strategies class "continues to be the best course for [the Student]" to support IEP goals and provide services. The Director also explained that PWNs "can sometimes sound very formal," and asserted the LEA's intention was to "ensure clear communication while continuing to work in partnership" with the Parent.

    The Parent replied on October 6, 2025 and questioned the appropriateness of the Student's accommodations or the adequacy of instruction. They also inquired whether "other groups or individuals are singled out and lose the option" of an elective course.

27. In an October 20, 2025 email to the Case Manager, the Parent asked what "percentage [of the Student's] workload has been reduced."

    The Case Manager replied on October 24, 2025, and explained the two areas of modification for the Student were modified notes and simplified writing. For modified notes, "the IEP specifies [the Student] completes up to 50% of the writing done by [their] peers," and for simplified writing, there was not a specified percentage, but "I would estimate that it reduces [the Student's] workload by 50%." The Case Manager also noted there had been discussion of shortening assignments when the Student shows mastery of a topic, which could "reduce the workload of an assignment by 23%-50%."

The Parent replied on October 27, 2025, and claimed the Student "was punished because [they] had missing work. At one point, 28 missing assignments. … You know [the Student's] struggling and, not only are no changes being made, [the Student] is being punished for not being able to keep up this workload."

28. In a November 14, 2025, 9:57 a.m. email to the Case Manager, the Parent requested specific items related to the Student's progress:
    a. "A clearly stated method of assessment" for each goal, "including baseline data."
    b. "A consistent schedule of progress reporting," at least every reporting period.
    c. "Actual data" included in the progress report, "not general statements."
    d. If "progress is not sufficient," have a prompt IEP team meeting.
    e. "I am requesting progress updates every 4 weeks," and alluded that the most recent report was "vague."

    The same day, in a 9:59 a.m. email to the Case Manager, the Parent made a formal request for "specific accommodations, supports, and assistive technology" for the Student. The Parent noted the Student's disabilities, "dyslexia, dysgraphia, and dyscalculia," and the impact on "reading, writing, and math." The Parent added the requested accommodations "fall within what is permissible under IDEA and Section 504." Supports requested were:
    f. "Reading Supports" for Dyslexia included 10 accommodations, three instructional supports, and four assistive technology supports;
    g. "Writing Supports" for Dysgraphia included nine accommodations, three instructional supports, and four assistive technology supports;
    h. "Math Supports" for Dyscalculia included nine accommodations, three instructional supports, and three assistive technology supports; and
    i. "General Accommodations" included preferential seating, frequent checks for understanding, clear and concise directions, organizational support, flexible scheduling, and, [the] ability to take tests in a quiet environment.

    The Case Manager replied on November 20, 2025 at 12:49 p.m., acknowledged receipt of "emails from November 14, 2025" regarding accommodation requests and progress reports, and assured the LEA would respond to the requests by December 5, 2025.
29. In a November 19, 2025, 8:04 p.m. email to the Director, the Case Manager, and the Principal, the Parent requested copies of "all records documenting the implementation of IEP accommodations for [the Student]." The Parent set the expectation of this being provided "within 10 school days of receipt of this request" and cited pertinent state regulations. The list of requested items included:
    a. "Daily, weekly, or cumulative accommodation logs maintained by any general education or special education staff";

b. "Documentation identifying which accommodations were provided, the dates on which they were implemented, the setting and class/subject, and the person(s) responsible for implementation";

c. "Records showing frequency, duration, method, or manner in which each accommodation was delivered";

d. "Any internal forms, checklists, electronic logs, digital records, or data tracking tools used by the district or by individual staff to monitor the provision of accommodations"; and

e. "Documentation of any omitted or missed accommodations, including explanations where available."

On December 1, 2025, the Director replied to the Parent, with the Case Manager and the Principal included, and attached the Student's "Daily Accommodation Log Tracker," which was the tool used to track and monitor the implementation of accommodations on the Student's IEP. The Director indicated this was a reflection of the LEA's "ongoing commitment to ensuring fidelity of implementation and compliance" with the Student's IEP.

On December 2, 2025, the Parent replied, "I am missing quite a bit of requested information here," and noted they only had "the attached accommodation log," and this was the second time they had made a request and not received information. They indicated the "last time I requested accommodations, you sent me the pdf of an IEP."

The Parent replied eight minutes later and requested "all IEP notes, correspondence and recordings from the IEP meetings in September and October. Including the email request to [the Teacher] to sponsor a group/club, as requested by [the Student]."

30. In a November 20, 2025, 2:44 p.m. email to the Case Manager, the Parent requested IEP accommodations for PTSD and Anxiety:

a. "Environmental and trauma-informed supports" to include access to a designated calming space, "trauma-sensitive classroom practices," and preferential seating.

b. "Academic supports" to include "reduced workload by 50% without reducing instructional standards across all subjects," "chunking and scaffolding of assignments," extended time for class work and tests, option for alternative formats to demonstrate mastery, copies of all class notes or guided notes, "avoid calling on [the Student] unexpectedly," and "reduced homework when [the Student's] disability limits stamina."

c. "Testing accommodations" to include small-group or individual testing environment, extended time, breaks during testing, a "quiet, low-distraction testing setting," and "avoid timed tests when possible."

d. "Emotional and behavioral supports" to include a written crisis and safety plan "with clear steps staff must follow during anxiety or PTSD episodes," "no disciplinary action for behaviors directly related to disability–based emotional distress or fight/flight/freeze responses," and staff trained in trauma-informed approaches.

e. "Communication supports" include a private and non-verbal signal to request breaks and a regular communication log between school and home.

f. "Attendance and transition supports" to include flexibility with late arrival or brief absences, gradual transition plans following PTSD or anxiety episodes related to school avoidance, and "consideration of hybrid or temporary homebound instruction if recommended by [the Student's] mental-health provider."

The Parent also requested "any known triggers be documented in the IEP" and the LEA staff should "avoid actions or environments that escalate PTSD triggers." The Parent added they expected provision of "all evaluations, data, observations, or behavioral reports used to inform the IEP … at least 48 hours before the meeting."

31. In a November 20, 2025, 3:16 p.m. email to the Case Manager, the Parent requested the IEP team "review and include specific accommodations and supports" for the Student "who has a documented diagnosis of Auditory Processing Disorder (APD)." The Parent outlined the way APD impacted the Student and requested accommodations and supports "be considered and added to [the Student's] IEP": nine items related to "instructional presentation," four items related to "environmental supports," six items related to "assessment accommodations," six items related to "classroom and assignment supports," and four items related to "technology supports." The concluded by requesting an IEP meeting.

    The Case Manager replied on December 1, 2025, and provided the Parent with options for days and times to meet. On December 3, 2025, the Case Manager emailed a notice of meeting for December 12, 202,5 and added the Director and the Coordinator would be attending.

    The Parent replied on December 8, 2025 at 8:17 a.m., with the Director, the Coordinator, the Principal, and the Assistant Principal carbon copied, and asserted the Director and the Coordinator attending the meeting would be "considered harassment and bullying due to my asking for clarity, actual answers[,] and results." The Parent insisted they not attend and requested everyone in the IEP meeting "stay within view of the camera at all times," along with a "camera sweep of the room and the camera to face the door during the meeting."

32. In a December 3, 2025 PWN, the LEA refused to initiate or change services and proposed other changes to the IEP, not involving services or placement, along with a material change in services.

    a. The PWN noted a September 16, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services needed and any additions, changes, or modifications to the special education and related services.

    b. The description indicated the LEA "considered the Parent's request" for additional accommodations, supports, and assistive technology, and agreed to implement "extended time of 1.5 for reading and math assignments and assessments." Additionally, the LEA refused to add additional accommodations or assistive technology beyond what was already included in the Student's IEP, "because these supports are already addressed through existing accommodations, instructional practices, or district-provided resources."

c. The explanation noted the team "carefully reviewed each request" and determined:
    i. Nine reading accommodations were refused, each with a specific reason, some of which described the accommodation already existed in the IEP.
    ii. One reading accommodation was "partially accepted," which was the 1.5 extended time. It was noted this accommodation would be added with parental consent.
    iii. Three instructional supports for reading were refused, each with a specific reason, some of which described the support already existed in the IEP.
    iv. Three assistive technology supports for reading were refused, each with a specific reason. One was addressed as refused in the reading accommodations.
    v. Nine writing accommodations were refused, each with a specific reason, some of which described the accommodation already existed in the IEP.
    vi. Three instructional supports for writing were refused, each with a specific reason.
    vii. Four assistive technology supports for writing were refused, each with a specific reason.
    viii. Eight math accommodations were refused, each with a specific reason, some of which described the accommodation already existed in the IEP.
    ix. One math accommodation was accepted for "1.5 [time] on math tasks and assessments."
    x. Two instructional supports for math were refused, each with a specific reason.
    xi. One instructional support for math was accepted, "included in text-to-speech support for assignments and tests with parental consent."
    xii. Six "general accommodations" requests were refused, each with a specific reason, some of which described the accommodation already existed in the IEP.
    xiii. It was also noted the Student "currently has access to the transcriber pen."
d. Options considered were "adding additional interventions or technology beyond what is already provided," but this was rejected because the existing accommodations, technology, and instruction "adequately meet [the Student's] educational needs."
e. The data used to make the decision included the Student's current IEP, progress monitoring data, teacher and service provider input, classroom performance and assessment data, diagnostic testing data, instructional data, and the accommodation log.

f. Other relevant factors included the Student's continued progress toward IEP goals and their ability to access the general education curriculum with the current supports.

g. g. The request for consent did not include any signatures. The delivery page indicated the Case Manager emailed the PWN to the Parent on December 3, 2025.

33. In a December 3, 2025 PWN, the LEA refused to initiate or change services and to make other changes to the IEP, not involving services or placement.
    a. The PWN noted a September 16, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services needed and any additions, changes, or modifications to the special education and related services.
    b. The description indicated the District was refusing the Parent's request for additional progress reporting and documentation "beyond what is already provided in the Student's IEP and quarterly progress reports."
    c. The explanation of refusal outlined the Student's existing IEP, which included "clear progress monitoring procedures," reporting procedures, and timelines. The timelines were "consistent with district policy and practice," and "no additional documentation or reporting is necessary." It was also noted the Student was "making progress on all IEPs," which was reported to the Parent on the "current progress report during the first reporting period."
    d. Options considered were adding reports beyond what was already in place, but "this was unnecessary since the Student is making progress toward all IEP goals as documented through current data collection procedures."
    e. The data used to make the decision included the Student's current IEP, including progress monitoring methods and reporting frequency, the most recent progress on IEP goals, and "teacher data and ongoing instructional records."
    f. Other relevant factors included the Student's continued progress toward IEP goals and the timelines and reporting were "appropriate under district policy [and] IDEA guidelines."
    g. The request for consent did not include any signatures. The delivery page indicated the Case Manager emailed the PWN to the Parent on December 3, 2025.
34. In a December 3, 2025 PWN, the LEA refused to initiate or change services and proposed other changes to the IEP, not involving services or placement.
    a. The PWN noted a September 16, 2025 meeting to review data and determine special education and related services needed and any additions, changes, or modifications to the special education and related services.
    b. The description indicated the Parent submitted a written request on November 20, 2025 outlining "accommodations, supports, and services to address the Student's diagnosis of PTSD and anxiety." The LEA noted they reviewed the request and "After careful review of the Student's IEP, progress data, and educational performance, the [LEA] is refusing to add all requested accommodations, supports, and services at this time, as educational data do not demonstrate a need for these additions." The description also noted "several of the requested supports are already included" in the Student's IEP, which included preferential seating, extended time, testing in a quiet environment, and clear/concise directions.

c. The explanation provided an outline of every request made, with a rationale for refusal.
    i. "Access to a designated safe/calming space" was refused because data does not support this need, and the Student was "able to access instruction appropriately without" this space.
    ii. "Trauma-sensitive classroom practices" were refused because they are part of district-wide social-emotional learning and "do not require specific documentation in an individual IEP."
    iii. "Preferential seating" was refused as a new request because it already existed in the IEP.
    iv. "Reduced workload by 50%" was refused because "This would constitute a curriculum modification, not an accommodation, and is not warranted based on current academic progress."
    v. "Chunking and scaffolding of assignments" was refused because this was already "part of regular instructional practice."
    vi. "Extended time for classwork and tests" was refused as a new request because it is already in the Student's IEP.
    vii. "Alternative formats to demonstrate mastery" was refused because "The Student's teachers already provide flexibility for demonstrating understanding."
    viii. Provide "Copies of all class notes or guided notes" was refused because the Student "already has access to teacher notes through [the Learning Management System (LMS)]."
    ix. "Avoid calling on [the] Student unexpectedly" was refused because staff are already monitoring this, and "no evidence indicates this requires" an IEP accommodation.
    x. "Reduced homework when stamina is limited" was refused because the Student "has demonstrated the ability to complete homework with existing supports."
    xi. "Small-group or individual testing environment" was refused as a new request because this was already documented in the IEP.
    xii. "Extended time for tests" was refused as a new request because this was already documented in the IEP.

xiii. "Breaks during tests" was refused because the Student "has not demonstrated a need for testing breaks," and teachers "may provide informal breaks as appropriate."

xiv. "Quiet, low-distraction setting" was refused as a new request because this was already documented in the IEP.

xv. "Avoid timed tests" was refused because "The curriculum and assessment procedures require some timed tasks [and] extended time addresses this appropriately."

xvi. "Written crisis and safety plan" was refused because the Student "has not exhibited school-based behaviors requiring a crisis or safety plan," and general behavior protocols would be "sufficient."

xvii. "Call [the] Parent during anxiety or PTSD episodes" was refused because the Student's data did not show "episodes requiring emergency parent contact," and staff provide support and communication through "established procedures."

xviii. "No disciplinary action for behaviors related to emotional distress" was refused because the LEA's behavioral response system "already accounts for disability-related factors when implementing disciplinary action."

xix. "Staff trained in trauma-informed approaches" was refused because this training was already provided to "all" LEA staff and "is not an individualized IEP service."

xx. "Private nonverbal signal to request help or breaks" was refused because no need had been demonstrated, and the Student "communicates effectively with teachers when support is needed."

xxi. "Regular communication log between school and home" was refused because the "current communication procedures between the school and family are sufficient" and the Student's needs "do not warrant a daily or formalized log."

xxii. "Flexibility with late arrivals or absences due to symptoms" was refused because attendance was addressed through LEA policy, and "no IEP-level accommodation is warranted."

xxiii. "Gradual transition plan following severe anxiety episodes" was refused because the Student's data "did not reflect attendance barriers or avoidance behaviors requiring transition plans."

xxiv. "Hybrid or temporary homebound instruction" was refused because the Student's "current data and provider documentation do not indicate a medical or educational need for homebound instruction."

xxv. "Documentation of triggers in IEP" was refused because the LEA "does not include trigger lists within IEPs" and "staff will continue to use professional judgment and knowledge of the Student to provide appropriate support."

xxvi. "Ensure staff avoid actions or environments that escalate PTSD symptoms" was refused because "this is part of general trauma-informed practice for all students, not an IEP-level accommodation."

xxvii. "Provide all evaluation data and reports 48 hours before [the] IEP meeting" was refused because the LEA "complies with IDEA timelines and will provide evaluation data consistent with federal and state requirements. The [LEA] will make every effort to get parent data and reports in a timely fashion."

d. Options considered were "adding the requested trauma-informed supports and accommodations to the IEP," but were rejected "because current academic and behavioral data do not demonstrate an educational need for additional supports."

e. The data used to make the decision included the Student's current IEP and progress data, classroom performance and teacher feedback, behavioral and attendance records, and information from previous evaluations.

f. Other relevant factors included the Student's continued progress toward IEP goals and their demonstration of "appropriate behavior and engagement in the classroom with existing supports." It was noted the LEA would continue to monitor progress and review accommodations.

g. The request for consent did not include any signatures. The delivery page indicated the Case Manager emailed the PWN to the Parent on December 3, 2025.

35. In a December 3, 2025 email to the Parent, with the Coordinator, the Director, the Principal, and the Assistant Principal carbon copied, the Case Manager attached documents as a response to the Parent's requests. They indicated, "'Progress Reports PWN' addresses the November 14 at 9:57 a.m. email. … 'Academic PWN' addresses the requests made in the email on November 14 at 9:59 a.m. … 'Social and Emotional PWN' addresses your requests made on November 20 at 2:21 p.m."

    The Parent replied on December 4, 2025 at 12:36 p.m. and stated, "Reducing the volume of work is an accommodation, not a modification." They explained the Student would still be "working toward the same standards, just with less repetition. The difficulty, content, and grade-level standards remain unchanged." They requested the LEA provide policy or law if "the team is asserting that workload reduction is illegal or not allowed." They contended "without a reduced workload, [the Student] cannot complete assignments independently or within reasonable time frames, which denies meaningful access to curriculum." "The lack of accommodation is what reduces access," and the Student "is already unable to access grade-level work at the current volume."

    The Parent replied the same day at 1:48 p.m. and noted the Student had "never been given access to use the transcriber pen" and requested a copy of the current IEP.

    The Director replied on the same day at 3:38 p.m. and addressed the Student's performance data, the request for reduced workload, and access to the transcriber pen. "The school-based IEP team maintains that [the Student] is making appropriate progress in the general education curriculum with the accommodations currently documented in [their] IEP." They noted the request for reduced workload was "carefully considered," "the team determined that such a change would alter the amount and nature of grade-level content exposure, which could affect mastery of state standards," and reducing the volume of assignments would "modify the rigor of the curriculum and reduce opportunities to demonstrate proficiency." They reiterated the LEA "is implementing all accommodations and supports as written," which "includes access to the transcriber pen." The Director addressed the request for meeting recordings by attaching "staffing summaries" to the email because the LEA did not record meetings. The Director concluded, "At this time, based on the totality of available data and classroom performance, the IEP team determined that the current plan provides [the Student] with appropriate access to grade-level curriculum and constitutes the provision of [a] FAPE."

The Parent replied the same day at 5:02 p.m. with a repeated request, "If the team is asserting that workload reduction is illegal or not allowed, please provide specific [laws or policy] … stating [this would be] considered a modification." The Parent also re-asserted the Student did not have access to the transcriber pen and has "NEVER been given permission to use it or told it's available if needed. [The Student] has been shown the pen ONE time, by [the Case Manager]."

The Parent replied on December 5, 2025 at 8:20 a.m. and inquired if the LEA used Artificial Intelligence (AI) to generate their response and stated, "You don't even understand [the Student's] needs enough to genuinely respond!"

The Parent replied on the same day at 8:26 a.m. to "address several serious concerns regarding the lack of individualized data and the absence of evidence" after they reviewed the LEA's response. They contended the LEA's response did not contain "actual data" or "specific examples." They cited IDEA and the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook and indicated the LEA was not in compliance based on the data they provided. They addressed the workload reduction request with the assertion the LEA's response was "generic" and not reflective of the Student's "individual needs," "disability-related impact," or "actual performance in class." The Parent reiterated their request for "actual data and the evidence the team relied on to deny accommodations." They outlined four items they were requesting, which included "all data referenced in [the LEA's] decision," specific data to support the assertion workload reduction "would negatively affect [the Student's] access to grade-level content," a PWN documenting refusal "to provide the requested accommodation," and and explanation of "how the team determined that denying this accommodation" ensures the Student a FAPE.

The Parent replied on the same day at 12:20 p.m. and stated, "To continue with this shit show, I am writing in response to the [LEA's] statement that it has been and will continue using [the Student's] prior IEP and will not consider the three newly diagnosed disabilities because they were not part of the previously signed IEP." The Parent then outlined five IDEA and Kansas Special Education Process Handbook regulations. Within the outlined regulations, the Parent indicated the current IEP did not reflect the Students "THREE newly identified disabilities, the educational impact of those disabilities, or the supports and accommodations required to address them." The Parent also "formally" requested the IEP team "review the three new diagnoses, discuss educational impact, determine needed supports, update accommodations/services, and revise goals where necessary." Last, the Parent requested, "in writing," exact legal citation to support the LEA's "position that new diagnoses can be disregarded because a prior IEP was signed" and LEA policy "stating that IEPs cannot be revised based on new disabilities after parent signature."

36. In a December 4, 2025 email to the Case Manager, the Parent noted the recent progress report stated the Student was making progress and requested measurable data or documentation of how the Student's progress was being determined. They outlined their request as follows and asked for the materials "before the scheduled IEP meeting":
    a. "All data used to determine progress for each IEP goal, including but not limited to: Progress monitoring charts, Data collection sheets, Work samples, Assessment scores, Any curriculum-based measurements, Notes or logs documenting performance over time."
    b. "An explanation of the method used to measure progress for each goal (frequency of measurement, tools used, criteria for mastery)."
    c. "Any evidence showing whether my child is on track to meet each annual IEP goal."
37. In a December 7, 2025, 10:14 a.m. email to the Director and the Principal, the Parent formally requested a PWN regarding the August 19, 2025 staffing/IEP meeting for the Student. They outlined the seven areas they wanted addressed in the PWN, some of which were procedural obligations for a PWN. Items specific to the Student included requests for: The LEA's "refusal to consider or implement a smaller class setting or alternative placement, including private placement, despite parent request"; "Refusal to implement additional or interim supports in response to diagnosed and documented anxiety, PTSD, and safety concerns"; "Any decision to delay changes to programming, placement, services, or accommodations based on the district's assertion that it 'needs more time/data."; "Whether the [LEA] suggesting outside evaluations related to anxiety, PTSD, ADHD, emotional regulation, or executive functioning"; Determination methods for evaluations not being warranted, "despite documented concerns"; and the response to the Parent's disclosure of the Student's suicide risk, including "whether a safety plan, risk assessment, or mental health referral was considered or implemented."

    The same day at 10:29 a.m. the Parent sent another email to the Director and the Principal and noted their formal objection to the September 16, 2025 staffing summary because the document did "not accurately or completely reflect the discussions, requests, or unresolved concerns raised during the meeting and cannot be relied upon as an accurate summary of the IEP team's actions." Specific disagreements outlined were: the document contained "conclusory statements such as 'doing very well' and 'making progress' without any supporting data"; "Multiple parent requests were discussed, … yet no approvals or refusals are documented"; The document does not clarify which supports were "IEP-mandated accommodations" and which were "informal practices"; and "No decisions, rationales, or data sources are identified." The Parent concluded they "do not consent to [the staffing summary] document as a complete or accurate legal record of the meeting."

The same day at 10:34 a.m., the Parent sent another email to the Director and the Principal with converted discussions from the September 16, 2025 meeting "into formal written requests" and requested a PWN for each of the following requests:

a. "Written clarification identifying which accommodations discussed are mandated in [the Student']s IEP versus informal practices."
b. "Copies of accommodation/service implementation logs documenting delivery of IEP services."
c. "Objective data supporting claims that [the Student] is 'making progress' on all IEP goals."
d. "Review of placement appropriateness based on current academic and emotional functioning. Specifically, at the time of this meeting."
e. "Consideration of [a] schedule accommodation, including access to choir while maintaining required services."
f. "Consideration of [the Student's] anxiety and fear of punishment related to disability-based workload difficulties."

The same day at 10:35 a.m., the Parent sent another email to the Director and the Principal and recalled the September 16, 2025 staffing where staff "repeatedly stated that [the Student] is 'doing very well' and 'making progress.'" The Parent subsequently requested baseline data, current performance data, frequency of progress monitoring, assessment tools or methods used, names/roles of staff collecting data, and work samples or objective evidence used to determine progress for "each current IEP goal."

The same day at 10:38 a.m., the Parent sent another email to the Director and the Principal and noted their disagreement with the staffing summary dated September 16, 2025. Specific disagreements outlined were "unsupported claims of progress," "failure to document parental requests and [LEA] responses," and "absence of measurable data."

The same day at 10:44 a.m., the Parent sent another email to the Director and the Principal and wrote a formal response to an August 19, 2025 "staffing summary," which was "intended to correct the record and document areas of disagreement, omission, and procedural concern." The email noted the staffing summary did not reflect "the substance or seriousness" of the Parent's concerns regarding the Student's "mental health, safety, and functional access to [their] education." They referenced concerns raised regarding suicide risk and emotional distress and noted the summary did not document any "safety planning, referrals, evaluations, or action steps in response." The Parent added the summary indicated data was lacking to justify the change in placement, yet did not specify what data was required. The Parent referenced the LEA's mentioning of LRE "without documenting consideration of whether [the Student] is able to make meaningful educational progress" in the current environment. They concluded "I want to clearly state for the record that I do not agree with the [LEA's] refusal to consider alternative placements at this time, and I do not agree with delaying action based solely on the [LEA's] claimed lack of familiarity with [the Student]."

38. In a December 7, 2025 email to the Case Manager, the Parent reported the Student "was not allowed to participate in Fun Day, due to missing work." They requested "the reason for this punishment, in writing."
39. In a December 8, 2025, 11:19 a.m. email to the Director and the Principal, the Parent requested documentation showing when the LEA received "each new diagnosis," internal discussion and meeting notes "referencing them," a written explanation why the IEP "was not revised," and any decision "not to propose reevaluation" for the Student.
40. In a December 9, 2025 email to the Parent, with the Principal included, the Director indicated the LEA was "in receipt of your eight emails" dated December 7 through December 8, 2025, and they would be "answered within the State of Kansas guidelines." The Director outlined a communication plan "moving forward" and directed the Parent to contact the Principal for "building level questions about general education or questions about a teacher at [the School]," and to contact the Director for "IEP or special education related questions or requests." The Director contended both they and the Coordinator would attend the December 12, 2025 IEP meeting, the Parent had been notified, and the LEA would "do our best to have as many members as possible within the camera view."

    The Parent replied the same day and stated they would not be attending any IEP or other meetings with the School "until the investigation is complete."
41. The Student's 2025-26 school year report card indicated the following relevant grades:
    a. Language Arts- "A" for quarter 1, "A" for quarter 2;
    b. Math 8- "D" for quarter 1, "B" for quarter 2;
    c. Social Studies 8, "D" for quarter 1, "C-" for quarter 2; and
    d. Physical Science 8, "D" for quarter 1, "F" for quarter 2.

Parent Interview

42. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated they had asked the LEA "for the entire semester" about the Student's access to the transcriber pen and had "always gotten a delayed response." They relayed the Case Manager showed the Student the transcriber pen on November 17, 2025, but the Student "did not get to keep the pen or use it. … [the Student] didn't even touch it on that date." They added their request for an accommodation for text-to-speech was "denied" because the Student "had this transcriber pen that [they were] not allowed to use." They added the Student currently has use of the transcriber pen, which started "the first day back after Christmas break."

43. The Parent indicated the Student was "not allowed to participate" in an end-of-quarter "fun day" because they had missing assignments. They noted the Student "consistently has missing work [and] [the LEA] refuses to give [them] workload accommodations, a reduced workload. … They will not adjust [the Student's] accommodations for reduced workload, even though [the Student] is clearly struggling." The Parent expressed the Student's discouragement they will "never get caught up" and reiterated this was a "standard accommodation … and they refuse [to provide it]."
44. The Parent claimed the Learning Strategies class was a "study hall" that was "only for special education kids" and it was a "requirement" for the Student to be in it, instead of "picking a second elective." The Parent indicated the reason the Student had the class was the LEA's "data didn't support that [the Student] didn't need it." They explained the LEA denied the Student accommodations because they are "making progress and [the Student] doesn't need them," but the LEA "won't let [the Student] out of Learning Strategies for [their] second elective because [they] need it. … It's like a dumping ground … that's where they get a lot of their service minutes. That's why they keep them in that class. … So all those kids get all their service minutes in that one class."
45. The Parent asserted they did not follow through with a 504 process for the Student because they "do not trust the School or their evaluations." They added they "record everything," including IEP meetings, because they believe the IEP meetings and evaluations are not "fair."
46. When asked about the allegation of PWNs not being individualized to the Student, the Parent claimed they were AI-generated and stated, "It's very generic information. … It's not telling me anything. … It's just like the same style of writing."
47. The Parent expressed frustration they got two outside experts to attend the Student's IEP meeting, and the LEA did not ask them any questions, "they were dismissive of them," and the Parent claimed the LEA also did not ask questions of the Parent.
48. The Parent reported the LEA "won't update [the Student's] IEP" with the dyscalculia diagnosis, the PTSD, and anxiety. They read aloud excerpts from the IEP regarding the Parent sharing concerns about math and wanting the Student to have access to tools. They expressed frustration this was not just "concerns about math" as the IEP reads, but was a "diagnosed learning disability." The Parent stated, "[The LEA is] downplaying everything I bring to the table. And after all three of those diagnoses, they will not update [the Student's] IEP. I'm not signing a [PWN]. I want the IEP updated, not just [the Student's] service minutes. [The Student] should be able to start working more independently if [they] want to. So I don't trust them to provide [the Student] [with] basic accommodations."
49. The Parent claimed the Student's IEP meeting was "pointless" because "it was supposed to be to discuss [the Student's] placement, which [the LEA] denied two days after saying they needed more time." They noted the Psychiatrist was in that meeting, "was not happy," and felt like it was "a waste of time" because "they didn't ask [the Psychiatrist] anything." They added "the second September IEP meeting was basically a parent-teacher conference."

50. The Parent shared their frustration with the Case Manager being dismissive about the Student's difficulty with opening their locker because the Student "struggle[s] with dials." The Parent stated, "I tried to tell them [the Student] needs help with [their] locker," and "they did nothing."

Case Manager Interview

51. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager explained the Student's access to the translator pen. "I showed the pen to [the Student] and how it worked, and practiced using it a little bit. And then I told [them they] had access, but [they] were concerned that it doesn't have a headphone jack, that it just reads out loud, and [the Student] didn't really want it to be reading out loud in the middle of the classroom. And so I said, 'You have access to it whenever you want. It's in my room. You can come and grab it.' And then we also went over some built into the [tablet] accessibility things that read out loud that could be used with headphones that connect to the [tablet], since it's got the headphone jack and that transcriber pen didn't." The Case Manager described the pen being in a drawer that holds other tools and "students are all pretty used to just grabbing what they need" out of the drawer. They added they eventually purchased and received another translator pen that does have a headphone jack, and the Student is currently using that every day.
52. The Case Manager described an "incentive day" that happens at the end of each nine weeks, where students who met the "grade qualification" and were not missing assignments would watch a movie. Those who did not meet the criteria were "assigned to the study rooms to use that time to finish any work that [needed] to be done before the assignment deadline." They explained the Student had a failing grade at the end of the first quarter and "was put in one of the study rooms for that." The Director, who was an observer in the interview, pointed out this was a "school-wide initiative" and was not specific to students receiving special education services.
53. The Case Manager detailed the "passport" as an electronic or printed document that "has the services and accommodations that a student receives and is what we give to the people. … People who would be responsible for providing accommodations or services have access to the passport so that they are aware of the things that they need to be doing and how often they need to do it." The Coordinator, who was an observer in the interview, noted there was a "passport" attached to the Student's account and all of their teachers were able to access it through the student information system (SIS) on "day one."
54. The Case Manager described the accommodation log. "On the left side is the list of all the accommodations written into [the Student's] IEP. And then each day, [we] put the date at the top and then the hour that we're looking at and mark off whether that accommodation was utilized. And depending on who is providing services or providing the accommodations during that hour, that person has the sheet." They reiterated this is a way to track provided accommodations and "if there's an hour that is not on there, then it was either the para[educator] forgot to pick it up or they left it in the room and then forgot to sign it." They added if the log does not have a checkmark, it does not mean accommodations were not provided. "It just means that the person who was responsible for [putting a checkmark] on the paper did not document there that it was provided, but they were in there providing the service and just not marking it on the paper."

55. The Case Manager reported the teachers on their team accept every assignment for full credit, and student work does not get marked down due to being late. "As long as [an assignment] gets done, that's the important part, and we would not give half credit for something that was fully correct just because it was turned in a couple days later."

Director and Coordinator Interview

56. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Director described the communication plan they put into place with the Parent as a way to support the Case Manager and "to save my teacher from quitting." They described receiving "eight emails in a row from [the Parent]" and subsequently having the Principal and the Director take over communication. They noted, "If I needed to involve the Case Manager, I would."
57. In the same interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Coordinator noted they first spoke with the Parent in March of 2025 when the Parent called to "ask if [the LEA] would send [the Student] to private school." The Coordinator "walked [the Parent] through the process" and told them "that's an IEP team decision and those would be things that we would need to discuss together." They reported speaking to the Parent about "the same things" in July of 2025, though the Student was not enrolled in the LEA at that time. At the Student's first IEP meeting, the Coordinator recalled the beginning of the IEP meeting, where they discussed service minutes, class schedule, IEP goals, and the Student's needs, "went really well." They added "And then [the Parent] again asked immediately if we would put [the Student] in private school. And I believe I said something to the amount of, 'Provide me some written feedback, and we will reply to this request in writing.' And [the Parent] got very angry at that point. I think [they] used some curse words. So at that point, then we kind of ended the meeting."
58. The Coordinator verified, by looking it up in the SIS, the Student was enrolled in the School on July 30, 2025.
59. The Director supplied information regarding the PWNs provided to the Parent and noted, "AI isn't illegal to use, but I can tell you we're not using AI on PWNs." They mentioned the August 19, 2025 PWN that "talks about [the Former LEA], which is the school district [the Student] came from," and the specific curriculum the Former LEA used was also named. They additionally reported PWNs where the Student's name and the LEA were specifically listed. "I disagree [the PWNs are not personalized]. We use the Kansas Process Handbook. We use IDEA, and we use factual evidence in our PWNs. And if that looks like AI, then that's what it looks like. But we have the names of our own private school, of our own district, and the Student in all of these PWNs, which shows that it's individualized." The Coordinator added the Case Manager was "deeply involved" in the PWN process and "we get all of our information and data collection from [the Case Manager]." The Director concluded, "Our goal is to remain compliant as a district."

Principal and Assistant Principal Interview

60. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Principal explained the Parent requested a 504 because the Student's IEP "wasn't addressing … I think it was the social emotional part … the exact diagnosis." They noted the Parent "never signed the papers to move forward with that evaluation."
61. In the same interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Principal indicated the team meetings were a "building-wide process" and "depending on the team, some of the time those minutes are very detailed of the actual conversation [and] sometimes they're just, 'we talked about this student,' but not specifically what was talked about."

    When asked about ensuring staff are implementing IEPs, the Principal noted the team meetings provide an opportunity "when teachers have concerns or a student is on that agenda, we are asking clarifying questions" to ensure staff are meeting the Student's needs and IEP requirements. They noted monthly PLC time "where we're discussing passports" and passports being distributed to staff. The Assistant Principal added they attend team meetings and they were at meetings "multiple times while [the Student] was [part of] a conversation." They added on August 8, 2025, the team "met about [the Student] specifically" to make "sure that we were ready and prepared with the incoming IEP."
62. The Principal described the "incentive day," indicating it was a "school-wide" program that had been changed for the second quarter. They explained at the end of the first quarter, the program was based on grades, behavior, and missing assignments, but they changed it to grades only for the second quarter, "so we're not double-punishing students." The Assistant Principal added the point of the incentive was to reward students who had passing grades, but also to give students with failing grades "time [in the] afternoon to knock out more assignments or to improve their grades."

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #383, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, reviewed and revised the IEP, as appropriate, to address the results of an external evaluation and information about the Student the Parent provided. K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b)(1); 34 CFR §300.324(b).

According to 34 CFR §300.324(b) and K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b)(1), the agency is responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served. The agency shall ensure an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child.

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2), the agency shall ensure the IEP team revises the IEP, as appropriate. The IEP team is also obligated to address the results of any reevaluation conducted under this section of the law. Additionally, the IEP team must address information about the child provided by the parents, the child's anticipated needs, or other matters.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to evaluate and revise the Student's IEP to include three new diagnoses and related needs. These were dyscalculia, "PTSD related to school," and "school-related anxiety."

The LEA refuted the allegation and stated, "Given that the documents received were incomplete, unverifiable, and in many parts redacted, [the LEA] could not legally or ethically rely on them as the basis for an IEP revision under 34 CFR §300.324(b)(1). Moreover, the Parent's later assertion that anxiety and PTSD diagnoses should be incorporated into the IEP was not supported by prior data, observable behavior in the educational setting, or evaluation information available to the IEP team. No behaviors consistent with those diagnoses have been observed that would trigger a reevaluation under K.A.R. 91-40-8(a)(2)."

The Parent provided the LEA with significant new information regarding the Student's diagnoses and needs throughout the 2025-26 school year. In July 2025, the Parent provided documentation of GAD and PTSD. Later, the Parent introduced a diagnosis of dyscalculia and APD. The Psychiatrist and the SLP recommended a "smaller, more supportive school setting." The Parent formally requested numerous accommodations for dyslexia, dysgraphia, dyscalculia, PTSD, and APD.

The LEA held multiple meetings to discuss the Student's progress and the Parent's requests. In August 2025, the team met to discuss the Parent's request for private school placement due to the PTSD diagnosis. The LEA refused the placement, stating they needed more time and data to determine if the move was necessary. In September 2025, the team reviewed the Student's progress. Teachers reported the Student was "doing well" and "turning in quality work." From October through December, 2025, the LEA issued several PWNs refusing the majority of the Parent's requested accommodations. The LEA's refusal to revise the IEP to include many of the Parent's requested accommodations and the alternative placement was based on multiple factors. The LEA noted that the external documentation provided by the Parent was "partial and heavily redacted," making it difficult to ethically rely on for IEP revisions. The LEA argued that many requested supports were already being provided through existing IEP accommodations or general education practices. For example, preferential seating and extended time were already documented. The LEA maintained the Student was making "appropriate progress" in the general education curriculum with current supports. Grades improved in several subjects by the second quarter. Additionally, the LEA determined that academic and behavioral data did not demonstrate an "educational need" for additional trauma-informed supports, as the Student was engaged and behaving appropriately in class. Last, the LEA did revise the IEP in limited areas, such as proposing an increase in direct service minutes in the general education setting and adding 1.5 extended time for certain tasks.

The LEA met its obligation to review the information provided by the Parent by holding meetings and issuing detailed PWNs for each request. While the Parent disagreed with the outcomes, the LEA provided rationales based on the Student's current school-based performance and the belief that the current IEP provided a FAPE in the LRE.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to review and revise the IEP, as appropriate, to address the results of an external evaluation and information about the Student, which the Parent provided.

Issue Two

Whether USD #383, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured the placement decision was made by a group of individuals who knew the Student, the evaluation data, and the placement options when they decided not to change the placement as requested by the Parent and recommended by the Student's psychiatrist. K.A.R. 91-40-21(a)(b)(c)(1)(2); 34 CFR §300.327.

According to 34 CFR §300.327 and K.A.R. 91-40-21(a)(b)(c)(1)(2), the agency must ensure children with disabilities served by the agency are educated in the LRE. When the educational placement of a child with a disability is being determined, each agency shall ensure that the placement decision is made by a group of persons, including the child's parent or parents and other persons who are knowledgeable about the child, the meaning of the evaluation data, and the placement options. Additionally, the decision shall be made in conformity with the requirement of providing services in the LRE.

The Parent alleged the LEA did not consider and implement the requested smaller school placement, despite professional recommendations provided by the Psychiatrist and the SLP.

The LEA refuted the allegation, noting the provided documentation “contained no identifiable professional credentials or facility information” and the placement decision was made by the IEP team, which included individuals knowledgeable about the Student, their data, and the full continuum of placement options available.

The group responsible for the Student's placement decisions consistently included individuals with direct knowledge of the Student and the relevant data. Meetings held on August 19, 2025, and September 16, 2025, included the Parent, an LEA representative, the Case Manager, the Special Education Coordinator, and general education teachers. The LEA reviewed and accepted the transfer IEP from the Former LEA, which included data on the Student's reading, math, and writing needs. The team also reviewed the Psychiatrist’s diagnosis of PTSD and GAD. While the Parent expressed concern that the LEA contended they needed “more time" to know the Student, the Case Manager and teachers provided specific observations of the Student’s performance, noting they were "turning in quality work" and "doing well" in the general education setting by September 2025.

The LEA engaged in a documented process of considering the placement options requested by the Parent and recommended by outside professionals. The Parent and the Psychiatrist requested a "smaller, more supportive school setting" or private placement due to the Student's PTSD and anxiety. The LEA formally refused (with a PWN) the change to a private school or smaller environment, explaining that they were offering a FAPE in the LRE. The LEA asserted they lacked data to support a more restrictive environment after only six days of enrollment. By September 16, 2025, the team reviewed "present levels of academic performance, progress monitoring data, and classroom functioning" to determine that the current placement continued to be appropriate. The team prioritized keeping the Student in the LRE to avoid "social stigma" and isolation from non-disabled peers.

The group also addressed specific internal placement concerns. The Parent requested a partial schedule (choir and Learning Strategies) to give the Student a "mental break." The LEA refused this on October 3, 2025, determining that the specialized instruction in the Learning Strategies course was necessary to address identified needs and ensure the Student did not regress on IEP goals.

The evidence indicates that the placement decisions were made by the required group of individuals. The LEA integrated input from the Parent and the Psychiatrist but ultimately determined, based on internal data collection and the requirement to provide services in the LRE, that the Student's needs could be met within the public middle school setting. While the Parent disagreed with the outcome, the LEA followed the procedural requirement of having the decision made by a group of individuals knowledgeable about the Student and the data.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure the placement decision was made by a group of individuals who knew the Student, the evaluation data, and the placement options when they decided not to change the placement as requested by the Parent and recommended by the Student's psychiatrist.

Issue Three

Whether USD #383, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured that each teacher was informed of their specific responsibilities related to implementing the Student's IEP, as well as the specific accommodations and modifications the Student required, specifically related to assistive technology and workload reduction. Whether the LEA followed the Student's accommodations when it denied the Student access to school activities due to missing assignments. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3); 34 CFR §300.323.

According to 34 CFR §300.323 and K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3), the agency shall ensure an IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year.

The Parent alleged the LEA refused or failed to allow the use of a transcriber pen and refused to reduce the Student's workload, despite their documented needs and diagnoses. The Parent also alleged the LEA punished the Student for missing assignments, rather than implementing accommodations and supports. Additionally, the Parent alleged teachers and staff were not compliant with IEP accommodations on multiple occasions.

The LEA refuted the allegation, asserting that all required accommodations were implemented and LEA staff members were fully aware of them. Furthermore, the LEA reported the Student had expressed discomfort using the translation pen in the general education classroom. Finally, the LEA cited its ongoing accommodation logs and explained that the "fun day" the Student was not allowed to attend was an incentive program for general education students, and participation was contingent on assignment completion for all students, regardless of disability status.

The LEA utilized "passports," which were electronic or printed documents summarizing a student's services and accommodations, to inform staff of IEP services, goals, and accommodations. On August 11, 2025, before the start of school, the Case Manager emailed 12 staff members (who worked with the Student) with instructions on how to access these passports via the SIS. The Coordinator verified that all teachers had access to the Student's passport on "day one" of the school year. The School held regular team meetings involving core and elective teachers to discuss student needs, review IEP data, and ensure staff were meeting requirements.

The Student's IEP required the use of a translation pen for independent work to foster independence. The Case Manager reported showing the Student the pen and practicing its use. However, the Student expressed concern that the original pen lacked a headphone jack and would read aloud in class. The Parent contended the Student was never given permission to use the pen and had only seen it once. The Case Manager eventually purchased a second pen with a headphone jack, which the Student began using daily following the Christmas break.

A central point of contention was whether "workload reduction" was a required accommodation and if it was implemented. The Student's IEP included "simplified writing answers" and "modified notes" (up to 50% filled in), and the Case Manager estimated these existing accommodations reduced the Student's overall workload by approximately 50%. On November 14 and 20, 2025, the Parent requested a formal "reduced workload by 50%" accommodation. The LEA issued a PWN on December 3, 2025, refusing this request, asserting it constituted a "curriculum modification" rather than an accommodation and was not supported by current academic data.

In reference to the “fun day,” the Student was excluded from a first-quarter incentive activity because they had a failing grade and missing assignments. The "incentive day" was a school-wide program, and students who did not meet grade or assignment criteria were placed in "study rooms" to complete work before deadlines. While the Student's IEP required accommodations for completing work, it did not exempt the Student from the general education grading criteria or the school-wide incentive policy. The Case Manager noted that although work was accepted for full credit even if late, the "incentive day" was reserved for students who had completed their assignments by the deadline. For the second quarter, the school modified the policy to base incentives on grades only, to avoid "double punishing" students for missing work.

The evidence indicates the LEA met its obligation to inform teachers of their responsibilities through the distribution of "passports" and regular team meetings. Regarding assistive technology, while there was a delay in providing a pen with a headphone jack that the Student felt comfortable using, the LEA maintained the tool was available. Regarding workload reduction, the LEA implemented the specific accommodations listed in the IEP (modified notes/simplified writing), but exercised its right to refuse a formal 50% reduction in volume, citing concerns over curriculum rigor and lack of data. Finally, the denial of school activities was a result of a school-wide policy and did not constitute a failure to follow the Student's specific IEP accommodations.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure that each teacher was informed of their specific responsibilities related to implementing the Student's IEP, as well as the specific accommodations and modifications the Student required, specifically related to assistive technology and workload reduction. Nor did the LEA fail to follow the Student's accommodations when it denied the Student access to school activities due to missing assignments.

Issue Four

> Whether USD #383, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided a Progress Report that included a description of how the Student's progress was measured in accordance with the Student's IEP. K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3); 34 CFR §300.320(a)(3).

According to 34 CFR §300.320(a)(3) and K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3), the IEP for each exceptional child shall include a description of how the child's progress toward meeting the annual goals will be measured and when periodic reports on the progress the child is making toward meeting the annual goals will be provided, such as through the use of quarterly or other periodic reports issued concurrently with general education report cards.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide meaningful progress reports with objective data, baselines, measurable progress toward IEP goals, or any evidence of progress.

The LEA refuted the allegation and claimed they provided a progress report that met IDEA requirements, which was mailed to the Parent and reviewed with the Case Manager. The Case Manager outlined the Student's progress toward each goal and documented their progress using percentage measures consistent with the data collection methods specified in the IEP.

The Student's IEP established specific, measurable goals in reading, math, and written language. The IEP further specified that the Student would receive pull-out services daily and in-class services daily, which the LEA proposed increasing to meet the Student's needs in the LRE. The LEA maintained a system for tracking both the implementation of accommodations and progress toward goals. The LEA utilized a "Daily Accommodation Log Tracker" to document the provision of mandated supports, such as read-alouds, math manipulatives, and preferential seating. This log covered 64 school days and documented implementation across core class hours. The Case Manager also reported collecting objective data on goal performance. For example, during a September 16, 2025 meeting, the Case Manager provided specific data points with percentage-based measurements of progress.

The Parent expressed significant concerns regarding the specificity of the reports, requesting "actual data" rather than "general statements" and more frequent updates every four weeks. The Parent formally objected to the LEA's reporting, claiming statements like "making progress" lacked supporting evidence. In response to these concerns, the LEA refused the request for additional reporting, asserting that the existing quarterly timeline was consistent with LEA policy and IDEA guidelines. The LEA maintained the progress reports provided during the first reporting period documented progress on all goals through current data collection procedures. On September 24, 2025, the Case Manager reviewed the IEP progress report with the Parent during a conference. Furthermore, the Director clarified that data collected on existing goals would serve as the basis for documenting progress as the year continued.

While the Parent contended the reports were "vague" and "generic," the evidence indicates the LEA followed the measurement procedures outlined in the May 2025 IEP. The LEA utilized objective trials (e.g., percentage accuracy on spelling and reading) as mandated by the goals and provided reports on a quarterly schedule in alignment with state and federal regulations.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is not substantiated* that the LEA failed to provide a Progress Report that included a description of how the Student's progress was measured in accordance with the Student's IEP.

Issue Five

According to 34 CFR §300.503(b) and K.A.R. 91-40-26, when providing any notice to the parent of an exceptional child regarding any action proposed or refused by an agency, each agency shall ensure that the notice includes both a description of other options that the agency considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and also a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal. Furthermore, the notice shall be written in language understandable to the general public and provided in the native language of the parent or other mode of communication used by the parent.

According to K.S.A. 72-3432, the Notice of parental rights shall include: a description of the action proposed or refused by the agency, as well as an explanation of why the agency proposes or refuses to take the action. Furthermore, the notice must contain a description of other options that the agency or IEP team considered and the reasons those options were rejected, along with a description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the proposed or refused action. The notice shall also include a description of any other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal.

The Parent alleged the LEA provided PWNs that were incomplete or inadequate and may have been generated or populated in a way that omitted individualized data or content, or failed to address the Student's unique needs.

The LEA refuted the allegation and noted each PWN detailed the proposed or refused action, the rationale for the decision, the data considered, and the procedural safeguards available.

The evidence demonstrates that the LEA issued multiple PWNs that directly addressed the Student's specific history and need. The August 19, 2025, PWN specifically referenced the Student's transfer from a "Former LEA," named the specific curriculum used at that prior district, and incorporated data from the Student's previous reading program scores and progress reports. In response to the Parent's extensive requests for accommodations on November 14 and November 20, 2025, the LEA issued three separate PWNs on December 3, 2025, categorized by "Academic," "Social and Emotional," and "Progress Reporting." The December 3, 2025, Social and Emotional PWN provided a point-by-point rationale for refusing or accepting over 20 specific requests, such as refusing a "written crisis plan" because the Student had not exhibited school-based behaviors requiring one, and refusing "trauma-sensitive practices" as a mandate because they were already implemented district-wide. The LEA documented the use of a wide array of student-specific data in these notices, including progress monitoring charts, teacher feedback, attendance records, and the Student's "Daily Accommodation Log Tracker."

The LEA consistently utilized PWNs to document the legal "proposal" or "refusal" of changes to the Student's Identification, Evaluation, or Placement (IEP). This included placement decisions, as evidenced by the PWN formally refusing the Parent's request for private school tuition, explaining that the LEA was offering a FAPE in the LRE and service changes, as evidenced by the PWNs proposing an increase in direct service minutes in the general education setting to better meet the Student's needs upon transfer. The Director also addressed the "formal" tone of the PWNs, explaining that the structure is required for legal clarity and compliance with the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

While the Parent expressed dissatisfaction with the outcome of the decisions documented in the PWNs, the documents themselves met the requirements of law. Each notice described the action, provided a reasoned explanation based on collected data, and included the Student's name and specific educational circumstances, contradicting the claim that they were non-individualized or purely generic.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parent with PWNs that contained all required components and were specific to the Student's individual circumstances.

Issue Six

Whether USD #383, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Student a FAPE and met the services listed in the Student's IEP, including accommodations and assistive technology. K.A.R. 91-40-2; 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101.

According to 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101 and K.A.R 91-40-2, the agency shall provide a FAPE. Specifically, the agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning not later than the child's third birthday, and an IEP shall be in effect by that third birthday. Additionally, the agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Parent alleged the LEA did not provide the Student's IEP accommodations and assistive technology, which resulted in a substantive denial of a FAPE.

The LEA refuted this allegation and indicated the Student has received all services and accommodations outlined in their IEP.

The LEA ensured staff were not only informed of the Student's IEP, but were also supported in its implementation. While there was a delay in the Student's consistent use of the translation pen, this does not rise to a denial of FAPE because the LEA provided the device as required by the IEP and when the Student expressed discomfort using the initial pen (due to the lack of a headphone jack and fear of social stigma), the LEA acted in good faith by purchasing a specific secondary device to accommodate the Student's anxiety. A FAPE does not require perfection from day one, but rather a responsive approach to removing barriers to the Student's progress. The refusal to grant a formal "50% workload reduction" was not a denial of FAPE, but rather an exercise of professional judgment based on data. The LEA demonstrated that through "simplified writing" and "modified notes," the Student's workload was already effectively reduced and then issued a timely and compliant PWN explaining why.

Because the Student remained placed in the LRE with access to all specified IEP services, and the LEA remained responsive to the Parent's concerns through formal PWNs and equipment adjustments, the LEA provided an education reasonably calculated to provide meaningful benefit.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Student a FAPE.

Background Information

The student is 15 years old and currently enrolled in the ninth grade at North High School in USD #259 for the 2025-26 school year. The student has a medical diagnosis of Autism and received early intervention services and then began receiving special education and related services at the at the age of three through kindergarten in the state of Georgia. The family then moved to the state of Kentucky where the student continued to receive special education and related services in first through fifth grade under the IDEA eligibility category of Autism.

The family then moved to the state of Kansas and the student has been enrolled in USD #259 since in the sixth grade and received special education and related services for all core academic content as well as adaptive behavior and social skills. The student has participated in elective classes with same grade peers in the general education setting using a modified curriculum with special education support for all three years at Robinson Middle School. The student's ninth grade schedule includes all core academic classes in the special education classroom along with community-based instruction one class period each week to address independent living and work exploration. The student is also enrolled with his nondisabled peers in a general education art class and a general education health/PE class with special education support provided by a paraprofessional

The most recent reevaluation was completed on November 19, 2024 and the IEP team determined that the student continued to be eligible for special education and related services under the primary exceptionality category of Autism.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaint, one issue was identified and investigated.

Issue One

USD #259, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the student with a free appropriate public education during the 2025-26 school year, specifically by not developing an IEP calculated to enable the student to make progress appropriate in light of his unique circumstances.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.320, require school districts to develop an IEP describing the special education and related services needed to address the unique needs of students with disabilities to enable the child to 1) advance appropriately toward attaining the annual goals; 2) be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum; 3) participate in extracurricular and other nonacademic activities; and, 4) be educated and participate with other children with disabilities and nondisabled children.

The United States Supreme Court's ruling in Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District requires schools to provide students with disabilities an education that is "reasonably calculated to enable a child to make progress appropriate in light of the child's circumstances."

Questions and Answers (Q&A) on U. S. Supreme Court Case Decision Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District Re-1 dated December 7, 2017 published by the United State Department of Education states:

> While the Court did not specifically define "in light of the child's circumstances," the decision emphasized the individualized decision-making required in the IEP process and the need to ensure that every child should have the chance to meet challenging objectives. The IDEA's focus on the individual needs of each child with a disability is an essential consideration for IEP Teams. Individualized decision-making is particularly important when writing annual goals and other IEP content because "the IEP must aim to enable the child to make progress." For example, the Court stated that the IEP Team, which must include the child's parents as Team members, must give "careful consideration to the child's present levels of achievement, disability, and potential for growth."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon interviews and record review.

The parent believes that the student's aggressive and violent behavior both at school and at home requires the student to be placed in a more restrictive setting. The parent has specifically requested this placement to be at Heartspring, an approved private agency for students with significant behavioral concerns but is willing to consider the separate special day school in the district at the Levy Special Education Center. The parent has made the request for a more restrictive setting on multiple occasions since the student entered the sixth grade, but her requests have been rejected each time. The parent indicated that the most recent request for placement at Heartspring was made on December 15, 2025, and the LEA rejected the request on January 5, 2026.

The parent provided a chronological summary of the behavior and interventions over the past four years to demonstrate the significance of her concerns as noted below:

- 2022-23 school year (6th grade)
    - August 23, 2022 – Hit little sister
    - January 2023 – Inpatient psychiatric treatment at KVC Behavioral Healthcare
    - Ongoing – Multiple calls from school regarding behavior problems and requesting parent pick him up early from school
- 2023-24 school year (7th grade)
    - October 30, 2023 – Dysregulated at school and parent came to school to intervene but student continued to escalate and was sent home
    - November 17, 2023 – Inpatient psychiatric treatment at Camber Mental Health related to aggressive behavior at home and school
    - November 28, 2023 – Second inpatient psychiatric treatment at Camber Mental Health due to continued aggressive behavior towards peers and staff at school
    - Ongoing - Multiple calls from school regarding behavior problems and requesting parent pick him up early from school
    - Unsure of date – Student used parent's credit card to purchase approximately $300 of internet gaming
- 2024-25 school year (8th grade)
    - February through May 2024 – Parent reported 51 phone calls from the school primarily related to behavioral escalation, safety concerns, and requests for removal or parental intervention
    - April 9, 2025 – Student removed a cast which was placed on the finger he broke during a behavioral outburst. Medical staff needed used "significant intervention" to replace the cast. Parent indicated the student had behavioral incidents with peers at school and his medication was increased.
    - April 10, 2025 – Student hit parent multiple times with the cast, scratched her, and hit walls during dysregulation. Later that day, during the pickup line for siblings, he scratched the parent again and scratched younger sister.
    - April 16, 2025 – Student engaged in hitting, scratching, and kicking peers and/or staff and was sent home.
    - May 10, 2025 – Student bit a special education staff member, destroyed property, tore up another student's academic work and was sent home.
    - May 13, 2025 – Two day out-of-school suspension for "assault"
- 2025-26 school year (9th grade)
    - September 9, 2025 – Student sustained bruise due to self-injury during dysregulation incident at home and Children's Protective Services (CPS) was called. Parent reported being contacted by school staff regarding behavior problems at school.

- October 9, 2025 – Student needed assistance with hygiene and toileting accident at home. The parent indicated that the student requires parental intervention due to hygiene issues including failure to independently take baths/showers. After parent set automatic reminders on his iPad to take a bath/shower every other day, he deleted the reminders and did not adhere to maintaining his hygiene and would get frustrated when asked to take a bath/shower. Currently, parent is having to remind him he needs to bathe/shower and he may or may not comply.
- October 16, 2025 – Student hit his sister at home. Parent reported student has hit siblings on multiple occasions during periods of irritability or when non-preferred demands are made of him.
- November 19, 2025 – Student committed battery/assault against another student and continued to pursue the student after removal. He was sent home for the remainder of the school day.

Following the out-of-school suspension on November, 19, 2025, the step-father sent the following email to the LEA expressing his and the parent's concerns and requesting a more restrictive placement for the student:

> We confirmed [the student] took his correct morning medications, including the one intended to help regulate and calm him ("calm down meds" that is in both morning and evening). Therefore, the behavior on November 19th appears not to be medication-related, but rather connected to ongoing communication, behavior regulation, and impulse control challenges. By our count, [the student] has had 10 behavioral incidents in approximately 65 school days, representing about 15% of his days of attendance, not including several behavior escalations that occurred at home directly related to school stressors . . . On November 19th, after being sent home early, [the student] slapped his 3rd-grade sister three separate times without provocation at around 6:30 PM while she was doing homework. This occurred despite him having been calm and left alone for most of the afternoon. We feel this directly demonstrates that his behavioral dysregulation is ongoing, not limited to the school environment, and requires more specialized intervention than general education with supports . . . During our IEP meeting last week, it was acknowledged that [the student] has had multiple behavioral incidents this school year, though not classified as major. However, since that meeting, he has already had two additional incidents this week alone, including today's incident where he hit another student and continued to pursue that student after they were removed from the area. He was sent home as a result. We maintain that [the student] would benefit from a more specialized and structured educational environment, particularly one equipped for students with aggressive, impulse-control, and behavioral safety concerns, such as Heartspring. We understand that Heartspring would need to be part of his IEP team's formal consideration if it is to be explored, and we continue to request that option be reviewed. Our reasoning is based on what is best for [the student], safer for peers and staff, and reduces the risk of long-term consequences such as school removals, legal involvement, or juvenile justice > implications. We strongly feel that continuing in the current setting is not meeting [the student's] needs . . . We no longer have confidence that the district, on its own, will take meaningful steps to address [the student's] needs and haven't for a long time. For years, we have consistently requested that Heartspring be formally considered as an appropriate placement due to [the student's] behavioral, safety, and developmental needs. Despite repeated requests, this option has not been meaningfully discussed, evaluated, or pursued. At this point, we are expecting a formal and documented response from the IEP team that includes a clear plan to consider specialized placement options such as Heartspring, rather than continuing with temporary or insufficient supports. We firmly believe that the primary reason the district continues to ignore and dismiss our repeated requests for Heartspring placement is financial. Let us be very clear — it is absolutely unacceptable for USD 259 to place budget concerns above a child's legal right to an appropriate education and necessary supports. We are beyond frustrated with the district's refusal to take meaningful action, and we will not tolerate [the student] being denied proper services simply because they are costly. His education, safety, and long-term success are not optional — and we expect the district to honor its legal obligations, whether or not it is convenient or inexpensive to do so.

The parent indicated she is considering homeschooling or pursuing a more appropriate placement for the student because she is concerned about the safety of the student as well as the staff and other students due to the student's aggressive and violent behavior. The parent is also significantly concerned about the medications prescribed to address the behavioral concerns and the long-term impact on the student's health.

The parent believes the LEA has not developed an IEP that addresses safety concerns based on an undated text message conversation in 2023 between the parent and the Behavioral Special Education Teacher at Coleman Middle School. The text message from the Behavioral Special Education Teacher at Coleman Middle School stated her opinion that there was "zero chance" that the LEA would send the student to Heartspring but suggested that Levy Special Education Center, the district's version of a "special day school" might be an option.

The LEA reported the student has been provided with a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment since his enrollment in USD #259. The staff acknowledged that the student exhibits behaviors that are commonly associated with students who have Autism but that the IEP teams have consistently addressed these behaviors through goals, services, and a BIP. Data shows the student has made progress towards his IEP goals and that the frequency and duration of the inappropriate behaviors has decreased over time in the school setting. School staff reported the parents have shared concerns about the student's aggressive and violent behavior in the home and noted that community resources have been provided to the family to access case management and assistance with behaviors that occur in the home setting.

The student initially enrolled in the sixth grade upon a transfer from the state of Kentucky for the 2022-23 school year. The LEA initially provided special education and related services comparable to those required in the transfer IEP. However, the IEP Team determined the Mixed Abilities classroom with additional special education and related services support for behavior and academic instruction was the most appropriate placement based upon the student's IEP goal progress and behavioral concerns. During this school year, the student participated successfully in elective classes with his peers.

The student was enrolled in the seventh grade during the 2023-24 school year. IEP Goal Progress Reports for the 2023-24 school year show the student making minimal progress towards his IEP goals due to behaviors that interfered with academic performance. The 2023-24 Discipline Profile documented one instance of intimidation; one instance of insubordination; two instances of obscene behavior; seven instances of disruptive behavior; and 30 instances of aggression towards staff and peers, which increased in frequency during the second semester. The student's IEP was amended on December 8, 2023 to add behavioral support and, on April 18, 2024, the LEA obtained parent consent to conduct a functional behavioral assessment (FBA) of the student. During this school year, the student participated successfully in elective classes with his peers. The LEA provided the parent with PWN rejecting her request for placement at Heartspring on December 8, 2023 and again on April 18, 2024.

The student was enrolled in the eighth grade during the 2024-25 school year. The LEA completed the FBA during the first quarter of the school year. On September 30, 2024, the IEP team reviewed the FBA which indicated a decrease in physical aggression. The LEA stated,

> The FBA aimed to measure the effectiveness of behavior supports and the number of occurrences of the target behavior identified. There were 3 occurrences of the target behavior and 1 occurrence of the peak behavior. This was a significant improvement from previous data collection periods, suggesting that the trialed interventions had been successful. According to the FBA report, "There has been a significant decrease in the frequency, severity, and duration of [student's] behaviors during the current 2024-2025 school year. [Student] has demonstrated an increased ability to utilize appropriate and positive coping mechanisms, such as deep breathing/breathing exercises, asking for time out of the classroom, regulating with the classroom therapy dog, etc. There has been one occurrence of the peak behavior [this] school year, with 30 days of enrollment. Last year, there were 12 occurrences of the peak behavior, within a comparable 30-day window. This indicates that the implemented interventions have demonstrated some initial success. The team will continue to monitor for effectiveness, fidelity, and feasibility."

The IEP Team developed the BIP based on the FBA with parent input at the September 30, 2024 IEP Team meeting. The parent was provided with PWN proposing to add the BIP to the IEP on October 3, 2024, with written consent obtained on October 4, 2024. The BIP was implemented for the remainder of the eighth grade.

The IEP Goal Progress Reports for the 2024-25 school year showed the student still struggled with compliance with academic tasks but was making slow but steady progress. The 2024-25 Discipline Profile documented only one instance of disruptive behavior that was not effectively addressed using the BIP during the 2024-25 school year. During this school year, the student participated successfully in elective classes with his peers. The LEA provided the parent with PWN rejecting her request for placement at a separate special education day school such as Heartspring on September 13, 2024 and again on November 19, 2024.

The student is enrolled in the ninth grade for the 2025-26 school year. The first quarter IEP Goal Progress Report dated October 13, 2024 showed the student was making progress towards his IEP goals. The High School Special Education Teacher reported that the student's BIP is implemented with fidelity and monitored through Social Emotional Learning (SEL) check-ins with all staff responsible for implementing the BIP. During this school year, the student is participating successfully in elective classes with his peers.

The most recent Reevaluation of the student was conducted on November 19, 2024 during the eighth grade. The Multidisciplinary Team Report reflects the student's cognitive abilities fall in the very low range (Full Scale IQ = 47) indicating that he learns at a significantly slower rate than his peers of the same age. Relative strengths were noted with verbal comprehension (Verbal Comprehension = 68; Similarities = 75; and Vocabulary = 65). Weaknesses were noted with working memory, processing speed, and visual spatial reasoning (Working Memory = 45; Processing Speed = 45; Visual-Spatial Index = 57). Note that scores are based on a mean of 100 and standard deviation of 15 so that average scores fall between 85 and 115.

All academic skills fell in the low and very low range and were commensurate with the student's measured cognitive skills. A relative strength was noted for Letter-Word Identification.

Adaptive behavior skills in the school setting as rated by his classroom teacher fell within the low range as compared to same-age peers for communication skills, daily living skills and socialization skills. The parent rated the student's adaptive behavior skills in the home setting in the low range for communication skills and socialization skills but in the moderately low range for daily living skills. Maladaptive skills were rated as clinically significant in both the school and home settings. An FBA was conducted and hypothesized the function of the student's behavior as follows:

> [Student] engages in inappropriate interactions with others primarily to avoid or escape unwanted sensory exposure, usually from other students. It is hypothesized that [Student] engages in the peak behavior of physical aggression, in an attempt to stop other students from engaging in behaviors he finds to be undesirable (crying, yelling, not following the directives of adults in the room, etc.) and to draw adult attention to the undesired stimuli, with the ultimate goal being that he stops the stimuli, an adult puts a stop to the stimuli, or he escapes from the situation.

The current IEP was developed on November 12, 2025 with the parent in attendance at the IEP Team meeting. The transition plan notes the student's goal is to work at Burger King and live semi-independently. The IEP includes goals for increasing reading and math skills, reducing the amount of time the student needs to return to task after taking a break after experiencing frustration, and speech therapy. The IEP includes a BIP that focuses on teaching awareness of feelings, requesting a break, and teaching/using de-escalation strategies, He receives special education services His placement is less than 40% of the time in the general education setting. Special education services are described as noted below:

> [Student] will receive direct special education services, in a general education building, participating without general education peers for English, math, science, and social studies. He will receive these classes at the same duration and frequency as his general education peers receive comparable instruction will be through the mixed abilities program. [Student] will receive direct special education services, in a general education building, participating with his general education peers for elective classes. [Student] will receive direct speech-language services, in a general education building, participating away from his general education peers for twenty minutes one time per week in a pullout setting. [Student] will also participate in Community Based Instruction twice per week.

The High School Special Education Teacher's data show the student had 11 behavioral incidents of dysregulation during the 2025-26 school year. Of the 11 incidents, nine were handled successfully through the implementation of the BIP. Only two of these incidents required assistance from administrators, and only one incident resulted in a suspension as a disciplinary action.

The IEP Progress Report dated October 13, 2025 document that the student demonstrated improvement from baseline and/or the previous reporting period on all of his IEP goals.

The High School Special Education Teacher uses Zones of Regulation, a research-based program to teach self-regulation skills. The Zones of Regulation Board is posted all day and all students in the classroom are encouraged to move their name if their feelings change throughout the day. School staff reported,

> When this student arrives in the morning, he turns in his red folder to staff that has his money sheet (see Master Money Sheet) in it from the previous day and then he finds his name and places it on the board according to how he is feeling that morning. Blue zone = tired, sad, bored, Green zone = ready to learn, happy, Yellow Zone = frustrated, nervous, and Red Zone means they are feeling out of control or mad (see 2025-2026 Zones of Regulation board in classroom). When the student is doing his check-in, staff ask him greeting questions such as, "what did you do after school yesterday?" If he places his name in the red zone, staff talk to him to better understand what's going on and how they can help him move into a more positive zone.

The LEA reported that the school staff working in the Mixed Abilities classroom know the student well and they are consistent with classroom procedures and expectations which are described in the Universal Interventions for Mixed Abilities Classroom Students at North High School. These interventions include:

- Daily Communication Folder with a calendar for the year
- Filled out money sheet goes home each night and is returned to school the next day
- Zones of Regulation check-in done at the beginning of the day and throughout the day.
- Breaks during class period
- Small group work in Mixed Abilities classroom
- Close proximity to an adult in Mixed Abilities classroom and in outside classes when special education support is necessary
- Students earn money each class period and go to a classroom store once a week with real items to spend their earnings
- Students who earn 80% of the possible money for the week get to go out to breakfast on Fridays
- Structured lunch break with supervision if needed
- Advanced notice about schedule changes (when staff is aware of a change)
- Mindfulness room is available when needed
- Calm down area in both Mixed Abilities classrooms

Conclusion

In this case, the interviews and documentation show the LEA has followed the IDEA regulations to review and revise the student's IEPs, as appropriate, since his enrollment during the past four school years.

The student enrolled in USD #259 in the sixth grade during the 2022-23 school year. The original sixth grade IEP was developed based on providing comparable services from the out-of-state transfer IEP and was reviewed and revised by the IEP team to change his placement to the Mixed Abilities program which could provide additional academic and behavioral support to meet the student's needs.

During the 2023-24 school year, the student's behavioral concerns escalated, and the IEP was amended at the end of the first semester to increase behavioral supports. At the end of the second semester of seventh grade, the IEP Team proposed and obtained written parent consent to conduct a functional behavioral assessment (FBA) of the student to gather additional data to develop a behavior intervention plan (BIP) to address behavioral challenges.

The FBA was completed during the first quarter of the 2024-25 school year when the student was in eighth grade. The IEP Team reviewed the data and developed a BIP for the student to provide additional behavioral support with an IEP goal to increase the student's self-regulations skills. A reevaluation in the areas of cognitive, academic, and social/emotional/behavioral was completed during the second quarter of the eighth grade and the IEP Team again met to review and revise the IEP. The IEP Goal Progress Reports showed progress towards achieving his IEP goals and the decreased disciplinary office referrals indicated the BIP was effective for the student.

During the current 2025-26 school year, the North High School IEP team of the student, including the parent, met on November 12, 2025 to review and revise the student's IEP. The results of the most recent reevaluation conducted on November 19, 2024 as well as current progress monitoring data were considered by the IEP Team in the development of a reading and math goal, a speech goal, and a goal to address the identified behavioral concerns and a BIP developed based on an FBA to provide environmental supports and instruction to teach self-regulation skills. IEP goal progress reports show the student is making progress towards meeting the annual goals.

In each school year, the IEP teams, including the parents, gathered and reviewed relevant data to make decisions regarding the provision of a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment for the student. The parent has repeatedly requested the student be placed in a separate special education setting for 100% of the school day due to concerns related to aggressive behavior in the home setting towards siblings and the parent as well as the safety of the student, his peers, and staff in the school setting. Each time, the LEA has considered this request and followed the IDEA regulations for providing appropriate prior written notice to refuse the request for such a restrictive setting away from the student's typical peers. It is noted that the LEA has provided information to the parent regarding community resources that could provide case management and behavioral support in the home setting.

Based upon the continuous process of IEP reviews and subsequent revisions to meet identified student needs in the least restrictive environment, there is sufficient evidence to substantiate a finding that the LEA has developed and implemented appropriate IEPs with BIPs calculated to enable the student to make progress appropriate in light of his circumstances and the student's consistent progress towards meeting IEP goals and the decrease in disciplinary actions is an outgrowth of this. Based on the foregoing, the allegation of a violation of special education laws and regulations related to this issue is not substantiated.

SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #385
ON DECEMBER 30, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: JANUARY 22, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, -------, by the Complainants, -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the complainants as "the Complainants."

The Complaint is against USD 385 Andover Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD 385.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to KSDE. In this case, KSDE received the complaint on December 30, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on January 29, 2026.

Background

The Student has ADHD and mosaic ring Turner syndrome, a genetic condition. The Student has a 504 Plan. On December 5, 2025, school staff and the Complainants met to discuss and update the Student's 504 Plan. At the same meeting, the Complainant's sought special education services to address parental concerns, including the Student's social awareness and classroom behavior.

Investigation of Complaint

The Complaint Investigator interviewed the Complainant on January 7, 2026. The following LEA staff were interviewed on January 12, 2026: the Director of Special Education.

In completing this investigation, the Complaint Investigator reviewed all documentation provided by the Complainant and the LEA. The following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

Complainant Materials

1. Summary of the 504 meeting that took place on December 5, 2025.
2. "Request for IEP eval" email sent by the Complainants on December 5, 2025.
3. Copy of the prior written notice received by the Complainants from the LEA via email on December 16, 2025.

Factual Findings

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Complainant and LEA staff.

1. On December 5, 2025, the Complainants and LEA staff met to review the Student's 504 Plan.
2. At the 504 Plan meeting, the Complainants asked about an IEP for the Student.
3. The counselor responded to the Complainant's question saying that, in her opinion, the Student would not qualify for an IEP.
4. On December 5, 2025, the Complainants sent an email to the principal and the counselor requesting that the LEA evaluate the Student for an IEP.
5. The LEA established a team to discuss whether to evaluate the Student for an IEP.
6. The team included the psychologist intern, principal, counselor, and the general education teacher.
7. The decision to refuse the evaluation was made by the team.
8. On December 16, 2025, the LEA provided the Complainants with prior written notice (PWN) refusing to conduct the IEP evaluation via email.
9. As stated in the PWN, the reason for the refusal was that the Student's reading and math scores across the most recent four data collection sessions indicate the Student is not performing significantly below grade level peers, and because the Complainant's concerns can be addressed through the Student's 504 Plan.

Issues Analysis

Issue One

Did USD 385 issue prior written notice (PWN) declining to evaluate the Student for an individualized education program (IEP) within a reasonable time, and is the explanation for declining to evaluate the Student sufficient?

A PWN is required when the LEA refuses a parent's request to evaluate their student. K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2); 34 C.F.R. 300.503(a)(2). When parents make a request for an evaluation (whether oral or written), KSDE has determined that, unless there is an unusual circumstance, 15 school days is a reasonable time for providing parents with a PWN of the LEA's refusal to conduct the evaluation. See "Reasonable time" to Respond to Parent Request (KSDE, January 8, 2002). Accordingly, unless there is an unusual circumstance, LEAs must provide parents with a PWN within 15 school days in response to any parent request regarding identification and evaluation.

A PWN shall include: a description of the action refused by the LEA; an explanation of why the LEA refused to take the action; a description of other options that the LEA or IEP team considered and the reasons those options were rejected; a description of each evaluation procedure, assessment, record, or report the agency used as a basis for the refused action; a description of any other factors that are relevant to the LEA's refusal; a statement that the parents have protection under the procedural safeguards; and sources for parents to contact to obtain assistance in understanding the provisions of the federal law and this act. K.S.A. 72-3432; 34 C.F.R. 300.503(b). A PWN that does not provide an explanation of why the LEA refused to take the action is deficient, as a matter of law.

In this case, the LEA sent the Complainants a PWN when it refused the Complainant's request to evaluate the Student. The Complainants requested that the LEA evaluate the Student on December 5, 2025. The LEA sent the PWN to the Complainants on December 16, 2025. The LEA was well within the 15 school day timeline established by KSDE guidance because the LEA issued the PWN within seven school days. Therefore, the LEA did not fail to issue a PWN declining to evaluate the Student for an IEP within a reasonable time.

The LEA had ample time over those seven school days to decide whether to evaluate the Student. During those seven days, a team met to discuss the Student's need for an IEP, specifically specially designed instruction. The team consisted of the psychologist intern, principal, counselor, and the general education teacher. Ultimately, the team decided not to evaluate the Student. The PWN noted that the LEA's refusal to evaluate the Student for an IEP was because the Student's "reading and math scores across the most recent four data collection sessions indicated that the Student was not performing significantly below grade level peers." In addition to test scores, the team considered several other data points, including teacher input and observations, a previous evaluation from another school, and an external evaluation. The PWN made clear that the Complainants' concerns could be met using the Student's current 504 Plan. The PWN also made clear that the LEA was willing to meet to update the Student's 504 Plan, stating the counselor would "reach out to the parents to add further accommodations to the plan." The LEA stated that the Student would continue to receive general education interventions, which are available to all general education students. Further, the PWN noted that the Student would "continue to receive evidence-based instruction in the general education classroom and through multitiered system support." Therefore, the LEA did not fail to give a sufficient explanation for declining to evaluate the Student.

Issue Two

Did USD 385 predetermine the Student's eligibility for Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) special education and related services?

Predetermination occurs when a LEA makes decisions about a student's eligibility without genuine input from LEA staff or any meaningful consideration of the student's needs. The law permits LEA staff and teams formed for the purpose of making evaluation decisions to engage in preparatory activities to develop or respond to a parent's proposal. The only requirement is that LEA staff have an open mind. T.W. by McCulloch and Wilson v. Unified Sch. Dist. No. 259, Wichita, Kan., 43 IDELR 187 (10th Cir. 2005). Thus, LEA staff may come to meetings with pre-formed opinions so long they are receptive and open-minded. Deal v. Hamilton Cty. Bd. of Educ., 104 LRP 59544 (6th Cir. 2004).

In this case, the decision to refuse to evaluate the Student for an IEP was made by a team. The team included the psychologist intern, principal, counselor, and the general education teacher. The team discussed whether the Student was a good candidate for an IEP evaluation. The team's discussion included the analysis of several data points, including the Student's reading and math scores, teacher input on classroom performance, the Student's previous school evaluation, and external evaluations. Though the team recognized the presence of a disability, the team agreed that the Student does not require specially designed instruction beyond what can be provided through general education interventions. Furthermore, the team agreed that the Student's needs could be addressed through the Student's existing 504 Plan.

Before the team made their decision, a team member shared their opinion regarding the Student's eligibility for an IEP at a 504 Plan meeting on December 5, 2025. At the meeting, the counselor told the Complainants that she believed that the Student would not qualify for an IEP. This was the counselor's opinion. All LEA staff are allowed to have pre-formed opinions regarding a student's eligibility for an IEP as long as they remain open-minded. There is no evidence that the counselor was not receptive to the team's opinions and information it gathered, nor is there evidence that the counselor was not open-minded. Therefore, the LEA did not predetermine the Student's eligibility for IDEA special education and related services.

Conclusions

ISSUE ONE: It is not substantiated that the LEA failed to issue prior written notice declining to evaluate the Student for an IEP within a reasonable time and failed to give a sufficient explanation for declining to evaluate the Student.

ISSUE TWO: It is not substantiated that the LEA predetermined the Student's eligibility for IDEA special education and related services.

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #512
ON DECEMBER 10, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: JANUARY 22, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, --------, by their parent, --------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #512, Shawnee Mission Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #512.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on December 10, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on January 10, 2026.

Allegations

The following issue will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), took steps to ensure that one or both of the parents were present at each IEP team meeting, or were afforded the opportunity to participate, including scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place. K.A.R. 91-40-17 (a)(1)(2)(c)(e)(1)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-25 (a)(1)(b)(1); 34 CFR §§300.322(a)(1)(2), 300.501(b).

NOTE: The scope of this case is limited to the IEP meeting on December 2, 2025. Allegations concerning the November 12, 2025, meeting were previously adjudicated under case KSDE 26FC512-006.

The Complaint Investigator interviewed the Parent on January 7, 2026. The Special Education Coordinator, accompanied by the Associate Superintendent of Special Education, was interviewed on January 9, 2026.

Background Information

This investigation involved a 5th-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in USD #512. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On November 7, 2025, the Parent requested an IEP meeting that was scheduled for November 12, 2025. The Parent waived the 10-day notification requirement on November 12, 2025. According to staff statements, early in the meeting, the Parent shared concerns about the Student's math progress. During the review of the Student's progress, staff reported the Parent's behavior escalated to include yelling profanity, and the Parent "standing over the principal." Staff reported the Principal indicated the meeting would be rescheduled.
2. On November 12, 2025, the Parent emailed the Principal to request the following relevant accommodations for future meetings:

a. "Alternative participation methods - I may provide written input before, during, or after meetings."
b. "Meeting format flexibility - I may choose to attend meetings in person, virtually, or in a hybrid format if that best supports my ability to participate calmly and effectively. The district will honor whichever format I select."

3. On November 13, 2025, the Principal emailed the Parent, "Our shared goal is to create a meeting environment that remains safe, respectful, and focused on the needs of your [children]. To ensure safety for all, and maintain a structured, productive meeting environment, we will plan to reschedule this past meeting, and it will be held virtually. … We will provide you with the required 10-day notice for the IEP meeting in accordance with your procedural safeguards. I will follow up with proposed dates and times for the team to convene virtually."
4. A Notice of Meeting dated November 17, 2025, created by the Special Education Coordinator, proposed an IEP meeting date of December 2, 2025, and noted "Proposed meeting date/time and WebEx link sent to parent via email. Notice of Meeting attached to email; Printed copy sent home in student backpack." The notice discussed possible changes to the Student's IEP and included a link to the WebEx meeting.
5. From November 17, 2025 through November 20, 2025, the following emails were exchanged between the Special Education Coordinator and the Parent regarding the scheduling of a December 2, 2025 IEP meeting:
    a. November 17, 2025, from the Special Education Coordinator: "I wanted to reach out to re-schedule [the Student's] IEP meeting. The school team is proposing [a] meeting on 12/2/2025 at 10 [a.m.] via WebEx. The Notice of Meeting is attached to this e-mail. Please let me know if this date/time does not work for you and we will work to re-schedule."
    b. November 18, 2025, from the Parent: "I'm not signing the notice of meeting until I get acknowledgement of wrongdoing, a sincere apology and everything I asked for in my previous email."
    c. November 19, 2025, from the Special Education Coordinator: "The IEP team is ready and willing to meet with you via WebEx at 10:00 [a.m.] on the proposed date of 12/2/25 and looks forward to working collaboratively to support your student. As the school team proposed the meeting date more than 10 days in advance, there is no signature needed on the Notice of Meeting."
        i. November 19, 2025, from the Parent: "I also didn't agree to the date."
    d. November 20, 2025, from the Special Education Coordinator: "The school team proposed December 2nd[,] [2025] at 10:00 [a.m.] more than 10 days prior to the meeting, therefore, at this time the meeting is scheduled to occur on this date and time. As outlined in the Notice of Meeting, if you're unable to attend this scheduled time and would like to schedule the meeting at another date or time, please share dates and times, within our teacher contract day, that you are available on the Notice of Meeting document."

i. November 20, 2025, from the Parent: "I'm expecting an apology." In an additional email, the Parent wrote, "The meeting is not scheduled on that date because I never agreed to the date. You asked me if it worked for me and I never said anything. You didn't give me a variety of dates to see what worked with my schedule. You decided what worked for you and that was that." Later, on the same date, the Parent wrote, "I want to be clear … I am not refusing to meet. I am refusing to participate in a meeting scheduled without my agreement, which is my right under [the] IDEA and [the] KSDE Procedural Safeguards. A meeting date is not valid simply because it was proposed more than 10 days in advance. [The] IDEA requires the school to make multiple attempts to find a mutually agreeable time and to meaningfully include the parent in scheduling. I was asked if December 2nd[,] [2025] worked, and I never confirmed. Therefore the meeting is not agreed upon and cannot move forward on that date." The Parent listed their conditions, "Before I can participate in any future meeting … " and requested the LEA respond with the following:

1. Acknowledgement of the Parent's listed concerns;
2. "Confirmation … the December 2nd[,] [2025] date is not set"; and
3. "Three alternative dates and times within the teacher contract day for me to choose from."

The Parent closed with, "I remain willing to participate once these issues are addressed."

6. On December 2, 2025 and December 3, 2025, the LEA and the Parent exchanged the following emails:
    a. December 2, 2025
        i. 10:30 a.m., Special Education Teacher: "[The Student's] annual IEP review is due in early February. I would like to schedule this sooner rather than later, so we have some lead time if we might need to reschedule because of weather. Would your schedule allow for an online virtual IEP meeting on Wednesday[,] January 21st[,] [2026] @ 10:00 [a.m.]?"
            1. The Parent responded, notifying the Special Education Teacher of the pending investigation, and the Special Education Teacher replied, "… I am still legally required to schedule an annual review of [the Student's] IEP. Given that, would your schedule allow for an online virtual IEP meeting on Wednesday[,] January 21st[,] [2026] @ 10:00 [a.m.]?"
        ii. 11:20 a.m.: The Parent wrote, "I am still willing to work collaboratively, but at this point, I need the district to acknowledge what occurred, correct the harm, and put appropriate supports in place moving forward. To be clear, I am not refusing to participate in IEP meetings." The Parent listed actions they needed the LEA to take before committing to a meeting, including "A mutually agreed-upon meeting date … . I was never given multiple options or asked for availability. A Notice of Meeting is not valid if the date was never mutually agreed to."

b. December 3, 2025

i. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education wrote, "… We remain committed to continuing collaborative communication with you and ensuring … you can participate meaningfully in all special education processes for [the Student] … . Regarding next steps, the IEP team continues to be ready to meet and collaborate in support of your children. We will communicate and propose dates and times for meetings … ." The Parent responded inquiring about in-person meetings, and the Associate Superintendent of Special Education wrote, "At this time to ensure the safety of our staff we will need to host virtual meetings. We can accommodate you being located at a district site and provide technology access to ensure you are able to participate."

ii. The Parent wrote, "I do not agree to virtual IEP meetings. I have never posed a threat to anyone in the building, and responding to trauma during an IEP meeting does not constitute a safety risk. … Virtual meetings restrict my ability to fully participate as a parent and limit my legally protected right under [the] IDEA to be meaningfully involved in my children's education. I also want to acknowledge … [the Special Education Teacher] already reached out to schedule another virtual meeting. I declined for the same reasons stated above … ." Additionally, the Parent wrote, "I am requesting an in-person meeting."

7. Regarding the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting and the communication with the Parent, the Associate Superintendent of Special Education emailed the Complaint Investigator on December 20, 2025, to share that a "courtesy phone call was made on December 1st[,] [2025] reminding the parent of the IEP meeting on December 2nd[,] [2025]."
8. The School Psychologist emailed a PWN dated December 2, 2025, to the Parent on December 3, 2025, and indicated a signature was not required. The PWN described the following:
    a. An IEP meeting was held on December 2, 2025, to review data and information about the student and determine "… With your input … any additions, changes or modifications …" to the Student's special education, related services, or placement needed to meet their IEP goals.
    b. Actions proposed or refused: "[The Parent] requested an IEP team meeting due to concerns in the area of math." The IEP team met to review the Student's present levels and progress, and "… [The Parent] was not in attendance."
    c. Explanation of actions and options considered were noted, and various data and other relevant factors were considered in the decision-making process.

9. The Parent responded to the PWN on December 3, 2025:
    a. 4:32 p.m.: "So you held a meeting without me?"
    b. 4:39 p.m.: "You held the meeting without me when I said in an email that I don't agree to the date."
    c. 4:58 p.m.: "I am writing to formally state … the December 2nd[,] 2025 meeting was not a valid IEP meeting and cannot be recognized as such. … An IEP meeting date must be mutually agreed[-]upon with the parent. I clearly communicated prior to 12/2/25 that I did not agree to that date and could not attend. Despite this, the district proceeded without me - and without offering me alternative dates or documenting genuine efforts to include me. … I am willing to move forward collaboratively in-person, with safeguards in place to prevent trauma triggers and ensure full parent participation. Please confirm in writing that the District will invalidate the 12/2/[2025] meeting and schedule an in-person IEP meeting with my approved accommodations."
    d. 6:48 p.m.: "I am formally rejecting the PWN dated 12/02/2025 regarding [the Student's] IEP." The Parent wrote, "The document falsely states … the December 2[,] [2025] meeting was requested by me. I only requested the original November 12[,] [2025] meeting, which the school ended without completion. … The meeting date and format were not mutually agreed[-]upon. No schedule options were provided. … I explicitly said I could not and would not attend until the prior harm was addressed. … The district denied me meaningful participation by moving forward without me. … No attempt was made to finalize a mutually acceptable time in good faith."
10. A Notice of Meeting dated December 3, 2025, proposed a virtual meeting on January 21, 2025 at 10:00 a.m. to discuss possible changes to the Student's IEP and conduct an annual review. It was noted the Parent was notified via email on December 2, 2025 with the date and time, the meeting notice was emailed to the Parent on December 3, 2025, and a hard copy was sent home in the Student's backpack on December 4, 2025.
11. From December 5, 2025 through December 9, 2025, the LEA and the Parent exchanged the following email messages:
    a. December 5, 2025
        i. Regarding the December 2, 2025 PWN, the Parent wrote, "I am specifically not consenting to … any representation that I agreed to or participated in the 12/02/25 meeting … any decisions made without my participation or informed agreement. … The December 2[,] [2025] meeting occurred without me present and without my consent to the date or format. Because of this, it does not meet procedural requirements for parent participation, and therefore I dispute its validity."
        ii. Regarding the December 3, 2025 Notice of Meeting, the Parent wrote, "As I have already communicated in writing, I will not be scheduling or attending any IEP meetings for [the Student] until the open … investigation is fully resolved." The Parent listed their expectations:

1. "The December 3rd[,] [2025] Notice of Meeting for January 21st[,] [2026] is withdrawn and voided."
2. "All IEP meeting scheduling must pause immediately until the findings … are issued."
3. "The district must re-engage in the interactive process regarding my parent disability accommodations … ."
4. "Any future meetings must be: In person, unless I independently choose to attend virtually."
5. "Scheduled only with mutual agreement via direct communication with me."

b. December 8, 2025
    i. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education described the LEA's preferences for a virtual meeting or an in-person meeting with security presence and indicated the Special Education Coordinator would be reaching out to the Parent to schedule an IEP meeting.
    ii. The Parent responded, "I am writing to formally reiterate … the district must cease all further IEP actions, meetings, scheduling attempts, and changes while there is an active … investigation into your violation of parent participation rights." The Parent reiterated the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting was held without their agreement to the date and time and wrote, "I was not notified … the meeting would proceed without me." The Parent listed actions they requested from the LEA and wrote, "I expect written confirmation of compliance within 5 school days."
c. December 9, 2025
    i. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education wrote, "The district must continue to meet its obligations while the complaint is pending, including scheduling needed IEP team meetings[,] and issuing PWNs."
    ii. The Parent reiterated, "… The district held the December 2, [2025] meeting without me present, after I clearly stated … I did not agree to the date or format." The Parent also wrote, "moving forward," … "I am not available on any date scheduled without my participation" and "No meeting may take place if my accommodations are not in place."
    iii. The Parent wrote, "First I have never refused to participate in [the Student's] IEP process. I have refused only the barriers the district has imposed on my participation." The Parent included, "The district required WebEX without my consent … the district never provided a WebEx link for the December 2nd[,] [2025] meeting … the district proceeded without me and made IEP decisions illegally. … Until that investigation is complete and the district corrects these violations, no further IEP meetings will be scheduled or held."

12. Additionally, on December 9, 2025, the Special Education Coordinator emailed the Parent regarding the scheduling of the Student's annual review, "I know … [the Special Education Teacher] … sent you a Notice of Meeting proposing holding [the Student's] annual IEP meeting via WebEx on January 21st[,] 2026 at 10:00 [a.m.]. If this date/time does not work for you, please share with me other dates/times that do work for you. Please also share your preference to meeting via WebEx or in person … with the stipulations outlined in [the Associate Superintendent of Special Education's] previous email. [The Student's] IEP is due February 13th[,] 2026; we will need to hold the meeting prior to this date. Additionally, … we would like to schedule the meeting in advance of the 13th to allow for unexpected events that would impact meeting."

Parent Interview

13. When asked by the Complaint Investigator about the LEA offering December 2, 2025 as an IEP date for the Student, the Parent indicated the District sent a Notice of Meeting for a virtual meeting, "That was the only option … they gave me was via WebEx and December 2nd, [2025] there was no other options for date or time. … They didn't say that I could do in-person or anything." The Parent shared, "I told them … I did not agree to the meeting date because … it did not allow me to meaningfully participate because they decided how I could participate in the meeting … they were saying it was for safety reasons based on a previous meeting when I never threatened to harm anyone … ." The Parent said, "I told them … I did not agree to the date, that I wanted something different. … I told them … I was not refusing to meet. I'm refusing to participate in a meeting scheduled without my agreement."
14. The Parent shared, "Regardless of the fact that I told them … I didn't agree to the date and time, they still held that meeting. They made decisions for my [child's] IEP without me. They didn't even ask. They didn't even give me additional days or times … . They put in there that I requested an IEP meeting. I requested the November 12th[,] [2025] meeting. This one I didn't request. They requested this meeting. They're the ones that set this meeting … . I was holding off. I wasn't going to even attempt to hold another meeting yet. They reached out to me to reschedule it." The Parent described they wanted to add math services for their child and indicated, "… They made a decision without me to not add math services for my [child] based on what they think, not based on any information … I have … ."
15. The Parent acknowledged, for both the December 2, 2025 and the January 21, 2026 IEP meetings, the LEA requested the Parent share dates and times if the LEA's proposed date and time did not work.
16. The Parent explained their reasons for not offering other options for the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting, "… Because they were framing me as somebody that was threatening and … was unsafe, and so they had made up their mind … it was only WebEx. … I did not put any other times. Instead, I was in a[n] … investigation, and so it removed my right to meaningful participation because I was not … they had framed me as this person. The District has me framed as unsafe. They put me down later as threatening to punch the Principal when it was not true, and that's why they were trying to do WebEx only. And then later they said, 'Fine, we'll do in-person, but security has to be present.'" The Parent explained, "… Being able to participate in person is how I can participate meaningfully for my kids. And taking away my right to say how I can participate for my kids, instead of giving me the option of to participate [sic], was completely removed from me. There was no option. So I did not offer alternatives."

17. Regarding their understanding of "scheduling a mutually agreed-upon date," the Parent's perspective included "… Giving me the option to say … in-person or virtual. If I agree to virtual, that is one thing. … I prefer in-person because everybody can communicate effectively … . I had done virtual for IEP meetings in the past, and it did not go well. … And … giving me the option of how I want to do the meeting, give me different times, which they've given me different times in the past, but this time it was, 'No, we're meeting at this time. That's it."
18. According to the Parent, the Special Education Teacher emailed the Parent on December 2, 2025 to propose January 21, 2026 for a virtual, annual IEP meeting. The Parent shared with the Complaint Investigator, "And I said … I didn't want to schedule anything until it [the complaint] was resolved. … I still was not comfortable with virtual-only. … I told [the Special Education Teacher] … I understood … the review was due soon, [and] I didn't want to schedule any IEP meetings until the issues from the November 12th[,] [2025] meeting are resolved, and the District has responded to my parent disability accommodation request and trauma parent profile." The Parent shared, "I said, 'All future meetings must be in person unless I independently choose to be virtual,' because … that is my right to be able to choose because I was never a threat to anybody."
19. For the scheduling of the January 21, 2026 IEP meeting, the Parent recalled the LEA offering a WebEx option or an in-person option with specific stipulations and the presence of a security officer. The Parent shared, "… That was the stipulation, and I told them no because I didn't want to be treated that way. This whole thing became not about my [child]. It became about me and false information about me."

Special Education Coordinator & Associate Superintendent of Special Education Interview

20. In an Interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Education Coordinator described offering December 2, 2025 as a meeting date for the Student's IEP, "So this was in response to a meeting that had occurred initially in November, and the school-based IEP team wanted to continue the conversation with the Parent. … We offered that date and time, more than 10 school days in advance of the meeting … we proposed to the Parent, and noted in a couple different emails, as well as a phone call, that if the Parent had other dates or times … they wanted to offer to us, … please let us know." The Special Education Coordinator indicated no other dates or times were offered, "We said, this date and time is what we're proposing, and please let us know if there are other dates or times … you would propose … if that date and time does not work for you."

21. The Special Education Coordinator indicated it was standard LEA practice to propose a date and time to a parent for an IEP meeting and "… Then they can let us know … in a myriad of ways, one being on the Notice of Meeting that's provided to the family, one being any other way of communication. And so we didn't receive any other dates or time proposal from the parent/guardian in this situation." The Associate Superintendent of Special Education explained the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting was a "carryover" from the November IEP meeting, when the Parent voiced concern about the Student's math progress.
22. When asked about the specific steps the LEA took to offer an alternative convening to December 2, 2025, the Associate Superintendent of Special Education explained the Parent's disagreement centered on the meeting's modality rather than its scheduling. The LEA offered an alternative to a virtual meeting: an in-person meeting at a neutral location, with law enforcement support for safety. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education indicated that due to established safety parameters, the LEA remained firm on the virtual requirement. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education attempted to facilitate the Parent's attendance via a courtesy call placed the day before the meeting, but was unable to reach the Parent and left a message. According to the Associate Superintendent of Special Education, the Parent's expressed frustration was interpreted as a dislike of the virtual format rather than an inability to attend on that specific date, so the LEA moved forward with the meeting as planned.

    The Associate Superintendent of Special Education explained the meeting continued without the Parent present, "… After the incident on November 12th[,] [2025], we learned … the Parent had … concern about math. So the team wanted to formally look at the math concerns just to make sure … there wasn't something being missed, but the Parent, unfortunately, was unable to safely participate in the November 12th[,] [2025] meeting." The Associate Superintendent of Special Education described how the school-based team used the time between the November and December meetings to review the Student's math progress and IEP.
23. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education indicated the link to the WebEx for the December 2, 2025 meeting was on the Notice of Meeting provided to the Parent.
24. The Associate Superintendent of Special Education shared, "We are continuing to try to find ways to meet [the] Parent at the table, but also while protecting staff and their safety to ensure … [the] Parent can have a voice at the table, but yet our staff aren't attacked in a verbal and semi-physical capacity."

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, took steps to ensure that one or both of the parents were present at each IEP team meeting, or were afforded the opportunity to participate, including scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place. K.A.R. 91-40-17 (a)(1)(2)(c)(e)(1)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-25 (a)(1)(b)(1); 34 CFR §§300.322(a)(1)(2), 300.501(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(1)(2)(c)(e)(1)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-25 (a)(1)(b)(1); 34 CFR §§300.322(a)(1)(2), 300.501(b), parents must be members of the IEP team. The parents are equal partners and play an active role in providing critical information about their child's abilities, interests, performance, and history. They are involved in the decision-making process throughout the development of the IEP.

Each agency shall take steps to ensure that a parent of an exceptional child is present at each IEP team meeting or is afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and providing written notice to the parent of any IEP team meeting, at least 10 days in advance of the meeting. If a parent of an exceptional child cannot be physically present for an IEP team meeting, the agency shall attempt other measures to ensure parent participation, including individual or conference telephone calls.

When an agency conducts an IEP team meeting without parental participation, the agency shall have a record of the attempts, having been unable to contact the parent or to convince the parent to participate. Furthermore, if an agency conducts an IEP team meeting without parental participation, the agency shall have a record of the attempts the agency made to contact the parent to provide notice of the meeting and to secure the parent's participation. The record shall include at least two of the following: detailed records of telephone calls made or attempted, including the date, time, and person making the calls and the results of the calls, detailed records of visits made to the parents' home or homes, including the date, time, and person making the visit, and the results of the visit, copies of correspondence sent to the parent and any responses received, or detailed records of any other method attempted to contact the parent and the results of that attempt.

Each agency shall give parents sufficient early notice of the meeting, at least ten days, to ensure they have an opportunity to attend the meeting. Each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child.

The Parent alleged that on December 2, 2025, USD #512 held an IEP meeting for their child despite:

a. The Parent "clearly stated in writing" they did not agree to the proposed date.
b. No mutually agreeable date was ever confirmed with the Parent.
c. The Parent was never told the team would proceed without the Parent present.

The Parent alleged the PWN issued after the IEP meeting falsely stated they "requested" the IEP meeting on December 2, 2025. The Parent stated they did request the original November 12, 2025 IEP meeting, but did not request or agree to the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting.

The LEA's Response noted the LEA convened an IEP meeting on November 12, 2025 at the Parent's request, which was terminated early due to the Parent's verbal escalation and physical intimidation. In the following weeks, the LEA made multiple attempts to reschedule, providing a neutral facilitator and offering virtual or central-office meeting options. The LEA scheduled a second meeting for December 2, 2025, and inquired about necessary accommodations or alternative dates and times, but the Parent declined to participate virtually and did not attend the IEP. The IEP team reviewed the Student's math performance in the Parent's absence, documented the findings in a PWN, and issued further requests for a January 2026 meeting. The LEA concluded that its actions complied with the IDEA and KSDE requirements, as it provided prompt responses and reasonable efforts to facilitate participation despite the Parent's refusal of the proposed meeting formats and failure to suggest alternative dates.

The LEA exceeded the 10-day notice requirement for scheduling an IEP meeting and repeatedly solicited the Parent's availability for alternative IEP meeting dates, which the Parent declined to provide. Furthermore, the LEA's transition to a virtual format was a permissible measure to ensure a safe and productive meeting environment following documented safety concerns during the November IEP meeting. The LEA's detailed record of outreach to schedule the December 2, 2025 meeting, including emails, a phone call, and an electronic and printed Notice of Meeting, justified proceeding with the IEP meeting on December 2, 2025 to ensure the Student's educational needs were addressed.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to take steps to ensure parental participation or failed to schedule the December 2, 2025 IEP meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place.

Background Information

This investigation involved a 6th-grade student enrolled at Hillsdale Learning Center in USD #367. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA under the category of Autism. The Student began attending the Learning Center in the fall of 2023. Prior to attending the Learning Center, the Student participated in a life skills program at another elementary school during the 2021-2022 school year.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On January 13, 2025, a Notice of Special Education Meeting was issued proposing a meeting on January 24, 2025, at 1:00 p.m., to review the evaluation and determine eligibility. Additionally, the notice stated the team would also discuss possible changes to the IEP and conduct an annual review of the Student's IEP. The Parent indicated they planned to attend the meeting and added a handwritten note stating they wanted the School to "do better" with communication and that they needed consent paperwork in a more timely manner. They also stated they felt the evaluation should have been completed at the beginning of the school year.
2. On January 15, 2025, the Parent signed a Request for Evaluation/Reevaluation Extension form, agreeing to an extension of the 60-school-day reevaluation timeline. The document indicated the evaluation's due date was projected for January 10, 2025, and that, because the School was closed due to weather, the District was proposing a new date of January 24, 2025.
3. The IEP dated January 24, 2025, contained the following information:
    a. The Parent wanted to discuss the Student's bathroom breaks at school and wanted to ensure the Student was standing to urinate and sitting to have a bowel movement.
    b. The Student did not have needs in the area of general intelligence.
    c. The Student did not have health needs that required special education or related services. The following was noted:
        i. The Student took medications for sleep, anxiety, and seizures.
        ii. The Parent provided a seizure plan with medication lists on September 25, 2024.
        iii. The Student required a Health Care Plan (HCP).
        iv. The Parent indicated the Student's pediatrician was concerned about the Student's weight and was exploring ways to increase exercise. They also shared the Student's latest Electrocardiogram (EKG) showed a reduction in brain firing with the potential to remove seizure meds in the future.
    d. The Student had motor needs that required special education or related services. This included Activities of Daily Living (ADLs) such as grooming, hygiene, toileting, mealtime, and clothing management. It also included written expression, visual perception skills, and sensory processing.

e. The Student had communication needs that required special education or related services.
f. The Student had social-emotional needs that required special education or related services.
g. The Student had reading needs that required special education or related services.
h. The Student had math needs that required special education or related services.
i. The Student had written language needs that required special education or related services.
j. Goal 1 stated: the Student would spontaneously use functional verbal communication to request, protest, answer questions, and greet/farewell at least 50 times during their day, with an average of 2 words per sentence.
k. Goal 2 stated the Student would demonstrate improved motor, perceptual, and self-care skills as evidenced by completing 6/8 dressing boards independently with no more than 2 prompts and by copying uppercase letters from a given model.
l. Goal 3 stated the Student would match real-life picture cards of community signs and symbols.
m. Goal 4 stated the Student would place the numbers in order up to 35 by skip-counting to determine the number of objects.
n. The Student did not require any accommodation, modification, or supplemental aids.
o. No support for school personnel was needed.
p. The Student required transportation.
q. Special education and related services included:
    i. Speech and language services provided in the Classroom for 30 minutes one day per week.
    ii. Occupational Therapy (OT) provided in the Classroom for 20 minutes, once per week.
    iii. Special education services provided in the Classroom for 375 minutes per day, four days per week, and for 325 minutes per day, one day per week.
    iv. The Student would not participate with non-disabled peers because they attended the School where there was no access to general education peers or classes.
    v. The Student qualified for ESY for all 4 goals.
r. Meeting participants included the Parent, the Assistant Director, the Occupational Therapist (OT), the School Psychologist, the Instructor, the Speech Pathologist, and the Advocate.

4. On January 24, 2025, a PWN was provided to the Parent, which stated the team met to review evaluation data and determine the special education and related services needed by the Student. The PWN noted a material change in services. It stated the Student continued to qualify for special education services under the category of Autism. Additionally, the Student required speech-language and OT services.
   The PWN indicated new data was acquired during the evaluation period. The team considered not evaluating but rejected that option due to the need for new data. Data used included parent/teacher input, observations, classroom performance, OT, speech, and Physical Therapy (PT) assessments. Additionally, the PWN stated no harmful effects were anticipated because the Student would receive the services they qualified for.
   An additional PWN dated January 24, 2025 noted the team met to review the evaluation/assessment data to determine special education and related services needs for this student; the appropriate educational placement to provide special education and related services; and any additions, changes, or modifications to the special education and related services or educational placement that were needed to enable the Student to meet their individualized goals and to participate, as appropriate, in the general education curriculum. It referenced the PWN generated for the reevaluation, providing additional information on the actions proposed or refused, why they were proposed or refused, other options considered, the data used, and other factors.
5. On April 7, 2025, a Seizure Action Plan was developed by the Student's pediatrician. The plan included basic seizure first aid. The plan noted the Student was weaning off a medication and indicated the side effect of the medication was dizziness. The plan stated the seizures included full-body stiffening and foaming at the mouth. When a seizure was an emergency, including a seizure lasting over 20 minutes, a tonic-clonic seizure lasting over 5 minutes, an injury occurring during the seizure, breathing difficulties, or a seizure occurring in water.
   The Seizure Action Plan also included the emergency plan, which called for contacting the school nurse, contacting 911, notifying the Parent or emergency contact, and administering the listed emergency medication.
6. On September 18, 2025, a PWN for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent was provided to the Parent which stated the IEP team was proposing to conduct a reevaluation of the Student to assist the team in determining whether any additions or modifications to the special education and related services were needed to enable the Student to meet their measurable annual goals and to participate, as appropriate in the general education curriculum.
   The action was proposed because the Parent requested a reevaluation to determine the Student's special education needs and whether the Student was in the correct placement. The Parent requested the Student be moved to an out-of-district cooperative placement.
   The Team considered using existing data without an evaluation, but the Parent requested the "most up-to-date" data to determine the Student's needs. The Parent did not believe the Student's needs were being met in their current placement. The Student was reevaluated in January, 2025.

7. On September 26, 2025, an incident report documented the Student's behavior during and after recess. According to the report, after playing near water during recess, the Student appeared to walk abnormally by limping and favoring one leg. Staff changed the Student's wet socks, but the Student continued to walk "abnormally." Staff took the Student to the nurse's office to have the Student's feet checked for injury. No injuries were found. When the Student appeared to have difficulty getting up from a bean bag chair, staff took the Student to the nurse's office to have the Student's back checked for injuries. There were no visible signs of injury. The Parent was also contacted and informed about the change of clothes.
8. On December 16, 2026, a Notice of Special Education Meeting was provided to the Parent, indicating that a meeting was scheduled for December 16, 2025, at 2:30 p.m. to review the evaluation and determine eligibility. The Parent signed a waiver of their right to a 10-day notice of the meeting and indicated they planned to attend.
9. On December 16, 2025, an evaluation report indicated:
    a. The reevaluation was requested by the Parent to determine whether current services were appropriate for the Student's needs.
    b. The Student's cognitive abilities were not assessed during the evaluation.
    c. An OT evaluation was completed, and it was noted the Student was unable to complete a standardized OT assessment at that time, so skills were assessed through observation.
        i. The Student was able to safely navigate the various surfaces at school, including concrete, dirt/mulch, and thresholds.
        ii. The Student's standard chair and desk were at the appropriate height and accessible.
        iii. The Student used a functional right-handed grasp when completing fine motor activities such as writing and coloring. The Student was able to print their first name in all capital letters, but could not write the letters of the alphabet independently.
        iv. The Student was observed playing alone at recess, climbing the structures, and walking directly to the swings. The Student lined up with their peers and followed their classmates and staff in the hallways appropriately.
        v. The Student used vocalizations when they needed something. They were unable to describe their own emotional or physical status or to use a regulatory visual.
        vi. The Student could perform dressing skills such as putting on and taking off their shoes and coat. Additionally, the Student could pull their pants up and down. They could complete toileting with prompts to remain seated and try for a specific time.
        vii. The Student was able to set up their lunch independently. They could use their water bottle throughout the day. During lunch, the Student tried 1-2 new items before eating one of their preferred foods. The Student used a visual feeding progression schedule to explore new items.

viii. The Student required verbal or visual support for retrieving, gathering, and putting away materials; for safety awareness during fire/evacuation drills; and for packing and/or unpacking their book bag.

ix. The Student demonstrated poor self-advocacy skills; they were able to seek out a classroom staff member but were not able to raise their hand to ask a question.

x. The Student was identified as having needs in the areas of written expression, technology accessibility, social participation, ADL independence, Instrumental Activities of Daily Living (IADL) participation, vocational/life skills, and organization/pre-vocational job skills that affect their ability to engage in structured learning activities at school.

d. A communication assessment was started but discontinued as it was deemed inappropriate and did not yield valid or reliable information. The Students' progress over the past three years was evaluated through a review of documentation and direct observations.

i. The Student showed major improvement in 'requesting' and increased vocabulary from 8-10 core words to 30 or more.

ii. The Student showed growth from unsafe physical protesting to functional verbal/Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) protesting, and was able to use protest words consistently with minimal prompting.

iii. The Student increased from 30% to 80% in thematic labeling and expanded their vocabulary from basic sets to more than 100 items.

iv. The Student showed growth in vocabulary comprehension and the ability to answer simple 'wh' questions, and demonstrated stronger performance on structured tasks with picture cues.

e. The Life Skills Teacher indicated the Student was able to complete academics with one-on-one support and needed visual support for one-step tasks.

f. Parent and teacher ratings indicated the Student's adaptive skills fell within the extremely low range relative to peers of the same age/grade.

g. The Student continued to show delays in speech, academics, social-emotional, and adaptive development. The Student's providers indicated the Student had maintained progress toward their IEP goals.

h. The IEP team found the Student eligible for special education because the Student met the criteria for a disability and determined special education services were necessary to enable the Student to receive educational benefits. The team noted they believed the Classroom was the best fit for the Student's identified needs.

i. The Parent signed, indicating their agreement with the team decision.

10. On December 16, 2025, a PWN was issued, stating the team met to review the evaluation/assessment data for the Student and determine the need for special education and related services, as well as the appropriate educational placement. The PWN indicated the Parent requested the reevaluation to determine the appropriateness of the Student's placement in the Classroom. The team determined the Classroom was the most appropriate placement and the Student should continue attending the Classroom at the School. They indicated they would meet in January 2026 for the annual IEP.
    The District refused the Parent's proposal to place the Student in another setting because the Student was making adequate progress toward their goals. The team explained that because the Student attended the School outside their home district, the Student would not have access to instruction and peer interaction in the general education curriculum.
    The Parent signed to provide consent for the placement and services specified in the notice.
11. On December 19, 2025, a Progress Report stated the Student made the following progress on their IEP goals:
    a. Goal 1: Maintained Performance.
        i. The Student was spontaneously using functional verbal communication to request, answer questions, and greet/farewell at least 20 times per day, with an average of two words per request. The Student uses phrases like "no thank you."
    b. Goal 2: Maintained Performance.
        i. The Student copied 26/26 uppercase letters with 58% accuracy, completed 5 dressing boards, and could zip and unzip once the zipper was initiated.
    c. Goal 3: Slight Improvement.
        i. The Student consistently matched 10 community signs to the symbol card with 75% accuracy.
    d. Goal 4: Maintained Performance.
        i. The Student was unable to skip count by 5's and was still working on counting by 1's to 30 independently without visuals.
12. On January 15, 2026, the Special Education Director emailed a statement confirming the Student had no seizures at school for "at least the last year and a half" and indicated they did not have any seizure logs for that reason.
13. An attendance report from August 13, 2025 through December 19, 2025, indicated the Student was present for 77.88 of the 93 days of school during semester 1.
14. An undated document titled, Middle School Schedule, noted the following:
    a. 8:00-Breakfast,

b. 8:30 Morning Meeting,

Parent Interview

17. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent was joined by the Advocate. The Parent explained they had visited the School for a family event, had asked a paraeducator what they would do if the Student had a seizure, and recalled the paraeducator stating, "I don't know." The Parent noted the Life Skills Teacher stated, "The seizure plan is hanging on the wall over there." The Parent stated that the Advocate filed a complaint with the Department for Children and Families (DCF) because staff lacked proper training.

The Parent stated when they arrived that day, they were directed to the restroom where the Student was being changed. They stated the Student had been left in the bathroom unattended and added this was contrary to the Student's seizure plan, which indicated the Student should not be left unattended due to being weaned off their seizure medication.

18. The Parent stated later that day, the Paraeducator noticed the Student had peed down their leg, and they took the Student to the bathroom. The Parent indicated they were [there] when they noticed the Student's pull-up had been put on inside out. The Parent blamed this on the Student not having support in the bathroom when they were left unattended.
19. The Parent stated the Student never had a seizure at school. They noted the Student had 2 previous seizures, one in 2019 and the other in 2021. Since then, they shared the Student's EKGs showed the "fires in [their] brain" were reduced from the year before, which is what prompted them to begin weaning the Student off their seizure medication at the start of this school year. The Student took their medications at home.
20. The Parent stated the School did not use the same toileting routine the Parent used. They explained the School would take the Student into the bathroom, the Student would pull down their pants, do a "five count", empty their bladder, pull their pants up, walk out, and wash their hands. The Parent stated they use a timer, visuals, and verbal prompting at home.
21. The Parent stated they provided the School with a visual-sensory strip outlining the actions the Student should follow when introduced to a new food before they are able to eat preferred foods. The Parent indicated the School hadn't been offering the Student the new foods or following the sensory strip. The Parent stated they contacted the School "numerous times" because they weren't doing it, and the School indicated they would "work on it."
22. The Parent indicated the School did not support the Student's self-care needs because the School didn't brush the Student's teeth or apply deodorant, and the School sent the Student home with soiled clothes in their backpack. Additionally, the Parent indicated they believed accommodations involving the Student's safety, well-being related to epilepsy, self-care, and playground tracking were not being provided.
23. The Parent stated they were concerned because they were not notified when the School's air conditioning went out for a couple of days. They stated the Student's class was taken into the gym and the lunchroom for the day. The Parent was concerned because heat was listed as a trigger on the Student's seizure plan, and no one called to inform the Parent the Student had been exposed to heat.
24. The Parent indicated that while the Student had learned to count and read three- and four-letter words, they had regressed in spelling their name, they were not potty trained, were still drinking from a sippy cup, and were coming home in soiled and damp diapers.

Life Skills Teacher Interview

25. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Life Skills Teacher was joined by the Special Education Director.
26. The Life Skills Teacher confirmed the Student had not had a seizure while at school since they started working together in June [2025]. The Life Skills Teacher stated the Parent provided them with a seizure action plan and reported reviewing it with their paraeducators, staff, and the School Nurse. They added it was a standard seizure action plan. The Life Skills Teacher confirmed the Student did not take medications at school.
27. Staff supported life skills in the classroom by taking the Student to the bathroom every hour and using sensory skills during feeding. The Life Skills Teacher stated they had the Student look at, touch, and smell the food, then kiss it, lick it, and finally nibble it. The Student got their preferred food as a reward after that. Other life skills the Student was instructed in included chores, cooking, and making grocery lists.
28. The Life Skills Teacher confirmed they tracked the Student's progress through observations and charts.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #367, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide special education and related services in accordance with the Student's IEP, specifically regarding medical protocols (seizure and heat triggers), toileting, feeding, and self-care routines, school-to-home communication, and ESY. Additionally, whether USD #367 ensured that all staff responsible for implementation were informed of the IEP and trained on their specific responsibilities. K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(3-4)(5)(A-B); 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(a)(d).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b)(3-4)(5)(A-B), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. Each agency shall ensure that an IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year, the child's IEP is accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation, and each teacher and provider is informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP with respect to medical protocols (seizure and heat triggers), toileting, feeding, and self-care routines, and school-to-home communication. Additionally, the Parent alleged the LEA failed to ensure that paraprofessionals were appropriately trained to implement the Student's IEP and accommodations during the 2024-25, 2025-26 school year, and ESY.

The LEA stated the Student's IEP was developed by the IEP team and implemented as written. The IEP included the Student's medical needs, including seizure awareness and heat-related considerations, as well as toileting, feeding, and self-care routines appropriate to the Student's educational needs. All staff responsible for implementing the Student's IEP received appropriate guidance and training in August [2025] on their roles, including health and safety procedures.

The Student's January 24, 2025, IEP identified needs in medical protocols, toileting, feeding, and self-care, including a requirement for a HCP and assistance with ADLs; however, the IEP did not include specific goals, related services, or accommodations in the areas of toileting, feeding, self-care routines, or school-to-home communication. Communication between the home and school was documented as frequent, with message history showing contact two to five days per week regarding the Student's daily needs.

The Parent alleged the School failed to follow the seizure plan regarding supervision and heat triggers. District records indicate that staff received health protocol training on August 8, 2025, and the Life Skills Teacher reported reviewing the seizure plan with all paraeducators. Both the Parent and the LEA confirmed the Student never experienced a seizure while at school.

Although the Parent expressed concerns about staff knowledge during a site visit, documentation shows a comprehensive training schedule for paraeducators from August through November 2025, covering IEP reviews, de-escalation, and prompting techniques. Additionally, while the Parent alleged a lack of progress, the December 2025 progress report and evaluation indicated the Student maintained performance or showed slight improvement in all four IEP goals, all of which qualified for ESY services.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide special education and related services in accordance with the Student's IEP, specifically regarding medical protocols (seizure and heat triggers), toileting, feeding, and self-care routines, school-to-home communication, and ESY; and it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure that all staff responsible for implementation were informed of the IEP and trained on their specific responsibilities.

Issue Two

Whether USD #367, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, followed appropriate procedures in denying the Parent's request to conduct a reevaluation of the Student to determine changes in the Student's needs and inform placement decisions. K.A.R. 91-40-8(c)(e); K.S.A. 72-3428(h); 34 C.F.R. § 300.303.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-8(c)(e), as a part of an initial evaluation, if appropriate, and as a part of any reevaluation, each agency shall ensure that members of an appropriate IEP team for the child and other qualified professionals, as appropriate, review existing evaluation data on the child, including evaluations and information provided by the parent or parents of the child, current classroom-based, local, and state assessments, classroom-based observations, and observations by teachers and related services providers. Based on the review and input from the child's parent or parents, the evaluation team shall identify what additional data, if any, is needed to determine whether the child has a particular category of exceptionality or, in the case of a reevaluation of a child, whether the child continues to have such an exceptionality, what the present levels of academic achievement and educational and related developmental needs of the child are, whether the child needs special education and related services, or in the case of a reevaluation of a child, whether the child continues to need special education and related services, Additionally, in the case of a reevaluation of the child, the team shall identify whether any additions or modifications to the special education and related services currently being provided to the child are needed to enable the child to meet the measurable annual goals set out in the IEP of the child and to participate, as appropriate, in the general education curriculum. If the team determines additional data is required to make any of the determinations specified, the agency, after giving proper written notice to the parent and obtaining parental consent, shall administer those tests and evaluations that are appropriate to produce the needed data. If the team determines that no additional data is needed to make any of the determinations specified, the agency shall give written notice to the child's parent of the determination that no additional data is needed and the reasons for this determination, and the right of the parent to request an assessment. The agency shall not be required to conduct any additional assessments unless requested to do so by a parent.

According to K.S.A. 72-3428(h), each agency shall ensure that a reevaluation of each exceptional child is conducted if the agency determines that the educational or related services needs of the child, including academic achievement or functional performance, warrant a reevaluation, or if the child's parent or teacher requests a reevaluation. An agency shall conduct a reevaluation of a child not more frequently than once a year, unless the parent and the agency agree otherwise, and at least once every three years, unless the parent and the agency agree that a reevaluation is unnecessary.

The Parent alleged the LEA denied the Parent's request for a reevaluation to determine the Student's current needs and to inform placement decisions.

The LEA responded the Student’s IEP team had two different re-evaluations in the past year at the Parent’s request, which followed appropriate procedures, and did not deny the Parent their right to a re-evaluation.

The data indicate that the District followed procedures for reevaluation rather than denying the Parent’s requests. On January 15, 2025, the Parent signed an extension for a reevaluation that had been delayed by weather, which was completed on January 24, 2025. Later that year, on September 18, 2025, the District issued a PWN proposing another reevaluation, specifically because the Parent requested the "most up-to-date" data to determine whether the Student's needs were being met and whether the current placement was correct. While the District ultimately refused the Parent's specific proposal to move the Student to an out-of-district cooperative placement, citing the Student's adequate progress and the appropriateness of the current classroom, the procedural requirements for conducting the reevaluation and providing notice of the decision were documented through PWNs issued in September and December 2025.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to follow appropriate procedures in denying the Parent's request to conduct a reevaluation of the Student to determine changes in the Student's needs and to inform placement decisions.

Issue Three

Whether USD #367, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, afforded the Parent an opportunity to participate in meetings with respect to the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of the Student and the provision of a FAPE. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a); K.A.R. 91-40-25(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.322(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.501(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a), each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and informing the parents, and providing written notice to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting.

According to the K.A.R. 91-40-25(a), each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child, and the provision of a FAPE to the child.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide the Parent an opportunity to meaningfully participate in the decision-making process regarding the Student's education by disregarding parental concerns and impeding the Parent's right to inquire about the qualifications and IEP knowledge of staff members during the IEP team meeting.

The LEA responded the Parent and the Advocate had been given every opportunity to participate in all special education meetings involving the Student.

The LEA provided documentation of multiple instances where the Parent was invited to and participated in the special education process. For the January 24, 2025, meeting, a notice was issued on January 13, 2025, and the Parent attended along with an advocate. Similarly, for the December 16, 2025, meeting, the District provided a notice to the Parent, who signed a waiver of the 10-day notice requirement to expedite the meeting and indicated their intent to attend. The December 16, 2025, evaluation report noted that the reevaluation was initiated specifically at the Parent's request. The Parent signed the PWN and the evaluation report, indicating agreement with the team's decisions on eligibility and placement at that time, demonstrating active participation in the identification and placement process.

Based on the foregoing, and in accordance with IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to afford the Parent an opportunity to participate in meetings regarding the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of the Student, and the provision of a FAPE.

Issue Four

Whether USD #367, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide the Student a FAPE, resulting in a lack of educational progress and regression in behavior and communication due to the failure to implement the IEP, follow health protocols, and provide adequate staff training. K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(b)(1); K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 C.F.R. § 300.101(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.17.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(b)(1), each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Additionally, each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning no later than the child's third birthday.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), a FAPE means special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge, meet the standards of the state board, include an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education, and are provided in conformity with an IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to provide a FAPE to the Student by failing to implement the IEP, follow health protocols, and adequately train staff, which resulted in the Student regressing in their behavior, communication, and education.

The LEA responded they provided the Student with a FAPE. The LEA monitored the Student's progress through data collection and ongoing observation. Any behavioral or communication challenges were addressed through IEP services, supports, and adjustments as determined by the IEP team. Whenever the Parent raised concerns, the LEA addressed them promptly and collaboratively.

The Parent alleged a lack of a FAPE, citing regression in spelling and potty training, and concerns over safety regarding epilepsy. However, the December 16, 2025, evaluation report and the December 19, 2025, progress report show the Student demonstrated "major improvement" in requesting and growth in social-emotional areas. The Student maintained progress on goals related to communication, motor skills, and math, and showed slight improvement in matching community signs.

Regarding health and safety, the Special Education Director confirmed that the Student had no seizures at school for at least 18 months, and the School Nurse found no injuries during a September 2025 incident in which the Student walked abnormally. The IEP team, including the Parent, determined on December 16, 2025, the Student remained eligible for services and that the current classroom was the best fit for their needs.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Student a FAPE, resulting in a lack of educational progress and regression in behavior and communication due to the failure to implement the IEP, follow health protocols, and provide adequate staff training.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #500
ON DECEMBER 30, 2025

DATE OF REPORT: JANUARY 26, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, ------, by their parent, ------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Complainant."

The Complaint is against USD #500, Kansas City, Kansas Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #500.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on December 30, 2025, and the 30-day timeline ended on January 29, 2026.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #500, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to identify, locate, and evaluate the Student suspected of having a disability (Autism or Attention-Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD)) despite the Complainant reporting significant academic and functional deficits, including an inability to perform basic academic skills or activities of daily living (ADLs). K.A.R. 91-40-7(a)(3)(b)(2)(c); 34 C.F.R. § 300.111(a)(c)(1).

ISSUE TWO: Whether USD #500, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) by neglecting to develop and implement an Individualized Education Program (IEP) to address the Student's academic, functional, and safety needs (specifically self-injurious head-banging), resulting in a lack of educational progress. K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d)(1)(e); 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101(a)(c).

Background Information

This investigation involved a student enrolled at a high school in USD #500. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA under the eligibility categories of Intellectual Disability and Speech and Language Disabilities. According to the School, the Student's registration information and educational record only lists the Parent, not the Complainant, as the sole parent or guardian for the Student. According to the LEA, the Parent shared they are currently in the court process of seeking sole custody of the Student. Because the Complainant is not listed anywhere in the Student's record within the student information system, the School stated they cannot disclose specific details regarding the Student's IEP, services, or classroom placement to them. Assistant Principal 1 explained the School informed the Complainant of documentation they could provide to enable the School to verify their relationship to the Student, however, to date, no verification has been provided by the Complainant.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. The Student is characterized as being "very playful towards peers and adults and likes to participate in physical activities, such as shooting hoops." The Student "follows directions," "works with any student in the room," "volunteers to answer questions or help with an activity," and "always has a smile" on their face. During the 2024-25 school year, the Student started initiating conversations on their own with more than two-word sentences and made improvements in appropriate social rules. The Student is able to identify their feelings, express specific personal needs, and request help.
2. An IEP dated February 5, 2024 outlined the following for the Student:
    a. Evaluation date: January 17, 2023
    b. Triennial date: January 16, 2026
    c. The Student and the Parent were in attendance for the meeting.
    d. On January 17, 2023, the IEP team determined the Student met eligibility criteria for Intellectual Disability (ID) and Speech/Language Disabilities.
    e. The Student's disability was determined to impact them in the areas of reading comprehension, math calculations, writing skills, language, fine motor skills, and speech and language.
    f. The Parent wanted the Student to continue improving their communication and reading skills.
    g. Levels of performance were included for language, fine motor, reading, math, written expression, and sensory processing.
    h. Special factors: The Student demonstrated behavior, communication, and extended school year (ESY) needs, addressed in the IEP.
    i. Goals were written for reading, math, fine motor, sensory processing, and independent living skills.
    j. The Student received special education services in a specialized program outside of the general education classroom and specially designed instruction (SDI) for reading comprehension and math computation. The Student also received related services in occupational therapy (OT), speech and language, and transportation, along with accommodations for all environments and settings.
3. IEP meeting notes dated February 5, 2024 documented the following relevant information:
    a. The Parent "expressed concern about the behavior incident that happened earlier in the year involving [the Student] physically attacking the [special education] teacher." The Parent explained the Student "had an unstable upbringing" during the first years of their life until the Parent gained custody.

The Parent said the Student's "lack of stability" in their formative years could "account for some of [their] behavior issues." The Parent also explained disruptions and changes in the Student's life or daily schedule could cause the Student to become "agitated" or "physically aggressive."

b. The Special Education Teacher stated the Student engaged in many repetitive behaviors throughout the school day, including repeatedly touching items on their desk, lining up and stacking items, repeatedly touching doorframes, light switches, and the trash can once items were placed inside.

c. The Parent stated the Student was rewarded for "good behavior" at home and was encouraged to practice independent skills at home, such as making a sandwich, making their bed, sorting their laundry, and participating in hygiene routines. The Parent shared the Student had a "good support system at home with [their] extended family."

d. The IEP team proposed the Student be placed in a more restrictive, specialized academic and individualized learning services program the next school year to address their need for a more sensory appropriate environment. They would remain in their current specialized academic and individualized learning service program for the remainder of the school year to provide "continuity of care."

4. A Prior Written Notice (PWN) dated February 5, 2024 documented a material change in services and a substantial change in placement. The IEP team proposed an increase in OT services due to the Student demonstrating "significant needs" for further practice and intervention to work on essential skills for school functioning and independent living. It was also proposed to continue speech and language services, and to place the Student in a more restrictive, specialized program setting for the 2024-25 school year to address increasing sensory needs. It was noted, "In the specialized program setting, it has been observed, [the Student] is requiring more one-on-one assistance to begin and complete academic instructional tasks or daily tasks. [The Student] is demonstrating more frustration when asked to complete simple tasks. [The Student] engages in more stimming behaviors and/or aggressive posturing when asked to complete a non-preferred task. [The Student's] increased level of stimming when asked to complete non-preferred tasks may preclude [their] placement in more general education elective classes." The Parent signed, giving consent for the services and placement in the PWN.

5. A 2024-25 report card indicated 7.81 absences and 6 tardies total for the school year. The Student's cumulative grade point average was 3.167. The Student earned grades of 82% to 100% in all their classes (Fundamentals of P.E. [Physical Education], Team Sports 1, Fitness/Conditioning 1, English 2, Science 2, American History, Math 2, Vocational Experience 2, and Reading 2) except Essentials of P.E., where they earned 68% and 74%. All academic classes and the vocational experience class were listed with the Special Education Teacher.

    a. A transcript from the Student's tenth-grade year (2024-25) indicated the Student had earned 15 out of 15 attempted credits as follows:

i. Elective: 1.5 credits
ii. English: 1.5 credits
iii. Fine Arts: 2 credits
iv. Math: 1.5 credits
v. P.E.: 3.5 credits
vi. Science: 3 credits
vii. Social Studies: 3 credits viii. Speech Communications: 0.50 credit

6. A meeting notice dated January 27, 2025 and addressed to the Parent, indicated a meeting scheduled for February 4, 2025 to review results of a reevaluation and conduct an annual review of the Student's IEP. The Parent provided signed consent to waive the 10-day required notice.
7. Communication logs from January 29, 2025 through January 7, 2026, documented communication between the School staff and the Parent. Messages were exchanged regarding the Student's IEP and academic coordination, health and safety, logistics and attendance, family support, and positive engagement. On November 20, 2025, the Special Education Teacher documented an approximate 30-minute phone call with the Complainant regarding the Complainant's concerns about the Student. The Complainant expressed concerns about the Student not making appropriate progress, and frustration with the School staff for not giving the Complainant the information they wanted. The Special Education Teacher noted the Complainant was not listed as a guardian for the Student, and the Parent was the primary guardian and the Student was in their care.
8. An IEP dated February 4, 2025 outlined the following for the Student:
    a. The Student and the Parent were in attendance for the IEP meeting.
    b. Language performance: The Student was able to identify emotions, use visuals to comment in 2-3 word phrases with verbal cues, participate in structured activities, and follow 2-3 step directions to complete tasks with visual and verbal cues.
    c. Sensory processing performance: The Student was showing more self-regulation, on-task behavior, following directions, and finding a quiet place if needing a break. The Student had shown improvement in regulating their emotions and sensory needs when transitioning to new activities and adjusting to sudden changes. In rare occurrences, the Student had become dysregulated to the point of engaging in physical aggression. This was seen at the beginning of the year when the environment was new and sensory input was "triggering." The Student benefited from structured times for physical self-regulation.
    d. Independent living skills performance: The Student was stocking shelves, cleaning items in the teacher's lounge, making a snack bag or craft, and following directions.

e. Fine motor skills performance: The Student was completing 100% of steps in routine tasks such as wiping down surfaces, cleaning up after meals, mopping, hanging up shirts, washing and rinsing dishes, and making dry snacks. The Student was also able to type up to 3 sentences using a model, cut on a straight line, type an address into a navigation search (66% accuracy), match measurement tools (100% accuracy), and identify measurement tools following a visual recipe (33% accuracy).

f. Reading performance: When given sight words related to food, the Student was able to match words to pictures and words to words. When given 40 pre-primer sight words, the Student read 27 out of the 40 words. When given a letter from the alphabet, the Student gave the correct sound with 90% accuracy.

g. Math performance: The Student was able to identify random numbers 1 through 100 using a hundreds chart with 54% accuracy, showing the most consistency and accuracy with numbers 1 through 10.

h. Written expression: The Student was not yet able to write their last name without help or a model to copy from. When given a model, the Student could copy each letter, but did not consistently write within the space provided and became "obsessive" about the way certain letters looked.

i. Special factors: The Student demonstrated communication needs, but did not display behavior that impeded their learning or the learning of others, and did not need a behavior intervention plan (BIP).

j. Goal 1: "By February 2026, when provided a set of words and their corresponding picture, [the Student] will be able to match (4) sets of pictures (36 pictures) and words (36 words) with 100% accuracy, in 3 out of 4 attempts."

    i. Baseline: "When given a set of sight words and pictures to match, [the Student] is able to score 78% accuracy when matching word to picture and 100% accuracy when matching word to word. Previously, when given 100 1st Grade Fry Sight words, [the Student] [was] able to score 18% accuracy. When given the first 25 Fry Words, [the Student] [was] able to score 36% accuracy."

    ii. A progress report for the February 4, 2025 IEP year indicated undated progress reports by quarters. The Student was "making progress toward annual goal" for the first, second, and fourth quarters of the IEP year.

k. Goal 2: "By February 2026, when provided with a 100-Chart, [the Student] will be able to say and point to the numbers 11-50, when asked to identify them at random, with 80% accuracy, in 2 out of 4 attempts."

    i. Baseline: "When provided with a 100-Chart and asked to locate a specific number, [the Student] was able to accurately say and point to 15 out of 28 (54% accuracy) randomly selected numbers. [The Student] was able to say the numbers 1-10 with 100% accuracy on 2 separate attempts. For the numbers 11-20, [the Student] was able to identify and say the numbers 14 and 19 independently. [The Student] was able to rote count numbers from 1-100 with only 6 misreads, but struggled to find higher double-digit numbers when asked to select them at random."

ii. A progress report indicated the Student was "making progress toward annual goal" for the first, second, and fourth quarters of the IEP year.

l. Goal 3: "By February of 2026, [the Student] will use visual, verbal, and example cues to participate in language and vocational tasks on 9 of 10 trials."

i. Baseline: "[The Student] uses verbal prompts, visuals, and examples to participate in a variety of language and vocational skills and demonstrate comprehension of multi-step directions on 5 of 10 trials."

ii. A progress report indicated the Student was "making progress toward annual goal" for the first, second, third, and fourth quarters of the IEP year.

m. Goal 4: "By the next IEP in February 2026, following instructions from a recipe, [the Student] will be able to locate and use the measurement tool with 80% accuracy for 75% of opportunities."

i. Baseline: "[The Student] is able to match measurement tools (cups, tbs, tsp) with 100% accuracy. [The Student] can identify measurement tools following a visual recipe with 33% accuracy. [The Student] struggles with accurately finding the measurement tool from a disorganized pile and if the tool indicates more than 1 scoop (ex: 2 cups, 3 TBS)."

ii. A progress report indicated the Student was "not making progress toward annual goal" for the first and second quarters, and was "making progress toward annual goal" for the third and fourth quarters of the IEP year. During the first and second quarters, the goal's objective stated the Student would be performing at 70% accuracy for 75% of opportunities. During the first quarter, the Student was between 50% and 65% accurate. During the second quarter, the Student was 46% accurate, noting the Student frequently rushed to find the appropriate tool and needed verbal and tactile support to find the correct tool.

ix. Read tests and written materials to the Student for daily activities.

x. When enrolled in the weekly P.E. curriculum, the Student will participate in the physical activities only. The Student will not be required to complete any academic or written assignments, tests, or projects.

9. A PWN for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent dated October 3, 2025 indicated the LEA proposed to conduct a reevaluation of the Student. New data was needed in the areas of health/motor ability, general intelligence, academic performance, adaptive behavior, and sensory processing. Existing data would be reviewed in all the same areas, as well as transition skills, communicative status, social/emotional/behavioral status, hearing, and vision. The Parent electronically signed giving consent for the reevaluation on October 18, 2025.
10. The Student was reevaluated on January 8, 2026 in the areas of cognitive ability, academic performance, fine motor skills, vocational and independent living skills, social/emotional development, and adaptive behavior. The Student's cognitive performance was measured at "two standard deviations below the mean of typical peer performance." The Student's adaptive behaviors demonstrated "significant delays" in the areas of conceptual and practical behaviors. The Student's academic achievement performances in reading, writing, and math were measured at "two standard deviations below the mean." It was determined the Student continued to meet eligibility requirements for the primary category of ID and the secondary category of Speech/Language Disabilities.
11. A 2025-26 report card for the first two quarters indicated 8.55 absences and 2 tardies total. The Student's cumulative grade point average was 3.167. The Student earned grades of 94% to 100% in all their classes (Drawing 1, Art History, American History, English 3, Science 3, Math 3, Vocational Experience, and Reading 3). All academic classes and the vocational experience class were listed with the Special Education Teacher.
12. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Assistant Principal 1 noted they understood the Student was "progressing okay." They were not aware of anything indicating the Student was not meeting their IEP goals. Assistant Principal 1 also shared they had not witnessed the Student engaging in self-injurious behavior, such as head-banging, and had not heard of any other staff witnessing such behavior. Assistant Principal 1 also shared the Student was in a classroom with a teacher and two paraprofessionals, and received "really individualized" instruction and life skills practice. Assistant Principal 1 mentioned they had spoken to the Complainant via phone once during the 2025-26 school year and listened to their complaints and concerns about the Parent and their frustration regarding not receiving information about the Student. Assistant Principal 1 explained to the Complainant that until they were verified and listed on the Student's record in the student information system, they could not discuss details about the Student with them.
13. In their written response to interview questions, Assistant Principal 2 stated the LEA was unaware of any Autism diagnosis. They said all medical or diagnosis documentation they had at the School level used the terms "developmental delay" or sometimes "behavior disorder." They shared the data used in the recent reevaluation aligned with data from prior evaluations, so the team decided to continue with the previous eligibility categories since they received no information that would lead them to consider changing them.

14. In their written response to interview questions, the Special Education Teacher stated they had witnessed head-banging last school year. They said, "Last year, I witnessed [the Student] putting [their] hand on the ground and gently patting [their] head on [their] hand. We were concerned so we asked [the Parent] about this behavior and learned it is something that [the Student] does to comfort [themselves]. We haven't seen this behavior at all this school year." They also shared the Student needed a lot of physical activity and was, therefore, enrolled in two physical education classes. The Student was also allowed to take frequent breaks to walk and eat snacks. Additionally, the Student preferred self-soothing by listening to music and also had a box of fidgets accessible at all times. Finally, the Student had a desk, but preferred to sit cross-legged on the floor.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #500, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to identify, locate, and evaluate a student suspected of having a disability (Autism or ADHD) despite the Complainant reporting significant academic and functional deficits, including an inability to perform basic academic skills or ADLs. K.A.R. 91-40-7(a)(3)(b)(2)(c); 34 C.F.R. § 300.111(a)(c)(1).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-7(a)(3)(b)(2)(c), each LEA shall adopt and implement policies and procedures to identify, locate, and evaluate all children with exceptionalities residing in its jurisdiction, including children with exceptionalities who are suspected of being children with disabilities even though they are advancing from grade to grade. Each LEA's policies and procedures under this regulation shall include age-appropriate screening procedures for children from ages five through 21, including observations, instruments, measures, and techniques that disclose any potential exceptionality and indicate a need for evaluation, including hearing and vision screening as required by state law. Any LEA may refer a child who is enrolled in public school for an evaluation if LEA personnel have data-based documentation indicating that general education interventions and strategies would be inadequate to address the areas of concern for the child. An LEA may refer a child if LEA personnel have data-based documentation indicating that before the referral or as a part of the referral, the child was provided with appropriate instruction in regular education settings that was delivered by qualified personnel, the child's academic achievement was repeatedly assessed at reasonable intervals that reflected formal assessment of the student's progress during instruction, the assessment results were provided to the child's parent or parents, the assessment results indicate that an evaluation is appropriate. An LEA may refer a child for evaluation if the parent of the child requests, and gives written consent for, an evaluation of the child, and the LEA agrees that an evaluation of the child is appropriate.

The Complainant alleged that despite the Student showing "concerning signs and symptoms of Asperger, Autism, and ADHD" since infancy, the LEA has failed to officially assess or diagnose the Student for special education needs over the past year.

The LEA maintained the Student has been identified and served by the LEA since the age of two and has continuously received special education services in a self-contained setting since kindergarten. According to the LEA's "Child Find data tracker," no requests for reevaluation were received during the 2024-25 or 2025-26 school years.

According to the evidence provided, the Student is currently eligible for special education under the categories of ID and Speech/Language Disabilities. Additionally, a triennial reevaluation was completed on January 8, 2026. This evaluation confirmed the Student's continued eligibility in the current categories based on cognitive and academic performance measured at two standard deviations below the mean. While the Complainant alleged signs of Autism and ADHD, the school-level documentation only referenced "developmental delay" or "behavior disorder." There was no information provided documenting requests for reevaluation during the 2024-25 or 2025-26 school years that would lead the LEA to change eligibility categories. Based on these findings, the LEA met its Child Find obligations by maintaining current evaluations and providing services based on the Student's identified needs. The LEA followed proper procedures by conducting a reevaluation in January 2026 and found the existing eligibility categories remained appropriate based on available data.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is not substantiated* that the LEA failed to identify, locate, and evaluate the Student as a child with a disability.

Issue Two

Whether USD #500, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to provide a FAPE by neglecting to develop and implement an IEP to address the Student's academic, functional, and safety needs (specifically self-injurious head-banging), resulting in a lack of educational progress. K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d)(1)(e); 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101(a)(c).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1(z), "Free appropriate public education" and "FAPE" mean special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge, meet the standards of the state board, include an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education, and are provided in conformity with an individualized education program.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d)(1)(e), each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with the law. Each agency shall make a FAPE available to any child with a disability even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Complainant alleged the Student "has not obtained any IEP and special needs care" and was failing academic milestones (unable to spell, write, or add 1+1) and basic ADLs, like tying shoes or bathing. Additionally, the Complainant alleged the Student's safety needs (repeatedly banging head on hard surfaces) were not addressed.

The LEA responded they believed the Student had an appropriate IEP during the years under investigation. They asserted there was no data supporting the Student's behavior impeding their learning or the learning of others. Finally, the LEA maintained that while the Student experiences "significant disabilities," their academic, functional, and safety needs were being met, and the School continued to work to ensure the provision of a FAPE.

The Student has an active IEP, dated February 4, 2025, which includes goals for reading, math, language, and independent living skills. Report cards and transcripts showed the Student earned passing grades (mostly 94% to 100%) and earned 15 credits during the 2024-25 school year. Progress reports indicated the Student was making progress toward annual goals in most areas. The IEP team determined the Student did not display behavior impeding learning that required a formal BIP. Regarding head-banging, the Special Education Teacher witnessed the behavior only in the previous school year, describing it as a "gentle patting" used for self-comfort. Furthermore, the School implemented sensory supports, including frequent breaks, fidgets, and music, which have resulted in no witnessed head-banging during the 2025-26 school year. The Student has also received direct instruction in life skills, such as stocking shelves, cleaning, and following recipes, with measurable improvements in fine motor tasks.

The evidence demonstrated the LEA developed and implemented an IEP tailored to the Student's unique needs, and the Student has made documented academic and functional progress. Finally, the School addressed the reported safety concerns through sensory accommodations and environmental modifications, which effectively mitigated the self-injurious behavior in the School's setting.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations*, it is not substantiated* that the LEA failed to provide a FAPE to the Student.

Background Information

This investigation involved a fourth-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in USD #512. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a primary exceptionality of an Other Health Impairment (OHI), a disability per the IDEA. The Student was described as having a "huge heart" and enjoying hands-on activities. The Student exhibited academic strengths in math and science. A previous complaint, case number KSDE 26FC512-005, is related to and referenced in this investigative report. Additionally, the Investigation Report references a progress report from October 16, 2024, though it occurred outside the applicable Complaint window.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. An IEP dated April 25, 2024, indicated:
    a. Parent input: "When asked about [the Parent's] concerns, [the Parent] stated that [the Parent] is worried about [the Student's] reading and writing skills (i.e[.] decoding, fluency, handwriting), and how [the Student's] speech may be impacting [their] literacy skills. [The Parent] also has concerns around [the Student's] impulse control, attention, working memory, hyperactivity, inattention, difficulty regulating emotions, low self-esteem, and mood swings."
    b. The Student experienced behaviors that impeded their learning or that of others, which were addressed with accommodations/modifications and goals.
    c. The Student experienced communication needs that impeded their learning, which were addressed through direct services and goals.
    d. Assistive technology needs were considered.
    e. Relevant Present Level of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance indicated:
        i. Speech/Language:
            1. "In conversation [the Student's] speech can still be very difficult to understand." Additionally, "Our practice on /r/ and /l/ blends with a focus on the written form of the words has positively impacted [the Student's] ability to correct [their] errors with a direct cue. [The Student] is also demonstrating improvement in [their] ability to determine if a spoken word has a targeted speech sound (auditory discrimination). Inconsistent sound errors in conversation continue to occur within two and three[-]sound consonant blends as well as singleton sounds like th and ch. [The Student] also makes a number of grammatical errors in [their] speech including past tense (regular and irregular) as well as incorrect choice for verbs like do/does, has/have, and go/goes."
            2. "The Parent notes that [the Student] is demonstrating more confidence in initiating and maintaining conversations, is able to tell more detailed and cohesive stories, and is more confident in expressing [their] thoughts and opinions. [The Parent] still notices that [the Student] makes grammar errors and has difficulty articulating some sounds and pronouncing words correctly. [The Student] also has difficulty maintaining conversations with peers and understanding social cues. [The Student's] social anxiety can lead [the Student] to avoidance/withdrawal from social interactions. [The Parent] wants for [the Student] to develop fluent and grammatically correct speech while improving [their articulation and pronunciation."

3. The Second Grade Teacher indicated they understood the Student "… 60-70% of the time the first time (without repetitions) depending on topic, context clues, and [the Student's] emotional state."

ii. The Behavior Assessment System for Children, Third Edition (BASC-3) teacher and parent reports indicated the Teacher's rating for the Student's functional communication fell into the "At Risk" category. The Parent's rating fell into the "Average" category.

f. Goals:

i. For the four goals, all progress was scheduled to be reported quarterly:

1. Speech Sounds/Articulation: "By the end of the IEP year, during structured small group activities in the speech room, [the Student] will correctly produce practiced /l/ and /r/ words in spontaneous sentences (e.g. in response to questions, picture description, or story retell) with at least 80% accuracy on 2/3 data days" measured by an Speech-Language Pathologist (SLP) data sheet.

a. An IEP Progress Report indicated the Student met this goal on October 11, 2024, December 20, 2024, March 14, 2025, and April 16, 2025.

2. Communication: "By the end of the IEP year, during structured small group activities in the speech room, [the Student] will correctly include regular past tense'ed markers on verbs while describing action in pictures with 80% accuracy on [2 out of 3] data days," measured by an SLP data sheet.

a. An IEP Progress Report indicated this goal was met on March 14, 2025 and April 16, 2025.

3. Additional goals included reading and behavior.

g. Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) included special education services in the special education and general education classrooms provided by special education staff, daily, and direct Speech/Language therapy services for 20 minutes provided by an SLP, three times per week in a special education classroom from April 25, 2024 through May 29, 2024, and August 13, 2024 through April 24, 2025.

h. Least Restrictive Environment: "[The Student] requires specially designed instruction in speech/language, behavior, and reading that requires additional supports beyond what is available in the general educational setting to make adequate progress."

i. Accommodations, modifications, and supplementary aids and services were listed.

j. IEP team members included the Resource Teacher, the Second Grade Teacher, the Principal, the School Psychologist, and the Parent.

k. An excusal notice for a required member of the IEP team, the SLP, was signed by the Parent on April 25, 2024.

2. The PWN dated April 25, 2024, noted the team reviewed the evaluation/assessment data for the Student and indicated the Student was eligible for special education and required special education services to receive educational benefits. A material change in services, a substantial change in placement, and other changes were noted. The PWN indicated the team updated the exceptionality to OHI from Speech/Language. Actions proposed were described and explained, options considered were noted, and a description of the data used to make decisions was listed. Consent for special education placement and services was denoted by the Parent's signature.

3. An IEP dated April 16, 2025, indicated:

    a. Parent Input: "Communication challenges remain a concern for [the Student]" and "In the past year, [the Student] has made significant progress, particularly in [their] ability to process new vocabulary and engage in back-and-forth discussions."

    b. Present Level of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance:

        i. Academic and social growth, improved behavior; at grade level in math; lacked motivation for reading and writing.

        ii. The Student met the speech/articulation goal "consistently in spontaneous sentences during structured practice."

        iii. Regarding the communication goal, "When a 'plain' verb is written for [the Student] to refer to (e.g. jump, lock, watch, skate), [the Student] uses the regular past tense form of the verb in a sentence to describe action with at least 80% accuracy across 2/3 data days. [The Student] will sometimes include the word 'is' when producing a regular past tense 'ed verb and we have practiced changing to 'already.' [The Student] responds to cues/prompts to correct errors in less structured settings/when the words are not written down for [them] and [their] frustration tolerance is high. We have started directly practicing some frequently occurring irregular past tense verb forms as well."

        iv. The Student "… now correctly produces all speech sounds in conversation with at least 85-90% accuracy. [Their] speech understandability is most impacted by [the Student's] rate of speech and [their] tendency to jumble/clutter [their] words together vs. clearly articulate [sic] the sounds in each word. Other impacts to understandability include … [the Student] sometimes talks in paragraphs (resulting in some hypernasality as [the Student] gets to the end of a breath) and sometimes talks in an immature voice. [The Student] is not yet able to clearly rate/self[-]monitor [their] rate and enunciation but [the Student] does participate in conversational repair with [their] communication partner when [the Student] is misunderstood. [The Student] continues to demonstrate some grammatical errors, particularly irregular past verb tense (e.g. ran, dug), which are not that uncommon for students [their] age."

v. The Parent indicated the Student experienced "Improved ability to engage in back-and-forth discussions, especially with peers or familiar adults. Better self-monitoring when communication isn't clear, sometimes repeating or rephrasing when needed." According to the IEP, the Parent's priorities for the upcoming year included "reducing the 'baby talk' tone to help [the Student] develop clearer, more age-appropriate speech."

vi. The Third-Grade Teacher described the Student's improved conversational skills with peers and "'estimated that [the Third-Grade Teacher] understands [the Student] about 80% of the time'" noting more difficulties when the Student rushed their words or changed to a topic the Third-Grade Teacher was less familiar with. Regarding communication, the Third-Grade Teacher shared, "'[The Student's] main struggle is [their] understandability and speech sound production,'" and indicated "'… my main goal for [the Student] would be [their] understandability so that [the Student] is able to communicate and be understood.'"

vii. Progress on all goals was scheduled to be reported quarterly. Goals were described in reading and executive functioning. Additional goals included:

1. Communication: "By the end of the IEP year during structured small group activities in the speech room, [the Student] will achieve a rubric score of 6 … during a 10[-] minute conversation on 4/6 data days" measured by SLP observation.
    a. The Student's Speech Understandability Rubric indicated:
        i. "0 - demonstrated the skill with 5 or more reminders."
        ii. "1 - demonstrated the skill with fewer than 5 reminders."
        iii. "2 - demonstrated the skill with only a beginning reminder/review."

iv. "3 - demonstrated skill without reminders."

v. Skill areas were listed in speed, clarity, and mature voice.

b. The Student's IEP Progress report regarding their communication goal indicated:

i. May 22, 2025: "Adequate Progress": "The Student is not yet able to independently demonstrate or define [their] skills. On our last data day, [the Student] scored a 5 on [their] rubric (individual scores 1, 1, 3), but our sample was primarily in response to questions which improve [the Student's] ability to maintain a mature voice without prompting. We will continue and include practicing individual skills and monitoring the SLP in these skills over the next quarter."

ii. October 10, 2025: "Adequate Progress": "Over the course of the quarter, [the Student] has demonstrated scores of 4 and 5 on [their] rubric. [The Student] needs most prompting for saying all the sounds in [their] words ([they] tend to jumble them and rush through). We are also starting to give [the Student] more opportunities to rate [their] own performance."

viii. Relevant SDI indicated: "[The Student] will receive 20 minutes of speech/language therapy two times weekly in a special education setting" from April 16, 2025 through May 27, 2025, and August 11, 2025 through April 15, 2026.

4. A PWN for the annual IEP meeting on April 16, 2025 indicated the team reviewed the evaluation/assessment data for the Student and noted the Student required special education services to receive educational benefits. A material change in services and a substantial change in placement were noted. Actions proposed included a decrease in speech/language service minutes. Options considered included, "The team considered continuing with 60 minutes of weekly speech/language therapy, but rejected it as this is no longer [the Student's] least restrictive learning environment." Consent for special education placement and services was denoted by the Parent's signature.
5. On October 17, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed a copy of the Student's first-quarter progress report to the Parent.
6. On October 23, 2025, the Principal emailed the Parent regarding the Student's first quarter progress report, "You should have received the progress report from first quarter recently noting progress on each of [the Student's] IEP goals. Please let us know if you have questions about any of that information as well."

7. On October 27, 2025, the KSDE Assistant Director of Special Education and Title Services acknowledged in a letter that the LEA's proposed resolutions for case number 26FC512-005 were accepted.
    a. In a "Documentation for Resolutions" document, the District described its efforts:
        i. "The district proposes conducting a review of service logs for this school year and progress reports for the most recent IEP for each student on the SLP's caseload to determine progress toward IEP goals. This review will be completed by November 1, 2025."
            1. "Reviewed service logs on October 28, 2025 for 34 students for services between August 11, 2025-October 9, 2025."
            2. "Reviewed the most recent progress reports on October 30, 2025 and October 31, 2025 for 34 students: 31 students are making adequate progress toward their speech and language goal/s and 3 students have met their speech and language goal."
    b. "For any students who are not making progress toward their IEP goals, the district proposes convening the IEP team to make individual determinations about compensatory services needed to remedy the missed services. All meetings for any students who are not making progress will occur by November 30, 2025."
        i. "No meetings are needed based on a review of progress reports."
    c. "The district proposes training the SLP at [the School] on the following topics. (The district proposes that this training occur on November 3, 2025.)":
        i. "Determining the need for compensatory services due to missed services to include: when compensatory services are required, important considerations, making individual determinations and the process for offering compensatory services."
            1. "Training conducted on November 3, 2025 at 11:00 [a.m.] with the SLP. Training materials including the signed acknowledgement [are] attached."
    d. "The special education director or designee will meet with the SLP at each progress reporting period for the remainder of the [20]25-26 school year to ensure processes are followed for any students who are not making progress toward their IEP goals. Progress reporting periods occur on January 6, 2026, March 26, 2026, and May 29, 2026. SPECIAL EDUCATION [sic] All training materials and an SLP acknowledgement sheet will be submitted to KSDE no later than 10 days following the dates outlined above."
        i. "Meetings scheduled with SLP to ensure the process is followed for all students not making progress toward their IEP goals on January 7, [2026], March 26, [2026], and May 22, [2026]."
        The LEA attached training materials on "Compensatory Services in Special Education" and signatures from the trainer, the Assistant Director of Special Education, and the SLP.

8. On November 8, 2025, the Parent emailed the LEA regarding the Student's progress report and the corrective actions from a previous complaint, "Thank you for forwarding [the Student's] 1st Quarter IEP Progress Report. After reviewing the document and the recent KSDE Formal Complaint Resolution Acceptance Letter (Case No. 26FC512-005), I have several concerns and questions regarding how the district intends to meet the corrective actions outlined in the resolution and ensure accurate implementation moving forward." The Parent asked for the following;
    a. "A detailed explanation of how progress data was gathered for [the Student] during the weeks when no special education instruction was being delivered."
    b. "Documentation of the service logs reviewed as required by KSDE, and confirmation of whether [the Student's] IEP team will be convened to discuss compensatory services for the missed minutes."
    c. "A clear plan and timeline for how the district will fulfill KSDE's required corrective actions for the 2025-2026 school year, particularly regarding monitoring and compliance at [the School]." Additionally, the Parent wrote they would like "… confirmation of when [the Student's] IEP team will meet to review [the Student's] current progress, missed services, and potential compensatory service plan."
9. A Notice of Meeting dated December 2, 2025 for a parent-requested meeting, described a proposed meeting date of December 10, 2025. The notice documented the Parent requested a meeting on November 10, 2025, with a response from the Resource Teacher inquiring about dates and times. On December 1, 2025, the Parent provided two possible dates and confirmed the December 10, 2025 meeting date. The Parent signed the 10-day notice waiver on December 10, 2025.
10. A PWN dated December 10, 2025, described:
    a. Proposed/Refused actions:
        i. The Case Manager clarified how data was collected and goals monitored.
        ii. The SLP shared the speech understandability rubric and reviewed the graph of the Student's progress in this area.
        iii. "[The] Parent and classroom teacher … shared that language intelligibility is not generalizing to the classroom and home setting. At times they continue to struggle to be understood, speaking with a 'baby talk', and strategies are needed to prompt [the Student] to not use a nasal voice. [The SLP] shared that generalization and working with understandab[i]lity with [an] unfamiliar listener is a skill set to target moving forward. Parent shared that [the Parent] has [the Student] repeat [themself] and at time[s] [the Student] continues to not be understood."
        iv. "Clarification was provided on goal progress being provided quarterly with a summary of progress based on the goal criteria."

b. Explanation of action: "[The SLP] will be determining the goal focus moving forward with generalization of the speech skills into the general education setting for the upcoming annual IEP."
c. Options considered: "The team considered compensatory service based on the service logs and services that were missed; based on IEP goal progress, addition[al] time is not needed for [the Student] to make adequate progress on this [their] targeted IEP goals."
d. Description of data used as a basis for the action: "[G]oal monitoring data service log summary, data progress reports, [Measures of Academic Progress] MAP data." Consent/non-consent sections remained unsigned.

11. On December 11, 2025, the Parent emailed the Special Education Coordinator with concerns, "… [the Student's] functional intelligibility is still a major concern. At home, with extended family, with peers, and even with devices like Alexa/Ziggy, [the Student] is often not understood. I frequently have to ask [the Student] to repeat [themself] multiple times, and sometimes we still end up relying on gestures or guessing. [The Fourth Grade Teacher] also shared that in the classroom [the Student] often needs to repeat [themself] and … [the Student's] speech is hard to understand, especially when [the Student] is excited or emotional. Because of this, I am struggling to reconcile the statement that [the Student's] speech goal has been 'met' with what I am seeing in real life. I do understand that the current goal has been met in a highly controlled speech-room setting with a familiar adult and specific activities. However, the lack of generalization to natural settings (classroom, peers, home, community) is exactly what worries me."
    The Parent requested a copy of the PWN from the December 10, 2025 IEP meeting and wrote, "I want to review the written explanation regarding progress, missed services, and the decision that compensatory services are not needed at this time." The Parent requested clarification on how "adequate progress" was determined based on missed service minutes and the Student's difficulty communicating in natural settings.
    Regarding a plan and timeline for new speech/generalization goals, the Parent wrote, "I heard during the meeting that the next step is to develop new goals focused on generalization … . … I would like to meet earlier than March to review and adjust [the Student's] IEP, rather than waiting until the annual deadline. Could we please look at dates in January to reconvene?"
12. On December 12, 2025, the Special Education Coordinator attached the PWN and replied, "At this time, based on current goal progress, the team is hoping to meet early for the annual targeting the beginning of February."
13. On December 15, 2025, the Special Education Coordinator responded to the Parent's question regarding the Student's "adequate progress," and wrote, "… [the SLP] shared with you the data collection form that was used to gather progress data for the goal. [The SLP] also shared with the team how the data was compiled and graphed to show progress of the skill over time. [The Student] made progress on [their] speech goals at a faster pace than what was expected when the IEP goals [were] determined. That, along with [their] other goal progress, is the basis for the proposal to meet earlier than anticipated for [the Student's] annual IEP meeting." The Special Education Coordinator also shared, "The IEP team can meet together to discuss further any of these items, please let us know if you would like us to schedule a time."

14. On December 17, 2025, the Parent replied, "Thank you for clarifying that the team plans to collect additional data following winter break … . While I had requested to reconvene earlier, I understand the team's position regarding scheduling and will plan for the first week of February." Additionally, the Parent wrote, "… my expectation is that the revised goals explicitly address functional intelligibility in natural settings, and that data collection reflects real-life communication demands rather than only controlled speech-room tasks."

Parent Interview

15. When asked by the Complaint Investigator when concerns about the Student's functional intelligibility rose to the forefront, the Parent shared, "… especially the last 12 months, third and fourth grade, because I am starting to see [the Student] get self-conscious about it … and [the Student's] getting bullied by a few [children] at school because, 'Why can't you talk?'" The Parent shared the Student had been working with an SLP since age three, and the Parent had seen what progress looked like in the past. Currently, "My biggest ask was just, '… I'm not seeing growth. Can we make up the time?' And when I was told no, the time won't be made up and [the Student] met their goals." The Parent indicated they shared their concerns "With the team, but prior to that was [the Fourth Grade Teacher] because [the Fourth Grade Teacher] was also like, '"Hey, I can't really understand [the Student]."' The Parent shared, "And so it was a huge red flag when the team that is supposed to support [the Student] said that two hours worth of time in the first quarter they weren't going to make up, and I just don't understand why it can't be done."
16. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent described challenging the SLP's claims that the Student was meeting their goals, citing over two hours of documented missed sessions and consistently shortened instructional time. According to the Parent, the SLP argued the Student was successful in a "controlled room." According to the Parent, neither the Parent nor the Fourth Grade Teacher could understand the Student and they shared with the SLP, "… [the Student] doesn't know how to do it generalized yet … . … the point is to teach [the Student] how to meet these goals in the real world when [the Student's] talking to [their] teachers … friends … me?" The Parent added, "… [the Student] hears it, but [the Student] thinks [they're] saying it right. And so there's just some sort of disconnect between [the] brain and [the] mouth. But when you go very, very slow, [the Student] can do it … . But within a sentence is when [the Student] gets lost in the sauce. So when it's back and forth … I can see how [the SLP] corrects [the Student] in the moment … ," but "It's not generalized in [the Student's] day-to-day life."

17. According to the Parent, they called an IEP team meeting, scheduled on December 10, 2025, after they attended Parent-Teacher Conferences in October and asked the Fourth Grade Teacher about the Student's progress, shared their concerns about the Student's functional communication, and received "vague answers" from the LEA.
18. The Parent indicated that at the December 10, 2025 IEP meeting, they asked questions and received "blanket answers." According to the Parent, "I got told that [the Student's] minutes were not going to be made up because [the Student] met [their] goals … ."
19. Regarding the April 2024 IEP, the Parent recalled "sitting in the meeting and they basically just told me what they're going to work on." Regarding the creation of the "-ed" marker goal, the Parent described the LEA proposed the goal, asked what the Parent thought, and the Parent said, "'Okay, if that is what you feel … [the Student] needs.'" According to the Parent, "… I really lean on … the teacher … because they spend more time with [the Student] in this setting to know what [the Student] is struggling with. So I did put some trust into what they were deciding," and agreed to the goal.
20. Regarding the April 2025 IEP and the Student's "understandability" goal, the Parent recalled the SLP "coming up with this idea." The Parent recalled, "… I remember agreeing [the Student] does go too fast … . That we need to have clear speech, and we need to say all these words and sounds, and slowing down, and practicing that. … I feel like it was a spot-on great idea because that's where we're struggling, is understandability and articulating ourselves." The Parent recalled the Third Grade Teacher discussing using "'Hey, slow down'" language to encourage the Student to "say all the sounds and the words." The Parent shared, "… I do remember the SLP presenting this idea and the team agreeing that it would work."
21. According to the Parent, they received the Student's Progress Reports "… through email prior to the meetings."
22. When asked about the progress the Student made in 2024 that resulted in the Student's goals being changed in 2025, the Parent shared, "… We did see some growth in the spontaneous sentences with an initial reminder. … I did see some growth with [the Student] continuing to talk and slow down. I feel like these reports are accurate without being … too specific … . It's very generalized because [the Student] was making baby steps. We did see it. And I feel like some of that was with age and growth." The Parent shared, for March 14, 2025, "… [the Student's] being prompted less during structured situations for an occasional sound or error less than 10% of the time. Again, that's with the SLP. … The big issue that has pulled over to fourth grade is in [the Student's] day-to-day life, generalization. … at the time this felt accurate and honest, but now we're here in January of 2026 and it's not 85-90% of the time."
23. The Parent described their understanding of the corrective actions required by the District as a result of the KSDE 26FC512-005 complaint, "From what I understood was they recognized that the time was missed and there was options for that, to rectify it. One of them was making up missed time. … And then when I asked about that [in the December 10, 2025 meeting], they're like, 'Well, no, we're not going to do that because

[the Student] met [their] goal." The Parent expressed the LEA did not provide any compensatory services for missed speech minutes for the Student.

24. Regarding the provision of the PWN for the December 10, 2025 IEP meeting, the Parent described the Special Education Coordinator "… said [the Special Education Coordinator] was going to go make me a copy. [They] came back into the room. [The Special Education Coordinator] was talking with [the Principal]. Nobody handed me anything. … I did not get a copy of that or any of the notes from the meeting either." The Parent said, "And so that's when I emailed, I believe the next day, requesting it. And, well, that night I filed my complaint because I didn't receive any of the documentation." The Parent indicated they received the PWN the following day.

SLP Interview

25. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the SLP indicated the Student met their articulation goal from their April 2024 IEP, on October 11, 2024, and shared, "And so we were working on consistency and waiting for the rest of the team to be okay to have another IEP meeting. We had a new sp[ecial] ed[ucation] teacher in the building, and [the Third Grade Case Manager] was not ready to have another IEP meeting. So we continued to work on those skills and working on generalization." The SLP shared, the Third Grade Case Manager was "… overwhelmed at the beginning of that first quarter. And when I said that [the Student] had met [their] goal, [the Third Grade Case Manager] acknowledged that, and I asked if we could have the meeting, and [the Third Grade Case Manager] said [the Student] had not met [their] … goals for [the Third Grade Case Manager] in the other subject areas."
    The SLP said, "What should have happened was an amendment to change … just the speech goal." The Associate Superintendent of Special Education added, "… We could have had an amendment to change the speech goal, but then at times we've worked on the generalization of the skill across different environments." When asked about the documentation of "generalization" for the Student, the SLP shared "for the generalization of the speech sound goals, [the Student] was working on being able to answer questions. So it was a highly structured context for [the Student]. … You can see in the progress reporting that I have said that we were working on generalization into conversation, so that's one form of documentation of that conversation with parents." The SLP shared the Parent would have been informed of this work at Parent-Teacher Conferences in the fall of 2024 and "occasionally throughout the year." Regarding the documentation of this work, the SLP indicated, "… when students meet their goal or do a specific skill, I'll send a video clip to the parents or send … [a] celebratory email to have that kind of communication … ." When asked for the documentation of the video clip and the email to the Parent, the SLP said, "That was not something that I've been asked to keep track of. So no, I do not have that. It would've been sent and gone." The SLP said, "Once I send an email, unless there's an issue, like this year when I knew that the parent had questions, I started saving the email correspondences with [the Parent]. Last year, there were no difficulties. The Parent was happy with progress and happy with the level of communication based on [the Parent's] reports to us."

a. In a follow-up email dated January 8, 2025, the Associate Director for Special Education shared that the email and video of the Student's progress sent by the SLP to the Parent in October 2024 could not be pulled because "no email records went back that far."

26. The SLP indicated the team's decision to reduce the Student's speech service minutes at the April 2025 IEP meeting was " … because [the Student] had met [their] language and … articulation goals. [The Student's] language was not considered to be a concern based on input from the teacher and from the Parent. … As a team, we decided that there were more possible negative impacts of [the Student] missing more classroom time to work on … these speech sounds because [the Student] was down to just using clear speech and we were working on that versus having multiple goals [sic]."
27. The SLP described the Student's progress documented in the October 16, 2025 Progress Report, and indicated the rubric noted in the goal, "… was scored based on how many reminders [the Student] required during the 20- minute speech time period … ." The SLP indicated, "… [the Student's] scores based on fours and fives meant that [the Student] was getting mostly … twos and ones on each of those skills." The SLP shared the data was tallied and compiled to create a score for the rubric. The SLP described the data they collected was not collected every day with every student for every goal. Data was collected several times throughout the progress reporting period. The SLP shared, "Once that data has been collected for each quarter, it is summarized and put onto the Progress Report. And then the paper that I have used to collect that data is typically shredded because it's no longer necessary … ."
    a. In a follow-up email dated January 8, 2025, the Associate Director for Special Education shared that data was collected on the Student on four days during the first quarter and six days during the second quarter of 2025.
28. The SLP recalled the Parent attending Parent-Teacher Conferences in the fall of 2025, and "… our conversation was [the Parent] was happy with [the Student's] progress. [The Parent] had no questions and no concerns. We did talk about generalizing the skills that [the Student] was doing well with at that meeting. And at that time, we discussed how we could give [the Student] those hints and cues or reminders in other situations. So based on the two skills … [the Student] was still struggling the most with, using that 'just right speed' and 'saying all the sounds' in [their] words, I printed out those two things with a one next to the 'just right speed' and a two next to the 'clear speech.' [The Special Education Teacher] has a copy of them in [their] room for reference as well, and an additional copy was sent home to [the Parent] so … they could work on cueing and prompting for those skills in other environments."
29. The SLP said, "I did not hear from [the Parent] with any concerns until … probably November [2025]." According to the SLP, the Parent was concerned about the Student's missed services, understanding the Student at home, and how progress was monitored. The SLP indicated the IEP team met with the Parent on December 10, 2025 to discuss the Parent's concerns.

30. Regarding the discussion of compensatory speech minutes at the December 10, 2025 meeting, the SLP shared, "… the discussion was that [the Student] had made adequate progress and no compensatory services were necessary at that time." The SLP shared the Student had not met their speech goal by the December 10, 2025 meeting, but was "making progress toward that goal."
31. According to the SLP, the Fourth Grade Teacher shared in the December 10, 2025 meeting they struggled to understand the Student in the classroom, "I asked [the Fourth Grade Teacher] for clarification and some specifics, and then we discussed as a team that as we look towards the next IEP, which we're scheduling for February, that we would look at [the Student's] ability to be understandable across general education settings because [the Student] is meeting [their] goal in the special education settings, but we said that we would collect some data and information about how [the Student's] doing in [their] general education settings."
32. Prior to the December 10, 2025 meeting, the SLP indicated that neither the Fourth Grade Teacher nor anyone else shared concerns with the SLP regarding the Student's understandability. The SLP shared, "[The Student] struggles at times when [the Student's] excited. [The Student] will speak quickly and sometimes leave sounds or parts of words off." The SLP said, "[The Student] very positively reacts to prompts to ask [them] … to slow down or to repeat [themself]. … I think [the Student] does a great job with conversational repair. … I think [the Student's] making great progress, especially knowing [their] history and background and having worked with [the Student] for the last three years."
33. The SLP indicated observations were currently being conducted to gather information about the Student's understandability at different parts of their day. The SLP shared they had already gathered data from an unfamiliar listener and the Principal, and "… we're working on making sure that we're looking at what strengths and concerns we have across general education settings in terms of understandability." The SLP indicated they had not officially observed the Student or gathered data in the general education classroom primarily because there was not a specific goal looking at the Student's understandability in that setting.

Third Grade Teacher Interview

34. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Third Grade Teacher stated the Student was in their class during the 2024-25 school year. They indicated the Parent had expressed academic and speech concerns to them. However, they did not recall the Parent requesting an IEP meeting other than the regularly scheduled meeting.
35. The Third Grade Teacher described the Student as "very hard to understand." They shared "[The Student] talks really fast and [their] speech can be slurred." They also shared the Student received pull-out support from both the Special Education Teacher for academic goals and the SLP for speech goals, as well as push-in support for academic goals. The Third Grade Teacher recalled the Student was "still hard to understand" at the end of third grade.

Fourth Grade Teacher Interview

36. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Fourth Grade Teacher recalled discussing the Student's lack of intelligibility with the Parent at Back-to-School Night at the beginning of the 2025-26 school year. They stated they also spoke to the SLP around the same time.
37. The Fourth Grade Teacher reported they notified the Parent of the previously filed State complaint during parent-teacher conferences.
38. The Fourth Grade Teacher shared the Student was "very hard to understand" and described physical functional challenges in the Student's speech. They stated the SLP gave the suggestions of directing the Student to repeat their words or use their "man voice." The Fourth Grade Teacher indicated these strategies were not working. They indicated they could understand "[a]bout half" of what the Student said. They stated they shared initial concerns about the Student's speech with their staff in August.
39. The Fourth Grade Teacher expressed that "Nothing" was determined at the December 10, 2025 IEP review meeting. They indicated when the Parent requested data and a new goal to replace the goal that was met, they were told data was still being collected. The Fourth Grade Teacher reported when the Parent asked what program was being used to collect data, they were not given an answer. According to the Fourth Grade Teacher, when the Parent asked if missed services would be made up, the Fourth Grade Teacher indicated the Special Education Coordinator and SLP stated, "… since progress was being made, there was no need for them to make up any services." However, the Fourth Grade Teacher expressed the Student's speech was "not on par."

Fourth Grade Case Manager Interview

40. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Fourth Grade Case Manager stated they began serving as the Student's case manager in mid-October 2025 and provided reading and writing pullout services.
41. The Fourth Grade Case Manager shared the Parent expressed concerns about the Student's speech, reading, and writing during parent-teacher conferences. They described these concerns as "what conferences are for every child." They did not recall the Parent requesting an IEP meeting prior to the December 10, 2025 meeting.
42. Regarding the December 10, 2025 IEP meeting, the Fourth Grade Case Manager stated it was a meeting to review progress notes. They stated they were "in charge of" the reading, writing, and executive functioning data, which they shared with the Parent. The Fourth Grade Case Manager stated their data came from "documentation."
43. The Fourth Grade Case Manager described the Parent as "worried that [the Student] is not generalizing [their] intelligibility within all areas and not just in speech and not just in my classroom, but generalizing it all around." They indicated the team discussed strategies for helping the Student generalize "inside each other classroom and then at home, in the community and so forth." The Fourth Grade Case Manager stated they could understand the Student "… the majority of the time. 80, 85%, if not 90."

44. The Fourth Grade Case Manager stated the progress reports were emailed to the Parent.

Resource Teacher Interview

45. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Resource Teacher indicated they worked with the Student in second grade and was their case manager for August through October 2025. They were reassigned when the Fourth Grade Case Manager was hired.
46. The Resource Teacher expressed pleasant surprise at the Student's progress in executive functioning between second and fourth grade. Regarding the Student's speech, they also noted progress, stating, "Sometimes it was a little harder to understand when [the Student] was telling stories or something like that, but then other times when I was like, 'Hey, let's slow down,' then I was able to understand [them]."
47. The Resource Teacher stated they emailed the first quarter progress report to the Parent. They shared the Parent responded, expressing concerns, particularly about the Student's speech, and had questions about the Student's goals. The Resource Teacher reported they explained how they collected data and documented progress to the Parent. They stated they explained these methods again at the December 10, 2025 meeting.
48. The Resource Teacher recalled the Parent "sharing [their] frustration] during the December 10, 2025 meeting that the Student was not making progress "at home with [their] goals." The Resource Teacher reported "[the Student] was making great progress in the speech setting as well as some progress in the school building," and as far as they were aware, the Fourth Grade Case Manager did not have any concerns about the Student's speech progress.
49. The Resource Teacher stated the Parent had not shared concerns with them prior to sending out the first quarter progress report. They also reported the Parent did not share any concerns with them about "understandability and generalization." They did not recall the Parent requesting an IEP meeting prior to the December 10, 2025 review meeting.

Special Education Coordinator Interview

50. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Education Coordinator reported the Parent reached out to them "… questioning whether progress had been made and wanted to know what services specifically had been received and what services had been missed." They indicated the Parent was looking for data specifically related to the Student's speech goals.
51. Regarding the December 10, 2025 meeting, the Special Education Coordinator stated the team "reviewed what progress had been on goals, both [the Student's] academic goals and speech goals." They reported that both the Fourth Grade Case Manager and SLP shared data and explained their data collection methods. The Special Education Coordinator indicated the team wanted to meet earlier than required for the annual IEP meeting to address the Student's needs. They shared they perceived the Parent was not in agreement around speech goals. They wondered if the Parent was "not seeing the goal of being a small piece building toward bigger skills." They stated they perceived the Parent thought because the goal was met, services would end, and clarified that was not the case.

52. When asked why the Student's articulation goal was not revised sooner, the Special Education Coordinator explained that when a "… service provider … has multiple goals and one goal is met and … another is not … . … maybe they're putting more work toward that other … goal during that time period." They stated, "I would anticipate that they had made a note in the progress report that that focus was there [sic]." However, they shared, "… if adequate progress wasn't being made on a second goal or not at the rate anticipated, that maybe it would have [a] note related to that, but it did not." The Special Education Coordinator did not know why the team was not in communication with them or the Parent to update the goals.
53. Regarding compensatory services, the Special Education Coordinator stated, "… We're not just looking at the piece of missed services. We're looking at that in conjunction with what progress has looked like for the student." They stated the data showed the Student was making progress towards their goals; therefore, the team did not propose any compensatory services.
54. The Special Education Coordinator stated the Parent did not ask to review or revise the Student's IEP prior to the December 10, 2025 meeting. They also recalled the Parent did not "specifically" share concerns about "intelligibility and understandability and generalization" with them.

Third Grade Case Manager

55. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Third Grade Case Manager stated the 2024-25 school year was their first year in the LEA. They shared their role as case manager was to "take care of the academic goals[.]" They asserted "… any outside services take care of their goals, whether it's [Occupational Therapy] OT, [Physical Therapy] PT, speech, they are the expert[s] in their field."
56. When asked why an amendment was not created to adjust the Student's speech goal when the goal was met in October 2024, the Third Case Case Manager stated the SLP had "years and years of experience." They did not recall if the SLP told them the Student had met a goal.
57. The Third Grade Case Manager stated they emailed copies of progress reports to the Parent.
58. The Third Grade Case Manager stated the Parent did not share any concerns with them during the 2024-25 school year. They shared the Parent seemed "… very happy with the new goals that we created" and "… very pleased with what we were doing." They expressed surprise there was a complaint.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, developed measurable annual goals for the Student that were designed to meet the Student's needs resulting from the disability, to enable the Student to be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum, specifically regarding functional communication and generalization. K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(2)(i).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(2)(i), the IEP for each exceptional child shall include a statement of measurable annual goals, including academic and functional goals designed to meet the child's needs that result from the child's disability or giftedness, to enable the child to be involved in, make progress in the general education or advanced curriculum, and meet each of the child's other educational needs that result from the child's disability or giftedness.

The Parent alleged the Student's speech goal was measured only in a controlled setting and not aligned with functional communication needs, and the goal did not measure generalization or real-world communication. During the IEP meeting, the SLP stated the Student "met" their speech goal because they scored adequately on a rubric during controlled room sessions. Both the Parent and the Teacher reported the Student was still very difficult to understand in real contexts. The Student's speech broke down during normal conversation, and the Student was still consistently misunderstood. The Student's Teacher confirmed that intelligibility was an issue in class and with peers.

The LEA indicated the IEPs dated April 25, 2024 and April 16, 2025 were designed to meet the Student's needs based on evaluation results and updated levels of academic and functional performance.

Part 1, The April 2024 IEP

The Student's April 2024 IEP included an articulation and communication goal focusing on speech sounds and grammar in a "structured small group" setting in the speech room. While the SLP reported the Student met the articulation goal as early as October 2024, the LEA took no action to amend the IEP until the annual review in April 2025. This created "stagnancy" where the Student was not being served by goals designed to foster further progress. Consequently, the Student spent half a school year working on a skill already mastered in a clinical setting, while their "At- Risk" functional communication remained unaddressed.

Part 2: The April 2025 IEP

The "Speech Understandability Rubric" introduced in the Student's goal in April 2025, like the previous speech goals, also remained tethered to the "speech room." At the April 2025 IEP, the Third Grade Teacher reported "understandability" as the primary concern, and a goal was crafted around this concept. The Parent inquired in the fall of 2025 about the Student's progress and requested data regarding the Student's progress. The October 10, 2025 progress report indicated the Student made "adequate progress" on their communication goal in the clinical setting. In December 2025, the Parent reported the Student's progress in natural settings, stating the Student was "often not understood" by family, peers, or even voice-activated devices. The SLP acknowledged on December 10, 2025, that "generalization and working with understandability with an unfamiliar listener is a skill set to target moving forward." By the LEA's own admission, the Student had progressed on the clinical task but could not perform the functional task. The purpose of the IDEA is to enable the child to "be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum."

The United States Supreme Court held that a free appropriate public education means "a school must offer an IEP reasonably calculated to enable a child to make appropriate progress in light of the child's circumstances." Additionally, "The 'reasonably calculated' qualification reflects a recognition that crafting an appropriate program of education requires a prospective judgment by school officials." This statement means that: (a) courts should refrain from using the benefit of hindsight to judge an IEP, (b) there is no bright-line rule, as the adequacy of a given IEP turns on the unique circumstances of the child; and (c) deference is given to school officials based on the application of expertise and the exercise of judgment, although a reviewing court may fairly expect those authorities to be able to offer a cogent and responsive explanation for their decisions to show the IEP is reasonably calculated to enable the child to make progress appropriate in light of their circumstance. Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District, 137 S.Ct. 988, 117 LRP 9767 (S.C. 2017).

The 10th Circuit (of which Kansas is a member) has long held that the adequacy of an IEP (whether reasonably calculated to provide educational benefit) is evaluated prospectively (at the time of its writing). The court explained that it is not reasonable for a court to "Monday Morning Quarterback" in evaluating an IEP, but also added that a school cannot ignore the fact that an IEP is clearly failing and continue to implement an IEP year after year without change when the individualized education program fails to confer educational benefit to the student. O'Toole v.Olathe USD 233, 144 F.3d 962, 28 IDELR 177 (10 th Cir. 1998) and reaffirmed in: Alex W. v. Poudre Sch. Dist., 124 LRP 7692 (10 th Cir. 2024).

This IEP team decided to focus on instruction "in the clinical setting." Perhaps the team determined that the Student needed to make progress in that relatively safe setting before attempting to make progress in other, more difficult, settings. Those are the kinds of decisions that, by law, are to be made by the IEP team. In this Complaint, the Parent is asking the Complaint Investigator to override the judgement of the IEP team, apparently because the Parent believes the work in the therapy room does not provide sufficient benefit to the Student in the classroom. In doing so, the Parent is asking the Complaint Investigator to substitute the Complaint Investigator's judgement for the judgement of the IEP Team. That is the very thing the U.S. Supreme Court cautioned against.

Moreover, the Parent presented their concerns in October 2025, and a meeting was scheduled in December 2025 to address those concerns. The team opted not to revise the IEP at that time. However, they did make a plan to collect data to determine the basis for a generalized goal and convene a meeting in February 2026, prior to the annual IEP due date. This is the proper procedure when there is disagreement between team members.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated the LEA failed to develop measurable annual goals for the Student that were designed to meet the Student's needs resulting from the disability, to enable the Student to be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum, specifically regarding functional communication and generalization, and resulted in a denial of a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE).

Issue Two

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, reviewed and revised the Student's IEP to address a lack of expected progress, specifically regarding the Student's functional intelligibility in the general education setting. K.S.A. 72-3429, K.A.R. 91-40-16(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429, K.A.R. 91-40-16(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b), after the annual IEP meeting for a school year, the parent of an exceptional child and an appropriate representative of the agency providing services to the child may agree to develop a written document amending or modifying the child's current IEP, without convening an IEP meeting. If the parent and agency representative develop a written document amending or modifying a child's current IEP, the document shall be dated and signed by the parent and the agency representative. The parent and the agency shall be provided a copy of the document.

Each agency shall ensure that the IEP team reviews the child's IEP periodically, but not less than annually, to determine whether the annual goals for the child are being achieved. The IEP team revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum, where appropriate, the results of any reevaluation conducted, information about the child provided by the parents, and the child's anticipated needs.

Each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency,

The Parent alleged USD #512 did not initiate or conduct a meeting to review and revise the IEP to reflect the Student's performance and address any lack of progress. The Parent wanted USD #512 to create a revised speech goal that measures functional intelligibility across all settings because the speech goal does not measure generalization or real-world communication, which would make the goals meaningful and functional.

The LEA indicated the SLP's data demonstrated the Student was making progress on their speech goal as written and agreed upon by the IEP teams in April of 2024 and 2025.

Part 1, The April 2024 IEP

The documentation and interviews indicated the LEA failed to provide an IEP that was "appropriately ambitious" or responsive to the Student's demonstrated mastery. Regarding the Student's articulation goal in the April 25, 2024, IEP, the SLP acknowledged the Student first mastered the goal by October 11, 2024. Despite the SLP explicitly stating that an amendment should have been created to address the Student's changing needs, the goal remained unchanged for approximately six months. According to the IDEA, an IEP team must revise the IEP as appropriate to address "any lack of expected progress" or "other matters." By the District's own admission, the Student was no longer working on a goal that provided an educational challenge, resulting in a period of "stagnant" instruction that fails the Endrew F. standard of being "reasonably calculated to enable a child to make progress appropriate in light of the child's circumstances."

Furthermore, while the District argues that no violation occurred because the Student eventually met clinical goals in the speech room, this ignores the functional requirements of the law. Kansas law requires goals to enable the child to "be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum." The evidence indicates that while the Student reached 80-90% accuracy in a controlled, one-on-one setting, their "At-Risk" functional communication and poor intelligibility in the classroom remained unaddressed by the IEP goals. This gap between clinical mastery and classroom performance constitutes a failure to develop a plan designed to meet the Student's unique needs.

Part 2, The April 2025 IEP

The concern regarding the Student's intelligibility was formally documented in October 2025 by the Parent, and a meeting was scheduled in December, 2025 to address their concerns. Although both the classroom teacher and the Parent raised concerns regarding the Student's intelligibility and skill generalization, the LEA opted not to revise the IEP. They did, however, make a plan to collect data to determine the basis for a generalized goal and convene a meeting in February 2026, prior to the annual IEP due date.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, this allegation is substantiated. Although the LEA met its procedural requirements by convening a team meeting in December 2025, the substantive failure occurred during the 2024-25 school year. The District failed to initiate a timely amendment upon goal mastery in October 2024 and failed to develop a goal that addressed the Student's documented inability to generalize communication skills to the general education setting. This lack of responsiveness resulted in a denial of a FAPE because the IEP was not "appropriately ambitious" during the period the Student continued to work on a mastered goal.

Issue Three

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided periodic reports to the Parent regarding the Student's progress toward meeting annual goals. K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3); 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(3).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(c)(3); 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(3), individualized education program or family service plan contents needs to include a description of how the child's progress toward meeting the annual goals will be measured and when periodic reports on the progress the child is making toward meeting the annual goals will be provided, such as through the use of quarterly or other periodic reports issued concurrently with general education report cards.

The Parent alleged there was a lack of adequate progress reporting. The Parent indicated they did not receive consistent progress updates for the Student's speech goal.

The LEA indicated they shared progress reports with the Parents via email.

In October 2025, the Parent described concerns regarding the accuracy of the data used to determine progress for the Student's progress reports, specifically noting the Student's struggle with generalization. Evidence confirmed that both the April 2024 and April 2025 IEPs scheduled progress reporting to occur quarterly. Documentation showed the LEA adhered to this schedule, with the Resource Teacher emailing the first-quarter progress report on October 17, 2025, followed by a confirmation email from the Principal on October 23, 2025. Additionally, the Parent explicitly acknowledged receipt of these reports in their communications and interviews. However, while the LEA met the procedural requirement for the periodic delivery of reports, the substance of these reports was impacted by the LEA's failure to update mastered goals or ensure the goals enabled the Student to be involved in and make progress in the general education setting.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide periodic reports to the Parent regarding the Student's progress toward meeting annual goals. The LEA complied with the timeline and delivery methods required by law, although the underlying goals being reported on were found to be non-compliant in ISSUE 2.

Issue Four

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented the corrective actions required by the KSDE formal complaint report referenced by the Parent, specifically the provision of compensatory speech services for minutes missed between August and October 2025. K.A.R. 91-40-51(e); 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.151(b)(1), 300.152(c)(3).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-51(e); 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.151(b)(1), 300.152(c)(3), when filing a complaint with the State Department of Education, if a report requires corrective action by an agency, that agency, within 10 days of the date of the report, shall submit to the state director of special education documentation to verify acceptance of the corrective action or actions specified in the report, a written request for an extension of time within which to complete one or more of the corrective actions specified in the report, together with justification for the request.

The Parent alleged USD #512 did not implement the corrective actions required by a previous KSDE formal complaint report, specifically the provision of compensatory speech services for minutes missed between August and October 2025. The Parent felt USD #512 should be required to provide compensatory speech services for the missed minutes between August and October 2025.

The LEA indicated their proposal for corrective action for the KSDE 26FC512-005 was approved by KSDE, and their actions were noted in a resolution document.

Following the acceptance of the LEA's resolution proposal for the KSDE 26FC512-005 complaint, the District documented its procedural compliance through a formal resolution summary. Although the Parent maintained the Student was entitled to compensatory speech services based on their documentation of missed services, the LEA concluded, in line with their resolution plan, the Student demonstrated sufficient progress toward their April 2025 "understandability" goal to show that compensatory services were unnecessary. The documentation confirmed the LEA executed the required administrative steps set forth in their resolution plan.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the corrective actions related to the KSDE 26FC512-005 complaint regarding the provision of compensatory speech minutes. However, the validity of their conclusion, that missed services did not impede progress, is undermined by the Student's lack of functional generalization observed in the general education setting.

ISSUE FIVE: Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided PWN to the Parent regarding the refusal to provide compensatory speech services. K.A.R. 91-40-26(a), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.503(a).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-26(a), K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.503(a), PWN requirements include when providing any notice to the parents of an exceptional child, regarding actions proposed or refused by an agency, the agency shall ensure that the notice includes the following descriptions: a description of other options the agency considered and the reasons why those options were rejected, and a description of other factors that are relevant to the agency's proposal or refusal.The parent of an exceptional child shall have the right to written prior notice whenever an agency proposes to initiate or change, or refuses to initiate or change, the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a free appropriate public education to the child.

The Parent alleged USD #512 failed to provide a PWN. According to the Parent, the Case Manager stated they were preparing a PWN, but the Parent did not receive the PWN for USD #512's refusal of compensatory services.

The LEA maintained the IEP team met on December 10, 2025 and issued a PWN that was hand-delivered on December 10, 2025 and emailed on December 12, 2025.

The LEA issued a PWN that included the required descriptions of the refused action and the data used for the decision. The notice was provided on December 12, 2025, which constituted notice within a "reasonable time" of the refusal as described in the IDEA.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide a PWN regarding compensatory speech services.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. A violation occurred in the following area:

A. Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b), K.S.A. 72-3429, and K.A.R. 91-40-16(a) specify that the IEP should be revised, as appropriate, to address the child's anticipated needs.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #512 did not revise the IEP upon goal mastery or address generalizing communication skills to the general education setting. Both documentation and interviews support these findings.

Based on the foregoing, USD #512 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 15 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #512 shall submit a written statement of assurance to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) stating that it will comply with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA at:
    a. 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b), K.S.A. 72-3429, and K.A.R. 91-40-16(a).
    b. Within 15 days of the receipt of this report, the IEP team shall reconvene to draft new, measurable functional communication goals.
        i. Goals must include generalization criteria.
    c. The LEA shall provide mandatory training on the following topics for all special education staff and administrators at Lenexa Hills Elementary School by May 25, 2026:
        i. The Endrew F. standard defining "appropriately ambitious" and "reasonably calculated" progress.
        ii. Review and revision of IEPs when goals are mastered early or when expected progress is not made.

iii. The LEA must submit the training agenda, presentation materials, and a signed sign-in sheet to KSDE no later than June 1, 2026.

d. The LEA shall conduct a goal audit for all students receiving speech-language services to ensure goals meet the "appropriately ambitious" standard and include generalization to the general education setting.
    i. If the goals do not meet the aforementioned criteria, an IEP meeting must be convened to address the deficiencies.
    ii. The LEA will document the files reviewed and the date the IEP was convened to address the goal deficiencies and submit the documentation to SETS by June 1, 2026.

Background Information

The students previously attended school in USD #345 and both students received special education and related services through IEPs. The students transferred to USD #437 at the conclusion of the 2024-25 school year and received extended school year services in USD #437 during the summer of 2025.

Student A is currently enrolled in the 10th grade at WRHS. Her most recent reevaluation was completed on October 28, 2024 and it was determined that she continued to meet the eligibility criteria for the exceptionality of Intellectual Disability and Autism. There were two IEPs in effect during the 2025-26 school year with the first being an August 12, 2025 IEP amendment to the transfer IEP from USD #345 and the second being the annual IEP developed on September 25, 2025. Both IEPs include special education support in general education classes and special education and related services provided in the low incidence programs in the district.

Student B is currently enrolled in the 8th grade at WRNMS. Her most recent reevaluation was completed on October 18, 2024 and it was determined that she continued to meet the eligibility criteria for the exceptionality of Multiple Disabilities based on medical diagnoses of Down's Syndrome, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), and Reactive Attachment Disorder (RAD). There were two IEPs in effect during the 2025-26 school year with the first being an August 6, 2025 IEP amendment to the transfer IEP from USD #345 and the second being the annual IEP developed on October 13, 2025. Both IEPs include special education support in general education classes and special education and related services provided in the low incidence programs in the district.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaint, two issues were identified and investigated. Note that these allegations were made on behalf of the complainant's two students but also systemically for all students with disabilities at WRNMS and WRHS.

Issue One

USD #437, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) in the least restrictive environment (LRE) during the 2025-26 school year, specifically by limiting opportunities to enroll in general education classes based upon the availability of paraprofessional support at the middle and high school buildings.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.320, require school districts to develop an IEP describing the special education and related services needed to address the unique needs of students with disabilities to enable the child to 1) advance appropriately toward attaining the annual goals; 2) be involved in and make progress in the general education curriculum; 3) participate in extracurricular and other nonacademic activities; and, 4) be educated and participate with other children with disabilities and nondisabled children.

Complainant Position

The complainant reported that the LEA is systemically narrowing the elective choices for students with disabilities at the WRNMS and WRHS based upon the availability of paraprofessional staff. She acknowledged that both student A and student B had their schedules changed so that each student was enrolled in two Physical Education (PE) classes during the 2025-26 school year as requested by the parents; however, the complainant believes the LEA only made these changes because of her advocacy. She indicated that other parents who may not be strong advocates are being told that schedules, including elective class choices, are determined by the special education staff and parent input is not needed.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon interviews and record review.

The complainant sent an email dated May 15, 2025 to the WRHS Special Education Teacher 2 and Department Chair describing her experience registering student A for the 2025-26 school year. The complainant stated that the WRHS Registrar told the mother that ". . . the special education department would pick [student A's] classes and register her. No parent input needed".

The LEA reported that the WRHS Counselor and Department Chair interviewed the WRHS Registrar regarding the alleged statements, without her knowledge of the complaint proceedings. The WRHS Registrar reported that she does not recall making the statements attributed to her.

The WRHS Counselor and Department Chair stated that she was in the office when the parent met with WRHS Registrar and remembered her explaining the incoming new student procedures to the parent and indicating that USD #345 would send student A's high school transcript as soon as the academic year closes and transcripts are complete. The WRHS Registrar also explained that counselors meet with students and put together schedules. The WRHS Counselor and Department Chair indicated this procedure is to ensure that all high school graduation requirements are met.

An email from the WRHS Registrar reflected a meeting scheduled for July 28, 2025 to register the student A for classes. The mother met with the WRHS Special Services Counselor and requested two PE classes as electives for both the first and second semester. Student A's schedule reflects her enrollment in two PE classes during first semester of the 2025-26 school year.

An email dated July 30, 2025 from the Director of Secondary Education stated:

> Regarding her daily schedule: currently, [student B] is scheduled for PE every other day, but I understand from our conversation that daily PE would be beneficial. We can absolutely make that adjustment to support her needs. Based on our initial examination of the schedule, it looks like she would be with 8th grade students on B days and 6th grade students on A days. If it is a priority for you to have her only with same-age peers for PE, please let me know and we can examine the schedule again.

The complainant reported that during an August 6, 2025 IEP team meeting for student B, she again requested for student B to be enrolled in a PE class every day in the middle school's block schedule to help with her energy and behavior. The complainant noted that during the meeting the WRNMS Special Education Teacher started to express that this was not possible due to paraprofessional staff availability, but the Director of Secondary Special Services stated, "I will get you para support to cover this, I promise, we have to do this one".

On August 11, 2025, the mother participated in a group tour for the parents and students of the WRNMS Special Education Teacher. The complainant reported that five students and their parents/guardians went on the tour led by the WRNMS Special Education Teacher and the paraprofessionals for the Trek classroom. The complainant stated, "[The WRNMS Special Education Teacher] gave an overview of the classroom and grade levels and how each day goes, how she and the paraeducators support the students and during this discussion she shared that all students had only the specific electives, I can't remember which ones because I wasn't really paying too much attention until she said, 'If you don't like those electives, too bad, because I don't have enough paras for each student to be going in different directions, that is just the way it is'."

When the LEA was asked specifically about this situation, the Director of Secondary Special Services stated:

. . . misunderstandings can arise during middle school tours when staff are explaining required courses or standard scheduling practices, particularly when students express strong preferences about certain electives. At the middle school level, some electives are required for all students (for example, all sixth-grade students must enroll in a music course and may choose between band, choir, or orchestra). In those situations, when a student's reluctance is based on preference rather than need, the requirement applies consistently to all students, and the course is not optional. This can sometimes be perceived by families as inflexibility when it is, in fact, an explanation of a universal requirement. However, when a student's disability impacts their ability to participate in a particular elective, or when an IEP requires access to a specific elective to support IEP goals, the district does make individualized adjustments. In those cases, the administrator works collaboratively with the special education teacher and counselor to ensure the student is appropriately placed. With respect to student B, the parent requested daily PE, which is not typical for her peers. That request was reviewed and ultimately accommodated based on the student's individual needs, demonstrating that elective participation is adjusted when warranted and is not predetermined or inflexible.

On November 19, 2025, student A's father sent an email to the WRHS Special Services Counselor requesting the student's second semester elective be switched from Choir to a second PE class. On November 21, 2025, the WRHS Special Services Counselor emailed back stating, "I checked with [WRHS Special Education Teacher 3] to make sure there was staff to cover it. It's now updated."

The complainant reported that:

> Upon seeing the email, I asked [the father] if he knew who changed [student A's] enrollment and why paraeducator availability was being used to determine whether or not [student A] could be in the course instead [student A's] enrollment being used to determine staffing. [The father] walked over and talked to [the WRHS Special Services Counselor] and she said this is how they have always done it, that is was how she was told to do it, and that they check to see if there is paraeducator availability first, before determining a student's schedule. This makes this a policy by continued and standard practice . . . after emails with [the WRHS Assistant Principal] over the next couple of weeks, [the WRHS Assistant Principal] claims that this is not what [the WRHS Special Services Counselor] said and that [the WRHS Special Services Counselor] was only confirming that there was availability in the PE class for [student A]. But, it makes no sense that [the WRHS Special Services Counselor], a counselor in the enrollment and registrar's office, would have to check with a special education teacher on what PE classes or sections were available?? We were unable to find out who changed [student A's] enrollment, at one point [the WRHS Assistant Principal] said that during enrollment in August that [WRHS Special Services Counselor] informed us that [student A] would be enrolled in choir in the Spring. This is not true, and we never would have agreed with that as [student A] does not > enjoy choir and per her IEP we do extra physical activity for her due to her back and core issues related to a back surgery and her hypotonia. We would never have agreed to her being taken from a PE course, especially for choir, and we were not involved in this decision. We understand that mistakes happen. We understand that in a large school system there are sometimes practices that have become "this is how we've always done it" that are not correct or appropriate, but no one knew until they did. Once you know, it is vital that you are willing to acknowledge that you have made mistakes and that you are willing to correct those mistakes. The real concern here is the lack of willingness to acknowledge a misunderstanding or mistake and to then fix it. This is hubris and of great concern.

The complainant emailed the Director of Secondary Special Education on November 21, 2025 and stated:

> . . . just wanted to give you heads up that this is a trend I think you likely need to address… you cannot deny a student they selected electives due to staffing. At the beginning of the year [the WRNMS Special Education Teacher], [student B's] teacher, told a group of her students' parents that the electives were chorus and maybe art, and if they didn't like it too bad, because they didn't have the staff to cover it . . . But, now this, from the high school special services counselor… that's a systemic issue of predetermination based upon staffing, and not okay. Appears staff on a broad level need some education on FAPE and IDEA.

On November 24, 2025, the Director of Secondary Special Services emailed the complainant stating:

> . . . I did follow up with [student A's] administrator to better understand that particular situation. In this case, when [the WRHS Special Services Counselor] said she needed to 'check with the teachers to ensure there's coverage', that statement was not intended to imply that [student A] – or any student – would be denied an elective due to staffing or that decisions were predetermined. What the [WRHS Special Services Counselor] was doing was gathering information to determine what scheduling options were actually workable. That check-in can include things like verifying class capacity for that elective, looking at whether there are any specific supports required for that particular class, and reviewing paraeducator schedules to see whether adjustments can be made. None of these steps equate to a predetermined 'no' and staffing is never used as the basis to deny access to an elective or any other component of FAPE. That said, I can absolutely understand how the phrasing could be interpreted differently, and I'll continue to work with staff on using clearer language going forward so families aren't left with the impression that decisions are being made prematurely.

On December 1, 2025, the complaint sent two emails to the WRHS Assistant Principal detailing her concern that the WRHS Special Services Counselor has a practice of basing students' class enrollment on paraprofessional availability. The complainant stated, ". . . you CANNOT limit a student's enrollment by lack of paraeducator or support staff. You determine each student's enrollment and THEN you determine the staff (paras) needed to cover it. You do NOT determine the course options for a student with an IEP by paraeducator availability".

On December 2, 2025, the parents requested an explanation of how student A was scheduled into Chorus for second semester and a written plan to prevent future concerns, including staff training on least restrictive environment (LRE), predetermination, and FAPE.

The LEA responded on December 4, 2025 by providing the parents with a prior written notice (PWN) with the requested explanation and refusing to conduct the staff training as requested. The Description of the Action was described as follows

> A review of records confirms that on July 1, 2025, [student A's] counselor entered tentative second-semester elective courses, including Chorus. At that time, student A was an incoming transfer student and her IEP identified inclusion support for four elective classes, without specifying particular courses. WRHS communicates to all families that schedules created before the publicized pre-enrollment period are tentative and subject to change. During the November pre-enrollment window for sophomores, the parents emailed the counselor requesting that student A be enrolled in a PE option during 6th hour instead of Chorus. The counselor confirmed availability and immediately updated the schedule as requested. Because the schedule assignments were tentative, were changed at parent request, and did not alter IEP services, placement, or LRE, the situation does not meet the legal definition of predetermination. Both Chorus and Individual/Team Sports are general education electives, so the adjustment did not change [student A's] LRE or deny FAPE. For these reasons, the request for a formal corrective plan and district-wide staff training is refused at this time.

The LEA provided the following explanation of why the action was refused:

> The parents requested that [student A's] elective be changed from Chorus to a PE class during 6th hour. The counselor verified class capacity and ensured that appropriate special education supports could be scheduled. This verification step was not used to deny access but to ensure the provision of supports and reflects standard practice for compliance with Individualized Education Plans. The schedule change was made promptly in November during the established pre-enrollment period, consistent with communication sent to all WRHS families indicating that all schedules created prior to pre-enrollment are tentative. Concerns regarding predetermination were reviewed. Under IDEA, schools may create draft or preliminary schedules for planning purposes so long as they remain open to parent input. Courts have consistently upheld this practice:
>
> - Doyle v. Arlington County School Board (1991) – Schools may prepare draft proposals prior to meetings if they remain open to revision.
> - Fuhrmann v. East Hanover Board of Education (1993) – Draft recommendations are not predetermination unless the district refuses to consider parent input.

- Ms. S. v. Vashon Island School District (2003) – Districts are expected to review records and prepare in advance for students transitioning into new schools.

Because WRHS updated the schedule based solely on parent request, and because no IEP services or placement were predetermined, no violation of FAPE occurred. For these reasons, the request for a written plan and mandatory training is refused.

Because student A is in the low incidence programs at WRHS, the LEA provided a chart showing the electives classes that students with low incidence disabilities at WRHS are enrolled in during the 2025-26 school year. A summary for each grade level is as follows:

- The chart shows 10 students in the 9th grade with choices of elective courses. Ten students were enrolled in PE; eight students were enrolled in Chorus; six students were enrolled in Life Skills; one student enrolled in Individual/Team Sports; seven students were enrolled in Design; four students were enrolled in Design; four students were enrolled in Painting; two students were enrolled in Drawing; three students were enrolled in Photo Imaging; six students were enrolled in Health; and one student was enrolled in Jewelry Making.
- The chart shows 11 students in the 10th grade with choices of elective courses. Ten students were enrolled in Life Skills; eleven students were enrolled in Individual/Team Sports; two students were enrolled in Chorus; two students were enrolled in Painting; and one student was individually enrolled in Design, Lifetime Sports, Job Experience, Strength and Conditioning, Jewelry Making, Photo Imaging, PE, Health, and Literacy Skills.
- The chart shows 12 students in the 11th grade with choices of elective courses. Eight students were enrolled in Life Skills; eight students were enrolled in Individual/Team Sports; four students were enrolled in Ceramics; three students were enrolled in Photo Imaging; two students were enrolled in Chorus; two students were enrolled in Painting; two students were enrolled in Drawing; two students were enrolled in Strength and Conditioning; two students were enrolled in Jewelry Making, and one student was individually enrolled in German I, Learning Strategies, Plant and Soil Science, Advanced Painting, JROTC, Culinary, Animation, Advanced Animation, Intro to Theater, and Print Making.
- The chart shows 9 students in the 12th grade with choices of elective courses. Six students were enrolled in Life Skills; six students were enrolled in Individual/Team Sports; Five students were enrolled in Job Experience; Three students were enrolled in Strength and Conditioning; two students were enrolled in Lifetime Sports, two students were enrolled in Criminal Justice, and one student was individually enrolled in Graphic Design, Advanced Graphic Design, Advanced Ceramics, Learning Strategies, Concert Choir, Film is Lit, Culinary, Print Making, Intro to Theater, Jewelry Making, Robotics, Sports Medicine II, Career and Life Planning, Human Growth and Development, Ceramics, Choir, Teacher Aide, and Library Aide.

Because student B is in the low incidence programs at WRNMS, the LEA provided a chart showing the electives classes that students with low incidence disabilities at WRNMS are enrolled in during the 2025-26 school year. A summary for each grade level is as follows:

- The chart reflects 13 students in the 6th grade with PE being a required class and a choice of one elective class in the master schedule. Choir was the elective choice for eight students; Band was the choice for two students; and three students were individually enrolled in Family and Consumer Science, Orchestra, and Art as their elective choices.
- The chart reflects 14 students in the 7th grade with PE being a required class and a choice of one elective class in the master schedule. Family and Consumer Science was the elective choice for six students; Art was the choice for five students; and three students were individually enrolled in Environmental Science, Photography, and Cultural Connections as their elective choices.
- The chart reflects 12 students in the 8th grade with PE being a required class and a choice of one elective class in the master schedule. Introduction to Coding was the elective choice for five students; Choir was the choice for two students; and five students were individually enrolled in Environmental Science, Design, Skilled Trades, a second PE, and Band as their elective choices.

The 2025-26 Department of Special Services Handbook of Practices, Procedures, Policies, and Guidelines describes the recommended procedures for communicating effectively with parents before, during and after the IEP team meetings.

Conclusion

In this case, the complainant shared multiple interactions with LEA staff both at the WRNMS and WRHS which caused her to have the perception that student schedules were linked to paraprofessional availability. However, there is evidence to show that students with IEPs in the low incidence programs at both WRNMS and WRHS do have the opportunity to be enrolled in a wide variety of elective courses. The documentation shows that while there are multiple elective courses that do have groups of between ten and two students enrolled, individual students are enrolled in 11 different courses at WRNMS and 39 different courses at WRHS which would support a finding that course selection is not based on paraprofessional availability. This variety of course enrollments in both buildings also supports a finding that parents and students have the opportunity to share preferences when schedules are being built. Based on the foregoing, the allegation of a violation of special education laws and regulations related to this issue is not substantiated. It is noted that the LEA has procedures in place for effectively communicating with parents; however, to avoid miscommunication and misperceptions in the future, It is recommended that the LEA review its practices for communicating with parents, specifically in regard to scheduling.

Issue Two

USD #437, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the parent with the opportunity to participate in class enrollment decisions and changed student A's class schedule without obtaining parent consent during the 2025-26 school year.

Complainant Position

The complainant reported that the LEA unilaterally enrolled Student A in Choir for the second semester of the 2025-26 school year. She indicated that she was initially told by the WRHS Registrar that there was no need for parents to participate in the scheduling process because the special education staff would develop student A's schedule. However, the complainant reported that she did participate in the scheduling process for student A prior to the start of the school year when she met with the WRHS Special Services Counselor. At that meeting, the complainant specifically requested that student A be enrolled in two PE classes each semester and left the meeting under the impression that the 2025-26 schedule was finalized. The complainant later learned that student A's schedule for the second semester only included one PE class and the other PE class had been unilaterally changed to Choir. The complainant indicated no one from the LEA contacted her about the schedule change, discussed any other options, nor provided prior written notice for the change in student A's class schedule. The complainant acknowledged that student A's schedule was ultimately changed to include the two PE classes during the second semester; however, the parent does not believe the LEA followed the appropriate procedures in the situation.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.501(b)(1) require that the parents of a child with a disability must be afforded an opportunity to participate in meetings with respect to the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of the child; and the provision of FAPE to the child. Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.17 define FAPE as meaning special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge; and are provided in conformity with an individualized education program (IEP).

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. 300.503(a) require school districts to provide parents with prior written notice a reasonable time before they propose or refuse to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, educational placement, or the provision of FAPE to the student.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon interviews and record review. Note that the findings in Issue One are incorporated herein by reference.

The August 12, 2025 IEP Amendment for student A included a Course of Study in the Transition Plan which showed enrollment in two elective courses. The IEP developed on September 25, 2025 noted a year-long elective for Lifetime Sports (a PE course) in the Transition Plan's Course of Study. In addition, the September 25, 2025 IEP requires inclusion support for two elective classes in the general education setting.

As documented in Issue One, student A's father sent an email to the WRHS Special Services Counselor requesting the student's second semester elective be switched from Choir to a second PE class on November 19, 2025. The WRHS Special Services Counselor emailed the father back on November 21, 2025 stating, "I checked with [WRHS Special Education Teacher 3] to make sure there was staff to cover it. It's now updated."

The complainant reported she emailed the Director of Secondary Special Services and the WRHS Assistant Principal several times with her concerns that student A's schedule had been changed from two PE classes each semester in the 2025-26 school year to one PE class and Choir during the second semester without parent input and consent and to find out how this scheduling mistake happened.

The WRHS Assistant Principal told the complainant that the WRHS Special Services Counselor had tentatively enrolled student A in a Choir class as a "placeholder" for second semester and parent was informed of this during the scheduling meeting prior to school starting.

The complainant stated, "This is not true, and we never would have agreed with that as [student A] does not enjoy choir and per her IEP we do extra physical activity for her due to her back and core issues related to a back surgery and her hypotonia. We would never have agreed to her being taken from a PE course, especially for choir, and we were not involved in this decision." The complainant also noted that the year-long PE electives was discussed with the WRHS Special Services Counselor during the scheduling meeting held prior to the first day of the 2025-26 school year.

The complainant was also concerned that the WRHS Special Services Counselor needed to check with WRHS Special Education Teacher 3 prior to making the requested schedule change. When asked to clarify the need to include WRHS Special Education Teacher 3 in the schedule change process, The Director of Secondary Special Services stated:

> The process of verifying the availability of services for the student when a schedule change is requested isn't exclusive to the content of the class, but more specifically the section. With Student A, her engagement in PE classes utilizes a combination of support personnel, related services, and peer mentors. During the first semester, Student A participated in two general education PE courses with special education support: Adaptive PE Teacher (40 min, 1x per week) in conjunction with a Peer Mentor, during her 4th hour, Individual/Team Sports. Then during her 7th hour, Individual Team/Sports, Student A had a paraeducator supporting her access to the class. Therefore, the verification of services available has nothing to do with Choir vs PE because there are plenty of sections of PE throughout each hour, nor the assumption that services are only available in Choir…but instead it is more about which PE course and which staffing approach Student A needs. To emphasize this point: For second semester, the following "PE classes" are ALL options during the requested 6th hour:

- Boys PE - Mr. Goehring, Gym A
- Health - Ms. Holman, Rm B179
- Individual/Team Sports - Mr. Hutchins, Gym A
- Strength & Conditioning - Mr. Pfizenmaier, Weight Rm
- Individual/Team Sports - Mr. Smith, Gym A
- Health - Ms. Vanderbogart, Rm B181

Therefore, [the Special Services Counselor] needed to connect with [Special Education Teacher 3] to determine which section of Individual/Team Sports (1st choice) the class taught by Mr. Smith (Student A was in his class first semester) or Mr. Hutchins would best suit Student A and her provision of services as outlined in her IEP? It was determined to enroll Student A in Mr. Hutchins' section, utilizing the support of a paraeducator . . . While Peer Mentors are not actual related services or are considered a change in placement, they are valued by the parent and add to the experience for Student A. I needed to ensure that parent understood that the Peer Mentor that Student A had the first semester was not available for the hours they were requesting for their child, second semester. It is important to note that a factor presented for ensuring parent engagement and thoughtful planning for [student A's] inclusive opportunities specific to a PE class were to consider her access to a peer mentor that she has developed rapport with. On 12.4.25, [the father] was explained that the requested PE classes for 4th and 6th hour did not align with this particular peer mentor's second semester schedule. This effort in communication was to ensure parent awareness and further input within [student A's] schedule or sections of PE classes were considered. The conversation shared that a peer mentor would be available but would be a new student to [student A]. [The father] communicated that this would be acceptable and a decision to not alter [student A's] schedule further for the purpose of connecting [student A] with the same peer mentor in the PE class format.

On December 4, 2025, the LEA provided the parents with a PWN refusing to conduct mandatory training for special education staff and explaining the scheduling situation for student A. As noted in Issue One, the December 4, 2025 PWN contained both a description and explanation of the scheduling situation. The Other Relevant Factors section in the PWN stated:

It is important to note that a factor presented for ensuring parent engagement and thoughtful planning for [student A's] inclusive opportunities specific to a PE class were to consider her access to a peer mentor that she has developed rapport with. On 22.4.25, [the father] was explained that the requested PE class for 4th and 6th hour did not align with this particular peer mentor's second semester schedule. This effort in communication was to ensure parent awareness and further input within [student A's] schedule or sections of PE classes were considered. The conversation shared that a peer mentor would be available but would be a new student to [student A]. [The father] communicated that this would be > acceptable and a decision to not alter [student A's] schedule further for the purpose of connecting [student A] with the same peer mentor in the PE class format.

The LEA believes that PWN was not required to be provided to the parent for a change in one general education elective course to another general education elective course because this change did not affect either the special education services provided to the student nor the educational placement of the student. The LEA reported that regardless of the general education elective the student was enrolled in, she continued to receive the inclusion support required by the IEP and both course options occurred in the general education setting.

School Board Policy IE: Instructional Arrangements requires the LEA to develop class schedules to meet district instructional goals and learning objectives while considering class size. This policy requires that pre-enrollment occur each spring.

School Board Policy JBC: Enrollment requires the superintendent to establish orderly procedures for enrolling all students, including pre-enrollment, changes in enrollment, normal enrollment times, and communication to parents and to the public. This policy also requires district administrators shall make a good faith attempt to accommodate scheduling requests of students enrolling in the school district in these situations but shall not be required to make adjustments to accommodate every such request.

District procedures for enrollment are outlined in 2025-26 WRHS Course Planning Guide. In addition, the 2025-26 WRHS Student Handbook includes the following information under the Course Enrollment section:

> When students complete pre-enrollment in the Spring, their course options determine what classes are offered and how often. Teachers are hired and assigned based upon Spring pre-enrollment. Therefore, class changes are limited. Before a semester begins, counselors will work to accommodate change requests as much as possible. However, once the semester begins, schedule changes will not be allowed for teacher, lunch, period, or class preference.

The November and December WRHS Junior Blues Newsletters both included information regarding second semester schedule change procedures indicating that all schedules are tentative and therefore, students should view their schedule on Campus Portal and that schedule changes for grades 9-11 can be made between November 10 through December 12, 2025. The LEA reported that these newsletters are the monthly communication from WRHS and are available to all parents and students.

The LEA reported these procedures and practices are necessary to implement the School Board policies and described the rationale as noted below:

1. During the course of the first semester, counselors hold individual senior meetings. During these meetings that begin in October, seniors review their credits and Individual Plans of Study. They also make decisions about reducing their schedule for the second semester or engaging in work-based learning activities, Washburn Tech, or online college courses that free up seats in sections within the WRHS master schedule for 11, 10, and 9th grade students. Therefore, after all individual senior meetings are complete the enrollment process for other grade levels begins in November, when those seats are opened up. If second semester schedules were worked on during the beginning of the year, many popular electives and other core courses or preferred teachers would still show full. Therefore the time counselors would spend working with students on those schedules would be a waste of time because after the senior meetings, the sections open up and then many students want to redo their schedules.

2. As a semester progresses, it is best to consider the following semester after a student has been in their current classes for a quarter or more. Especially, because it allows them to get to know the instructional style of teachers, learn about the content, and determine if they have interest in the course. This knowledge often drives decisions for the following semester. It also allows time for teachers to make recommendations if a student needs remediation courses such as Math Lab, Reteach, Literacy Skills, Transitions, Learning Strategies, Post Secondary Prep to help them be more successful in their classes.
3. The master schedule may experience necessary changes in between semesters based general education staffing changes, enrollment needs, or the elimination of courses.
4. Our counselors need to be efficient with their time. Each counselor ranges from 200-400 students, in addition to other duties such as the administration of the PSAT, SAT, ACT, ASVAB, IB, AP, and ensuring every single student has an Individual Plan of Study that meets graduation requirements. They also ensure every student interested in post-secondary opportunities completes the FASFA form, has scholarship information, and writes letters of recommendation for college applications. Not to mention the provision of mental health and academic services. They hold tight enrollment windows when they attend to schedule changes because in between those times, they have other duties that are also time sensitive.

Conclusion

In this case, the student A was enrolled in a Choir course instead of the second PE course requested by parents prior to the beginning of the school year. It is unclear if this was a mistake or an oversight by the WRHS Special Services Counselor or simply a miscommunication of building-wide scheduling procedures. Regardless, student A's schedule was adjusted to allow for enrollment in two PE classes during the second semester of the 2025-26 school year at parent request during the WRHS schedule change window during November 2025 following building-wide procedures and practices. The LEA provided documentation of School Board Policy as well as building-level procedures and practices for allowing and making schedule changes for the second semester which apply to all students, including those with IEPs. There is evidence to support a finding that the father participated in the decision making process to update student A's schedule and that no PWN was required to be provided for the schedule change from the Choir class to the second PE class as no changes were made that impacted the services or placement as required by student A's IEP. Based on the foregoing, the allegation of a violation of special education laws and regulations related to this issue is not substantiated

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 437
Auburn/Washburn Public Schools: 26FC437-010

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on December 29, 2025, by ---------- on behalf of her children, ---------- and ----------. In the remainder of this decision, ---------- will be referred to as "the parent." ---------- will be referred to as “student A”, and ---------- will be referred to as “student B.” An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on February 3, 2026. That Complaint Report concluded that there was no violation of special education statutes and regulations

Thereafter, the parent filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parent, the Complaint Report, the parent’s notice of appeal, and the district’s response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The appeal committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The report identified two issues.

Issue One

USD #437, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) in the least restrictive environment (LRE) during the 2025-26 school year, specifically by limiting opportunities to enroll in general education classes based upon the availability of paraprofessional support at the middle and high school buildings.

The investigator conducted an extensive investigation, including an interview on January 15, 2026, with the high school (WRNMS):

> Director of Secondary Special Services, Principal, Special Education Teacher, Assistant Principal, Counselor and Department Chair, Special Services Counselor, and Special Education Teacher 1

And with the middle school:

> Principal and Special Education Teacher

Additionally, the investigator reviewed and used fifty five separately identified written documents in her consideration of this complaint. (Report 2-6).

The central part of this issue is explained in the "Analysis: Findings of Fact" portion of the report exteding from page 8 to page 15. Briefly, stated:

> On December 1, 2025, the complainant sent two emails to the WRHS Assistant Principal detailing her concern that the WRHS Special Services Counselor has a practice of basing students' class enrollment on paraprofessional availability. The complainant stated, ". . . you CANNOT limit a student's enrollment by lack of paraeducator or support staff. You determine each student's enrollment and THEN you determine the staff (paras) needed to cover it. You do NOT determine the course options for a student with an IEP by paraeducator availability".

On December 2, 2025, the parents requested an explanation of how student A was scheduled into Chorus for second semester and a written plan to prevent future concerns, including staff training on least restrictive environment (LRE), predetermination, and FAPE. (Report, p. 12)

The district reacted with a Prior Written Notice (PWN), dated 12/4/2025, denying the parent's "request for a formal corrective action plan and district-wide staff training. In this PWN, the district stated:

> The parents requested that [student A's] elective be changed from Chorus to a PE class during 6th hour. The counselor verified class capacity and ensured that appropriate special education supports could be scheduled. This verification step was not used to deny access but to ensure the provision of supports and reflects standard practice for > compliance with Individualized Education Plans… Because WRHS updated the schedule based solely on parent request, and because no IEP services or placement were predetermined, no violation of FAPE occurred. For these reasons, the request for a written plan and mandatory training is refused. Report, p. 13.

In addition, the district provided the investigator with a chart showing the electives classes that students with low incidence disabilities at both the high school and middle school are enrolled in during the 2025-26 school year. Report, p. 14 – 15.

From this evidence, the investigator concluded that the "students with IEPs in the low incidence programs at both WRNMS and WRHS do have the opportunity to be enrolled in a wide variety of elective courses" and "that course selection is not based on paraprofessional availability. This variety of course enrollments in both buildings also supports a finding that parents and students have the opportunity to share preferences when schedules are being built. "

The Appeal Committee agrees with the conclusion of the investigator. While access to curriculum and educational placement cannot be predetermined, this does not mean that no planning whatsoever can be tolerated when a parent requests that a child be permitted to choose a course or activity. Those planning activities to which the parent refers are essential to operating an effective program. Describing those planning activities as allowing student participation "based upon the availability of paraprofessional staff" is a mischaracterization of those planning activities, and inconsistent with the record assembled by the investigator.

In, R.L. v. Miami-Dade County Sch. Bd., 114 LRP 30126 (11th Cir. 2014) the court said, "Predetermination occurs when the state makes educational decisions too early in the planning process, in a way that deprives the parents of a meaningful opportunity to fully participate as equal members of the IEP team." The court said statements such as saying there are certain things the district would not offer because it could not give the same service to everybody or that the powers that be would not allow the team to offer the service are strong indicators of predetermination.

That is not at all what happened here. The students in this complaint were denied nothing. The district approved the parent's requests, after a very short and necessary preparation activity. The Appeal Committee sees nothing in the facts of this complaint that could be reasonably seen as a violation of any special education law or regulation. Nothing was denied (except for the parents request for a formal corrective action plan and staff training), nothing in an IEP was unavailable, and there was no denial of parent participation in the development of an IEP.

With regard to the further allegation of a systemic violation, the investigator found that the evidence did not support that allegation, saying:

However, there is evidence to show that students with IEPs in the low incidence programs at both WRNMS and WRHS do have the opportunity to be enrolled in a wide variety of elective courses. The documentation shows that while there are multiple elective courses that do have groups of between ten and two students enrolled, individual students are enrolled in 11 different courses at WRNMS and 39 different courses at WRHS which would support a finding that course selection is not based on paraprofessional availability. This variety of course enrollments in both buildings also supports a finding that parents and students have the opportunity to share preferences when schedules are being built. Based on the foregoing, the allegation of a violation of special education laws and regulations related to this issue is not substantiated. (Report, p. 16)

The Appeal Committee agrees with this analysis regarding the "systemic" portion of the complaint.

The parent appears to be sincere in her belief that the student needs two PE classes, with para support due to disability. If so, one way to proceed is to request an IEP meeting to discuss and propose that the PE classes be included in the student's IEP.

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report on this issue.

Issue Two

USD #437, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the parent with the opportunity to participate in class enrollment decisions and changed student A's class schedule without obtaining parent consent during the 2025-26 school year.

The Appel Committee begins its analysis of this issue with the recognition that there is nothing in state or federal law that requires school districts to provide parents with the opportunity to participate in class enrollment decisions or to obtain parent consent to change the class schedule for a child with a disability. With that recognition, the Appeal Committee notes that there was nothing in Student A's IEP that required enrollment in two PE classes each semester. According to the report, the student's parent said she met with a Special Services Counselor (not the IEP team) where she requested that student A be enrolled in two PE classes each semester and left that meeting under the impression that the 2025-26 schedule was finalized. However, the parent later learned that student A's schedule for the second semester included only one PE class and the other PE class had been "unilaterally changed" to Choir. In the complaint report, the investigator noted that one of the PE classes,

> "had been unilaterally changed to Choir. The complainant indicated no one from the LEA contacted her about the schedule change, discussed any other options, nor provided prior written notice for the change in student A's class schedule. The complainant acknowledged that student A's schedule was ultimately changed to include the two PE classes during the second semester; however, the parent does not believe the LEA followed the appropriate procedures in the situation." (Report, p. 16-17).

Even if this entire scenario is completely true, there is no violation of special education law. Enrollment in PE classes is not in this students IEP nor has it (apparently) ever been brought to or addressed by the student's IEP team. It may be discouraging that a Special Services Counselor's personal commitment was not fulfilled, but that is not a violation of special education law. Nor is there any legal requirement for a PWN to be issued for making a scheduling change. Again, perhaps the better procedure for the parent to pursue at this time is to request an IEP meeting to ask the IEP team to add the two PE classes to the IEP.

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report on this issue.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 23rd day of February, 2026.

Background Information

The student is currently a 3rd grader at an elementary school in the LEA, qualifying for special education services under the primary exceptionality of Autism and a secondary exceptionality of Speech/Language Impairment. The student had been attending full-time, private ABA therapy since September 22, 2023, and did not attend school during that time. The last IEP was a Kansas IEP dated May 20, 2023 with a start date of August 23, 2023. The most recent special education evaluation was dated May 20, 2022.

Issues Investigated

Issue One

Did USD #453 follow state and federal regulations of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) when implementing the student's IEP and behavior intervention plan specific to 1) transportation services and 2) behavioral supports, interventions, and services during the 2025-2026 school year?

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.323(c)(2) require school districts to ensure that as soon as possible following the development of the IEP, special education and related services are made available to the child in accordance with the child's IEP. K.A.R. §91-40-16(b)(2) further specifies those services for which written consent has been granted as specified by law are implemented not later than 10 school days after parental consent is granted unless reasonable justification for a delay can be shown.

Parent Position

The parent allegations in the child complaint regarding IEP implementation were twofold. First, "The district has refused to provide transportation for my [child]. Transportation is a related service under IDEA when necessary for a child to access special education and their educational placement. Denial of transportation has interfered with my [child's] ability to attend school consistently and access [their] services." Second, "The district has failed to consistently and appropriately implement my [child's] IEP and BIP as written. Behavioral supports, interventions, and services identified in these plans are not being provided with fidelity. This has negatively impacted [their] ability to access instruction, regulate behavior, and make meaningful educational progress."

Local Education Agency Position

The Local Education Agency responded that the student began attending school on December 1, 2025. The student's most recent IEP was dated May 20, 2023 and evaluation more than three years old. The student had been attending full-time, private ABA therapy since September 22, 2023, but did not attend school during that time. The team scheduled a meeting for December 2, 2025; however, due to a snow day, it was rescheduled to December 12, 2025. Since December 1, 2025, the IEP team provided services consistent with the May 20, 2023 IEP and then on December 12, 2024 developed and implemented an IEP dated December 12 based on services comparable with the May 20, 2023 IEP, while a new evaluation was completed.

Specific to transportation services allegation, the LEA responded that a smaller special education school bus was arranged beginning December 1, 2025. On December 3, 2025, a behavioral incident occurred which raised safety concerns. As a result, transportation was temporarily suspended while the LEA, in collaboration with the parent, explored safety accommodations. Following discussion with the parent, the LEA determined that a safety harness was required to ensure the student's safe transportation. While the harness was being secured, the LEA offered the parent mileage reimbursement as an alternative means of transportation. The transportation vendor requested verification of the student's measurements prior to ordering the harness, as initial measurements appeared inconsistent. The LEA sent follow-up emails to the parent requesting confirmation of the measurements. The LEA again offered mileage reimbursement on January 14, 2026, via email and Prior Written Notice. During the IEP team meeting held on January 22, 2026, the parent verbally agreed to mileage reimbursement. The LEA provided the parent with the mileage reimbursement form on January 25, 2026, along with instructions indicating that reimbursement could be claimed retroactively beginning December 4, 2025, the date transportation became temporarily unavailable pending the safety accommodation.

Specific to behavior supports, interventions, and services the LEA contends that at the time of enrollment, no LEA-developed behavior intervention plan was in effect. The IEP dated May 20, 2023 did not include a Behavior Intervention Plan. The LEA received a behavior intervention plan developed by the student's private ABA provider and while the IEP team reviewed the information, IDEA does not require a public school district to implement a behavior plan developed outside of the IEP process. The student began receiving services on December 1, 2025 which were subsequently written into the December 12, 2025 IEP based on the last IEP of record dated May 20, 2023.

The LEA responded that while the special education evaluation was occurring, the IEP team met on January 22, 2026, to discuss student progress, parent concerns, and determine if any adjustments were required. Based on the agreement reached during the meeting, changes, including a behavior intervention plan were proposed via an amendment, but the parents did not sign consent so the December 12, 2025 IEP remained in effect and were implemented.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

Transportation

1) The IEP dated December 12, 2025 lists special education transportation for thirty (30) minutes five (5) days every week from December 1, 2025 through November 30, 2026 with behavior as the area of need.
2) The director of special education stated that the parents provided transportation to the school on December 1, 2025 and a small school bus was scheduled for the student based on notes from the previous school LEA regarding transportation.
3) The principal recorded that on the "afternoon of Wednesday December 3rd, 2025 at dismissal, [student] was assisted on the bus by our low-incidence team. [Student] boarded the bus and then bus staff alerted the team that [they] needed to come off the bus. [Student] was escalated when [they] came off the bus, tried running into the road, and was guided back in by school staff. [Student] came into the vestibule and was aggressive with staff. [Student] was then taken into the school to separate [them] from other students to make sure they were not hurt. [Student] was in the lobby and eventually the team got [them] to the conference room. [Student] began throwing items like [the] device, chairs, pencil cup to the ceiling and broke tiles. [Student] began to disrobe and was taken to the bathroom where [they] began throwing any unattached item [they] could find. Dad arrived to take [them] home." Later on December 3, 2025 the bus company contacted the parent stating, "Due to the incident today on the bus we will not transport [student] in the morning December 4th until we can make contact with the special education department to see how we are going to move forward. We will reach out to you after contact with them." The director of special education wrote notes based on a phone call with the parent on December 4, 2025 that indicated that the mother liked the idea of a harness as a way for the student to ride the bus.
4) Emails between the bus company, director of special education and parent demonstrate that a harness is ordered and everyone is awaiting it to resume bus transportation. Emails and PWNs further show that the parents were offered mileage reimbursement retroactive to the beginning of the time the parents have transported and that the mileage reimbursement form was provided to the parent.

5) The director of special education reported to the investigator that the student has not missed school due to transportation. The attendance records verify that the student did not miss school except during six days of out-of-school suspension.

Behavioral supports, interventions, and services

1) The IEP dated December 12, 2026 lists the following services identifying behavior as an area of need: 70 minutes of direct special education instructional support in the regular education classroom five times every week; 60 minutes of attendant care in the regular education classroom five times every week; 230 minutes of specialized instruction outside the regular education classroom 2 times every week; 265 minutes of special minutes of specialized instruction outside the regular education classroom 3 times every week; and 30 minutes of transportation services 5 times every week. Two additional accommodations addressed behavior; one to two minute movement breaks before 20 minutes or longer seated tasks and advanced warning of extremely loud noises (fire or tornado alarms). The IEP does not indicate that a BIP is a part of the IEP.
2) A PWN dated January 26, 2026 documented decisions from the January 22, 2026 IEP team meeting. Proposals included adding a Behavior Intervention Plan, a behavior goal, adjustments to speech services, and modifications to the student's access to the general education environment. The parents declined consent for the proposed BIP and IEP amendments.
3) A Parent Input Statement dated January 24, 2026 was provided by the parents following the January 22, 2026 IEP team meeting. The statement indicated that the student's behaviors are "influenced by functional and environmental factors and are addressed through proactive parental engagement." They posit that data indicated that the school's disciplinary methods are escalating the student's distress rather than managing it, noting that the student has been without an AAC device since January 14, 2026. They write that on December 11, 2025 the student was attempting to throw the AAC device (a primary way for the student to communicate) into the air and the device taken from the student. Following removal of the device the student became physically aggressive, ending up in seclusion and ultimately suspended. The parents note that if the student does not have the AAC device to express frustration or a desire to stop the only remaining "communication" is through physical aggression or elopement. Also, the statement asserts that the school uses restrictive seclusion as a first response, rather than as a last resort.
4) The IEP dated December 12, 2025 has one goal (Goal 2) that includes the AAC device as one of four options for communication. "Given a want or request, [student] will indicate a want (activity, toy, snack, drink, etc.) via gestures, vocalizations, word approximations, or [their] device in 8/10 opportunities across 4/5 data collecting periods." The speech logs document that the student used the device as part of the speech services on/or about three occasions. The logs indicated that on January 13, 2025 the device was not working properly and the private speech therapist would be contacted for a solution. The January 14, 2026 speech log records that the "AAC device was completely broken. Outside speech said they did not go through funding the device, that it was a personal

one. Device will be discussed with parents at meeting tomorrow." The email from the director of special education to the parent on January 28, 2026 at 5:42 p.m. states, "Regarding communication access, we want to clarify that the district has now secured a dedicated AAC device (an iPad with TouchChat) for [student]. This is a district-provided resource, and we want to reassure you that you will not be required to use your personal home device for school. We agree that [student] must have consistent access to [their] communication system. [Instructional facilitator] will send you a district checkout form that will allow [student] to bring [their] device home."

5) The progress reports dated December 19, 2025 report data collected on goals starting on December 1, 2025. The occupational therapy log documents that the occupational therapy goals were implemented. The speech therapy log documents that the speech goals were implemented. The January 2026 schedule of the BCBA and registered behavior therapist document that goals were implemented during January up to and including the time of the complaint filing. Documentation from observations made by the teacher, paraprofessional and/or behavior therapist during December 2025, ESI documentation, ABC data, graphed behavior data, incident reports and ongoing BIP development w/data confirm that the LEA implemented the IEP goals and services and used data to address the behavioral needs of the student during the time that the evaluation was occurring.

Conclusion

It is found that the IEP developed by the IEP team, dated December 12, 2025 was the IEP of record. Although the PWN dated January 22, 2026 documented a proposed change in services and addition of a behavior goal and behavior intervention plan the parent did not consent to the change so the December 12, 2025 IEP remained the IEP implemented for the duration of the investigation complaint. In regard to transportation, the LEA scheduled for transportation and when the bus company notified the parent that they would no longer transport the student until finding a solution with the LEA a mutual decision was made to order a safety harness. During the time the harness was being ordered and manufactured the LEA offered the parent mileage reimbursement to provide transportation. Emails and PWNs show that the LEA regularly updated the parents on the progress with obtaining the harness and reoffered the mileage reimbursement form.

In regard to the behavior interventions, supports, and services it is found that there was no behavior intervention plan written in place from December 1, 2025 through the time of the filing of the complaint. The December 12, 2025 IEP did not include a BIP and the one developed and discussed during the January 22, 2026 IEP team meeting did not receive consent from the family to implement. Service logs, progress reports and multiple sources of documentation to show that the behavioral supports and services written into the December 12, 2025 IEP were implemented. It is noted that there is agreement that the AAC device was broken and unavailable between January 13, 2026 and January 27, 2026 (10 instructional days, with the student serving out-of-school suspension for part or whole of 3 school days). One goal was written (Goal 2) that included the AAC device as one option for expressing wants. While it may be true that the student's communication is reliant on the AAC device as written by the parent, the current IEP does not specify it. It is suggested that the use of the AAC device be discussed during the time of the reevaluation and development of the new IEP. Therefore, the Local Education Agency is IN compliance, and corrective action is not required.

Issue Two

Did USD #453 follow state and federal regulations of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) when conducting a special education evaluation for the student, specifically continuing to implement the IEP and within timelines during the 2025-2026 school year?

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R.§300.324(b)(1)(i) and Kansas statues at K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(1) require an IEP team to develop, review, and revise the IEP at least once every 12 months meaning the district must hold an annual IEP meeting and adopt a new or revised IEP before the anniversary of the last annual meeting.

At the beginning of each school year, each public agency must have in effect, for each child with a disability within its jurisdiction, an individualized education program (IEP), as defined in 34 C.F.R.§300.320(a) and K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3).

Under 34 C.F.R.§300.303(a)(1) and K.S.A. 72-3428(h)(1)(a) a public agency must ensure that a reevaluation of each child with a disability is conducted in accordance with §§300.304 through 300.311 if the public agency determines that the educational or related services needs, including improved academic achievement and functional performance, of the child warrant a reevaluation. Further, a reevaluation must occur at least once every 3 years, unless the parent and the public agency agree that a reevaluation is unnecessary (34 C.F.R.§300.303(b)(2); K.S.A. 72-3428(h)(2)3)). Finally, the evaluation must be conducted within 60 school-days of receiving parental consent for the evaluation (34 C.F.R.§300.301(c)(1); (K.A.R. 91-40-8(f)).

Parent Position

The parents alleged in their complaint that, "Consent for ASD evaluations was provided in December 2025. While assessments are ongoing, the district is still required to implement the current IEP and BIP as written. Delays or ongoing evaluations do not excuse past or ongoing violations."

Local Education Agency Position

The LEA responded that the student began receiving services on the first day of enrollment at the school on December 1, 2025. At the time of enrollment, the student had an expired IEP dated August 23, 2023. Consistent with IDEA requirements for students transferring into an LEA, the IEP team implemented comparable services beginning December 1, 2025 to ensure continuity of services while a new evaluation was initiated. The LEA presented the parent with a consent to evaluate on December 12, 2025, and the parent signed the consent on the same date and thus, the 60-school-day evaluation timeline began on December 12, 2025. The LEA continued to implement the student's comparable services throughout the evaluation process and did not delay or suspend services as a result of initiating the evaluation. Based on the documentation reviewed, LEA followed state and federal IDEA requirements related to conducting a special education evaluation.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The findings of Issue One are incorporated herein by reference.

An IEP meeting held on December 12, 2025 developed an IEP with services comparable to the last IEP of record dated May 20, 2023. A PWN dated December 12, 2025 documented the services for this IEP and parent consent was provided December 12, 2025 with an IEP initiation date of December 1, 2025.

The PWN dated December 12, 2025 documented that the LEA proposed to conduct a reevaluation to confirm ongoing eligibility, update information about current strengths and needs, and ensure services remain appropriate. Further, it was documented that the team determined the student continued to meet eligibility under Autism and Speech/Language Impairment (eligibility 5/20/2022) and services were proposed because evaluations, classroom data, and team input showed ongoing needs in communication, academics, behavior, fine motor, and sensory skills and the intensity of specialized instruction, services, and transportation reflects the level of support required for your child to access and benefit from learning. It is noted in the other December 12, 2025 PWN that the evaluation will be expedited. The parent consented to this action on December 12, 2025.

An email from the parent to the director of special education on December 14, 2025 recorded the parent's concern about replacing the school psychologist who had attended the December 12, 2025 IEP Team meeting and expressing desire to be an active participant in developing the student's IEP. The email exchange shows that the director of special education assured the parent of her role in the development of the IEP.

An email from the school psychologist to the parent on January 14, 2026 assured the parent that, "that consent for the evaluation has already been provided and that [student's] current IEP and BIP remain in effect and should continue to be implemented as written while the evaluation is ongoing. Participation in assessment activities does not change or waive any concerns you may have regarding implementation, transportation, or other matters."

The special education director stated during the interview with the investigator that the evaluation should be completed in March, ahead of the 60-day timeline for completing the evaluation. They state that the evaluation was expedited due to the behavior needs of the student.

Conclusion

It is found that the student enrolled in a school with an IEP dated May 20, 2023 from another Kansas school and an evaluation that was older than three years. There is no federal or state regulation that says an IEP "expires" and ceases to be valid on the anniversary date — the timing requirement is about completing the review annually, not automatically terminating services on that date. Therefore, the LEA determined to treat the May 20, 2023 IEP from the previous Kansas school as a transfer within state and implement comparable services from the IEP during the time of the evaluation through an IEP developed by the IEP team, dated December 12, 2025. It is noted that the student was attending a private ABA therapy program where goals and a behavior intervention plan had been developed immediately prior to enrollment in the LEA. The LEA correctly relied on the IEP dated May 20, 2023 as the transfer within-state IEP .

The federal and Kansas regulations require that a re-evaluation must occur every three years unless the parent and/or district agree it is not necessary. During the December 12, 2025 IEP team meeting the LEA provided the parents a PWN dated December 12, 2025 to reevaluate the student to confirm the student's eligibility and develop an appropriate IEP meeting the regulations for evaluating at least once every three years. The parent signed consent for the LEA to conduct the special education evaluation on December 12, 2025 starting the 60 school-day timeline to complete the evaluation and develop an IEP, if appropriate (March 30, 2026). During that time, the IEP dated December 12, 2025 was to be implemented. The LEA provided service logs, progress reports and multiple sources of documentation to show that the December 12, 2025 IEP was implemented from December 1, 2025 through the time the parent filed the complaint. Therefore, the Local Education Agency is IN compliance, and corrective action is not required.

Background Information

This investigation involved a sixth-grade student enrolled at an elementary school in USD #512. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA under the exceptionality of Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD). The Student also has a diagnosis of Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). The Student has not attended school since December 12, 2025. The LEA subsequently withdrew the Student from enrollment on February 3, 2026, due to 10 consecutive days of unexcused absences.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with Parent 1 and staff in the LEA.

1. A February 6, 2025 entry into a Student Discipline Report noted a referral by the Principal where the Student told another student they "wanted to kill them and found out [they] snitched so [the Student] said if [they] did it again [the Student] would stab [them] with a fork or bring [Parent 1's] machete to hit [them]." An in-school suspension was noted.
2. A communication log included the following relevant communications, with all email and text message entries including screenshots of the communications:
    a. February 6, 2025, contact was by phone, informing Parent 1 about a threat the Student made toward a peer at lunch that they would "stab [the other student] with a fork or [Parent 1] had a machete [sic] and [the Student] would bring it to school and use it."
    b. February 6, 2025, contact was in person, Parent 1 came to the School to discuss the threat, and the SLP noted Parent 1 told the Student they "could not keep protecting [them], and that [the Student] could not make comments like this."
    c. May 17, 2025, contact was by email, the SLP notified Parent 1 they would be nominating the Student for the positive behavior assembly.
3. September 5, 2025, there were two entries in an office visit log, both by the Social Worker. One entry described the Student being upset "because another student was continually saying that things around [them] 'didn't exist.'" The second entry noted the Social Worker pulling the Student and another student in "to discuss the disagreement and come to a resolution."
4. A communication log included the following relevant communications, with all email and text message log entries including screenshots of the communications:

a. September 5, 2025, contact was by email, proposing to "waive" the Student's re-evaluation (due October 27, 2025) until spring "to better accommodate [the Student] getting acclimated to the school year and [Parent 1's] comfort level of making decisions so early in the school year." Parent 1 responded, "That is a good idea." The SLP replied they would get the waiver to Parent 1 for a signature.
b. September 8, 2025, contact was by email, updated Parent 1 on "waiting on re-evaluation and requesting an IEP date." The email noted the IEP meeting still needed to happen and the SLP proposed dates. It was noted there was no response to the SLPs email. October 13, 2025 the SLP emailed a time proposal and noted "no response" in the log.
c. September 16, 2025, contact was by email, the SLP emailed Parent 1 a parent input form for the IEP meeting, and noted "no response" in the log.
d. September 18, 2025, contact was an observation by the SLP who noted the Student was engaged with peers at their lunch table and was "taking turns talking and eating lunch the entire time."
e. September 18, 2025, contact was a text message to Parent 1 asking which middle school they were considering for seventh grade. Parent 1 "indicated that [they] wanted to have a discussion about this and that [the Student] was not happy at school and was having anxiety/struggles. [Parent 1] said [the Student] wanted to transfer." The SLP texted in response offering to "talk about that anytime," including at drop off or pick up. The SLP also explained why they were asking which was, "so that I could start talking with the receiving school and start planning."
f. September 23, 2025, contact was in person with a Parent/Teacher conference. It was noted the SLP provided Parent 1 with a draft copy of the October 8, 2025 IEP, Parent 1 asked about middle schools, Parent 1 discussed the Student "having an issue with another [the Gifted Classroom] student on their recent field trip and asked that [they] not be grouped with this student," the Gifted Classroom Teacher indicated this was already happening, and the SLP asked about putting the Student "back in the 6th grade social skills group. [Parent 1] was apprehensive … but [they] suggested we try it to see how [the Student] does, and then make a decision" at the IEP meeting to "dismiss or add direct service back on."
g. On September 25, 2025, contact was not listed, but it was noted, "added [the Student] back into the 6th grade social skills group."

5. An October 8, 2025 Prior Written Notice (PWN) proposed a material change in services resulting in an increase in services, specifically speech-language therapy (SLT).
    a. The explanation of why this action was proposed stated, "to address [the Student's] pragmatic language delay, specifically in cooperative group skills and ability to read social situations."

b. Options considered were terminating services, but this was rejected due to the Student's "history of social emotional needs and recent incidences of misreading social situations."

c. Data used included IEP progress, SLP data and observations in multiple settings/situations, parent input, teacher input, a review of records, a student interview, grades, assessment scores, and the Northwest Evaluation Association Measures of Academic Progress (NWEA MAP).

d. The consent was signed on October 8, 2025 by a "Parent/Legal Education Decision Maker."

6. The Student's October 8, 2025 IEP listed a primary exceptionality of "[Autism] AM [sic]" and included the following relevant information:

   a. The Student is very funny, has a creative mind, and enjoys being able to discuss their ideas with others.

   b. Parent input included concerns for "the balance of [the Student's] desire to 'fit in' and [their] ability to discern intent from peers." Parent 1 expressed they were worried about the Student "not always understanding social situations and still missing cues."

   c. Consideration of Special Factors

      i. Health and Medical information included documentation of a diagnosis of ASD and ADHD.

      ii. "No" was selected next to the question "Does this student have behavior which impedes his/her learning or the learning of others?"

      iii. "Yes" was selected next to the question "Does this student have communication needs that impede his/her learning?"

   d. Present Level of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance

      i. The Functional Performance section noted the Student "seemed unaware" of their environment, unaware of space around them, and "when [the Student] does not have [their] meds, [they] function at a very low level."

      ii. Under communication with peers, it was noted the Student "sometimes finds collaboration with peers challenging, as [the Student] is continuing to develop [their] communication skills. [The Student's] peers do not always understand how [the Student] expresses [their] ideas."

      iii. Under supporting others in the group, the Student was measured by the number of prompts needed to do each skill with a "1" meaning "unable to demonstrate," a "2" meaning "demonstrates with multiple prompts," a "3" meaning "demonstrates with one initial prompt," and a "4" meaning "demonstrates independently." On the date of the IEP, the Student averaged the following scores:

         1. A "3" for "matching [their] behavior to situations";

2. A "3.5" for "demonstrating flexible thinking";
3. A "2.5" for "collaboratively making decisions with peers";
4. A "2.5" for "appropriately advocating needs with peers";
5. A "2.75" for "handling disappointment"; and
6. A "2.75" for "supporting others in the group."

iv. Comments noted the Student made "great progress" the previous IEP year in their "ability to process conflict and situations that arose in general education." There was one "major incident" noted for the previous school year where the Student's "emotions overwhelmed [them] and [they were] not able to appropriately express [their] frustration with peers." It was also noted the Student had "one minor conflict" in the 2025-26 school year where the Student's "frustration with a peer who was provoking [them], overwhelmed [them]. [The Student] was, however, able to eventually share this frustration appropriately with [their] classroom teacher, but still required a 'reset break' in the speech room." It was noted the incident in 2024-25 resulted in a half day of in-school suspension (ISS) and the incident in 2025-26 was "a moment of frustration where [the Student] shut down, cried, and was very sad." Parent 1 shared they had observed "several situations" over the summer where the Student was not able to discern when their peers were being "good friends" and when they were "encouraging [the Student] to make bad choices for their entertainment."

v. The impact of exceptionality on the Student's performance in general education was noted as "[t]he ability to read social situations and work cooperatively with peers, impact [the Student's] ability to demonstrate knowledge, gain and maintain peer interactions[,] and participate in the general education setting."

e. The Student required Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) for "communication," and their annual goal was "By the end of the IEP year, [the Student] will demonstrate ability to work cooperatively in small groups by matching [their] behavior/communication to the situation, demonstrating flexible thinking, cooperatively making a group decision, advocating desires appropriately, handling disappointment[,] and supporting others in the group with an average rating of 3 on a rubric scale of: 1-unable to demonstrate 2-demonstrates with multiple prompts 3-demonstrates with 1 initial prompt and 4-demonstrates independently."

f. The Student required SDI for "executive functioning," and their annual goal was "By October 7, 2026, [the Student] will use a written or visual checklist to plan, organize, and complete all steps of a quarterly passion project (creative), completing at least 80% of checklist steps by assigned deadlines and achieving a score of 3 or higher on a 4-point creativity and planning rubric, in 3 out of 4 project cycles, with adult support as needed."

g. Special Education and Related Services to be provided were all direct services in a special education classroom as follows:
    i. October 8, 2025 through May 22, 2026, the "Gifted Facilitator" was to provide "gifted education services" for 330 minutes, one time per week, and the SLP was to provide SLT, 30 minutes two times per week.
    ii. August 12, 2026 through October 7, 2026, the "Gifted Facilitator" was to provide "gifted education services" for 45 minutes, five times per week, and the SLP was to provide SLT, 30 minutes two times per week.
h. The description of SDI and related services noted the Student would receive instruction in project planning and project management "in order to extend [the Student's] ability to complete creative projects that align with [their] interests" and the SL services were to address "social language in the area of cooperative groups to work on matching [the Student's] behavior to situations, demonstrate flexible thinking, cooperatively making decisions with peers, appropriately advocating [their] needs, [and] handling disappointment and supporting others in the group."
i. The Educational Placement noted the Student's "strength in all academic areas" and their subsequent placement in the Gifted Classroom for one day each week in sixth grade and then as an elective once per day in seventh grade. Removal from general education to receive instruction in social language was listed at two times per week for 30 minutes and was "considered the least restrictive environment [LRE] at this time."
j. The Accommodations/Modifications/Supplementary Aids and Services page included postponing testing when the Student was not regulated in the general education setting for the duration of the test and "access to breaks or [the Student's] SLP when [they are] not regulated," with breaks in the SL room for "the length of time [the Student] is not regulated."
k. Both Parents were listed under IEP Team Members who attended the meeting.

7. October 10, 2025, contact was by email, and it was noted the SLP emailed the IEP packet to Parent 1 and "confirmed that we should set up a meeting in January to plan for [the Student's] re-evaluation and assess what [they] might need for 7th grade." A screenshot of the email was included.
8. A communication log included the following relevant communications, with all email and text message log entries including screenshots of the communications:
    a. November 9, 2025, contact was a text message in response to Parent 1 calling the SLP, and noted they told Parent 1 they would "welcome anything" they wanted to send in and told them the Student was doing "good" coming to speech.
    b. November 11 or 12, 2025, contact was by phone as a response to Parent 1 emailing the SLP and the Principal with a concern about the Student (email screenshot was not included in the log). It was noted the Student said, "'what do

I do if I want to kill myself,' then said that two students asked [the Student] at recess if they were on [the Student's] 'kill list.'" The noted response was telling Parent 1 they would investigate.

c. Email screenshots starting November 14, 2025 included:

i. The SLP emailed Parent 1 and reported the other students "acknowledged they said it," there was teaching about handling peer conflict in a respectful way, and the students shared the context "that at times, when [the Student] becomes upset with peers, [they have] cursed at them and told them that [they] wish [they] could kill them. … They also shared that some of [the Student's] play themes during recess have involved violent or 'murder-style' games, which has contributed to their discomfort." The SLP noted their goal was to provide a "full picture" of what was happening so the team could "work together to support [the Student]."

ii. Parent 1 replied the same day they were unaware of the Student's behavior and noted they had discussed more attention being paid to the Student "at recess and unstructured time," and inquired as to how this had gone "undetected when we just weeks ago had a meeting where we spoke about paying more attention to these exact kids during recess and specifically to what was being said"? Parent 1 requested a meeting.

iii. The SLP replied on the same day they would find out more information about recess, do some observations, and talk with the Principal about getting a meeting scheduled.

iv. After a few scheduling replies, Parent 1 replied the same day, noting they were talking with the Student and they "swore that [they have] not said those things or play[ed] that way this year at all." Parent 1 noted the Student said they played that way one or two years ago, and they believe the Student. They added in another email, "From what I can see, I do not think this situation was handled well at all."

9. In a November 17, 2025 email to the Principal, Parent 1 requested they "address the harassing educational environment" the Student had endured. Parent 1 also stated, "I will need to be present when you or your school faculty want to speak to [the Student] about anything other than [their] academic work from now on." The Principal replied and asked for more specifics. Parent 1 replied and stated they could discuss it at the meeting scheduled for the next day.
10. A communication log included the following relevant communications, with all email and text message log entries including screenshots of the communications:

a. November 17, 2025, the contact was via email, Parent 1 asked who would attend the meeting. The SLP sent the list of team members, Parent 1 asked about the Gifted Case Manager, and the SLP responded they were "just officially hired."

b. November 18, 2025, there was an in-person meeting with the SLP, the Principal, the Gifted Case Manager, the Social Worker, the Teacher, and Parent 1 to "discuss the recess issue." It was noted in the log the team "listened to [Parent 1's] concerns," the Teacher indicated the Student was playing with a different group of students, the SLP provided options fo the Student if they feel uncomfortable or have a conflict, and the SLP suggested the three students not play together for awhile. Parent 1 wanted to know what happened to the other students and the Social Worker described it, Parent 1 "felt the [other students] needed to apologize to [the Student]," and the team "clarified that [the Student] was not playing a pretend killing game, [they] had brought an unauthorized game to school and was playing it on the playground."

c. November 20, 2025, the SLP added recess to their schedule to observe the Student and also added the intervention of staff keeping that particular group of students apart at recess.

d. December 12, 2025 at 1:25 p.m., the contact was a text message. The SLP reached out after Parent 1 was not responding to phone calls from the School and texted, "Can you call the school when you get a chance? I know [the Principal] called you to tell you [the Student] left the building at lunch, but we have [them] and [they are] safe."

11. A screenshot of December 9, 2025 progress notes from a medical doctor at a behavioral health center contained an update indicating the Student was "very anxious, frustrated, and sad about persistent bullying at school. [Parent 1] says there's a group of kids who have socially excluded [the Student]." They gave a description of Parent 1's frustration with the School, the possibility of a change in schedule, and the benefit of the current medication. "When asked[,] [the Student] endorses passive suicidal thoughts but denies intent or plan."
12. A December 12, 2025 screenshot of a voicemail indicated the voicemail was left at 12:57 p.m., and a transcript on the screenshot read "[Parent 1], it's [the Principal] … at school and that that [sic] we know that [they are] safe thank you." An undated voicemail received by Parent 1 from the Principal said, "[Parent 1], it's [the Principal] at school and we have a feeling that [the Student] may have exited the building to walk home. [They were] down at lunch eating fine, I guess [the Student] asked one of the Para[educator]'s to go take [their] meds. … We did a building search, and we're outside now searching as well. Give me a call back to let me know you got this. Or if [the Student] shows up so that we know [they are] safe. Thank you."
13. A December 12, 2025 screenshot of a voicemail indicated the voicemail was left at 12:58 p.m., and a transcript on the screenshot read, "[Parent 1, Parent 1], it's [the Principal] again [sic] that [they] did walk towards [the Other Elementary]. They do have [them] and [they're] on [their] way back to school. Wanted to let you know [they are] safe thank you." An undated voicemail received by Parent 1 from the Principal said, "Hang on a minute. They've got [them]. [Parent 1], it's [the Principal] again. [The Student] did walk towards [the Other Elementary], they do have [them], and [they're] on [their] way back to school. Wanted to let you know [they are] safe. Thank you."

14. A December 12, 2025 screenshot of a phone call from the School to Parent 1 indicates an incoming call at 1:28 p.m.
15. In December 18 and 19, 2025 emails to Parent 1, the administration at the Other Elementary School noted they did not complete an incident report in regard to the Student eloping on December 12, 2025, but they did contact Police.
16. A December 18, 2025 communication from the District Resource Officer noted that on December 12, 2025, the Other Elementary school contacted dispatch at 12:47 p.m., they arrived at 12:50 p.m., and had the Student back to the School at 1:16 p.m. They noted the Student was "found safe" at the Other Elementary School at 12:55 p.m.
17. In a December 19, 2025 email to the Principal, Parent 1 requested a copy of the incident report for "when [the Student] went missing last Friday." They also requested the Principal provide information gained "from the students sitting with [the Student] at the lunch table regarding what happened, what was said."

    On December 23, 2025, Parent 1 replied to the email chain and expressed their disappointment the Principal had not responded. They outlined questions they believed the Principal should have investigated, including when, where, and why the Student left the building, and what happened while the Student was "gone." They again asked for "answers surrounding [the Student's] disappearance and the persistent bullying situation that continues to plague your school."
18. In a December 29, 2025 email to the Director, with the Associate Superintendent and the Principal copied, Parent 1 indicated they were "at an impasse" with the Principal and were "told straight lies" by the Principal regarding the Student eloping and reports of bullying. Parent 1 described the November 11th, 2025 incident regarding suicidal thoughts and a "kill list," and noted Parent 2 "witnessed these and other boys teasing [the Student] and trying to talk [the Student] into jumping on cars and other bad acts at the family carnival at the beginning of the year." Parent 1 believed their concerns were "dismissed by staff," and they were "quite shocked at the lack of concern for a child that had expressed suicidal feelings." Parent 1 described the eloping incident on December 12, 2025. "[The Student] was being teased again at lunch. [They] became overwhelmed with anxiety while being teased and left the building. [They] made it to 79th street. Cold and crying, [the Student] was talked into going into [another elementary school in the LEA] by the receptionist[,] [who] had been notified that a distraught coatless child was on the sidewalk outside their school. I'm unclear on the exact details, but it seems that [the School] was then notified that [the Other Elementary School] had [the Student] and they sent someone to retrieve [the Student]." Parent 1 claimed neither they nor Parent 2 were notified of the Student's "disappearance" until after they were located.
19. In a January 6, 2026, 9:12 a.m. email to Parent 1, the Director thanked them for talking with them the previous day, offered support, and provided instructions on where to find "the incident" in the SIS. Parent 1 replied the same day at 9:41 a.m. and stated they did not have the right tab to view in the SIS and contended the entry regarding the incident was "incredibly lacking" and "shockingly sparse." They indicated they wanted to know the time the Student left the building, when staff called police, when the Principal "claims to have contacted parents," when the Student arrived at the Other Elementary School, when the School staff knew the Student was at the other school, when the Student was back at the School, why the Student left, and information about witness statements.

The Director replied at 3:00 p.m. and offered a meeting with them and the Principal to "answer any specific questions you still have regarding the incident of [the Student] leaving school property." Parent 1 replied at 3:15 p.m. and asked for the requested information and would meet to discuss what happened, but would not "tolerate further lies" from the Principal. They also noted the Student "has autism and left school because [they] had a panic attack due to the anxiety [they] experienced while being bullied at lunch. A lunch [the Principal] was supervising after multiple discussions with [them] about [the Student] being bullied."

20. In a January 6, 2026 entry on a communication log with screenshots included, Parent 1 emailed School staff (at 2:00 p.m.) and noted the School could not provide the Student with a "fair and appropriate education" and they had disregarded the Student's disability and emotional state to the point of "detriment and harm." They added the School had refused to address bullying, School staff had "repeatedly lied" about bullying, the LEA covered up facts to "deny parents access," the Principal lied about the circumstances surrounding the Student eloping, the Principal had not responded to Parent 1's requests, and "until this violation of [the Student's] rights can be resolved" the Student needed academic materials sent home. It was noted School staff were instructed not to respond.
21. In a January 7, 2026 email to the Principal, Parent 1 stated they believed the Principal was directing an employee to mark the Student's absences as unexcused. They claimed this was "incorrect" and noted the Student "has expressed suicidal thoughts due to bullying," which "resulted in a panic attack that caused [the Student] to exit the building." They added the Student "can't attend school due to mental health reasons, which is an excusable absence" and requested the attendance be corrected.
22. In a January 13, 2025 email to the Superintendent, the Associate Superintendent, and the Director, Parent 1 outlined the December 12, 2025 eloping incident and noted the SLP and a "district police officer" picked the Student up from the Other Elementary School and "at no point during [the Other Elementary's] custody of my child did [the] faculty contact me. It also appears I was not contacted by [the School] until [the Student] was found to be at the [Other Elementary School]." They included a screenshot of the incident entry for December 12, 2025, which was made by the Principal, and indicated "Instead of going to the nurse from the lunchroom, the [S]tudent left the building through the north hallway door. [They] eloped and walked towards home down 71st street. [They were] brought back to school." Parent 1 noted they had requested documentation multiple times from the Principal and the Director and had not received responses. They also reported they had a meeting on January 9, 2026 to discuss the December 12, 2025 incident; they asked for documentation and were referred to the "erroneous discipline entry." The Superintendent replied the next day they had "full faith" in the Principal and the Director, encouraged Parent 1 to continue working with them, and provided a way to escalate concerns.

23. On January 14, 2026, Parent 2 made a public records request to be sent to them and Parent 1. Requested records included email communication, voice message communication, text message communication, and video footage from the security camera at the School on December 12, 2025. Through a series of emails, the LEA verified the identity of Parent 2 and provided an estimate of $1300.00 or more, "depending on the volume of emails generated in the search." Parent 1 agreed to pay the fees.
24. In a January 16, 2026 letter to both of the Parents, the School Psychologist informed them the Student had not attended school at the LEA since December 14, 2025 and noted "[The LEA] stands ready, willing, and able to determine eligibility and/or provide special education services to [the Student]. If at some future date you want to reconsider the action outlined in the accompanying PWN, contact the Special Education Department.
25. A January 16, 2026 PWN noted the Student's IEP services, the Student's absence from school since December 14, 2025, and proposed to inform both of the Parents the LEA was "ready, willing, and able" to serve the Student and provide them with special education services "should [the Student] return to [the School]."
    a. The explanation of why this action was proposed indicated the Student had not reported to school since December 14, 2025.
    b. Options considered were not offering services, but that was rejected due to the lawful requirement the Student have access to special education services.
    c. Data used included attendance records and the October 8, 2025 IEP.
    d. Consent was not signed, but the delivery page indicated the School Psychologist mailed the PWN to both of the Parents on January 16, 2026.
26. A communication log included the following relevant communications, with all email and text message entries including screenshots of the communications:
    a. January 20, 2026, the contact was an email from Parent 1 requesting the Student's "education materials be sent home so that [the Student] can maintain educational access while our dispute with [the LEA] is working its way through the system." It was noted School staff were instructed not to respond.
    b. January 21, 2026 and January 22, 2026 there were two separate emails to the SLP, from Parent 1, "requesting records again." The SLP was instructed not to respond.
27. In a January 21, 2026 email to the Principal, Parent 1 requested "all the records" for the Student. They listed the Student's "physical paper file" and digital files that were not part of their Student Information System (SIS). They also stated they were "still waiting to hear back about a time I can view the security footage from when [the Student] eloped on [December 12, 2025]." On January 22, 2026, Parent 1 replied and requested the Principal, "Please respond."

28. In a January 21, 2026 email responding to Parent 1's January 20, 2026 request for education materials, the Principal reminded Parent 1 of the attendance guidelines they discussed at an in-person meeting on January 7, 2026 and provided a link to the family/student handbook. The Principal stated, "The current absence reason for [the Student] missing school does not qualify as an excused absence. Therefore, we will not be sending work home." They noted they were "ready and willing to continue collaborating" with Parent 1.

    Parent 1 replied the same day and indicated the LEA was "well aware" the Student was not at school due to "real safety concerns." They stated, "You and the LEA's continued obstruction of our collecting of records and your refusal to give [the Student] access to [their] educational material can only be seen as a retaliatory response to parent advocacy."

Parent 1 Interview

29. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Parent 1 explained the IEP they received from the SLP and the one provided by the School had different meeting dates, and overall appeared "different." They were concerned the IEP was missing items they discussed with the IEP team during meetings. Parent 1 described a time when they asked to know about, and have it documented, any and every time the Student was removed from the classroom, but did not see it in the IEP.
30. When asked about the Social Worker's notes from 2023, Parent 1 stated a student had commented the Student's brain was "cursed," and Parent 1 indicated they were never made aware of those comments. Parent 1 explained this incident made them seek additional help for the Student's mental state through their IEP, but the IEP team told them SLT "was the only thing that there was." Parent 1 explained they asked for all of the Social Worker's notes and records regarding the Student in 2023 and 2026 because the Student made comments about wanting to kill themselves.
31. Parent 1 shared they met with School staff on November 11, 2025 to discuss the Student being bullied, and the solution they were given was for the Student to have an alternative recess inside by themself. Parent 1 did not perceive this as a good solution. Parent 1 explained during the meeting the Principal indicated they would handle the situation, but Parent 1 perceived they never did.
32. Parent 1 stated they did not receive any details about the Student's elopement on December 12, 2025 until they met with the Director and the Principal. Parent 1 indicated the Principal noticed the Student was missing around 12:36 p.m., but stated the Principal told them they did not view security footage to see when the Student left.

33. Parent 1 stated they spoke with the Student when they arrived at the School on December 12, 2025. They explained the Student was sorry about leaving. Parent 1 stated the Student explained they left because someone had shared a secret about their "crush" with other students in the lunchroom and the Student was called "gross and disgusting." They indicated the Student felt embarrassed, walked out the door, and started walking home. Parent 1 stated they received conflicting information from the Principal about how the Student had eloped from the School.
34. During a meeting on December 12, 2025 with the Director and the Principal, Parent 1 explained they shared with the Principal the Student had left because they were being made fun of again. Parent 1 indicated there had already been a meeting the month before about other students teasing the Student. Parent 1 stated the Principal said the Student never said anything about being teased. Parent 1 perceived this comment as the Principal trying to "claim ignorance" about the Student being teased. Parent 1 stated they asked the Principal and the SLP what was being done about the Student being bullied on the playground. Parent 1 shared the response was staff could not monitor everything, and when staff was monitoring, then the other students would not engage in the behavior because they were being watched. Parent 1 indicated they were then told the School did not have enough people to use as monitors. Parent 1 shared they discussed with the Principal and the SLP about trying to solve the issue of other students teasing the Student during unstructured times, but perceived the SLP and Principal seemed "oblivious" to it.
35. Parent 1 stated they met with the Director and the Principal on January 9, 2026 to discuss the incident on December 12, 2025. Parent 1 indicated they wanted to obtain an incident report, but were told one did not exist because only a disciplinary report was filed. During the meeting, Parent 1 stated the Director suggested they hold an IEP meeting. Parent 1 expressed concern because IEP meetings had been held before but there was no follow through. They stated no plan was created at the meeting.

    Parent 1 stated they also asked about homebound services during the meeting because they were concerned about the Student's mental health. Parent 1 indicated the Director told them those services were for "kids with cancer" and asked Parent 1 if the Student was going to the doctor "every single day" because that was "… the kind of thing we'd need to have to have homebound services." Parent 1 shared the Principal sent them the application for homebound services, but they did not apply because the Director had told them the Student would not qualify for it.
36. Parent 1 confirmed the Student had been removed from instruction due to disciplinary reasons. Parent 1 stated there had been times the Student was removed and kept out of school as a result of an in-school suspension. Parent 1 indicated the School had not told them the Student was out of school all day until after it happened. Parent 1 described another incident where the Student had a half-day in-school suspension for their interaction with another student, but explained the other student also teased the Student. Parent 1 said, "… [the Student] [is] being teased and provoked into behaviors and the kids who are provoking [them] have no consequences for teasing [them]."

37. Parent 1 confirmed the Student had been removed from instruction as a safety measure due to being bullied. Parent 1 explained there had been issues at recess with the other students changing the rules of a game to get the Student upset, which resulted in the Student having an outburst. They shared the solution was that staff would remove the Student from recess. Parent 1 stated the Student had never been removed from a situation for bullying.
38. Parent 1 stated they requested multiple times from teachers and the Principal to send the Student's schoolwork home when they were not in school. Parent 1 stated the School refused and did not respond to their emails. Parent 1 explained the Principal told them they could not send the Student's schoolwork because it was an unexcused absence. Parent 1 recalled they requested the Student's schoolwork around December 14, 2025. Parent 1 stated the School sent one day's worth of schoolwork to them.
39. Parent 1 reported the Student had not returned to school since the incident on December 12, 2025.
40. Parent 1 stated the School removed the Student from the LEA and unenrolled the Student without any notice. The Parent explained they received an email from the School receptionist stating the Student was no longer enrolled due to their attendance.
41. Parent 1 explained they were currently "doing whatever [they] can at home" to educate the Student, including reading, vocabulary words, and math worksheets. Parent 1 perceived the Student was behind in their work.
42. On January 9, 2026, Parent 1 met with the Director and the Principal. Relevant information from the meeting included:
    a. The Director stated the purpose of the meeting was to answer questions and create a plan.
    b. Parent 1 described the Student's account of the lunchroom incident which preceded their elopement on December 12, 2025. They explained the Student stated they had been emotional because they were teased by other students. Parent 1 indicated there was usually a plan for the Student to go to the SLP's room, but the Student felt this situation was different and they had to get out.
    c. Parent 1 stated the purpose of their meeting with the School in November 2025 was due to their concerns about the Student's suicidal thoughts and the School's response to the Student being bullied and teased.
    d. Parent 1 asked what happened after they shared with the Principal that other students had made fun of the Student prior to their elopement. The Director indicated they could not share information about other students with Parent 1.
        i. The Principal replied they had spoken to one student who stated there was laughing and the Student left quickly. The Principal stated they did not ask what the laughing was about, but the Social Worker did. The Principal stated the part about students calling the Student "gross" and "disgusting" was not shared with them.

ii. The Principal said, "… when … [the Student] was sitting in the office with me and [the SLP] and SRO asking, 'Hey … what happened?' And all [the Student] shared was [sic] with me is [the other students] were laughing and [the Student] couldn't handle it. [The Student] was embarrassed and left. [The Student] didn't share any comments made by anybody."

iii. Parent 1 asked the Principal if they determined the incident preceding the Student's December 12, 2025 elopement was bullying, and the Principal stated the response they received was "there was a lot of laughing."

e. Parent 1 stated the issues about bullying and teasing had come up in every meeting they had had during the current school year. Parent 1 questioned the School monitoring the playground and stating everything was normal, because the Student came home and had suicidal ideations.

i. The Principal stated they had increased the number of adults on the playground to monitor the Student and ensure they were separated from other "problem" students. Parent 1 perceived the SLP only monitored the students for a few minutes.

f. Parent 1 indicated some of the students who had participated in the lunchroom incident on December 12, 2025 had made fun of the Student before.

g. Parent 1 said, "… when [the Student] [is] at school and doing these things, I think it's a very important thing to acknowledge so we can have an appropriate IEP … and make sure that [the Student] [is] getting the social emotional learning support that [they] need and I don't feel that that is happening."

i. The Director acknowledged Parent 1's concern and asked if they wanted to schedule an IEP meeting. Parent 1 replied, "Perhaps[.]"

ii. Parent 1 reiterated their concern the IEP was not meeting the Student's needs and the Director again suggested meeting with the IEP team. Parent 1 perceived the Social Worker was not "effective" in helping the Student.

h. Regarding an IEP meeting, Parent 1 said, "… we could come up with a new IEP and all of that, you can promise the world if you never intend on delivering it. … even when we do draw up an IEP, it's not delivered."

i. Parent 1 said, "… [the Student's] psychological state is degrading day by day … [the Student] [is] having panic attacks and … wants to kill [themself]." The Director indicated they would want to put a plan in place since the Student had eloped and had suicidal ideations. The Director indicated they should hold an IEP meeting to address Parent 1's concerns.

j. Parent 1 asked if there were remote learning options available for the Student, and the Director stated the LEA did not have one, but the State did. The Director explained homebound services existed if a physician could sign a document stating the Student was physically unable to attend school, and that was one way the Student could get services. The Director offered to send Parent 1 the forms so they could review the criteria for homebound services. The Director described an example of a student who had cancer utilizing homebound services because they physically could not attend school and had a doctor document it.

k. Parent 1 shared concerns the Student was being marked as having unexcused absences. The Director explained the School had six reasons they could excuse an absence, but did not have a sufficient reason to do so for the Student. Parent 1 indicated there was not a plan in place and the Director stated they were offering to create one.

Principal Interview

43. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Principal indicated on December 12, 2025, they and a paraprofessional were monitoring the sixth grade lunchtime. They explained the Student usually cleared their food tray and went to the nurse for their medication. The Principal noticed the Student's tray was still on the table around 12:40 p.m., when lunch ended. The Principal radioed the nurse and the SLP, and neither had seen the Student. The Principal indicated the Student had never eloped before. They explained the SLP told them that morning, the Student stated they had a secret and it might have been related to going to the other elementary school after winter break. The Principal had their secretary call Inter-Office Safety (OIC) to alert them the Student was missing. They described the OIC as similar to a police department with the LEA.

    The Principal stated they left a voicemail for Parent 1 indicating they could not locate the Student and did not know if they had left the building. They stated OIC reviewed the School's cameras and the SLP drove with an officer from the LEA, and within about five minutes, the Other Elementary School called and stated the Student was on the premises. The Principal left another voicemail for Parent 1 stating they had the Student and the SLP was bringing them back to the School. They indicated Parent 1 called back and stated they were coming to the School. The Principal believed 10-15 minutes passed from the time they realized they could not find the Student to when they called Parent 1 and Parent 2.

    The Principal explained the Student came into their office with the SLP, and the Principal asked why they had left. The Student shared that another student had told their secret during lunch and they "couldn't take that," so they left. The Principal stated the Student did not want to talk about the secret, and the Principal did not want to push them. They indicated Parent 1 and Parent 2 spoke to the Student alone when they arrived. The Principal shared Parent 1 told them the Student had said the other students made negative comments about the Student, but the Principal was unaware of that. The Principal stated this was their last interaction with the Student.

44. The Principal indicated they did not view the camera footage. They did not recall when Parent 1 had requested the footage, but knew when they did, it was no longer available.
45. The Principal stated they completed an incident report about the Student's elopement and it was sent to Parent 1.
46. The Principal indicated they learned on December 12, 2025 that another student had shared the Student's secret during lunch. They explained the other students at the table described there was some "laughing," but they did not know what was happening with the Student. The Principal stated they were unable to interview the Student about what happened during lunch because they did not return to the School the next day, or since.
47. According to the Principal, the typical protocol for when a student goes missing was to search the building, call OIC if a student were to leave the building, and contact the parents. The Principal indicated they documented the December 12, 2025 incident through an incident report and in the School's SIS.
48. The Principal confirmed they attended a meeting with the Director and Parent 1 on January 9, 2026. They explained Parent 1 asked about the timeline of the December 12, 2025 incident, discussed events going back to November 2025, and wanted to know how the School was handling situations between the Student and other students. They recalled the Director offered to schedule an IEP meeting, explained how homebound services worked, and what the School's policy considered an excused absence. The Principal perceived they could not get a straight answer from Parent 1 on what they wanted from the meeting.
49. The Principal described an incident from February 2025 where the Student made a comment about killing another student, and an incident in November 2025 when the Student snuck in a game device with a "killing" game on it, which the teacher caught. The Principal believed the School had done well in watching and monitoring the Student, and they generally observed the Student to be "playing" and "doing well."
50. The Principal indicated it was never the same student bothering the Student, and it was "different people all the time." They indicated Parent 1 had expressed concerns about recess, so the Principal instructed the teachers to watch for any issues. They recalled the SLP also observed the Student during recess. The Principal explained the School staff talked to the students about kindness and there was a new social emotional curriculum, which helped students learn about what was appropriate to say.
51. When asked if the Student had been removed from instruction, recess, lunch, or school for disciplinary reasons, the Principal explained the Student had the option to go to the SLP's room, but they were never removed. They stated the Student had never been removed from instruction, recess, lunch, or school as a safety measure due to their perception of being bullied.

52. After the Student left school, the Principal indicated the IEP team sent the "ready, willing and able" paperwork to indicate the School was ready to provide those services. They said, "… providing materials, that is not something we do, but the IEP things we definitely could." The Principal explained the materials for students could be picked up if a student was out sick for a few days. The Principal stated the Student's situation did not meet the requirements for an excused absence because the Student was not sick, they were just not coming in. The Principal believed Parent 1 kept the Student out of school because they were unsure the Student would be safe. The Principal believed the School offered to meet and do what they could, but perceived Parent 1 did not provide an answer back to the School.

SLP Interview

53. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the SLP indicated they worked with the Student on pragmatic language. They explained the Student was doing well during the 2024-25 school year, so the IEP was adjusted to reduce the amount of time for those services. They stated for the start of the 2025-26 school year, the Student attended a social skills group once per quarter to work on cooperative group skills. The SLP stated it was difficult for the Student to discern social situations and understand other people's perspectives. The SLP explained there was a discussion with Parent 1 and Parent 2 about changing the Student's services after the Student had a negative experience during a school function.
54. The SLP stated Parent 1 was concerned about recess. The SLP explained every time they observed the Student during recess, the Student appeared to be laughing and interacting with their peers, and did not appear unhappy or upset. The SLP stated they were looking for possible areas to target, such as if the Student was missing cues during social exchanges. The SLP did not see the Student showing any deficiencies when they observed them, and perceived the Student was progressing in their peer interactions.
55. Regarding the December 12, 2025 incident, the SLP heard on the walkie-talkie the Student had not been found yet, so they started searching places they knew the Student frequented. The SLP described the Student speaking with them that morning during their one-on-one session, and the Student said they were happy and excited. The Student said they had a secret, which was they would be attending the Other Elementary School after winter break.
56. When the Student was missing, the SLP stated they asked the Secretary to view the footage from the front cameras, and that was how it was determined the Student walked out the front door. The SLP stated the distance between the School and the Other Elementary School was 0.9 miles.
57. The SLP explained they and the School Resource Officer (SRO) started driving toward the Other Elementary School, and once they learned where the Student was, drove there to pick them up.

58. The SLP described the Student as an "emotional" student in the past. They described when they picked up the Student from the Other Elementary School, they were playing with toys and appeared "matter of fact." They stated the Student said, "I couldn't take it anymore" when asked why they left. When the SLP asked again why the Student left, the Student described a friend telling their secret to other students who laughed about it. They indicated the Student never said anyone called them names.
59. The SLP perceived the Student had a history of struggling with maintaining peer relationships. They explained the Student could feel overwhelmed if they expected too much of a friend and the friend did not meet those expectations. They said, "... I think if ... the friend [doesn't] ... act in a way that ... [the Student] [is] expecting them to act, then [the Student] feels like it's injustice towards [them] ... ." The SLP was unaware of any incidents of the Student being physically harmed or taken out of lunch, recess, or anywhere else based on their behavior.
60. The SLP said, "... there's a fine line between [the Student] communicating to parents that [they] [are] being bullied and having the discernment of what's really happening with the lack of ... maintaining peer interactions. ... I think [the Student] has decided because that friend doesn't want to be a friend, [they] [don't] want to go to the school anymore. And [the Student] [has] told me that several times since we started talking again. ... I can't say for certain ... any kids not getting bullied, but that's not what I've observed. The times that I've been in, the times that I've investigated, the times I've talked to other kids, that's not the feeling I get."
61. The SLP stated the Student had not requested to take breaks with them or others recently.
62. As a response to Parent 1's concerns about bullying, the SLP observed the Student at recess and placed the Student in a social skills group. The SLP explained the plan had been to end the Student's speech services because they had met their goal, but because of Parent 1's concerns, they added speech and language services for the Student two times a week for 30 minutes.
63. According to the SLP, when the Student was not attending school, the LEA sent a "ready, willing, and able" letter so the Parents knew whenever the Student returned, the LEA was ready to provide services.
64. The SLP stated they did not speak with Parent 1 about the Student's education during their absences since December 12, 2025.
65. The SLP was aware of a directive to not respond regarding Parent 1, but believed it was related to a request for documentation and not a request for services. The SLP perceived the administration building staff were processing Parent 1's request for documentation.

Social Worker Interview

66. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Social Worker explained they worked with the general and special education students on social emotional skills, crisis management, family resources, and limiting barriers to education. The Social Worker indicated they met with the Student once during the 2025-26 school year, in September 2025. They explained the Student had been upset because a peer was saying the things around them were not real. The Social Worker stated they spoke with both students, facilitated peer mediation, and at the time, both students accepted each other's apologies and left on good terms.

67. The Social Worker stated prior to the current school year, they worked with the Student on peer interaction skills, and had met with the Student weekly during the third grade due to their struggles in the Gifted Classroom. The Social Worker clarified they did not offer any IEP services, but their role was to help the Student adjust to the Gifted Classroom and help them manage what was bothering them at the time.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, developed an IEP that met the Student's needs related to being bullied. K.A.R. 91-40-18; 34 CFR §300.320.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-18 and 34 CFR §300.320, in developing or reviewing the IEP of any exceptional child, each agency shall comply with the requirements of the law, and shall consider the results of the child's performance on any general state or districtwide assessment programs. Furthermore, if, as a result of its consideration of the special factors described in the law, an IEP team determines that a child needs behavioral interventions and strategies, accommodations, assistive technology devices or services, or other program modifications for the child to receive a FAPE, the IEP team shall include those items in the child's IEP. Additionally, each agency shall ensure the IEP of each exceptional child includes information required by law and shall be responsible for the provision of a copy of the child's IEP at no cost to the parent.

Both of the Parents asserted the IEP did not contain specific supports to address the Student's vulnerability to bullying. They contended the LEA minimized their concerns regarding the Student's difficulty with social cues and sarcasm and suggested reducing services and removing the Student's autism diagnosis from the document.

The LEA maintains that the October 8, 2025, IEP and subsequent PWN specifically addressed the Student's deficits in understanding peer interactions and navigating social situations. In response to parental concerns, the team increased speech-language services to target the Student's pragmatic language delay and ability to read social situations.

When Parent 1 raised concerns regarding peer interactions, the LEA did not remain static; instead, the IEP team convened on October 8, 2025, to specifically address "recent incidences of misreading social situations." To support the Student's Autism-related deficits in social cognition, the LEA increased SLT to 30 minutes twice weekly and reintegrated the Student into a 6th-grade social skills group. These evidence-based interventions were designed to provide the Student with the pragmatic tools necessary to navigate the middle school social environment and to help the Student distinguish between actual bullying and the typical social friction that can be misinterpreted due to a "lack of social discernment."

Furthermore, the LEA demonstrated a proactive commitment to the Student's safety through direct observation and administrative oversight. Following specific reports of teasing in November 2025, the SLP increased direct observations during unstructured times, such as recess, and the Principal implemented a plan to ensure the Student was physically separated from specific peers during lunch. These observations often contradicted the reports of bullying, with staff frequently noting the Student playing and interacting positively with peers. Even after the Student's elopement on December 12, 2025, the LEA repeatedly reached out to Parent 1 to convene an IEP meeting and develop a formalized safety plan. The LEA issued a PWN affirming that they remained "ready, willing, and able" to provide all services and accommodations. Because the LEA consistently offered to review and revise the IEP in response to parental concerns and maintained a service array tailored to the Student's social-emotional needs, the LEA fulfilled its obligations under the IDEA.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to develop an IEP that met the Student's needs related to being bullied.

Issue Two

> Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, considered the concerns of the parent, academic needs, developmental needs, functional needs, or other needs of the child, specifically related to the impact of bullying, and reviewed and revised the IEP, as needed. K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b)(1); 34 CFR §300.324(b).

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2), K.A.R. 91-40-16(a)(b)(1); 34 CFR §300.324(b), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child they serve, and to ensure an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child. Additionally, each agency shall ensure the IEP team revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address the following: any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum, where appropriate, the results of any re-evaluation conducted under this section, information about the child provided by the parents, and the child's anticipated needs, or other matters.

Both of the Parents indicated the Student's mental health and academic performance declined due to bullying. Despite notifying the School of the Student's suicidal ideation and specific threats made by peers in November 2025, the Parents maintained the LEA did not update the IEP or implement a safety plan.

The LEA asserts that it consistently reviewed the IEP to address anticipated needs and parental information. Following reports of negative interactions in November, 2025, the team met with Parent 1 to discuss findings and agreed upon additional recess observations to monitor for further conflicts.

The evidence demonstrates the LEA maintained an ongoing dialogue with Parent 1 and actively integrated parental concerns into the IEP revision process. During the October 8, 2025, IEP meeting, the team specifically discussed "recent incidences of misreading social situations," a direct acknowledgement of the friction the Student was experiencing with peers. In response to these functional and developmental needs, the LEA revised the IEP to increase SLT services to 30 minutes twice per week and placed the Student in a 6th-grade social skills group. These revisions were specifically designed to address the Student's pragmatic language delays and to provide the Student with the tools to navigate the middle school social environment more effectively, thereby addressing the root cause of the perceived bullying from a clinical and educational perspective.

Furthermore, the LEA took additional steps to address the Student's safety and emotional well-being outside of formal meeting dates. Following Parent 1's reports of teasing in November 2025, the SLP adjusted their schedule to perform direct observations during recess, and the Principal coordinated with staff to ensure the Student was separated from specific peers during lunch periods. When a significant incident occurred on December 12, 2025, involving the Student's elopement, which Parent 1 attributed to a panic attack caused by bullying, the District's Director of Special Education repeatedly reached out to Parent 1 to schedule a new IEP meeting to develop a formalized safety plan and discuss the Student's deteriorating mental health.

Although Parent 1 expressed dissatisfaction with the LEA's refusal to provide homebound services without a physician's note or a specific physical ailment, the regulations do not require an LEA to agree with every parental request, but rather to consider them. The LEA demonstrated its commitment to the IEP process by issuing a PWN stating they were "ready, willing, and able" to provide services and by continuing to offer IEP team meetings to address the Student's refusal to attend school. Because the LEA consistently monitored the Student's needs, implemented service increases in response to social difficulties, and made multiple attempts to convene the team following the Student's withdrawal from the building, the LEA fulfilled its regulatory requirements to consider parental concerns and revise the IEP as needed.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to consider the concerns of the Parent, academic needs, developmental needs, functional needs, or other needs of the child, specifically related to the impact of bullying, and reviewed and revised the IEP, as needed.

Issue Three

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, ensured to the maximum extent possible, the Student was educated with children who were not disabled, and removal of the Student occurred only when the nature and severity of the Student's disability was such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily. K.A.R. 91-40-21; 34 CFR § 300.114.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-21 and 34 CFR § 300.114, each agency shall ensure that the children with disabilities served by the agency are educated in the LRE. To achieve this, each agency shall ensure that a continuum of alternative educational placements is available to meet the needs of children with disabilities. These alternative educational placements shall meet the following criteria: include instruction in regular classes, special classes, and special schools, instruction in a child's home, and instruction in hospitals and other institutions. Furthermore, each agency must make provision for supplementary services, including resource room and itinerant services, to be provided in conjunction with regular class placement.

In determining the educational placement of a child with a disability, each agency shall ensure that the placement decision meets the following requirements: the decision shall be made by a group of persons, including the child's parent or parents and other persons who are knowledgeable about the child, the meaning of the evaluation data, and the placement options; additionally, the decision shall be made in conformity with the requirement of providing services in the LRE.

Regarding parental involvement, each agency shall give notice to the parents of any meeting to discuss the educational placement of their child. The notice shall meet the requirements of the law. If a parent cannot participate in person at a meeting relating to the educational placement of the child, the agency shall offer to use other methods to allow the parent to participate, including conference calls and video conferencing. However, an agency may conduct a meeting to determine the appropriate educational placement of a child with a disability without the participation of a parent if the agency, despite repeated attempts, has been unable to contact the parent or to convince the parent to participate. In such cases, if an agency conducts a meeting to determine the appropriate educational placement of a child without the participation of a parent, the agency shall have a record, as prescribed in the law, of the attempts that the agency made to contact the parent.

Each agency shall ensure that each exceptional child's placement meets the following criteria: is determined at least annually, is based on the child's IEP, and for a child with a disability, is as close as possible to the child's home. Unless the IEP of a child with a disability requires some other arrangement, the agency shall ensure the child is educated in the school that the child would attend if nondisabled. In selecting the LRE for a child with a disability, the persons making the educational placement decision shall give consideration to any potential harmful effect on the child or on the quality of services the child needs. In addition, an agency shall not remove a child with a disability from education with age-appropriate regular classrooms solely because of needed modifications in the general curriculum.

In providing or arranging for the provision of nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities, including meals, recess periods, and other nonacademic services and activities, each agency shall ensure that each child with a disability participates with nondisabled children in those services and activities to the maximum extent appropriate to the needs of that child. Each agency shall ensure that each child with a disability receives the supplementary aids and services specified in the child's IEP as being appropriate and necessary for the child to participate in nonacademic settings.

Both of the Parents indicated that after an incident where the Student fled the school building to escape bullying, the LEA's proposed solution was to keep the Student alone inside during recess. The Parents argued that this solution violated the Student's IEP. Additionally, the Parents indicated they did not feel safe sending the Student to school without a safety plan.

The LEA contends that the Student's IEP ensured education with non-disabled children to the maximum extent appropriate, with removal from the general education environment occurring only for 60 minutes of social language instruction per week. This placement was determined to be the LRE necessary to address the Student's specific social language challenges.

The LEA remained committed to educating the Student alongside non-disabled peers to the maximum extent appropriate. Throughout the 2025-26 school year, the Student's IEP placed the Student in the general education setting for the vast majority of the school day. The LEA's strategy for addressing the Student's ASD and ADHD focused on providing supplementary aids and services, such as SLT, social skills groups, and access to breaks, within the school building rather than removing the Student to a more restrictive or segregated environment.

The evidence shows that the LEA prioritized maintaining the Student's placement in regular classes even when behavioral and social challenges arose. When Parent 1 expressed concerns regarding bullying and the Student's increasing anxiety, the LEA responded by enhancing support services (increasing SLT frequency) and implementing environmental modifications (supervised lunch seating) designed to keep the Student integrated with peers. Staff observations from the SLP and Principal consistently noted the Student interacting positively with non-disabled peers during unstructured times, supporting the LEA's determination that the general education setting remained appropriate. Furthermore, the LEA's refusal to move the Student to a homebound or remote setting without a strictly defined medical necessity aligns with the IDEA's mandate to prevent the unnecessary removal of students from the social and academic benefits of the regular classroom.

The LEA's actions following the Student's elopement on December 12, 2025, further support compliance with LRE mandates. Rather than unilaterally changing the Student's placement to a more restrictive setting in response to the incident, the LEA issued a PWN affirming that the general education environment, bolstered by the existing IEP supports, remained "ready, willing, and able" to serve the Student. The Director of Special Education's repeated offers to meet and develop a safety plan were aimed at finding ways to keep the Student in school rather than facilitating a removal. Because the LEA maintained the Student in the regular educational environment with appropriate supplementary aids and resisted a shift to a more restrictive setting despite parental pressure for homebound services, the LEA adhered to the principles of LRE.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure to the maximum extent possible, the Student was educated with children who were not disabled, and removal of the Student occurred only when the nature and severity of the Student's disability was such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily.

Issue Four

Whether USD #512, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided a FAPE for the Student when they failed to address allegations of bullying toward the Student, including providing school work for the Student when they were not attending school. K.A.R. 91-40-2, K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2, K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101, a FAPE means special education and related services that meet the following criteria:

a. Are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge;
b. Meet the standards of the State Board;
c. Include an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education; and
d. Are provided in conformity with an individualized education program.

Additionally, each agency shall make a FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction beginning no later than the child's third birthday and for any child with a disability, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade and is advancing from grade to grade. Each agency shall provide special education and related services based upon the child's unique needs and not upon the child's area of exceptionality.

The Parents alleged the LEA failed to provide a safe learning environment for the Student by not preventing the bullying that led to a safety event. Furthermore, the Parents contend the LEA has denied requests for schoolwork while the Student is home for their safety.

The LEA asserted it remained "ready, willing, and able" to provide a FAPE in accordance with the current IEP at the school site. The LEA argued that the Parent made a unilateral decision to keep the Student at home, and therefore any lack of educational access was not a result of a violation of the IDEA by the LEA.

The LEA revised the Student's IEP on October 8, 2025, to increase SLT and provide social skills training. These services were directly targeted at the Student's Autism-related difficulties in "misreading social situations," which the LEA identified as the primary factor in the Student's peer conflicts. By focusing on building the Student's capacity to navigate social dynamics, the LEA provided a program reasonably calculated to address the functional impacts of the alleged bullying.

Regarding the Student's absence from school following the December 12, 2025 elopement incident, the LEA's actions remained consistent. When Parent 1 requested remote learning or homebound services, the LEA correctly informed both of the Parents of the state-mandated criteria for such placements, including the need for medical documentation. The LEA did not unilaterally deny services; rather, the Director of Special Education repeatedly offered to convene an IEP meeting to develop a safety plan and facilitate the Student's return to the building. On January 16, 2026, the LEA issued a PWN affirming that it remained "ready, willing, and able" to provide all IEP services within the school setting. Under the IDEA, an LEA is not required to provide school work or alternative instruction to a student whose parent unilaterally removes them from the placement offered in a valid IEP, provided that the offered placement remains appropriate.

Because the LEA provided a comprehensive IEP that addressed the Student's social needs and consistently offered to meet to resolve the barriers to the Student's attendance, the LEA fulfilled its mandate to make a FAPE available. The lack of provided school work during the Student's unexcused absences was a direct result of Parent 1's choice to decline the services offered at the School site, rather than a failure of the LEA to provide an appropriate education.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide a FAPE for the Student.

DATE OF REPORT: FEBRUARY 27, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with the Kansas State Department of Education on behalf of -------- by his mother, --------. In the remainder of the report, -------- will be referred to as "the student and -------- will be referred to as "the parent" or "the complainant".

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term " local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student."

In this case, the student is a resident of the Lawrence Public Schools (USD #497) and receives special education and related services through this LEA, which employs its own staff to meet the requirements of the IDEA. In the remainder of this report, this responsible public agency will be referred to as "the LEA" or "the district".

The following LEA staff involved in this investigation will be referred to as follows:

- Shelia Smith, Director of Special Education
- Laura Basham, Director of Special Education for Early Childhood and Elementary
- Kevin Etzel, Assistant Director for Budget & Finance
- Jayci Roberson, Director of Elementary
- Nicole Dunlap, Administrative Assistant at Quail Run Elementary
- Pam Wiggins, Coordinator 1 – District AR Specialist in the Business Office

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 60-day timeline to investigate a complaint and allow for an appeal process from the date on which it was filed. A complaint is considered filed on the date on which it was received by KSDE. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on February 2, 2026 and assigned the case for investigation the following week.

Evidence Reviewed

Both parties were contacted during the investigation to gather additional information relevant to the allegation. The parent was interviewed by telephone on February 19, 2026.

The LEA also made the following school personnel available for a phone interview on January 19, 2026:

- Director of Special Education
- Director of Special Education for Early Childhood and Elementary

Written documentation was provided by both the LEA and the complainant. All the documentation was reviewed, and the following written documentation was used in consideration of the issue:

Background Information

The student is a nine-year-old child currently enrolled in the fourth grade at Quail Run Elementary School in USD #497 who uses an augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) device to communicate. The most recent reevaluation of the student was conducted on May 8, 2023 and it was determined that the student continued to be eligible for special education and related services under the Kansas exceptionality category of Autism. The IEP in effect during the 2025-26 school year was developed on May 13, 2025 and requires direct special education instruction in English/language arts (ELA), math, science, social studies, independent living skills, social/emotional skills, and behavior along with speech/language therapy, occupational therapy (OT), adaptive physical education (APE), and attendant care during arrival, lunch, and dismissal . The IEP also requires inclusion time with general education peers for specials, recess, read aloud, fine motor, library, social studies/science, classroom parties, and any other hands-on learning opportunities.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaint, one issue was identified and investigated.

Issue One

USD #497, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to provide the student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) during the 2025-26 school year, specifically by charging the parent fees for services and devices required by the IEP.

Applicable Law

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.101 require that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) must be made available to all children residing in the State between the ages of 3 and 21, inclusive, including children with disabilities who have been suspended or expelled from school.

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.17 define "FAPE" as special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge.

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.39 (a) define "special education" as specially designed instruction, at no cost to the parents, to meet the unique needs of a child with a disability, including instruction conducted in the classroom, in the home, in hospitals and institutions, and in other settings, as well as instruction in physical education. This federal regulation states that "special education" can also be speech-language pathology services, or any other related service, if that service is considered special education rather than a related service under State standards. In addition, travel training and vocational education are considered as "special education" under this federal regulation.

Federal regulations at 34 C.F.R. §300.39(b)(1) state that the term "at no cost" means that all specially-designed instruction is provided without charge, but does not preclude incidental fees that are normally charged to nondisabled students or their parents as a part of the regular education program.

Positions of the Parties

The complainant reported USD #497 sent her a billing statement for $130 to cover the cost of instructional resources, technology, and activity trip transportation during the 2025-26 school year. The complainant believes the practice of charging these fees violates the IDEA which requires students with disabilities to receive a free appropriate public education. The complainant stated that the IEP even includes a statement that the parent cannot be charged for the student's education.

The parent reported that the student uses his own AAC device to communicate as required in the IEP and she should not be responsible for paying the technology fee which covers computer repairs and maintenance for district devices as well as internet access. The parent noted the student's AAC device requires internet access. The parent also stated that the student receives transportation as a related service so she should not be responsible for paying the activity trip transportation fee. In addition, the complainant indicated she should be exempt from the instructional resources fee because all the instructional materials used by the student's teachers are for providing his required special education instruction.

The parent stated that the district explained that the fees could be charged because the student accessed general education during part of the school day. The parent contends that this access to general education is required by the student's IEP as inclusion services, so again, the district's billing for fees violates the student's rights to receive a free appropriate public education.

The parent acknowledged that USD #497 waived all the 2025-26 fees for the student after she brought her concerns to school administration on February 2, 2026. However, the parent believes that the fees should be waived for all students with IEPs so each of these students can also receive the required free appropriate public education.

The LEA maintains that FAPE has been provided at no cost to the parent. All services in the IEP, including related services and assistive technology, are provided free of charge. The fees referenced by the parent are standard enrollment fees applied uniformly to all students for general education purposes. These are not special education fees, and these funds are not used to pay for special education expenses. The parent has not been charged for any services or devices required by the student's IEP and, in fact, the 2025-26 school year fee has been waived for this parent under the LEA's waiver exemptions, which are available to all eligible parents.

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon interviews and record review.

The student's current IEP dated May 13, 2025 includes the following statement in the section titled "Notifications for Accessing Public Benefits or Insurance":

> Regarding services required to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) to your child, the school may not: . . . Require you to incur an out-of-pocket expense, such as the payment of a deductible or co-pay amount in filing a claim for services, although the school may pay the cost that you otherwise would be required to pay.

It is noted that this statement is in regard to an LEA claiming reimbursement for specific services required by the IEP through allowable costs under a student's public benefits or private insurance with written parent consent. If the parent refuses to provide or withdraws such consent, the district is still responsible for ensuring that all required services are provided at no cost to the parent.

The parent contacted multiple school officials by phone and email on February 2, 2026 after receiving a billing statement for "student fees." The fees included an instructional resources fee, an activity trip transportation fee, and a device fee, all of which totaled for a charge of $130. In these communications, the parent stated that the fees were a violation of the IDEA's requirement for USD #497 to provide the student with FAPE.

On February 2, 2026, the Administrative Assistant at Quail Run Elementary spoke to the parent via phone and then sent the parent an email explaining that the fees were general education fees and providing the information for how to request a waiver of the fees since the parent was eligible for one of the LEA's waiver exemptions.

Also on February 2, 2026, the Coordinator 1 – District AR Specialist in the Business Office spoke to the parent regarding her concerns with the basic enrollment fees and explained the waiver exemptions and how to complete the forms to request a waiver.

Director of Special Education for Early Childhood and Elementary stated that she spoke with parent in-person on February 2, 2026 at 11:45 a.m. The contact log for that communication stated:

> [The parent] came to ESC [Educational Support Center] requesting to speak with me. She shared she was upset that she needed to complete a fee waiver form and said she's never had to complete it in the past; concerned with FAPE and didn't understand by fees were still being applied with [the student's] IEP. I explained that student fees are issued to all students as kids are gen ed students first; I clarified that IEP services/supports/resources are not impacted if gen ed fees are or are not paid; also clarified no fee for SpEd services and/or AAC device. [The parent] completed form and give it to me to give to business office.

Later that same day, the Director of Special Education for Early Childhood and Elementary reported she called and spoke to the parent regarding some missing information on the waiver form. The parent gave verbal consent to check the box for the missing information and to submit the waiver form on her behalf to the Business Office. The Director of Special Education for Early Childhood and Elementary sent an email to the parent summarizing this conversation on February 2, 2026 at 4:58 p.m.

The Business Office sent the parent an email on February 3, 2026 and informed her that the basic enrollment fees had been waived. On February 4, 2026, the Business Office emailed the parent with a copy of the Student Fee Receipt showing a zero balance owed.

USD #497 School Board Policy JS: Student Fees and Meal Charges shows that the board will approve a schedule of enrollment fees, meal charges, and other fees. The fee schedule shall include: 1) a list of all items for which a charge is to be collected; 2) the amount of each charge; 3) the date due; 4) a system for accounting for and disposing of fees; 5) classifications of students exempt from the fee or charge; and 6) an appeal procedure to be used by students or parents to claim exemption from paying the fees or charges.

The FAQs for Student Fees on the district website describes the purpose of the basic fees assessed to every student. The Activity Trip Transportation Fee covers bus costs for field and activity trips for students districtwide, regardless of if your child's class takes a trip. The Instructional Resources Fee covers textbook usage, technology (internet access, online materials, etc.), and instructional materials (magazines, workbooks, art supplies, consumable items, etc.). The Device Fee covers repair costs for technology devices.

The FAQs also includes information about prorating the basic fees for students who attend school less than a full school day or enroll for part of a school year. In addition, the FAQs describe how the basic fee can be waived and provides links to the required forms that need to be submitted to request a waiver.

The Student Handbook for the 2025-26 school year lists the following basic fees for students attending elementary school:

- Activity Trip Transportation Fee = $15
- Instructional Resources Fee = $100
- Device Fee = $15

The Assistant Director for Budget & Finance provided documentation that the revenue from the Activity Transportation Fee and the Device Fee are deposited into the General Fund - Reimbursement and the Instructional Resources Fee is deposited into the Student Material Revolving Fund. Special Education expenses are not paid from either of these funds according to the Assistant Director for Budget & Finance.

Coordinator 1 – District AR Specialist in the Business Office confirmed that the basic enrollment fees were waived for the parent during the 2023-24, 2024-25, and 2025-26 school years.

Conclusion

In this case, USD #497 charges a basic enrollment fee for all students participating in the district's educational programs as allowed by School Board Policy JS and the procedures described on the district website and in the Student Handbook for the 2025-26 school year. The board policy and procedures provide a method for the basic enrollment fee to waived and the complainant followed this procedure and documentation shows that the basic enrollment fee was waived during the 2025-26 school year.

Regardless, even if the fees have been waived, the complainant believes the basic enrollment fee should never have been assessed at all because the student has an IEP and the IDEA requires students with disabilities be provided with a free appropriate public education. Paying a basic enrollment fee means the student's education is not free.

The requirement that FAPE be provided falls under federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. §300.17, which defines "FAPE" as special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge and the federal regulations at 34 CFR §300.26(b)(1), states that the "at no cost" requirement in FAPE does not "preclude incidental fees that are normally charged to nondisabled students or their parents as a part of the regular education program"

USD #497 provided documentation to show that the basic enrollment fee monies collected are deposited into general education funds and that no special education costs are paid out of these general education funds. This means that the basic enrollment fee paid by the parent of a student with an IEP is not being used to pay for any special education or related service required by that student's IEP. Thus, the special education and related services are being provided at no cost to the parent.

Based on the foregoing, the allegation of a violation of special education laws and regulations related to this issue is not substantiated.

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 497,
Lawrence Public Schools: 26FC497-001

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on February 2, 2026, by --------- on behalf of her child, ---------. In the remainder of this decision, --------- will be referred to as "the parent," and ---------- will be referred to as "the student." An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on February 27, 2026. That Complaint Report concluded that there was not a violation of special education statutes and regulations

Thereafter, the parent filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parent, the Complaint Report, the parent's notice of appeal. The school district did not submit a response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The report identified one issue, whether the district "failed to provide the student with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) during the 2025-26 school year, specifically by charging the parent fees for services and devices required by the IEP.

It is important to note that the school district waived the fees at issue here, but the parent "believes the basic enrollment fee should never have been assessed at all because the student has an IEP and the IDEA requires students with disabilities be provided with a free appropriate public education. Paying a basic enrollment fee means the student's education is not free." (Report p.3).

At the outset, the Appeal Committee finds that the applicable law regarding fees assessed to a parent of a child with an IEP are as follows:

The term Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE) is defined in 34 C.F.R. 300.17, in relevant part to mean: "special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge."

It is important to read that definition carefully. It says "special education and related services" are to be provided without charge. It does not say that for a child with a disability, everything is free.

We then examine the definition of the term "special education" in 34 C.F.R. 300.39, which says, in relevant part, that special education "means specially designed instruction, at no cost to the parents, to meet the unique needs of a child with a disability." Again, this definition requires only that "specially designed instruction" be provided at no cost to the parents. It does not say there must be no cost for any reason.

This interpretation is bolstered by subsection (b) of 34 C.F.R. 300.39 stating that part of the definition of the term "special education" includes the following:

> (b) The terms in this definition are defined as follows:
> (1) At no cost means that all specially-designed instruction is provided without charge, but does not preclude incidental fees that are normally charged to nondisabled students or their parents as a part of the regular education program. (Emphasis added).

The fees at issue in this complaint were described on page 6 through 8 of the report as: "an instructional resources fee ($100), an activity trip transportation fee ($15), and a device fee ($15), all of which totaled $130.00." The investigator found that The Activity Trip Transportation Fee covers bus costs for field and activity trips for students districtwide, regardless of whether a child's class takes a trip. The Instructional Resources Fee covers textbook usage, technology (internet access, online materials, etc.), and instructional materials (magazines, workbooks, art supplies, consumable items, etc.). The Device Fee covers repair costs for technology devices.

The investigator also noted that:

> USD #497 provided documentation to show that the basic enrollment fee monies collected are deposited into general education funds and that no special education costs are paid out of these general education funds. This means that the basic enrollment fee paid by the parent of a student with an IEP is not being used to pay for any special education or related service required by that student's IEP. Thus, the special education and related services are being provided at no cost to the parent. (Report, p. 9)

The Appeal Committee finds no evidence that the district charged the parent for the cost of any special education or related service required by this student's IEP.

In her appeal, the parent says:

> Specifically, my concerns include:
>
> - The investigation did not fully address whether the district met its obligation to provide a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE).
> - Key evidence related to implementation of my child's IEP was either overlooked or not given appropriate weight.

- There are ongoing issues regarding services, supports, and/or access to the educational environment that remain unresolved.

Because of these concerns, I am requesting a formal review of the investigation findings. I believe that a reconsideration is necessary to ensure that my child's rights under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Kansas special education regulations are fully protected.

The Appeal Committee notes that a copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support. In this appeal, the Appeal Committee finds that the parent provided no factual support for these "concerns" regarding the investigator's report. The appeal did not indicate why or how the report did not address the FAPE issue, what key evidence was overlooked, or what ongoing issues remain unresolved. Accordingly, there is no factual basis for consideration of such concerns on appeal.

After a careful review of the law and the facts of this complaint the appeal Committee finds that sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal.
This Appeal Decision is issued this 16th day of March, 2026.

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #231
ON JANUARY 30, 2026

DATE OF REPORT: FEBRUARY 27, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, --------, by their parents, --------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parents as "Parent 1 and the Other Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #231, Gardner Edgerton Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #231.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school LEA that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school LEA, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on January 30, 2026, and the 30-day timeline ended on March 1, 2026.

Allegations

The following issue will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: USD #231, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), failed to ensure the Student's IEP was in effect and special education and related services were made available to the Student, and that each teacher and provider was informed of the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided to the Student. K.A.R. 91-40-16; 34 CFR § 300.323.

Investigation of Complaint

The Complaint Investigator interviewed Parent 1 virtually on February 18, 2026. The LEA staff, including the Special Education Director, the Special Education Coordinator, the Special Services Coordinator, and the LEA Speech Language Pathologist, were interviewed on February 19, 2026. Additionally, the School staff, including the School Director of Special Education, School Process Coordinator, School Speech Pathologist 1, School Speech Pathologist 2, School Special Education Teacher 1, and School Special Education Teacher 2, were interviewed on February 19, 2026.

In completing this investigation, the Complaint Investigator reviewed documentation provided by Parent 1 and the LEA. Although additional documentation was provided and reviewed, the following materials were used as the basis of the findings and conclusions of the investigation:

1. Email, re: SLP Services, 10/02/25
2. Email, re: (no subject), 12/17/25
3. Medical Note, 01/28/26
4. Email, re: SLP Services, 01/30/26
5. Email, re: Follow up from Email, 10/01/25-10/02/25
6. Detailed Time Report, 03/29/24-01/30/26
7. Email, re: [the Student], 01/28/26-01/30/26
8. Email, re: SLP Vacancy, 09/26/25-10/08/25
9. Individualized Education Program, 10/21/25
10. Speech Therapy Sessions, 09/08/25-01/21/26

Background Information

This investigation involved a ninth-grade student enrolled at a private, separate-day facility, the School. The Student is currently receiving special education and related services as a child with multiple exceptionalities per the IDEA.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with Parent 1 and LEA staff.

1. The Student enjoys participating in their therapies and is great at requesting help from an adult when they need it.
2. In an email exchange on September 26 through October 8, 2025, the School Director of Special Education informed the LEA of an ongoing SLP vacancy that had prevented the Student from receiving consistent therapy since the start of the school year. The School reported they were tracking missed minutes and confirmed on October 8, 2025 that the Student had missed a total of 120 minutes of language therapy and 60 minutes of speech therapy. LEA leadership acknowledged the impact of the vacancy and committed to collaborating on next steps to address the missed sessions.
3. In an October 2, 2025 email to the Parent, the School Director of Special Education stated, "As of the start of the 2025-2026 school year, we have been actively looking for an additional staff member to provide speech and language therapy services to our students in-house. … If you are receiving this email, it [was] because your student at

[the School] ha[d] not been consistently receiving speech and language therapy services as a result of this temporary shortage."

4. In an October 1, 2025 email to the Special Education Coordinator, Parent 1 reported that a staff member at the School had refused the Student's request to use the restroom, citing the Student's refusal to sign an IEP meeting notice as the reason. Parent 1 emphasized the Student's medical need for immediate bathroom access. In response, the School Process Coordinator reiterated to the School staff the importance of honoring the Student's bathroom requests.
5. In an October 21, 2025 annual IEP, the following pertinent information was indicated:
    a. IEP content listed speech therapy and language therapy as related services for 15 minutes per week in the special education classroom from October 21, 2025 through October 20, 2026.
    b. Present Levels of Academic Achievement and Functional Performance stated the following:
        i. "[The Student] demonstrate[d] delays in academics, executive functioning, social awareness, language, and behavior management."
        ii. The Student demonstrated deficits in expressive, social, and supralinguistic language. A limited vocabulary relative to peers impacted their word retrieval during semantic tasks, while syntactic challenges hindered their ability to describe objects and answer questions during conversation. Continued speech and language services were recommended to address these ongoing social and expressive needs.
        iii. The Student demonstrated articulation deficits characterized by gliding the initial /r/ to /w/ before low vowels and substituting /er/ for retroflexed /r/ sounds. These errors stemmed from difficulty identifying correct articulatory placement. Since /r/ is typically mastered by age eight, these patterns impacted the Student's "intelligibility" with peers, necessitating continued speech and language services.
        iv. Student strengths detailed the Student had strong social language skills, they spoke in full sentences, and stated "[The Student] love[d] participating in … speech therapy." (D214)
        v. Changes in current functioning since the previous IEP indicated the speech therapy and language therapy goals were not met, the goal was continued.
        vi. The summary of the most recent evaluation results stated, "[The Student] continue[d] to display a need in the area of social language. [They] would benefit from continued social groups. Specialized instruction to address nonverbal and verbal cues to understand what others might be thinking/feeling would be beneficial."
        vii. The IEP team determined, "[The Student's] functional skills [were] not commensurate with cohort peers, and [they] demonstrate[d] deficiencies in academics, social/ emotional learning, behavior management, and speech and language. This impacts their ability to independently perform tasks at the same rate and level of [their] peers."

c. Special considerations indicated the Student had communication needs addressed through the IEP.

d. Annual goals were reported quarterly and at the end of the Extended School Year (ESY) and were measured by work samples, data collection, and observations in the following pertinent areas:

    i. Speech therapy, "When participating in structured tasks, [the Student] [would] be able to produce initial /r/ in phrases with at least 70% accuracy given minimal cues and prompts on two out of three data collection days by end of the IEP[.]"

    ii. Language therapy, "[The Student] [would] improve [their] perspective[-]taking skills by identifying the thought[s] of others in social situations with 80% accuracy within the current IEP year."

e. The service summary for parent and school personnel supports indicated language consult services for 30 minutes per month and stated, "'[The Student] receive[d] language therapy consult on a month[ly] basis for IEP team collaboration, staff training, and material planning for [their] language goal[.]"

f. Regular education participation indicated that "Significant delays in communication, academics, cognitive abilities, adapted behaviors, and maladaptive behaviors impede [the Student's] learning and the learning of others around [them]."

g. Placement considerations stated the Student was not placed as close as possible to their home if they were nondisabled and stated, "[The Student] require[d] a behavioral modification program to successfully address severe emotional/behavioral deficits. [The Student] require[d] individualized 1:1 and small group instruction, in a highly structured environment, with consistent implementation of a positive behavior support plan, to make educational progress. Significant delays in academic achievement, cognitive abilities, communication/language skills, and adaptive behaviors, as well as significant social, emotional, and behavioral issues, impede [their] learning and the learning of others around [them]. The IEP team has determined that a private[,] separate day school is the most appropriate and least restrictive environment for [the Student] at this time."

h. The Student was determined eligible for ESY services with the following weekly services in the special education classroom from June 9 through August 14, 2026:

    i. Speech therapy for 15 minutes.

    ii. Language therapy for 30 minutes.

i. The 2024-25 and 2025-26 school year course of study outlined speech therapy and language therapy for each semester to address independent living, education, training, and employment skills.

j. Daily accommodations for speech therapy and language therapy across general and special education environments were indicated as:

i. Grades based on IEP goals;

ii. Preferential seating for all lectures;

iii. Modified testing format, multiple sessions, short answer, and extended time on tests;

iv. Physical room arrangement, speech intelligibility/fluency adjustments, and a study carrel;

v. Directions read aloud, lessen difficulty, shorten assignments, variety of given directions, altered worksheets and packets, and extended time on all assignments;

vi. Positive reinforcement usage, review and replicate, repetition of reminders and rules, check for understanding, use of eye contact and "proximity control," and implementation of the BIP;

vii. Increased time for oral and written responses, and allow for breaks; and viii. Other, "Use of bathroom as requested[.]"

6. In an email dated December 17, 2025, Parent 1 informed the Special Education Coordinator that speech services discussed during the October 21, 2025 meeting had not yet commenced. Although the Special Services Coordinator indicated that the LEA could provide these services beginning the following week, Parent 1 noted that the Student had not received any sessions. Consequently, Parent 1 requested an update regarding the official start date for speech services.
7. In an email on January 7, 2026, to the Special Services Coordinator, Parent 1 indicated the Student informed them speech services did not start that day due to computer issues. The Special Services Coordinator responded they would connect with the School to determine "next steps."
8. In an email exchange on January 28, 2026 to the LEA and the School team, Parent 1 sent a medical note and stated, " … since you [were] still making [the Student] wait. Again, when [the Student] says [they] need to use the bathroom, [they] need to go right then."

   The Special Services Coordinator replied, thanking Parent 1 for the updated note, and confirmed the bathroom request is outlined in the Student's IEP and would continue to be.

   Additionally, School Special Education Teacher 1 responded and reiterated the bathroom accommodation was reviewed at the last IEP meeting and "… is being followed. [The Student] even has permission to leave the classroom or walk ahead of the group if [they] can't wait for others. Going forward, each bathroom trip will be documented on [their] homenote so that [the Parent] can have an accurate representation of what [was] going on."

A medical note dated January 28, 2026 indicated the Student was seen the same day and has a history of urinary tract infections (UTIs). It further indicated the Student, "… needs to go to the bathroom more often than other students. [They] should not hold [their] urine in because that will make [them] more likely to develop an infection."

9. In an email exchange on January 30, 2026, between the LEA team, the Special Education Coordinator requested days and times services were provided to the Student, the goals worked on, and any data they could provide. The LEA Speech Language Pathologist replied and provided the following information:
    a. January 16, 2026, 1:30 p.m.: "SLP logged into Zoom for services. The [School] staff reported [the Student] did not want to attend speech that [d]ay. They were unsuccessful in getting [the Student] to the session[,] so no session was conducted."
    b. January 22, 2026, 1:30 through 2:00 p.m.: "Goal 1: When participating in structured tasks, [the Student] [would] be able to produce initial /r/ in phrases with at least 70% accuracy given minimal cues and prompts on two out of three data collection days by the end of the IEP. Data: 54%" "Goal 2: [The Student] [would] Improve [their] perspective[-]taking skills by identifying the thoughts of others in social situations with 80% accuracy within the current IEP year. Data: 100% 4/4"
    c. January 29, 2026, 1:30 through 1:55 p.m.: "[W]ifi issues caused us to log off early. Goal 1: When participating in structured tasks, [the Student] [would] be able to produce initial /r/ in phrases with at least 70% accuracy given minimal cues and prompts on two out of three data collection days by the end of the IEP. Data: No data collected during this activity due to the wifi cutting [i]n and out. Inaccurate speech sound production due to wifi glitches was noted." "Goal 2: [The Student] [would] improve [their] perspective[-]taking skills by identifying the thoughts of others in social situations with 80% accuracy within the current IEP year. Data: 60% 3/5" 10. The speech-language therapy session log for the period of March 2024, through January 30, 2026, documented a total of 36.25 hours. During late 2025, documented direct sessions occurred on September 8, 10, 17, and 26, 2025; October 16, 2025; November 21, 2025; and December 5, 8, 12, and 18, 2025. These sessions targeted pragmatic communication, problem-solving, and conversational skills, often through co-treatments with Occupational Therapy staff during group activities. The logs for January 2026 confirmed direct sessions on January 8, 9, 12, 16, 21, and 30, 2026 with a notable notation on January 16 that the Student declined to attend.
11. A speech-language therapy log for the 2025-26 school year documented 525 total service minutes provided between September 2025 and January 21, 2026. Monthly totals included 180 minutes in September, 30 minutes in October, 30 minutes in November, 120 minutes in December, and 165 minutes in January. The log noted that while the IEP required 600 minutes for this period, adjusted calculations for school breaks reduced the requirement to between 540 and 570 minutes. Additionally, the LEA provided 60 of the total minutes after January 15, 2026.

Parent Interview

12. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Parent 1 stated at the Student's October 21, 2025 IEP meeting, the School Director of Special Education told Parent 1 the School did not currently have a speech language pathologist to provide the Student's speech services. Parent 1 shared they asked the Special Services Coordinator if the LEA could provide the services. According to the Parent, the Special Services Coordinator stated the LEA could provide services by the next week. Parent 1 reported as of November 17th, 2025, the LEA had not provided speech services for the Student.
13. According to the Parent, they emailed the Special Services Coordinator on November 17, 2025, and the Special Services Coordinator did not respond. Subsequently, Parent 1 emailed the Special Education Coordinator on the same day. Parent 1 shared the Special Education Coordinator responded they would check into where all agencies were at in the process of getting the Student their speech services. The Special Education Coordinator sent a second email to both the LEA and the School, and copied the Parent, to facilitate communication regarding service provision. Parent 1 reported no one from either agency responded to the second email.
14. Parent 1 stated the Special Services Coordinator called them on January 6, 2026 to inform Parent 1 the Student was scheduled to begin speech services on January 7, 2026. However, Parent 1 stated the Student reported to them services were delayed again due to the School "updating computers." Parent 1 stated they believed the Student would begin services with an SLP from the LEA through video conferencing on January 7, 2026. Parent 1 acknowledged the Student began speech services with School Speech Pathologist 1 on January 9, 2026.
15. Parent 1 stated a document provided to them by the LEA contained incorrect information. They reported the Student did not receive speech services on December 8, December 12, or December 18, 2025 or January 8, 2026, as shown in the document. Parent 1 stated the Student reported their speech services began on January 9, 2026. Parent 1 shared the Student said they only played a board game with another student and the School Speech Pathologist 1 during the January 9, 2026 speech session. Parent 1 stated the Student's first speech therapy session for the 2025-26 school year was the January 9, 2026 session. Parent 1 reported the Student began sessions with the LEA Speech Language Pathologist on January 22, 2026.
16. Parent 1 shared they kept their own log of when the Student had speech services. They logged three dates during the complaint period: January 9, January 22, and January 29, 2026. Parent 1 explained speech services and language services are provided separately at the School, and the session logged on January 12, 2026 was for language services with School Speech Pathologist 2. Parent 1 maintained the Student did not receive speech services between September 2025 and January 2026.

17. Parent 1 stated they requested bathroom access as an accommodation in the Student's IEP due to a chronic medical condition. They reported they provided a doctor's note when the IEP was written, and acquired a second doctor's note on January 28, 2026 because they believed the accommodation was not being provided.
18. Regarding bathroom access, Parent 1 stated the Student reported "[Staff] tell [the Student] to wait, and when [the Student] just tries to go, they will block the door so that [the Student] can't go, and then they mark [the Student] for eloping if [the Student] does go out the door to go to the bathroom." Parent 1 shared, "I told [the Student] that if [they're] told no or that [they have] to wait, that [the Student] needs to count in [their] head to 25. And if someone still hasn't taken [them] that I want [the Student] just to go ahead and go because I don't want [them] peeing [their] pants and that if [staff] get [the Student] for eloping, then that's okay, we'll deal with it."
19. Parent 1 stated on October 1, 2025 a staff member "refused to take [the Student] to the restroom" because the Student had not signed an LEA document. Parent 1 reported the document in question was a Notice of Meeting for an upcoming IEP meeting. They explained they instructed the Student not to sign any paperwork without a parent present. Parent 1 alleged a staff member blocked a door to restrict the Student's bathroom access on or around January 28, 2026.
20. According to Parent 1, during an IEP meeting in February 2026, which is outside the complaint range, the LEA stated "according to the paperwork" sent by the School, they did not owe any compensatory minutes. During the same meeting, Parent 1 reported the School Director of Special Education acknowledged School Speech Pathologist 1 had "been here for years." However, the Student had not previously been on their caseload.

School Director of Special Education Interview

21. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Special Education Director, the School Director of Special Education stated the Student's IEP listed 15 minutes of speech therapy per week for articulation and 15 minutes of language therapy per week for pragmatic language. The School Director of Special Education stated all sessions through the School were in-person. The Special Education Director added that LEA services were provided virtually.
22. The School Director of Special Education shared "We'd lost two of our SLPs over the summer." Therefore, they "guided our team to, whenever possible, pull in those students that had lost their SLP." The School Director of Special Education stated they tracked all the minutes "to follow the compensatory service process … ultimately we would make those up when in fact we did have a speech path[ologist] begin."
23. The School Director of Special Education stated the Student had been consistently receiving their pragmatic language services since the beginning of the year. They reported direct speech therapy began in January 2026, with sessions expanded to 30 minutes per week to include compensatory minutes. The School Director of Special Education shared the LEA also began providing additional services in January 2026 "to help make up those minutes as expeditiously as possible." They indicated all session times had been doubled to make up for the minutes.

24. The School Director of Special Education confirmed the sessions logged on January 8 and January 9, 2026 were provided by School Speech Pathologist 1. They confirmed the sessions logged on January 12, January 16, and January 21, 2026 were with School Speech Pathologist 2. The School Director of Special Education believed the School was close to meeting all the compensatory minutes as of their interview on February 16, 2026. They believed they had discussed the compensatory minutes with Parent 1 at the most recent IEP meeting.

School Special Education Teacher 1 Interview

25. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Special Education Director, School Special Education Teacher 1 reported "I was made aware in September [2025] that we were not currently able to find an SLP and … would be documented that [the Student] was missing those minutes … my supervisor, [the School Director of Special Education], had reached out to [the LEA] to find out what else they would like us to do … ."
26. Regarding the Student's bathroom access, School Special Education Teacher 1 acknowledged the Student's accommodation and explained staff were made aware "there is a medical issue. It is in [the Student's] IEP. This is the protocol that we will follow." They reported the protocol was to send a staff member to the bathroom with the Student. If a staff member was not available to chaperone, the Student would be allowed to go alone, and classroom staff would "walkie-talkie and let other people in the building know that [the Student is] on [their] way for supervision purposes."

School Special Education Teacher 2 Interview

27. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, School Special Education Teacher 2 was joined by the Special Education Director.
28. Regarding a text message dated September 25, 2025, where Parent 1 questioned why there wasn't a speech teacher listed on the meeting invite, School Special Education Teacher 2 stated they believed a speech therapist was listed on the meeting notice. They did not recall what their response to Parent 1 was.
29. School Special Education Teacher 2 stated the Student was not in their room for speech and language services, but shared they heard and saw the Student being pulled for language services between October 21, 2025, and January 22, 2026.

School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 Interview

30. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 was joined by the Special Education Director.
31. School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 stated in the summer of 2025, they lost two of their full-time speech therapists. They shared they were the only full-time therapist that remained working at the site, and there was one other speech therapist who worked part-time. School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 explained they were told to keep their current caseload and pull in students who were not receiving services if there were opportunities to do so.

32. School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 mentioned the Student had a pragmatic language goal along with two other students in their class, so School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 added the Student to that group to work on social skills.
33. School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 explained that a detailed time report document was created by the Previous Speech and Language Pathologist and included notes they were using to report on the Student's speech goals. School Speech and Language Pathologist 2 explained the report was from the 2024-25 school year and confirmed the activities listed, such as "group craft" or "social reasoning board game," would satisfy the specific direct speech minute requirements and service delivery models as written in the IEP.

Special Services Coordinator Interview

34. During an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Services Coordinator explained that at an IEP meeting in October 2025, speech and language services that LEA would implement were discussed. After the IEP meeting, the Special Services Coordinator was charged with "returning to the LEA and securing an SLP to facilitate speech and language services while [the Student] was at the School." The Special Services Coordinator stated, "I did not facilitate securing a SLP until January [2026] to receive those services, and that was a delay on my part."
35. The Special Services Coordinator explained that what they had been "communicated with" is speech services began in January, [2026]. "The School was struggling to produce [the Student] for that session[,] and [the Student] has attended sessions with [LEA Speech Language Pathologist] … on Thursdays while [the LEA] is in session." Special Services Coordinator indicated the speech notes were provided to them by the School, and "that's all I can say." The Special Education Director explained compensatory minutes were being served to the Student along with regular services, and the Student was "fully covered."

School Process Coordinator Interview

36. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the School Process Coordinator was joined by the Special Education Director.
37. The School Process Coordinator stated that when the Student was assigned a new case manager, they would ensure the case manager was aware of the Student's bathroom accommodation. The School Process Coordinator added they immediately went to the Student's case managers when concerns were brought to them. They confirmed the School Special Education Teacher 1 and the School Special Education Teacher 2 were trained on the procedure for the Student's bathroom accommodation, which included allowing the Student to use the bathroom when needed, providing an escort, and, if an escort was unavailable, to use the radio to let other staff know the Student was on their way without an escort.

Speech Language Pathologist Interview

38. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Speech Language Pathologist was joined by the Special Education Director.
39. The Speech Language Pathologist shared they began working with the Student beginning on January 22, 2026. The Special Education Director noted the LEA did not start providing services until January 22 or 23, 2026, at which time they were virtual.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #231, in violation of state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, failed to ensure the Student's IEP was in effect and special education and related services were made available to the Student, and that each teacher and provider was informed of the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided to the Student. K.A.R. 91-40-16; 34 CFR §300.323.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16, each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. An IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP; and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

The Parents alleged the Student did not receive their speech services as written on their IEP from October 21, 2025 through January 22, 2026. The Parents alleged the Student did not have access to their accommodation to use the bathroom, which resulted in urinary tract infections.

The LEA acknowledged that a staff vacancy at the School resulted in inconsistent speech-language services for the Student starting in September 2025. To rectify this, the LEA implemented a compensatory service plan utilizing an LEA provider, which has already recovered a substantial portion of the missed minutes and is scheduled to continue through March 2026. Additionally, the LEA maintained the Student's bathroom accommodation has been implemented with fidelity.

The Student's October 21, 2025, annual IEP identifies significant needs in expressive, social, and supralinguistic language, as well as articulation deficits that impact peer intelligibility. The Student's speech and language services were impacted from the start of the 2025-26 school year through January 2026. This lapse was primarily attributed to a staffing shortage at the School and a delayed administrative response by the LEA. While the School Director of Special Education reported that language services remained consistent through group co-treatments, they acknowledged a total of 180 missed minutes by early October 2025. Conversely, Parent 1 maintains that no speech services occurred until January 9, 2026, disputing several entries in the School's service logs. The LEA Special Services Coordinator admitted to a delay in securing a provider, which resulted in LEA providing virtual sessions not commencing until January 22, 2026. Technical issues, such as computer updates, were documented as barriers to consistent service delivery and accurate data collection during the transition to virtual LEA support. To address the deficit, the School and the LEA initiated a compensatory service plan in January 2026, doubling session times to 30 minutes per week.

The Student's IEP includes a specific accommodation for immediate bathroom access, supported by medical documentation highlighting a history of UTIs. Parent 1 reported instances in which staff allegedly blocked the door or conditioned bathroom access on the Student completing tasks, prompting the School Process Coordinator to reiterate the protocol to staff. While Special Education Teacher 1 maintained the existing protocol was adhered to, the School has subsequently transitioned to a new documentation process via "homenotes."

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is substantiated that the LEA failed to ensure the Student's IEP was fully in effect. Despite the recent initiation of compensatory services and updated protocols, the significant delay in securing speech-language providers and the inconsistent implementation of documented health accommodations resulted in a failure to implement the IEP in its entirety.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. A violation occurred in the following area:

> A. Federal regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-16; 34 CFR § 300.323 specifies an IEP must be in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP must be accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider must be informed of that individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP, and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #231 did not ensure the Student's IEP was fully in effect. Documentation, Interview, and the LEA Response letter of February 12, 2026 document this.

Based on the foregoing, USD #231 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 30 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #231 shall submit the service logs of the compensatory time completed for the Student from the start of January 2026.
2. Within 15 calendar days of this report, USD #231 must provide written evidence that the "immediate bathroom access" protocol has been distributed to every teacher, paraprofessional, and administrator at the School who interacts with the Student.
3. For a period of 60 days, the School must submit bi-weekly copies of the "homenotes" or bathroom logs to the LEA Special Services Coordinator to ensure the accommodation is being implemented without conditions.

Background Information

The student named in this complaint is in the12th grade at an LEA school during the 2025–2026 school year. According to the parent, the student first qualified for special education services in 2010, with identified exceptionalities of Autism and ADHD. The student lives at home with their parent and four of their five siblings. The student did not attend a specialized preschool and began attending school in this district in 2021 after the family moved to the area from out of state.

Issues Investigated

Based on the written complaints and interview with the complainants, X concerns that fall under IDEA or Kansas regulations were identified and will be investigated.

Issue One

Did USD #259 develop the student's IEP specific to the transition plan as required by 34 CFR §300.324(a)(1) and 300.320(b).

Applicable Law

34 CFR §300.324(a)(1)(i-iv) Development, review, and revision of IEP. (a) Development of IEP—(1) General. In developing each child's IEP, the IEP Team must consider—(i) The strengths of the child; (ii) The concerns of the parents for enhancing the education of their child; (iii) The results of the initial or most recent evaluation of the child; and (iv) The academic, developmental, and functional needs of the child. Additionally, 34 CFR 300.320(b) Transition services. Beginning not later than the first IEP to be in effect when the child turns 16, or younger if determined appropriate by the IEP Team, and updated annually, thereafter, the IEP must include—(1) Appropriate measurable postsecondary goals based upon age appropriate transition assessments related to training, education, employment, and, where appropriate, independent living skills; and (2) The transition services (including courses of study) needed to assist the child in reaching those goals.

Parent Position

In the January 27, 2026 parent interview they shared that their student had no real transition services and that the school was trying to graduate the student at the end of the current school year even though the student is only 17. Additionally the parent stated that they asked the counselor for help in finding post-graduation services for the student that the counselor said they would be in contact, but thus far, has not done so.

LEA Position

The LEA response states, "Per § 300.324(a)(i), in developing the student's IEP, the IEP Team considered [the student's] strengths, needs, interests and preferences as shown through the Transition Assessment information and related appropriate post-secondary goals, transition services and activities contained within the 2-21-25 IEP."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

1. The LEA response states, "Per § 300.320(b), the student's IEP contains Transition services, which are updated annually, and include (1) appropriate measurable postsecondary goals based upon age-appropriate transition assessments related to training/education, employment, and, independent living skills; and (2) the transition services (including courses of study) needed to assist the student in reaching those goals, including services and activities in instruction, community experience, employment, adult living and post-school training, and daily living (see 2-21-25 IEP)."

2. The annual IEP meeting was held February 21, 2025 with a continuation on February 24, 2025.
3. The Pictorial Interest Inventory (transition assessment) was conducted on February 23, 2025 and results shared with the IEP team on February 24, 2025.
4. The annual IEPs from 2023, 2024 and 2025 all note that the Pictorial Interest Inventory was updated each year.
5. The results of the age-appropriate transition assessment in the most current IEP are noted, as:
    a. Strengths. "[The student] enjoys helping others as well as cooking and serving food."
    b. Needs. "[The student] needs to work on self-regulation and managing [their] behavior to be able to participate in these jobs."
    c. Interests. "[The student] loves to go on walks and listen to music."
    d. Preferences. "[The student] shows a preference for working in Food Services, but also shows a preference for automotive."
6. The projected course of study for the 2025-2026 school year does not note the student's IEP math, behavior or communication goals, although the math and communication goals are noted in the student's daily schedule. This section of the transition plan has been updated from year to year.
7. A review of IEPs from February 2023, 2024 and 2025 show that there have been no changes made to the student's transition services and corresponding activities.
8. There are no IEP goals in the February 21, 2025 IEP related to the student's preferences identified in the transition assessment.
9. In the school interview on February 11, 2026 the case manager reported that the student enjoys working with themed boxes and folders, including those related to the automotive field during Career Readiness but they are not specific to this student.
10. The student's schedule includes Life Skills Cooking which the case manager confirmed was focused on the student cooking for themselves but not specifically on food service skills which is noted in the transition assessment as a preference.
11. At the student's annual IEP meeting on February 11, 2026 the team decided that the student will continue to attend the school in the 2026-2027 school year.
12. The social worker shared their recollection of the conversation with the parent related to the student's placement post graduation, dated February 23, 2026:
    a. "I have spoken with [the parent] several times about getting services for their [child]. We have discussed that, in my professional opinion, many programs are closed because of staff shortages, and decreased funding. The [County Developmental Disability Organization] acts as the single point of entry for accessing intellectual and developmental disability (ID/DD) services in [the] County, Kansas. On January 23, 2025 I gave [the parent] a copy of the community agencies that the CDDO uses. I told [them they were] free to contact the agencies. I also explained that [the LEA] has transition procedures."

1. In an interview with the director of secondary student support services, and the LEA director on February 23, 2026, they shared that the parent was provided with transition information and the CDDO was invited to the IEP when the student was 13 years old. Additionally, they believed that the parent completed the Kansas Intellectual/Developmental Disability (I/DD) Waiver application in 2023.

Conclusion

34 CFR §300.324(a)(1)(i-iv) Development, review, and revision of IEP. (a) Development of IEP—(1) General. In developing each child's IEP, the IEP Team must consider—(i) The strengths of the child; (ii) The concerns of the parents for enhancing the education of their child; (iii) The results of the initial or most recent evaluation of the child; and (iv) The academic, developmental, and functional needs of the child. Additionally, 34 CFR 300.320(b) Transition services. Beginning not later than the first IEP to be in effect when the child turns 16, or younger if determined appropriate by the IEP Team, and updated annually, thereafter, the IEP must include—(1) Appropriate measurable postsecondary goals based upon age appropriate transition assessments related to training, education, employment, and, where appropriate, independent living skills; and (2) The transition services (including courses of study) needed to assist the child in reaching those goals.

In this case, the student's transition assessment and projected course of study were updated in the 2023, 2024, and 2025 annual IEPs. However, the transition services and activities were not revised to align with the student's updated preferences. There are no IEP meeting minutes to suggest that the team discussed, but elected not to change the transition services. As a result, the transition services did not demonstrate that the most recent evaluation data was meaningfully considered in planning services.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA failed to update a portion of the student's transition plan and is OUT of compliance. Corrective actions are required.

Issue Two

Did USD #259 implement the student's IEP during the 2025-2026 school year specific to services, learning goals and the behavior intervention plan as required by 34 CFR §300.323(c)(2)?

Applicable Law

34 C.F.R. §300.323(c)(2) requires school districts to ensure that as soon as possible following the development of the IEP, special education and related services are made available to the child in accordance with the child's IEP.

Parent Position

In the parent interview they stated, "Before we moved here [the student] knew more. [They] do stuff at home that they can't do at school. The student is very independent at home." The parent also reported in their interview on January 27, 2025 that their biggest fear is that, "when the student runs away from the school and ends up in the neighborhood, the student could get beaten or shot by a homeowner who doesn't understand kids with disabilities."

LEA Position

The LEA response states, "The school began the 2025-2026 school year with the student's 2-21-25 IEP in place, and amended the IEP on 10-22-25, hand-delivering the PWN to the parent that day, implementing the changes immediately, most crucially for safety, the accommodations regarding hand-to-hand guidance throughout the school, and when the student enters the school from the bus, exits the building to go to the playground, for evacuation drills, and for bus pick-up."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

Services / Accommodations -

1. The LEA response states that, "The student's special education services are for all day (390 minutes/day, minus 20 minutes of speech and language services one time per week, see 2025-2026 SLP Service Log) in a special day school (which is [the student's] assigned building is), which [they receive] from the special education teacher and staff every day [they are] in attendance. The student is in a classroom that has four paras and a teacher. During [the student's] school day, [the student] typically follows [their] schedule (see 2025-2026SY Schedule) and works on [their] IEP goals and BIP in addition to other educational activities."
2. The LEA provided the student's schedule and corresponding paraprofessional schedule as well as evidence of the SLP Service Log which reflects several sessions missed due to therapist absence or student behavior, but the required time for these sessions was made up by the therapist.

3. The LEA response states, "[The student] also receives the service of Attendant Care for 30 additional minutes each day to assist [them] to and from the bus, during lunch, and with the bathroom. At the beginning of the day, paras wait for [the student] to get off the bus, walk [them] to the classroom using hand-to-hand guidance per the IEP (see 10-22-25 IEP, and Classroom Visuals folder-arrival procedure)."
4. The annual IEP dated February 21, 2025 included seven accommodations; communication supports, extra gross motor movement/activities, visual schedule, fidget object, verbal encouragement, choices and weighted items.
5. The current IEP dated October 22, 2025 includes the following nine classroom accommodations:
    a. Verbal encouragement each time the student completes an activity, immediately after completing the work.
    b. Both the 2nd semester principal and assistant principal reported in the February 23, 2026 interview that they observed teachers verbally encouraging the student throughout the day for both completing academic tasks and to prevent behavioral challenges.
    c. Hand-to-hand guidance when entering the school building from the buses/exiting the school building to the playground, evacuation drills and buses pick up the whole time the student is in transition.
    d. The LEA response states, the staff, "use hand-to-hand guidance per the IEP to transition to the outside playground area and back." Both the 2nd semester principal and assistant principal reported in the February 23, 2026 interview that they observed the use of hand-to-hand guidance for this student as the student is getting on/off the bus and other times when the student is outside of the school building. This accommodation was added at the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment meeting.
    e. Visual schedules during transitions.
    f. The LEA provided evidence of the student's arrival procedure and classroom picture schedule. Additionally on February 23, 2026 the assistant principal clarified that the student has access to the classroom picture schedule as well as one that teachers carry when the student is outside of the classroom.
    g. Fidget object when the student is getting "antsy" at their desk for 5-10 minutes.
    h. The fidget object is seen in a photo of the student in art class and is reported as being used consistently by the assistant principal in an interview on February 23, 2026.
    i. Choices, giving the student 10-15 seconds to decide.
    j. The LEA provided examples of visual support for choice making, including a Juice and yes/no chart, a photo of options for choices on the student's desk and a swing choice chart. The assistant principal gave multiple examples of when these choices are offered to the student in the interview on February 23, 2026.

k. Extra gross motor movement/activities, embedded in the schedule for 5-10 minutes.
l. The LEA shared a photo of the student participating in adapted PE bowling and the 2nd semester principal reported seeing the student regularly taking movement breaks in the hallway..
m. Communication supports throughout the school day, (e.g., low/high tech AAC) to aid/enhance communication during academics and social opportunities.
n. The LEA provided several examples of communication aids and the assistant principal shared multiple examples of when they observed the student using the communication supports.
    i. Weighted objects embedded in the schedule for 3-5 minutes.
o. In an email exchange on February 24, 2026, the director reported that staff indicated the student has access to, and frequently uses, weighted balls and stuffed animals throughout the school day.
p. Hand-to-hand guidance through the school building for the whole transition.
q. The LEA response states, "When the student transitions throughout the school during the day (e.g., to the cafeteria, to specials classes), staff walk with [the student] using hand-to-hand guidance or [the student's] arm over staff shoulder until they arrive at their destination." The 2nd semester principal and assistant principal report observing staff consistently offering hand-to-guidance. This accommodation was added at the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment meeting.
r. The student also has a transportation accommodation which will be addressed in Issue 3.

Learning Goals -

1. There were two IEPs implemented during the 2025-2026 school year each of which included the same four goals; math, reading and behavior and communication.
2. The district response shared that instruction was conducted during the 2025-2026 school year as evidenced by the examples in the Classroom Visuals folders and Implementation of Services document which includes examples of student work, behavior charts, choice charts, picture schedules and communication charts.
3. In the February 24, 2026 interview with the assistant principal and 2nd semester principal they shared a number of examples of how the student's IEP goals have been implemented throughout the 2025-2026 school year, including specific examples of staff teaching the use of the student's communication supports for the reading and communication goals, and staff sitting closely to the student which is a prevention measure for the behavior goal.

Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) -

1. There was one BIP implemented in the 2025-2026 school year with a PWN issued after the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment meeting adding the use of hand-to-hand support for the student when transitioning to and from the buses and to the playground.
2. The LEA provided and the investigator reviewed the evidence related to implementation of the BIP including (visual schedules, elopement visual, Sticky Fidget reward chart, and options for sensory breaks). The BIP includes instructions to staff on prevention measures, instruction/teaching replacement behaviors and what to do when target behaviors occur as well as when peak behaviors occur.
3. In the February 24, 2026 interview with the assistant principal and 2nd semester principal they shared examples of teachers utilizing behavior management strategies required by the BIP including, staff proximity, use of sensory breaks, support to help the student get on the bus, offering of choices, close supervision, positive attention, and use of communication supports.
4. The LEA shared evidence of teacher training related to BIP implementation on January 2, 2025. The LEA also shared a training schedule which includes Emergency Safety Interventions (ESI) training, IEP compliance and behavior management plans, the week of August 5 to August 13, 2026.
5. The LEA shared behavior data summaries from August 26, 2025 to February 6, 2026.

Conclusion

In this case, 34 C.F.R. §300.323(c)(2) requires school districts to ensure that as soon as possible following the development of the IEP, special education and related services are made available to the child in accordance with the child's IEP.

The LEA shared evidence of implementation of the IEP, including speech language services, accommodations, IEP goals and the behavior intervention plan.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA implemented the student's IEP during the 2025-2026 school year specific to services, learning goals and the behavior intervention plan. The LEA is IN compliance, and corrective actions are not required.

Issue Three

Did USD #259 review and revise the student's IEP based upon lack of progress specific to learning goals and the behavior intervention plan as required by 34 CFR §300.324(b)(ii)(A)?

Applicable Law

34 CFR 300.324(b)(ii)(A) Development, review, and revision of IEP. (b) Review and revision of IEPs—(1) General. Each public agency must ensure that, subject to paragraphs (b)(2) and (b)(3) of this section, the IEP Team—(i) Reviews the child's IEP periodically, but not less than annually, to determine whether the annual goals for the child are being achieved; and (ii) Revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address—(A) Any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals described in §300.320(a)(2);

Parent Position

In the parent interview on January 27, 2025 they shared, "My child has been in that school since [they were] 13 and has gone backwards." When asked about the student's continued difficulty in getting on the bus, the parent shared, "They call me to say come and get [the student]. I have 5 kids and work at night. They threaten to call the police."

LEA Position

The LEA response states, "It is the position of USD #259 that the district reviewed and revised the student's IEP based upon lack of progress specific to learning goals and the behavior intervention plan as required by 34 CFR §300.324(b)(ii)(A)."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

1. The LEA response includes, "The student's 2-21-25 IEP was developed by the IEP Team, including the parent, and the PLAAFPs and goals reflect the student's present levels at the time of the development of this IEP, based on progress made on the 2-23-24 IEP and progress as noted on IEP progress reports leading up to the development of the 2-21-25 IEP as well as IEP Team discussion. The parent provided [their] consent for the changes made and included in the student's 2-21-25 IEP (see PWNP)."

Learning Goals -

1. The student's progress report for the last 12 months reflects that "Progress has been made towards reaching the goal by the annual IEP", for three of the four goals and, "Progress has been made towards the goal, but the goal may not be met by the annual IEP", for the fourth goal.
2. Math: Goal 1 in the student's February 21, 2025 IEP is focused on identifying numbers 11-20, with 60% accuracy. The December 12, 2025 progress report reflects that the student reached 50% and has maintained that goal with 1-2 prompts from staff to slow down and count. This progress is considered a mastery level of 3, "Progress has been made towards the goal, but the goal may not be met by the annual IEP".
3. Reading: Goal 2 in the student's February 21, 2025 IEP is a comprehension goal. When the student is given questions and picture choices, the student will answer questions to show understanding of literature that has been read to [them] with 50% accuracy. The December 12, 2025 progress report reflects that the student reached 60% accuracy by the end of the IEP year, reaching a mastery level of 4, " Progress has been made towards reaching the goal by the annual IEP.

4. Behavioral: Goal 3. For readability, the student's behavioral goal and BIP will be discussed below.
5. Communication: Goal 4 in the student's February 21, 2025 IEP states that the student will, "…communicate three different communicative phrases (e.g., requesting, protesting, expressing likes/dislikes, social routines, etc.)…with 75% accuracy averaged across 5 data sessions." The December 12, 2025 progress report reflects that the student reached 75% accuracy within 2 data sessions, reaching a mastery level of 4, " Progress has been made towards reaching the goal by the annual IEP."

Behavior Goal and Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) -

1. Goal 3 in the student's February 21, 2025 IEP is a behavioral goal stating the student will, "decrease acting out behaviors such as eloping and hitting others to 5/5 days, as measured by classroom behavior data collection." with the progress note stating, "[The student] has done well with not eloping from the classroom and not hitting others. Someone does need to be next to [the student] at all times to ensure [the student's] safety but again, [the student] has done well with this goal. Only elopement issues are when [they were] outside at the playground (climbs the fence X2) or bus." The December 12, 2025 progress report reflects that the student reached 4/5 days of no acting out behaviors, reaching a mastery level of 4, " Progress has been made towards reaching the goal by the annual IEP."
2. The January 16, 2025 PWN states, "[the student's] educational team is proposing a Functional Behavior Assessment (FBA) be conducted in order to determine if [the student's] current Behavior Intervention Plan continues to meet [the student's] behavioral needs or if additional interventions need to be implemented to support [the student]." The LEA response shares that although the parent expressed concern about the student's behavior, the parent declined to consent to the FBA.
3. In the parent interview on January 27, 2025 the parent shared that they did not consent to the FBA because they believed that this school was not the appropriate place for the student and that the student needs to be transferred to a private residential treatment facility.
4. The BIP was updated at the February 21, 2025 IEP meeting to include "decreasing acting out behaviors such as hitting and eloping".
5. The LEA response notes that the student's behavior data shows that the student is making progress on the behavior goal as evidenced by the behavior data summaries for August 26 to October 21, 2025, and October 22 to January 31, 2026. It is noted that these behavior summaries share the % of intervals that the student followed directions, was on-task, had positive peer relations and had safe hands, feet and objects. These percentages reflect an increase in positive behavior from August 26, 2025 to February 6, 2026.
6. The BIP goal states: "Within one IEP year, given behavior management strategies, [the student] will decrease acting out behaviors such as eloping and hitting others to 5/5 days, as measured by classroom behavior data collection. However, later in the BIP under the Monitoring header, it states that the frequency of every occurrence of target behaviors will be collected.

7. The LEA response notes actions taken to address the student's behaviors including an IEP Amendment on October 22, 2025 to address elopement. The PWN for this meeting states, "due to the nature of eloping outside of the building especially when in transition to and from the buses, and to the playground, staff will need to have hand-to-hand guidance for [the student] and amended the IEP to ensure [the student's] safety to and from the bus and to and from the playground."
8. The LEA response noted, "Training was provided to staff at the school in behavior management techniques, structured work systems and work tasks, implementing work systems, etc., which supported what is contained in the student's IEP (see 2026-1-2 Inservice; 2025-2026 Teacher Report Week Staff Development Plan, and 2024-3-8 - 2025-10-30 Professional Learning Provided to Levy Special Education Teachers). Some examples of classroom items utilized with this student that show the staff are implementing such strategies are included in the Classroom Visual Example folder."
9. The documentation noted above was provided by the LEA and reviewed by the investigator.
10. The parent was asked to pick up the student for behavioral reasons during the 2025-2026 school year including elopement and bus refusal on October 2 and 14, November 5, 14, 25, 2025 and January 14, 2026. On November 18, 2025 the parent was asked to assist staff with the student's elopement and opted to take the student home rather than return to school. Additionally there were two instances where the student smeared feces (October 8, and 23, 2025) and thus was not able to ride the bus, resulting in the need for the parent to take the student home.
11. During the parent interview on January 27, 2026 they expressed fear that due to the proximity of homes and a public park to the school that the student's elopement behavior could be extremely dangerous.
12. According to the school's Student Contact Logs, during the 2025-2026 school year, the student eloped on September 24, October 2, October 14, and November 18, 2025. It is noted that when the student elopes they will go into homeowners' yards, try to get into cars and expose themselves.
13. During the parent interview on January 27, 2026 they also expressed concern about the staff's support of the student when the student elopes, "[The student] ran out of the school last week and the staff say they can't lay hands on the student to get [the student] back into the building."
14. When asked about the LEA's emergency behavioral procedures, the director replied in an email on February 18, 2026, "We don't move a student unless there is the threat of imminent danger which is consistent with our Emergency Safety Interventions (ESI) Board Policy." A review of the LEA's website reflects that the Board of Education Policy states, "Restraint is allowed only when a student's behavior reasonably poses an immediate danger of substantial physical harm to the student or others and the student has the present ability to cause such physical harm. Physical Restraint should only be used as a last resort after appropriate De-escalation Techniques have been implemented without success and less restrictive interventions would be ineffective at stopping the immediate danger of substantial physical harm."

15. The student's disciplinary profile reflects one instance of disruptive behavior on November 11, 2025, but no suspensions or expulsions.

Related Service -

1. The student has had several instances of refusing to get on the bus to go home during the 2025-2026 school year. This behavior is not specifically addressed in the behavior intervention plan, but rather in an IEP related service accommodation for transportation.
2. In the parent interview on January 27, 2026 they shared their difficulty in picking up the student when the student refuses to get on the bus due to other family responsibilities and unreliable transportation.
3. The strategies for supporting the student to ride the bus were outlined in the LEA response, "Classroom staff members will wait with the student at the end of the day until [the] bus arrives. Staff assist [the student] with getting [the student's] harness on, walking with [them] using hand-to-hand guidance to the bus, walk onto the bus with [the student] and wait until the bus aides get [them] buckled in before exiting the bus. Classroom staff use [the] Bus Accommodation Sheet as a reinforcement aid for getting [the student] on the bus (a snack and drink, which the student gets to select at the beginning of the day, and staff remind [the student] throughout the day.) Transportation services include transporting [the student] to and from school with the accommodation, etc. that are listed in the current IEP (see 2025-10-22 IEP Transportation)." This information is included in the IEP under Related Services, Accommodations.
4. In the February 23, 2026 interview, the 2nd semester principal and assistant principal both reported observing staff consistently following the above strategies.
5. The LEA provided the Bus Accommodation Sheet which includes photos and picture symbols used by staff to remind the student of how to be successful and the rewards to be earned once they are on the bus.
6. The 1st semester principal requested that the 5:00 p.m. bus be reinstated so the student would have a second opportunity to ride the bus if they refused the regular after-school bus. The request from the school principal to the LEA's director of transportation was sent and approved on October 10, 2025.
7. The IEP was amended on October 22, 2025 to add "hand-to-hand guidance" for the student when transitioning to and from the bus and on the playground to address the risk of elopement.
8. According to the school's Student Contact Logs and text messages shared by the parent, the student refused to get on the bus five times in the 2025-2026 school year: September 24, November 5, November 14, and November 25. On January 14, 2026 the parent was contacted to pick the student up, but the student ultimately got on the bus before the parent arrived.

9. An email from the director of transportation to the LEA director shared a screenshot of the information available to bus personnel specifying the student's support needs while riding the bus, dated February 3, 2025. This evidence shows that the transportation plan shared with the bus staff was current as of September 25, 2025, but hadn't yet been updated to match the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment which was remedied by the transportation director on February 3, 2025, and is now current.

Conclusion

In this case, 34 CFR 300.324(b)(ii)(A) Development, review, and revision of IEP. (b) Review and revision of IEPs—(1) General. Each public agency must ensure that, subject to paragraphs (b)(2) and (b)(3) of this section, the IEP Team—(i) Reviews the child's IEP periodically, but not less than annually, to determine whether the annual goals for the child are being achieved; and (ii) Revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address—(A) Any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals described in §300.320(a)(2);

Learning Goals -

The LEA provided evidence of progress on each of the student's IEP goals in the 2025-2026 school year.

Behavior Intervention Plan -

During the 2025-2026 school year, the IEP team took action to address the student's behaviors on the following dates:

- January 16, 2025 PWN, the team requested, but consent was denied, to conduct a Functional Behavior Assessment
- February 21, 2025 IEP meeting to revise the BIP behaviors
- October 22, 2025 IEP amendment meeting to address elopement and add hand-to-hand guidance
- Staff training

The data summaries shared by the LEA reflect a percentage of intervals in which the student followed directions, was on-task, had positive peer relations and safe hands, feet and objects. However, the student's IEP goal states that "Within one IEP year, given behavior management strategies, [the student] will decrease acting out behaviors such as eloping and hitting others to 5/5 days, as measured by classroom behavior data collection." Because eloping and hitting are explicitly identified in the IEP goal, the data collected to measure progress should directly align with those specific behaviors. Additionally, the way data is collected must match the IEP goal, for example, collecting data on intervals in which the student exhibited a positive behavior is different than collecting data on the frequency of behaviors and the number of days the student did not exhibit a target behavior. When there is inconsistency in how data is collected and on which behaviors, it is difficult for the team to determine whether the student's annual goal is being met, which is required by IDEA. The IEP team may choose to address and collect data on whichever behaviors are most important for the student, but in order to gauge progress on the IEP goal the specific behaviors stated in the goal should be the behaviors for which data are collected. It is also noted that although the school reports general progress on the behavior goals, the student's serious behavior of eloping continues to occur, even after the IEP amendment on October 22, 2025. It is recommended the IEP team consider collecting elopement data separately from the other behaviors due to its potentially serious consequences.

Related Service -

During the 2025-2026 school year, the IEP team addressed the student's refusals to ride the bus in the following ways:

- October 10, 2025 the school requested and obtained permission for the reinstatement of the 5:00 p.m. bus
- October 22, 2025 the IEP was amended to include "hand-to-hand guidance" when transitioning to and from the buses
- Use of the student's Bus Accommodation Sheet
- Specific guidance to staff in the IEP
- Staff training

When the parent must pick the student up due to refusal to get on the bus, the impact on the student's family is significant. This single parent has other children and family members who rely on them to be available after school and the parent's transportation is often not reliable. The IEP team is asked to consider that due to the impact on the family when the student refuses to get on the bus, a behavior intervention plan may be appropriate. This approach would allow for more intensive progress monitoring, rather than addressing the concern solely through a related service.

The school has made efforts to support the student with this behavior, however even after the changes made in the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment the student continues to have difficulty getting on the bus as evidenced by refusals on November 5, November 14, and November 25, 2025. It is noted that the updated transportation plan created at the October 22, 2025 IEP amendment meeting was not available to bus staff until February 3, 2026.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA was unable to determine progress for the behavior goal due to inconsistencies in data collection and target behaviors during the 2025-2026 school year. The LEA is OUT of compliance and corrective actions are required.

Issue Four

Did USD #259 hold a manifestation determination meeting as required by IDEA in the 2025-2026 school year as required by 34 CFR §300.536(a)(1)(2)(i)?

Applicable Law

34 CFR 300.536(a)(1)(2)(i) Change of placement because of disciplinary removals. (a) For purposes of removals of a child with a disability from the child's current educational placement under §§300.530 through 300.535, a change of placement occurs if—(1) The removal is for more than 10 consecutive school days; or (2) The child has been subjected to a series of removals that constitute a pattern—(i) Because the series of removals total more than 10 school days in a school year.

Parent Position

The parent complaint states, "They [the school] call me to pick [the student] up all the time…" In the parent interview on January 27, 2026 they clarified that the school calls them to pick up the student when the student won't get on the bus or is having other behavioral challenges.

LEA Position

The LEA response states, "It is the position of USD #259 that the district did not hold a manifestation determination meeting as required by IDEA in the 2025-2026 school year as required by 34 CFR §300.536(a)(1)(2)(i) because the facts did not require the district to do so per the regulation."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

1. The parent states in the formal complaint that, "[the school] calls me to pick [the student] up all the time even when I express that my car is not working."
2. The LEA provided two Student Contact Logs: a General Education Contact Log and a Special Education Contact Log. These logs document communication between school staff and the parent on a variety of topics, including occasions when the school asked the parent to pick the student up due to behavioral incidents
3. The LEA also shared a document created by the assistant principal noting the dates, times and reasons the parent was called to pick the student up from school.
4. The parent shared text exchanges from the school requesting that the parent pick the student up on November 5, 14, 2025 and January 14, 2025
5. As noted in Issue Three, the parent was asked to pick the student up due to behavioral issues a number of times in the 2025-2026 school year as evidenced by text exchanges, the LEA's student contact logs and the assistant principal's documentation, including October 2, 8, 14, 23, November 5, 14, 25, 2025 and January 14, 2026.

Conclusion

IDEA regulation 34 CFR 300.536 addresses the removal of a student with disabilities from their current placement and how to process disputes about whether such removals constitute a change of placement and so require a manifestation determination review.

That regulation is printed in full below (with emphasis added with bold and underlined print).

Sec. 300.536 Change of placement because of disciplinary removals.

a. For purposes of removals of a child with a disability from the child's current educational placement under Sec. Sec. 300.530 through 300.535, a change of placement occurs if--
    i. The removal is for more than 10 consecutive school days; or
    ii. The child has been subjected to a series of removals that constitute a pattern--
b. Because the series of removals total more than 10 school days in a school year;
c. Because the child's behavior is substantially similar to the child's behavior in previous incidents that resulted in the series of removals; and
d. Because of such additional factors as the length of each removal, the total amount of time the child has been removed, and the proximity of the removals to one another.

2. (b)(1) The public agency determines on a case-by-case basis whether a pattern of removals constitutes a change of placement.
    i. This determination is subject to review through due process and judicial proceedings.

This issue relates to section (a)(2) of the regulation. A change of placement occurs under (a)(2) only when all three factors exist. In this complaint, factor (i) does not exist because this student was not removed from school (whether due to a failure to provide transportation to or from school) for more than 10 school days.

In addition, paragraph (b) says that when there have been more than 10 such removals in a school year, the school district determines whether a change in placement has occurred and that decision is "subject to review through due process and judicial proceedings." Thus, disputes about whether a series of suspensions that exceed 10 days in a school year constitutes a change of placement should first be presented to a hearing officer. The clear intent of paragraph (b) is that school districts have broad discretion when determining whether a change in placement has occurred that would require a manifestation determination review. For that reason, a state complaint investigator must be cautious when asked to make such a determination, and proceed only when it appears obvious that a change in placement has occurred.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA did not fail to hold a manifestation determination review due to a student change of placement. The LEA is IN compliance and corrective actions are not required.

Issue Five

Did USD #259 issue a timely PWN in response to the parent's request for private placement as required by 34 CFR §300.503(a)(2)?

Applicable Law

34 CFR 300.503 Prior notice by the public agency; (a) Notice. Written notice that meets the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section must be given to the parents of a child with a disability a reasonable time before the public agency—(2) Refuses to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of FAPE to the child. Kansas defines "a reasonable time" to be within approximately 15 school days in most situations, unless there's a documented reason for a longer timeline. This guidance is found in Chapter 1 of the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

Parent Position

The parent complaint states, "They [the school] sent prior written notice to refuse the transfer I've been requesting since 2024. Please investigate."

LEA Position

The district response states, "It is the position of USD #259 that the district issued a timely PWN in response to the parent's requests for private placement as required by 34 CFR §300.503(a)(2)."

Analysis: Findings of Fact

The following finding of facts is based upon a review of the documentation and interviews with all parties.

1. According to the LEA response, "The student's parent verbally requested that the student be placed at a private residential treatment facility on 10-14-25 to the 1st semester principal. The school issued the parent a PWNP on 10-30-25, refusing placing the student at a private residential treatment facility because the school's data supported that the student was receiving FAPE in their current placement at the district's special day school."
2. The LEA shared a copy of the October 30, 2025 PWN which was issued 12 school days after the parent's request.

Conclusion

In this case, IDEA 34 CFR 300.503 requires that a PWN be issued within a "reasonable amount of time". Kansas defines "a reasonable time" to be within approximately 15 school days in most situations, unless there's a documented reason for a longer timeline. This guidance is found in Chapter 1 of the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

Based on the foregoing, it is found that the LEA issued the PWN responding to the parent's request for a change of placement in a timely manner. The LEA is IN compliance, and corrective actions are not required.

Summary of Conclusions/Corrective Action

4. ISSUE FOUR: A violation of 34 CFR 300.536(a)(1)(2)(i) was not found based on the student being picked up at the LEA's request, during the school day, less than 10 days in the 2025-2026 school year. No correction action is required.
5. ISSUE FIVE: A violation of 34 CFR §300.503(b) was not found based on issuance of a timely PWN. No corrective action is required.

Background Information

This investigation involved a high school-aged student enrolled at a high school in the LEA. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. The Parent emailed the Staff Counsel for the LEA on August 12, 2025 and asked how the LEA could enroll the Student "directly against the wishes of the residential custody parent that has joint custody in decision making?" They indicated the decision was made unilaterally by the Other Parent. The Parent said, "I am the residential custody parent. I also have joint legal custody."
2. On August 15, 2025, the Executive Director of Safety Services emailed unidentified recipient(s) and provided the Parent's phone number and stated it should be entered into the School's student information system.
3. The Executive Director of Safety Services emailed the Parent on August 18, 2025 and shared the Principal advised August 19, 2025 was a good time for the Parent to come to the School and talk with the Student. They asked them to confirm the meeting time, which the Parent did.

4. The Parent emailed the Executive Director of Safety Services on August 19, 2025 and stated they were going to pick up the Student the next day, and would have the appropriate documentation demonstrating custody.
    a. On August 20, 2025, the Executive Director of Safety Services forwarded the email to the Principal, the School Counselor, the School Resource Officer, and the Assistant Superintendent and said, "I called [the Parent] this morning … . I'm honestly not sure whether [the Parent] will show up to try to unenroll [the Student]. I explained that it was [the Parent's] right to do so, but that we would not physically force [the Student] to leave with [them], and [the Parent] indicated [they] understood. I also shared that [the Student] told us [they] [did] not want [the Parent] to come to the school … ."
    b. The Principal replied all and explained the Parent had educational and custodial rights and could take the Student.
5. An undated PWN listed the Parent and the Other Parent as the legal education decision-makers for the Student. The PWN was delivered via email on August 19, 2025. The PWN indicated that on August 19, 2025, the IEP team reviewed information related to the Student's educational program to determine if any additions, changes, or modifications to the Student's services were needed to enable the Student to meet their IEP goals. Only the Other Parent signed on August 21, 2025.
6. The Parent emailed unidentified LEA staff on August 19, 2025 at 11:33 a.m. and said, "This is notice that I officially withdraw all consent that I have given for [the Student's] educational decisions. I specifically do not consent to any changes to be made to anything for [the Student] until further notice." The Parent also stated their parental rights had been withheld by the School.
7. The Parent emailed unidentified recipient(s) on August 19, 2025 at 6:26 p.m. and stated they "withdrew their consent for everything for a very specific reason". The Parent indicated if the Student required anything, for the School to let them know and they would provide written consent through the School. The Parent indicated they were revoking their consent to a previous parenting plan.
8. The Executive Director of Safety Services emailed the Parent on August 20, 2025 and thanked them for their phone call that morning and summarized the key points of their conversation:
    a. The LEA's records showed the Parent had joint custody, and the Parent had the right to un-enroll the Student if they chose.
    b. Custody-related matters should be addressed outside of school.
    c. The Student shared they did not want the Parent to come to the School.
    d. The LEA did not take a stance in custody matters.
9. The Parent emailed the Assistant Superintendent on August 22, 2025 and stated the Student was enrolled at the LEA against their consent. The Parent stated the LEA was refusing to provide them any information about the Student, and the LEA made unilateral decisions about the Student. The Parent indicated the Student had been enrolled in general education classes even though they previously had an IEP.

10. The Resource Teacher emailed the Other Parent, the Parent, the Principal and the Assistant Principal on August 28, 2025 at 10:57 a.m. They introduced themselves as the Student's case manager and stated a virtual IEP meeting had been scheduled for September 23, 2025. They indicated the Notice of Meeting was attached to the email.
    a. The Parent replied on September 2, 2025 and asked for clarification of what would happen during the meeting. The Resource Teacher replied the next day and indicated the meeting was regarding moving the Student's IEP from their previous school to the School with updated goals and accommodations to meet their needs. They indicated a draft IEP would be sent and there was a section for parent input. The Parent replied that they wanted to review the IEP before the meeting.
    b. On September 3, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed the Parent and stated they had spoken to the Student about their grades.
11. An undated Notice of Meeting contained the following relevant information:
    a. The Parent and the Other Parent were listed as "parent/legal education decision makers".
    b. The notice was mailed to both parents on August 28, 2025.
    c. The proposed meeting was to be held virtually on September 24, 2025.
    d. The purpose was to review and discuss the Student's move-in IEP.
12. The Parent emailed the Executive Director of Safety Services on August 28, 2025 at 9:38 p.m. and stated the School had decided they did not have parental rights "in opposition to the court order". The Parent indicated the court had stated the current order, which included the Parent as the Student's primary caregiver, had not changed. The Parent said, "… there is NO [emphasis added] reason I [cannot] see, speak to, pick up, or ask questions about my child." The Parent stated there would be orders from the judge to protect their rights regarding the Student's education. The Parent said, "There is NO ONE [emphasis added] at that school, [the Student] included, that can refuse to allow me to pick up my child … ."
13. The Parent emailed the Principal on September 2, 2025 and asked about the Student's grades. They also stated their rights had not been removed and they had a say in "everything" The Principal replied and stated they would have the Student's teachers contact the Parent about grades.
14. The Resource Teacher emailed the IEP team on September 4, 2025 and explained the Student's IEP meeting was rescheduled for September 24, 2025, and they would provide a draft a few days prior.
    a. The Parent replied on September 10, 2025 with questions about the Student's grades. The Resource Teacher replied the next day and described the reasons for some of the Student's failing grades. The Parent thanked the Resource Teacher for looking into the situation. The Parent replied that day with additional input based on the Student's previous IEP.

b. The Resource Teacher emailed the Parent on September 12, 2025 and acknowledged the Parent's concerns and explained what the Student required to graduate. They asked the Parent for suggestions on how to help the Student and their input about an IEP goal.

c. The Parent emailed the IEP team on September 15, 2025 with concerns about the Student receiving their medication. The Principal replied that day and indicated the Nurse had been asked to attend the upcoming IEP meeting so they could address any issues with the medication.

d. The Resource Teacher emailed the Parent on September 16, 2025 and indicated they had a positive discussion with the Student about their classes. The Parent thanked them for the information.

e. The Parent emailed the IEP team on September 18, 2025 and asked if the Student's medication had been delivered to the School. The Resource Teacher replied it had been delivered the previous day.

f. On September 22, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed the IEP team a draft of the Student's IEP to review before the meeting. The Parent stated in an email from September 23, 2025 they had received the draft IEP.

g. On September 26, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed the IEP Team, including the Parent, the Student's current IEP.

15. The School Counselor created a mental health services request for the Student on September 16, 2025 for individual therapy. The only contact information was for the Other Parent.
16. The Principal emailed the Nurse on September 18, 2025 and asked them to make a note to inform the Parent if the Student was out of medication or refused to take their medication at school.
17. The Parent emailed the Principal on September 22, 2025 regarding the Student's court-ordered therapy through the School. The Parent asked to know more about the therapy.
18. The Student's IEP, dated September 24, 2025, contained the following relevant information:
    a. The Parent and the Other Parent were listed as "parent/guardian".
    b. On August 28, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed both parents about the change of the IEP meeting date and time.
    c. The Parent and the Other Parent participated by phone/video conference.
    d. The IEP team considered the Parent's concerns about the Student developing organizational skills.
    e. The Parent and the Other Parent signed the IEP on September 24, 2025.

19. An IEP amendment, dated September 24, 2025, listed both the Parent and the Other Parent as the Student's guardians. It stated there was a correction to the IEP and no meeting was required.
20. A PWN indicated the document was emailed to the Parent and the Other Parent on September 24, 2025. Both the Parent and the Other Parent were listed as legal education decision-makers. The Parent and the Other Parent signed the acknowledgement and consent sections on September 24, 2025.
21. On September 24, 2025, the Parent and the Other Parent signed a Transition Planning Services Notification for the Student.
22. The Parent emailed an unidentified recipient on September 30, 2025. They believed the recipient was responsible for the Student's court-ordered therapy. The Parent wanted to connect with them about the therapy and said, "… it's all been happening without my knowledge or agreement".
23. The Parent emailed unidentified recipient(s) on October 30, 2025 and stated they could not bring the Student their warm clothes because the Other Parent had a temporary restraining order against them. The Parent emailed the Principal and the Resource Teacher on October 31, 2025 and said, "I do supposedly still have legal custody, decision[-]making, and access to records etc. I do have all my rights".
24. The Parent emailed the Resource Teacher and the Principal on November 3, 2025 and asked why the Student was not in class on the "21st and on the 31st and went [sic] was I not notified? I STILL HAVE PARENTAL RIGHTS [emphasis added]". The Principal replied that day and indicated the Student was at school all day "on the 31st".
25. The Parent emailed the Resource Teacher and the Principal on November 6, 2025 and indicated they planned to drop off clothes for the Student that day or the next. The Principal forwarded the email to the School Resource Officer and said, "I know [the Parent] is not allowed to see [the Student]. [The School Resource Officer] - will you let front office staff know to contact you if [the Parent] requests to do so?"
    a. The School Resource Officer replied, "I called [the Parent] and advised [them] that the current order prevents [them] from being at the school. [The Parent] did not agree with me and was not very happy, but [they] did make it sound like [they] would not be coming up here, at least until after the next hearing date."
26. The Parent emailed the Principal and the Resource Teacher on November 11, 2025 and explained the temporary orders were lifted, and the judge had stated the orders never included the Student. The Parent expressed that the School was keeping them away from the Student.
27. The Parent emailed the Principal and several other LEA staff members on November 19, 2025 asking where the Student was. The Assistant Principal replied within minutes and indicated the Student had two excused absences earlier that week, but was at the School that day. 28. The Resource Teacher emailed the Parent on December 11, 2025 and provided an update on the Student's grades, classwork, and behavior. The Resource Teacher offered for the Parent to reach out if they wanted to discuss anything. The Parent replied that day and indicated the LEA had not included them in the Student's education for the past four months.
29. A PWN, dated December 11, 2025, listed both the Parent and the Other Parent as the Student's guardians. It indicated the PWN was emailed on December 12, 2025. The Other Parent signed the PWN on December 12, 2025, and the Parent signed it on December 15, 2025.
30. According to an undated timeline, on December 12, 2025, the Resource Teacher emailed the Parent and offered to schedule an IEP team meeting to discuss the Student's progress.
31. An email exchange between the Nurse and the Parent contained the following relevant information:

    b. December 17, 2025 - the Parent asked if the Student had enough medication for the remainder of the semester. The Nurse replied within 15 minutes and indicated the Student had enough medication.
    c. January 8, 2026 - the Parent asked the Nurse if the Student received their medication for the upcoming month. The Nurse replied five minutes later and stated they received it.
    d. February 11 and 17, 2026 - the Parent asked if the Student had enough medication.
    e. February 17, 2026 - the Principal replied and explained there was no school the previous Thursday and Friday, or that Monday, so this was the first day the Nurse could check on the status of the Student's medication. The Principal stated the Student had enough medication for 11-12 days. The Parent replied, "I probably would've known there was no school if I had not been removed from ALL [emphasis added] the automatic email lists."
32. On December 16, 2025, the School Psychologist emailed the Resource Teacher and the Special Services Coordinator and stated they sent the Student's IEP and a PWN via an electronic document signing service on September 24, 2025 and both parents signed it. They stated a final copy was sent to both parents on September 26, 2025.
33. The Parent emailed the Principal, the Resource Teacher, the School Counselor, and the Assistant Principal on January 2, 2026 and explained they possibly needed to adjust the Student's IEP meeting because there were still restrictions "about being around [the Other Parent]". The Parent said, "I would like the full IEP meeting with me scheduled please."

a. The Principal replied on January 5, 2026 and indicated the team was still planning to meet and would ask the Student if they wanted to attend. They explained the purpose of the meeting was to discuss any concerns the team had about the Student's upcoming second semester, graduation, and meeting their IEP goals.

b. The Parent replied and said, "Is [the Other Parent] a part of that meeting? If so, I can not be there without going to jail. … Again, intentionally making it complicated for me to [be] involved."

c. On January 6, 2026, the Principal replied, "We called this meeting based on your stated concerns from first semester. [The Other Parent] will not be in the meeting and we will send a pass for [the Student] to be included … . We will make note of your concerns on Thursday and schedule an IEP team meeting, if needed."

d. The Parent replied the next day and stated the School "incorrectly cut" them out of the Student's life and incorrectly enforced a protection order. The Principal responded and asked the Parent if they still wanted to hold the meeting scheduled for the following day. The Parent replied that they did.

e. The Resource Teacher emailed the Parent on January 8, 2026 at 8:29 a.m. and said, "We held our meeting this [a.m.] via [virtually] at 8am [sic]. We stayed on until 8:23 a[.]m. [The Student] was present for this meeting." The Resource Teacher described what was discussed, including the Student's classes and educational status. The Parent replied, "I sent [the Student] messages asking [them] if [they] wanted me to be there. [They] never answered. I took that to mean [they] did not want me there." A few hours later, the Parent wrote, "As I told [the Student], I don't have [their] consent or permission to be a part of [their] life. I have not been permitted by the school to be a part of [their] life." Notes from an undated timeline also stated the IEP team held the meeting on January 8, 2026 and the Parent did not attend, nor did the Parent communicate they would not be attending.

34. The Parent emailed the Resource Teacher, the Principal, the School Counselor, the Assistant Principal, the Special Services Coordinator, and the School Psychologist on January 8, 2026 at 11:14 a.m. and asked if the Student received their coat and warm clothes. The Parent emailed the Resource Teacher, the Principal, the School Counselor, the Assistant Principal, the Special Services Coordinator, and the School Psychologist on January 8, 2026 at 11:21 a.m. and said, "… you acted in [the Student's] best interests when you improperly enforced that protection order … ." The Parent emailed the same group less than two hours later and asked how to request a copy of the Student's records. The Principal replied the next day with contact information for records requests. The Parent emailed the Principal on January 9, 2026 and asked how to get information about the Student's mental health referral to an outside agency. On January 14, 2026, the Principal clarified the Student had one session with the LEA's mental health provider, and the School could provide the referral and session notes upon request. They included the provider's phone number.

36. The Parent sent an email to an unidentified recipient on January 11, 2026 and requested a copy of the Student's school records. The Parent emailed the Student Services Specialist on January 13, 2026 and asked if their email had been received and what the process was to pick up the records. The Student Services Specialist replied that day the Parent's request had been received and the records would be collected and available for pick-up at the Education Center. They advised the Parent that FERPA allowed 45 days for the records to be provided. The Student Services Specialist told the Parent they would be advised as to when the request was processed. The Student Services Specialist later clarified the records were emailed to the Parent.
    There was another reply to the Parent on January 13, 2026 from a representative with Special Services for student records. They advised the Parent they required a signed release of information to send special education records. They informed the Parent they would receive an email with a form to sign, and once it was processed, the documents would be sent to them within two to five school days. The representative emailed the Parent five special education records for the Student on January 14, 2026.
37. The Parent emailed the Principal, the School Psychologist, the Special Services Coordinator, the Resource Teacher, the School Counselor, and the Assistant Principal on January 27, 2026 and explained all restrictions for contact between them and the Other Parent were lifted and they wanted to reschedule the meeting they could not attend. The Parent indicated the School "… went ahead with the meeting without me, after I explained why I could not attend … ."
38. The Parent emailed the Principal, the Resource Teacher, and several others on January 28, 2026 at 11:34 a.m. and said, "Silence is being interpreted as a refusal on [the School's] part to provide information regarding [the Student]". One hour later, the Principal responded, "… let me know when a good time would be to call you and at what number so we can discuss setting up another meeting time." The Parent replied two days later, "I do not trust you".
39. The Principal emailed the Parent on February 5, 2026 and explained they were planning to meet on February 10, 2026 to discuss the Student's educational progress, if the Parent still wanted to have the meeting.
40. In an email dated February 9, 2026 to the KSDE Dispute Resolution Coordinator, the Parent stated they had a "make up" IEP meeting at the School the next morning.
41. The IEP team met on February 10, 2026 to discuss the Student's needs, progress, and accommodations. Meeting participants included the School Psychologist, the School Counselor, the Resource Teacher, the Principal, the Special Services Coordinator, the Student, and the Parent. The Resource Teacher indicated the Student was "doing great..

They also explained the Student expressed interest in working and possibly applying to the military. The Parent was asked if they had any concerns. The Parent stated they had "not been permitted to be involved enough to even know what to address. … Since I've not been allowed to be involved in any of the planning process, despite having parental rights, despite FERPA, despite all of it, there was a unilateral decision made by [the LEA] to side with [the Other Parent]." The Parent expressed they should have been allowed to be involved in the Student's education.

42. The Parent emailed unidentified recipient(s) on February 10, 2026 and stated they were removed from all of the LEA's email lists when the LEA enforced the protection order. The Parent emailed the Principal on February 16, 2026 and asked if they had been added back to the School's email list and who had them removed. The Parent asserted they had the right "this entire time" to be involved. The Principal emailed the Parent on February 23, 2026 and explained the IT department had corrected the error and the Parent should start receiving the School's weekly newsletters.
43. The Principal emailed the Parent on February 18, 2026 and stated the Parent could come to the School and talk to the Nurse about the Student's medication. The Principal said, "You are marked as having educational rights and mailing rights in our system. Thus, you should be receiving our weekly communication that shared conference times and dates. I have our IT looking into why you are not and we will get this rectified."
44. The Student Services Specialist emailed the Parent the Student's records on February 20, 2026 and stated special education documentation was sent on January 14, 2026.
45. On February 24, 2026, the Psychologist emailed the Parent the record of the referral of mental health services made for the Student.

48. Relevant information from a Temporary Order of Protection from Stalking included:

a. The Other Parent was the plaintiff and the "protected person"."The Parent was the defendant.
b. The temporary order would remain in effect until service of the final order or terminated by the court.

e. The order was electronically signed by a judge on October 28, 2025.

Parent Interview

49. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent stated they have legal custody, parental, and educational rights for the Student. They indicated they provided documentation to the LEA. They shared the Student currently lived with the Other Parent and the Other Parent had "residential custody". The Parent asserted prior to the Student living solely with the Other Parent, they were "the only one involved. I did everything."
50. The Parent stated the LEA informed them about IEP meetings through email. They reported they had access to the Student's educational information thru [ParentVue] and had received copies of the Student's educational records. The Parent believed the educational records they received were incomplete because the LEA's copy of the protection order between themself and the Other Parent was not included.
51. The Parent asserted they were "intentionally left out, meaning there were conversations regardless of how many times I restated and provided documentation showing that I still had legal custody … and … equal decision-making rights." The Parent believed the LEA was "active in excluding me to the point where there was no way for me to be involved in anything." They specifically referenced court-ordered counseling for the Student, and claimed it proceeded "without me being involved in that decision". The Parent stated the LEA did not reply to emails regarding the therapy on September 22, and September 30, 2025. They claimed their communication with the LEA was "restricted and filtered" by and through the Executive Director of Safety Services.
52. The Parent indicated the first meeting they had with the LEA in August 2025 was not an official IEP meeting. They stated they attended through video call and could not recall the date of the meeting. They reported the Other Parent did not provide IEP documents to the LEA, therefore the Parent provided those after the video meeting in August 2025. They indicated the exchange was "just before school started".

53. Regarding an email sent on August 19, 2025, the Parent clarified the statement "withdrew consent for everything" referred to allowing the Other Parent to have full physical custody of the Student, not revoking the Student's special education services.
54. The Parent stated in a phone call on August 20, 2025, the Executive Director of Safety Services told the Parent the Student "would be better off if I just stopped trying to see [them]."
55. The Parent reported they attended an official IEP meeting for the Student in "August or September". They explained "they had to do the new [IEP] because it was a new school."
56. The Parent claimed they were removed from LEA email lists by the Executive Director of Safety Services and "suddenly just stopped getting emails" around October 2025. They reported they asked several times to be re-added, stating "I don't know what all I've missed because I stopped getting everything." The Parent was specifically upset the LEA did not inform them of a three-day excused absence for the Student. They asserted they were re-added to the LEA email lists "since this investigation started" in February 2026. The Parent shared they stopped regularly checking email between October 2025 and December 2025.
57. The Parent reported "I finally got an email at the end or beginning of December about [the Student's] bad behavior." They requested to meet with the LEA, and the LEA scheduled the meeting for January 8, 2026. The Parent believed the Student's current academic and behavior struggles were "because I was not allowed to be involved or included in anything" between October 2025 and December 2025.
58. The Parent believed the January 8, 2026 virtual meeting was an official IEP meeting. They reported they did not attend the meeting because they requested the Other Parent not attend, and, despite assurances from the LEA, did not trust either the LEA or the Other Parent to fulfill the request. The meeting was rescheduled to February 10, 2026. The Parent expressed "it took them a long time to end up responding to me[.]" They described "a long time" as "days, maybe a week."
59. The Parent reported they attended the in-person February 10, 2026 meeting. They believed the February 10, 2026 meeting was "staged. Everybody had already done all the things and it was just kind of put on for me."
60. The Parent stated they were "not included in any of the parent-teacher conference scheduling that happened at semester." They asserted "I've been excluded from the act of participation as I should have been in [their] education."

Principal Interview

61. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Principal indicated the 2025-26 school year was the Student's first year in the LEA. They stated the Parent claimed the Student was enrolled without their permission. The Principal confirmed the Other Parent enrolled the Student in the LEA. They explained the Parent's last name was spelled wrong on the enrollment. The Principal stated the LEA fixed the file as soon as the Parent alerted the LEA to the error.

62. The Principal confirmed the Parent maintained parental and educational rights. They reported "we continued to keep them up to date with any information." The Principal reported the Parent had access to the Student's grades, assignments, graduation credits, immunization records, progress reports and IEP through [ParentVue]. They explained each parent had a specific "parent access report" the LEA could review. The Principal stated the LEA enforced a protection order by not allowing the Parent physical contact with the Student at school while the order was in place. They asserted the protection order did not change the Parent's access to the Student's educational records.
63. The Principal reported the LEA held a meeting with the Parent on August 19, 2025 to discuss the Parent's concerns with the Student's enrollment in the LEA. They stated themself, the Parent, the School Counselor, and the Executive Director of Safety Services participated. The Principal stated it was not an IEP meeting, because the LEA was not aware the Student had an IEP at the time. Subsequently, they scheduled a transition meeting.
64. The Principal shared they had received "187 emails before December" from the Parent. They stated "It's been everything from academic concerns to social emotional concerns to does [the Student] have [their] basic needs met." The Principal shared around January 2026, emails from the Parent became "very harassing. … the incessant nature of the emails being sent at sometimes two in the morning, four in the morning to my whole team … [.]" They reported "I wanted communication to come primarily through myself" and began filtering the Parent's emails.
65. The Principal reported the Resource Teacher emailed the Parent when the LEA became concerned about the Student failing two classes. The Parent responded to that email with their own concerns. The Principal scheduled a virtual meeting because the Parent expressed they did not want to physically be at the School. The Parent also requested the Other Parent not participate. The Principal and the Other Parent honored the request. The Student was also invited to attend. The meeting was held as scheduled. The team, including the Student, waited 23 minutes, and the Parent did not log on. The Principal reported the team took the time to ask the Student about their experience, and the Student reported they were doing well and liked school. The Resource Teacher sent an email summation of the meeting to the Parent.
66. The Principal reported the parent meeting was rescheduled for February 10, 2026. They stated the Parent attended in person, and the purpose of the meeting was "to share a progress update and … give [the Parent] a chance to share any concerns … about [the Student's] academic progress." During the meeting, the team discussed the Student's academic performance and how to be on track for graduation. The Principal indicated the School Counselor discussed the Student's plans after high school. They reported the Parent was asked if they had any other topics or concerns they wanted to discuss. According to the Principal, the Parent replied they did not, and then walked out of the meeting.

Special Services Coordinator Interview

67. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Special Services Coordinator stated their first interaction with the Parent was the September 2025 IEP meeting. They confirmed the Parent's parental and educational rights were intact and indicated the LEA "had been very communicative" with the Parent. The Special Services Coordinator stated their role was to support the team in responding to the Parent's requests, particularly when the Parent's communication style changed. They indicated the LEA continually provided educational information to the Parent.
68. The Special Services Coordinator reported the meeting on February 10, 2026 was "not quite 15 minutes long[.]" They stated the team "made sure [the Parent] had multiple opportunities to state [their] concerns, and [the Parent] took the final minute … to bare grievances about [their] participation[.]" The Special Services Coordinator indicated the Parent "made the meeting about [the Parent] as opposed to [the Student]." They expressed the communication with the Parent was "difficult".
69. Regarding parent participation, the Special Services Coordinator reported "participation has been in line with [the Parent's] rights as an educational decision maker. [They've] been invited and participated in official IEP meetings. Multiple attempts have been made to better understand [the] concerns that [they] might have." They confirmed the Parent "had unfettered access to all of the documentation of the day-to-day as it goes as far as ParentView, grades, progress … . And [the Parent has] accessed that 311 times."

Resource Teacher Interview

70. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Resource Teacher indicated they communicated with the Parent through email. They stated the Parent "emailed quite a bit. Continues to email quite a bit." The Resource Teacher reported they included the Parent on all emails to the Other Parent. They stated they told the Parent they could communicate about "anything school related".
71. The Resource Teacher confirmed the Parent had legal custody of the Student, parental and educational rights, and access to all educational records. They reported the Parent attended and participated in the IEP meeting on September 24, 2025.
72. The Resource Teacher stated the Parent expressed academic concerns for the Student, and requested a meeting. The meeting was scheduled for January 8, 2026. The Resource Teacher reported the meeting was virtual, and the Parent did not attend. They indicated the meeting was not an IEP meeting, rather a parent information meeting.
73. The Resource Teacher reported the team rescheduled the parent information meeting for February 10, 2026. The Parent attended in person, and the meeting was audio recorded.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #233, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, included the Parent in IEP meetings and allowed them access to information about the Student's education and the ability to participate in it. K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b)(1)(c)(e), K.AR. 91-40-25; 34 CFR §§ 300.322(a)(b)(1)(f), 300.501(b)(c).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17(a)(b)(1)(c)(e) and 34 CFR §§ 300.322(a)(b)(1)(f),300.501(b)(c), to ensure parental involvement, each agency must take steps to have one or both parents of an exceptional child present at every IEP team meeting or at least provide them with the opportunity to participate. This process involves scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and providing a formal notice that specifies the purpose, time, and location of the meeting, along with the titles or positions of all agency representatives and any transition service representatives attending. If a parent is unable to be physically present, the agency must attempt other measures to ensure their participation, such as through individual or conference telephone calls. Ultimately, an agency may only conduct an IEP team meeting without a parent if they have documented repeated, unsuccessful attempts to contact them or to convince them to participate.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25, each agency must provide parents of an exceptional child the opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meetings regarding their child's identification, evaluation, or educational placement, as well as the provision of a free appropriate public education (FAPE). As used in this regulation, a meeting shall not include informal or unscheduled conversations involving agency personnel and conversations on issues including teaching methodology, lesson plans, or coordination of service provision if those issues are not addressed in the child's IEP; and preparatory activities that agency personnel engage in to develop a proposal or response to a parent's proposal that will be discussed at a later meeting.

According to the Parent, who held joint legal custody of the Student, the LEA had improperly enforced a protective order that did not include the Student, thereby preventing the Parent from attending IEP meetings and participating in educational decision-making. Furthermore, the Parent claimed their repeated requests for information regarding the Student's education had been ignored. According to the Parent, these actions had negatively impacted the Student's education, future, and parental relationship.

The LEA maintained the Parent had legal custody of the Student, parental and educational rights, and access to all educational records. The LEA maintained the Protection Order included the Student, a conclusion reached following a review by staff counsel and the Olathe Police Department's School Resource Officer. The order prohibits the Parent from entering the premises or workplace of the Protected Person or any household members, including the Student. It did not prevent access to student records. Despite these restrictions, the LEA had ensured the Parent's continued involvement in the Student's education. Specifically, the Parent participated in the September 24, 2025, IEP meeting and continues to receive all required notices. Most recently, on December 15, 2025, the Parent signed her consent for an IEP amendment following a Prior Written Notice regarding a clerical error.

According to Kansas and the IDEA regulations, to ensure parental involvement, each agency must take steps to have one or both parents of an exceptional child present at every IEP team meeting or at least provide them with the opportunity to participate. When the Parent had concerns about the Student failing two classes the Principal arranged a virtual meeting without the Other Parent, with the Other Parent's consent, and met only with the Parent. The Parent meeting, after being rescheduled, was held on February 10, 2026. The Parent attended the session in person, the purpose of the meeting was "to share a progress update and … give [the Parent] a chance to share any concerns … about [the Student's] academic progress." The Parent had no concerns and left the meeting. Multiple attempts had been made to better understand the Parent's concerns by the LEA.

Following the enforcement of a protection order, the Parent emailed unidentified recipients on February 10, 2026, and the Principal on February 16, 2026, to report their removal from all district email lists and to assert their ongoing right to be involved. During this correspondence, the Parent sought clarification on who had authorized their removal and confirmed whether their access had been restored. On February 23, 2026, the Principal explained that the IT department had corrected the error and verified that the Parent would resume receiving weekly school newsletters.

The School's Student Information System, ParentView, indicated that the Parent had active "push note" notifications for attendance, discipline, and grades following the activation of a key valid from August to December 2025. Records further established that while both parents held educational and contact rights, only the Other Parent was officially marked as having legal custody. A Parent Access Report showed the Parent successfully accessed information 311 times from August 13, 2025, through February 17, 2026.

Conclusion:

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to include the Parent in IEP meetings and allowed them access to information about the Student's education and the ability to participate in it.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the Complaint on February 9, 2026, and the 30-day timeline ended on March 11, 2026.

Allegations

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), implemented the Student's Individualized Education Program (IEP) with fidelity, specifically regarding behavioral supports and adult-led de-escalation strategies, rather than relying on compliance-based management and "power struggles". K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3)(4-5), K.A.R. 91-40-19(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(a)(d).

K.A.R. 91-40-16(a), K.A.R. 91-40-18(b), K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b).

ISSUE THREE: Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Student a free appropriate public education (FAPE), specifically regarding the impact of disciplinary removals, including the February 6, 2026, in-school suspension (ISS), and the loss of instructional access resulting from IEP non-implementation and associated dysregulation and elopement. K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d), K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 CFR §§ 300.17, 300.101(a)(c).

Background Information

This investigation involved a middle-school student enrolled at a Middle School in USD #266. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability under the category of Emotional Disability (ED) per the IDEA. The Student received special education services in the general education classroom until December 2025, when the team added a support class in the special education setting. The Student's strengths include good people skills, communication, cooking, and organization.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. On January 8, 2024, an evaluation report for the Student indicated the Student demonstrated "significant problems" with aggression, conduct problems, and hyperactivity according to the Parent's responses on the Behavior Assessment System for Children, Third Edition (BASC-3) rating scales. The classroom teacher's responses indicated the Student struggled with aggression, study skills, adaptability, depression, and conduct problems. According to the report, aggression was considered one of the Student's "most significant behavioral and emotional problems." It added, the Student had a tendency to become "irritable quickly" and had difficulty maintaining "self-control when faced with adversity." Additionally, the report noted the Student tended to react negatively to changes in everyday activities or routines and had difficulty overcoming stress and adversity. The Student had documented difficulties maintaining self-control and regulating impulsive behaviors.

2. On December 19, 2024, an IEP for the Student was developed, which included the following information:
    a. The Student did not have social-emotional needs that required special education or related services.
        i. The IEP indicated the Student could become frustrated and upset at peers and adults in unstructured settings. It was recommended adults follow the Student's Instructional Control Scale (ICS), which was included in the IEP.
            1. During the instructional control stage, the Student's behavior looked like working on school work and exhibiting expected behaviors.
                a. The supportive response included allowing space and providing positive praise.
                b. Things to avoid included interfering with academic progress and offering unwanted or unnecessary adult support.
            2. During the anxiety stage, the Student's behavior looked like questioning authority, fidgeting with their hair, and avoidance behaviors.
                a. The supportive response included offering a movement break, using a calm tone, first-then reminders, and removing the Student from peers to talk through the situation.
                b. Things to avoid included scolding the Student or providing negative feedback.
            3. During the defensive stage, the Student's behavior looked like avoidance, swearing, and/or arguing with authority or peers.
                a. The supportive response included allowing the Student to express their emotions, use a non-verbal gesture to initiate a break, and use first-then reminders.
                b. Things to avoid include interrupting the Student while they are expressing their feelings, and scolding the Student for swearing, cussing, or arguing.
            4. During the risk-behavior stage, the Student's behaviors looked like fighting with peers and eloping from the classroom.

a. The supportive measures included allowing the Student to explain their perception of what happened, to take a break, and to de-escalate in a private area.
b. Things to avoid include getting into a power struggle or insisting on information, and using a harsh tone or scolding the Student.

5. During the tension-reduction stage, the Student's behaviors looked like rational communication.
    a. Supportive measures included positive praise and acknowledging expected behaviors.
    b. Things to avoid included holding a grudge or being upset about poor decisions the Student made.

b. The Student had reading needs that required special education services, which included reminders to turn in homework and an extra adult to support reading tasks. The Student's impact was described as deficits in vocabulary and reading comprehension. The Student's reading needs would be met through accommodations.
c. The Student had daily living/functional skills needs that required special education services and included needing reminders to gather necessary tasks when absent from school, or when they don't complete tasks in class. The Student's needs in these areas would be met through accommodations and a goal.
d. The Parent stated they were concerned the Student did not have a behavior plan. They added the Student frequently texted the Parent to ask to be picked up to avoid getting into fights. The team agreed to using the ICS in place of a behavior plan.
e. The Student's goal stated:
    i. "By the next annual IEP, when provided weekly check-ins and self-monitoring tools, [the Student] will have no more than 1 missing assignment across all subjects on 4 out of 5 check-ins."
f. The Student's special education and related services section indicated they would receive special education services for English Language Arts (ELA) in the general education classroom in a general education building daily for the same duration as general education peers receive instruction." It also indicated the Student would have special education services for weekly check-ins in the general education classroom, one time per week, for the amount of time needed to check grades and for missing assignments.
g. Accommodations included extended time, the ability to complete independent work and assignments in a less distracting environment, texts read aloud, a copy of notes, access to movement breaks, speech to text application on their computer, and homework check-ins.

   h. Supports for school personnel stated adults working with the Student would be familiar with the ICS found in the social-emotional section of the IEP.
   i. The Student did not require Extended School Year (ESY) services.
3. On March 14, 2025, the Student's Progress Report indicated the Student struggled with absences that quarter. The Student had 6 to 15 missing assignments at the time of check-ins. They received a score of "slight regression."
4. On May 21, 2025, the Student's Progress Report indicated they struggled to recover academically due to frequent absences. The Student had 5 to 12 missing assignments at the time of the check-ins. They received a score of "slight improvement."
5. On October 15, 2025, the Student's progress report indicated they maintained performance toward their goal of having no more than one missing assignment across all subjects. The comments noted the Student's attendance significantly impacted their assignment completion and grades, especially in morning classes, as the Student frequently arrived late.
6. On November 7, 2025, a Notice of Meeting was emailed to the Parent, who picked it up at the office. The notice stated a meeting was scheduled on December 18, 2025, for the Student to discuss possible changes to and to conduct an annual review of the Student's IEP.
7. On December 10, 2025, the Case Manager shared the ICS with teachers who worked with the Student and asked for updates and feedback.
8. On December 17, 2025, the Student's progress report indicated the Student had "moderate regression" toward their IEP goal of having no more than one missing assignment across all subjects. The comments noted the Student's attendance continued to significantly impact their assignment completion and grades, especially in morning classes. The Student had 8 to 19 assignments missing when check-ins were conducted.
9. On December 18, 2025, an IEP for the Student was developed, which included the following information:
   a. Transition-related strengths such as good people skills, communication, cooking, and organization.
   b. The Student had not yet earned any credits toward the required 28 to graduate.
   c. The Student required special education services in a general education classroom for English Language Arts (ELA), science, and social studies.
   d. The Student did not require any related services.
   e. The Student had behaviors that impeded their education or that of others.
   f. The Student had needs in the area of social-emotional, which included:
      i. Self-regulation, engagement, accountability, and understanding how their anxiety and emotions impacted their ability to follow school rules.
      ii. Additional support in less structured settings.
      iii. Instruction in self-advocacy and responsibility for missed work.

iv. Strategies to increase motivation and engagement.

g. The Student's ICS did not change from the previous IEP.

h. The Student's social-emotional needs would be met through accommodations.

i. The Student had needs in the area of written language that required special education, and the needs would be met through accommodations. Supplementary aids and services, and a goal.

j. The Student had needs in daily living/functional skills that required special education, and the needs would be met through accommodations and a goal.

k. The Parent indicated they agreed the Student needed a study skills support to help make up missing assignments. They also expressed concern that the IEP may not accurately reflect the Student's behavioral and emotional regulation challenges.

l. The Student's goals included:

   i. "By the next annual IEP, when provided weekly check-ins and self-monitoring tools, [the Student] will have no more than 5 missing assignment[s] across all subjects on 4 out of 5 check-ins."

   ii. "By the next annual IEP, when given a writing prompt and access to a keyboard, [the Student] will write at least 5 complete sentences using correct capitalization, punctuation, and spelling with 75% accuracy."

m. The Student's special education and related services section indicated they would receive special education services for ELA, science, and social studies in the general education classroom in a general education building daily, for the same duration as general education peers receive their instruction.

n. Accommodations included extended time, access to a separate quiet environment away from distractions, access to read-alouds, a copy of notes, and movement breaks.

o. Support for school personnel indicated adults working with the Student would become familiar with the Student's ICS, which was located in the IEP.

p. The data was not indicative of the Student needing ESY services.

10. On December 18, 2025, IEP Notes stated the Student had frequent absences and tardies, which affected their academic performance. The Parent indicated the Student had concerns with using the bathroom at school for bowel movements and called the Parent to pick them up when they needed to go. The team discussed the Student using the restroom in the nurse's office for privacy.
    The Parent agreed the Student needed study skills to make up missed work. The team indicated missing work due to absences was affecting the Student's academic performance. The Case Manager indicated they had already spoken to the Student about adding study skills, and the Student had agreed. The team agreed to update the ICS with "helpful supports" the team had discussed.
11. A PWN dated December 18, 2025, indicated the following:

a. The IEP team met that day to review data, the Student's IEP, and placement. It stated the Student would receive special education in the general education classroom for ELA, science, and social studies, and would have study skills in a special education classroom.
b. The team updated the ICS.
c. A section dated January 12, 2026, stated the Parent consented to the addition of study skills services in a special education classroom for the same amount of time as the Student's general education peers. Consent was not given for the Student to receive special education services in a general education classroom for science and social studies for the same amount of time as their general education peers. The Parent declined to add inclusion services for the Student in science and social studies.
d. A section dated January 21, 2026, stated the Student would receive special education transportation services to and from school to help support social-emotional challenges. It also stated the Student would receive special education services in a general education classroom for science and social studies for the same amount of time as their general education peers. Lastly, it stated the Student would receive study skills in "a special education classroom in a general education classroom."
e. A section dated January 30, 2026, indicated consent was only being given for the Student to receive special education services for science and social studies in a general education classroom in a general education building for the same amount of time as their general education peers. The Legal Education Decision Maker (LEDM) rejected specialized transportation and special education services for study skills.
f. The PWN indicated the notice was first emailed to the Parent on December 19, 2025. The notice was emailed to the Parent on January 8, 2026, and on January 23, 202[6].

12. On December 19, the Case Manager emailed the Parent a copy of the IEP and the ICS. They noted the Student would have study skills, and the related services section was updated to reflect that change. They confirmed they needed the Parent's signature on the consent form prior to making the changes.
13. On December 19, 2025, the Parent emailed the Case Manager to explain that, after reviewing the Student's current IEP, they requested it be revised to "more accurately" reflect the documented impact of the Student's behavioral regulation challenges on the Student's access to learning. The Parent noted they did not agree with the IEP statement indicating the Student's behavior did not impede their learning, citing the IEP, which listed missed instructional time, disciplinary removals, difficulty with regulation and transitions, and impact on academic performance. The Parent stated the IEP described how the Student performed well when present and also documented inconsistent engagement, difficulty requesting help in certain settings, attention challenges in less-structured environments, frequent redirection, missed instructional time, and incomplete work.

The Parent requested the IEP be revised to reflect how behavioral regulation challenges intermittently impede the Student's access to learning. They also reported concerns with the Student's ICP in relation to using a seat change, which was a known trigger that led to dysregulation, elopement, or shutdown. The Parent indicated this method of discipline created predictable escalation and directly undermined the purpose of the ICP, which was to prevent escalation.

The Parent then addressed the lack of feedback regarding the ICP and expressed concern that the plan was not being "consistently implemented during times when [the Student] was dysregulated." The Parent asked the Case Manager to revise the IEP to "accurately reflect" the impact of the Student's behavioral and regulation challenges on their access to learning, avoid attributing academic impact solely on attendance and missing work, and clarify the importance of consistent implementation of the ICP to include avoidance of known triggers as consequences.

14. On January 8, 2026, the Parent emailed the Case Manager and the Middle School Principal to follow up on their request to revise the IEP. They indicated they had not received a revised draft.

    The School Psychologist replied to the Parent that day and indicated they updated portions of the IEP to include changes that did not require parent consent, including:

    a. Updating the social-emotional section to reflect additional parent concerns that were expressed after the meeting.
    b. Updating the support for school personnel to reflect quarterly training for staff instead of annually, and when new staff are hired.
    c. Updating parental concerns to reflect the Parent's additional concerns.

    The School Psychologist added they needed the Parent's consent to add study skills to the Student's schedule and stated they would resend the PWN to the Parent for their signature.

    The Parent replied, stating the revisions did not reflect the "substantive changes" they requested. They asked to have their input removed verbatim. They requested the "school-authored sections" of the IEP, including present levels, to be revised to reflect the impact of the Student's disability. They added the draft IEP contained internal inconsistencies between "identified needs and the supports/services checked or described."

    The Middle School Principal responded to the Parent on January 9, 2026, stating school-sourced input on the IEP could not be adjusted because it was gathered from practitioners based on the data, and the School would remove the Parent input from the document as requested. The Principal stated, "As we have mentioned, we would like to arrange a meeting to make these adjustments and additions on the [sic] behalf of [the Student]. This meeting can be completed with your attendance virtually or by phone if that is beneficial."

    The Parent responded they requested communication regarding the Student's IEP take place in writing via email. They confirmed they were not refusing to participate in the IEP process and were requesting written communication to ensure clarity, accuracy, and appropriate documentation. They stated they were awaiting a revised IEP draft that addressed their concerns and requested changes. The Parent asked that, if the team disagreed with any requested revisions, they provide a PWN indicating so, along with the reasons and supporting data.

15. On January 12, 2026, the Parent emailed the Middle School Principal regarding "ongoing attendance issues" in the Student's FACS class. The Parent stated they had given permission to move the Student from that class to a study skills class, but it hadn't been implemented yet due to an administrative delay. The Parent shared the Student had received four tardies during that class and indicated the Student had expected to be attending a different class, which was causing "increased frustration".

    The Middle School Principal replied to the Parent to state they were unable to begin special education services for the Student in the area of study skills until they had consent via the PWN.

16. On January 13, 2026, the School Psychologist emailed the Parent a revised consent form to allow the Student to attend the study skills class. The Parent responded they were waiting to sign until the pending clarification and revision questions regarding the IEP and PWN were resolved. They stated once the documentation reflected the limited consent "clearly and consistently," they would respond promptly.

    The Middle School Principal emailed the School Psychologist to share they had emailed the Parent twice, requesting an in-person meeting to better understand their concerns.

17. On January 22, 2026, the School Psychologist emailed the Parent a draft copy of the IEP. The Parent replied on January 23, 2026, requesting "several concerns" be addressed before they would provide consent to the proposed changes. The Parent noted the Student's baseline goal for missing assignments was 8 to 13 at a time, whereas the goals indicated no more than two at a time. They stated they felt it was not "reasonably aligned with the Student's ability and asked for the goals to be revised to show incremental progress.

    The Parent addressed the IEP, which stated the Student did not require support in ELA, and added the Student was failing the class and had several missing assignments. The Parent asked for clarification on how the IEP's wording aligned with the Student's current performance. The Parent asked for clarification on how the weekly check-ins were conducted, who was responsible for them, and how they were documented. The Parent asked for confirmation the Student's schedule would not be substantially changed by adding a study skills class, and requested the period during which it would occur and the name of the assigned teacher. They concluded by confirming they were not requesting additional school-based counseling or social work and noted the Student's needs were being met outside of school.

    On January 27, 2026, the Middle School Principal emailed the School Psychologist, the Case Manager, and the Director of Special Services to say they would reply to the Parent about the schedule change once the Parent provided consent. The Middle School Principal recommended "identifying a couple of options" for check-ins and suggested using the "EL teacher," because the Student already had a relationship with them. The Case Manager replied they also felt the "study skills teacher" would be a good option because the Student often missed the EL class. The School Psychologist replied the Student was receiving ELA services and no change to that was being proposed. They also stated the Parent could not "consent to schedules or people, only services."

18. On January 28, 2026, the Parent emailed the School Psychologist to inquire about a response to their January 23, 2026, email. They asked for a written reply regarding the status of their January 23, 2026, requests and when they could expect a written response or revised documentation. The Middle School Principal responded to the Parent on January 29, 2026, and shared the Student's revised schedule, subject to the Parent's consent. The Middle School Principal indicated services were available to the Student in science and social studies, should the Student wish to access them. The Middle School Principal then indicated transportation was offered as a support to increase the Student's attendance. They asked the Parent to provide specific verbiage they wanted reviewed on the IEP, as the team had already made three adjustments to the IEP to address parent concerns. The Middle School Principal offered a meeting with the team members to best address concerns.

    The Parent replied they did not consent to an in-person, virtual, or phone meeting at that time. They then discussed the same items they had mentioned in previous emails, including the scheduling for study skills, whether services were appropriate for science and social studies, transportation wasn't a barrier to the Student attending school, and was not required, as the Student's anxiety and avoidance behaviors were impacting their attendance. They requested a written response to their emailed concerns from January 23, 2026.

    The Middle School Principal replied the next day, indicating they would move forward without implementing study skills since consent was not given. They confirmed consent for science and social studies was provided. The Middle School Principal noted transportation services did not have parental consent and would therefore not be provided. They indicated the IEP draft had been updated and required no further changes.

19. On February 2, 2026, the Parent emailed the School Psychologist, the Middle School Principal, the Director of Special Services, and the Case Manager to state they did not consent to the determinations outlined in the PWN dated January 30, 2026, which concluded services were adequate and appropriate. They added their written concerns regarding "implementation and disability-related barriers" were not adequately addressed. The Parent added they were not consenting to the determinations in the PWN and requested communication remain in writing.
20. On February 4, 2026, the School Psychologist responded to the Parent and stated they recorded the Parent's response to the PWN in the Student's record. They added the school team remained willing to reconvene at any time to discuss the Student's needs.

21. According to an incident report dated February 6, 2026, the Assistant Principal entered a general education classroom where a substitute was present. They read the lesson plans, which indicated the Student and two peers were to go with a paraeducator to the breakout room. The Student indicated they did not want to leave the room and was told by the Assistant Principal to follow the substitute plans the teacher had left. The Student "stormed out" of the classroom, and the Assistant Principal read the substitute plans to the Student in the hall. The Assistant Principal told them they had two choices: to work in the breakout room or work in the office. The Student walked away to the "athletic entrance area."

    The Assistant Principal directed the Student to either the breakout room or the office. The Student cussed at the Assistant Principal. The Assistant Principal indicated all they did was ask the Student to choose between the two options. The Student walked away to the office. The incident report noted the Student would receive one day of ISS. The Parent was notified of the incident on the same day.

    According to video footage dated February 6, 2026, the Student was observed arriving in the hallway holding a paper. Two other students were already waiting in the hall outside the classroom. Several other students arrived and were in the hall when the Assistant Principal arrived. The Assistant Principal spoke for approximately 1 minute before the Student walked away. Video footage shows the Student walking through the halls for approximately 10 minutes with the Assistant Principal trailing slightly behind.

22. On February 6, 2026, the Parent emailed the Middle School Principal to clarify concerns regarding the implementation of the Student's IEP. The Parent indicated the Student became upset when they were removed from class without prior warning. The Student escalated and was repeatedly engaged by the administration, leading to arguments and profanity. The Parent stated those behaviors were explicitly identified in the Student's IEP under "Level 2 (Defensive/Beginning to Lose Rationality)." The IEP detailed the adult response during this stage, which included allowing the Student to express emotions regardless of language, avoiding power struggles, and focusing on de-escalation and disengagement until regulation was restored.
23. According to a 2024-25 school year report card, the Student received a C for the third quarter and a D- for the fourth quarter of ELA. The report card indicated the Student has eight excused absences, 18 unexcused absences, and 20 tardies.
24. According to a 2025-26 school year report card, the Student received a D+ in ELA for quarter one and an F for quarter two. The report card indicated the Student had two excused absences, two and a half unexcused absences, and 58 tardies.
25. On February 6, 2026, the Parent filed the complaint.
26. On February 9, 2026, a Notice of Meeting was emailed to the Parent by the Case Manager indicating a meeting had been scheduled for February 24, 2026, to discuss possible changes to the Student's IEP and to develop postsecondary goals.

27. On February 9, 2026, the Middle School Principal emailed the Student's teachers to notify them the Student would be in ISS for the rest of the day and the following day through "2nd hour."
28. According to an Attendance Report dated February 9, 2026, the Student missed their zero and first hour blocks due to tardiness or unexcused absences almost daily. A pattern of beginning-of–the-day absences was documented. Between February 17, 2025 and February 9, 2026, the Student had at least one absence or period tardy every day.
29. According to an undated Forced-Choice Reinforcement Menu, the Student self-rated their preference as independent rewards, then consumable rewards, and then peer approval. Adult approval was rated the second lowest, and competitive approval scored zero points, indicating the Student never chose that option on the survey.
30. According to a Student Discipline Report dated February 12, 2026, the Student had 15 behavior incidents during the 2025-26 school year. Offences included five referrals for tardiness, two referrals for disrespect, five referrals for not being in an assigned area, one referral for unacceptable behavior, one referral for failure to comply, and one titled "misc" for excessive Tardy Kiosk Entries (TKI)s.
31. On February 24, 2026, the Parent submitted a reply to the LEA's response, stating the Parent requested the IEP be updated to include clarification that attendance and tardiness were disability-related barriers connected to anxiety and avoidance. Additionally, they requested written clarification of "re-engagement procedures: when the Student was late, absent, or experiencing anxiety-related avoidance."

    The Parent concluded that, while the LEA issued multiple PWNs and proposed services and scheduling changes, the IEP was not revised, and the Parent did not receive a PWN formally refusing the requested revisions.
32. On February 27, 2026, the Parent submitted a written response to follow up after their interview. The Parent explained the Student escalated verbally, which included cussing, when they felt confronted or overwhelmed. They added, other times, the Student eloped to prevent escalation and regulate.
33. The Parent stated the Student's anxiety medication contributed to "morning fatigue," but they shared anxiety and avoidance were more consistent factors impacting attendance. The Parent expressed concern the IEP was missing "disability-related attendance barriers."
34. The Parent explained when the Student's supports were not implemented consistently, the Student's anxiety escalated rather than stabilized and created increased avoidance, difficulty re-engaging in class, and ongoing attendance challenges.

Parent Interview

35. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent noted another person was present during their interview.

36. The Parent stated after the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting, they reviewed the document and noticed the IEP stated the Student's behavior "does not impede [the Student's] learning." The Parent emailed the Case Manager to express their disagreement with that statement, noting the IEP stated the Student missed instructional time, had disciplinary removals, had difficulty with regulations, and transitions impacted the Student's academic performance. Additionally, the IEP documented the Student demonstrated inconsistent engagement, difficulty requesting help in certain situations, attention challenges, challenges in less-structured environments, frequent redirection, missed instructional time, and incomplete work. They wanted the impact of the Student's behavior reflected in the IEP.
37. The Parent noted concerns about the implementation of the Student's ICS. They disagreed with the School using seat changes as a behavior strategy because the plan stated "removing" the Student was a known trigger that led to dysregulation, elopement, and shutdown. Additionally, they reported a lack of feedback from classroom teachers regarding the implementation of the Student's plan, suggesting it wasn't being used.
38. The Parent recalled the Case Manager asked to schedule a meeting, and the Parent replied they wanted everything in writing instead. The Parent shared they couldn't remember how they replied to the Case Manager, but indicated they did not feel the need for a meeting and wanted to have changes in writing.
39. The Parent shared their understanding of the incident that took place on February 6, 2026, which was a summary of the incident report from that day. The Parent noted they received the discipline report from the Middle School Principal and were told the Student would have one day of ISS and services would be provided to the Student in ISS.
40. The Parent was concerned about the ISS because they felt the Student's ICS was not in effect when the Student had the incident. The Parent stated the Assistant Principal did not disengage with the Student and continued to ask the Student to make a choice. The Parent added the reason for the suspension was because the Student cussed, but confirmed the Student's plan specified the Student did so when they escalated. The Parent explained the Student became dysregulated because they were removed from the classroom when they had not done anything wrong.
41. The Parent confirmed the Middle School Principal did not respond to their concerns other than to reiterate the Student would have ISS the following day.
42. The Parent asserted the Student's problem with attendance had never been a transportation issue. The Parent noted their sibling takes the Student to school daily. The Parent confirmed the Student was late to school because they were not waking up. They added, some days it was because of anxiety and avoidance, and some days it was from a medication "hangover". The Parent stated the Student had improved their social skills since beginning the current medication, but the only impactful side effect was morning tiredness.

43. The Parent shared, because the LEA failed to implement IEP supports, the Student has discussed being stressed and saying they were "dying from stress". The Student texted the Parent these statements.

General Education Teacher 1 Interview

44. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, General Education Teacher 1 was joined by the Director of Special Services, and the Attorney for the LEA.
45. General Education Teacher 1 shared they had the Student in their first-block class since the first day of school. They noted when the Student was in class, the Student was engaged, listened, and did their work. General Education Teacher 1 added the Student was aware of assignments and their accommodations and did very well in class. They confirmed the Student had several friends and worked well in groups to complete assignments. General Education Teacher 1 described the Student as having many friends, being respectful, and generally happy. They noted the Student wanted to do well and do the work.
46. General Education Teacher 1 reported the Student missed "quite a bit of [the] first hour." They shared that, in January and February 2026, the Student was absent or tardy on 19 days. General Education Teacher 1 added the Student would often come later in the day and explained the Student had access to their assignments through the online classroom. They noted the School offered a fourth-hour block in which the Student could eat lunch and then receive assistance with schoolwork. General Education Teacher 1 shared the only explanation they heard regarding absences was the Student "just doesn't get up."
47. General Education Teacher 1 recalled being provided a paper copy of the Student's ICS and also a digital one through email. They noted it was also explained at the Student's IEP meeting. General Education Teacher 1 shared they had all the Student's accommodations in a folder so they could access it whenever they needed it.

General Education Teacher 2 Interview

48. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, General Education Teacher 2 was joined by the Director of Special Services and the Attorney for the LEA.
49. General Education Teacher 2 shared that the Student had been in their math class for the last two years, had been doing "very well," had "shown pretty good growth" on assessments, and had B and C grades throughout the year. The use of the ICS was not needed in the math class as the Student had never been "disrespectful or deviant" to the General Education Teacher 2. The Student was described as "works very, very hard in class". The Student did require breaks at times and was offered brain breaks. The Student interacted with peers "age-appropriate[ly]," and the Student missed "a lot of class" and missed "more class than normal".
50. General Education Teacher 2 was absent on February 6, 2026, and provided the Substitute Teacher with lesson plans that directed the Student to work in a "breakout room with our para[professional] and a couple of other kids." Other students from the class worked in other areas of the School for these breakouts.

Case Manager Interview

51. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Case Manager was joined by the Director of Special Services, and the Attorney for the LEA.
52. The Case manager confirmed the PWN dated December 18, 2025, was delivered to the Parent following the IEP meeting. They noted the Parent agreed to everything at the meeting but wanted to review the IEP. The following day, the Parent requested changes to the IEP. The Case Manager stated they met with the School Psychologist to make the updates. The Case Manager noted the School Psychologist shared the next two versions of the PWN with the Parent.

    The Case Manager confirmed the third date listed on the PWN was a typo and should have shown January 23, 2026, instead of 2025 as the date it was sent to the Parent.

    The Case Manager affirmed the LEDM on the PWN referred to the Parent, but added they did not type the information into the form. They confirmed the School Psychologist filled it out, and added they were not aware of anyone else who would be the LEDM for the Student.

    The Case Manager explained the PWN included changes from three different dates and confirmed they wrote the initial PWN and stated the School Psychologist had "taken over" after that.
53. The Case Manager indicated they communicated with the Parent through email, and noted the School Psychologist, the Director of Special Services, and the Middle School Principal had been responding after "things kind of escalated." The Case Manager noted the Parent had asked all communication be through email rather than over the phone. The Case Manager shared they had asked the Parent "multiple times" for a "sit-down" meeting or a phone call, but the Parent wanted everything in writing.
54. The Case Manager explained the Student didn't exhibit any behavior and added that, once at school, the Student was respectful and nice. The Case Manager indicated they did not know what the anxiety was about getting to school and noted the Student never told them.
55. The Case Manager shared the Student thrived in a structured environment and stated they noticed problems during assemblies and "things like that".
56. The Case Manager confirmed it was hard to get the Student to school, adding the Student was late "almost every day". They shared the Student rarely made it to first hour and was often late to second hour. The Case Manager reported the Student also left school frequently.
57. The Case Manager indicated they spoke with the Parent prior to the IEP meeting to problem-solve. The Parent mentioned wondering whether the Student was being bullied during their first block, but this was disproved by speaking with General Education Teacher 1 and the Student.

58. The Case Manager reported when the Student enrolled at the School, none of the classroom teachers saw a reason for a behavior plan, but the Parent was hesitant to remove the plan, so the IEP Team agreed to use an ICS instead. The Case Manager stated they developed the scale at the Student's IEP and shared it with teachers. They asked teachers for input prior to this year's IEP meeting and updated it. The Case Manager noted they had instructed teachers not to share it with the Student, but to use it if the Student was exhibiting behaviors, and noted how adults should respond.
59. The Case Manager confirmed they did not have the Student in any of their classes this school year and shared they were not called to assist if a student was exhibiting escalated behavior because they had a class of students. They noted if someone had a question, they would send a chat.

Assistant Principal Interview

60. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Principal was joined by the Director of Special Services and the Attorney for the LEA.
61. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Principal described their observations of what took place on February 6, 2026. They recalled being in the Student's class when the Student was being directed by the Substitute Teacher to a breakout room outside of the Classroom which was "a smaller quiet setting" and the Student was to work with a paraprofessional. The Student didn't want to leave the Classroom and was offered a choice of the breakroom or the office to complete their work. The Assistant Principal could tell the Student did not want to go to either location, and they asked the Student to step into the hallway. The directions were provided to the Student again, and the Student did not "seem upset or escalated." The Student chose to take a walk and was located several minutes later by the gym.
62. The Assistant Principal continued that they had restated the options for working in the breakroom or the office. At this point, the Student "did become extremely escalated and started cursing me out. It was pretty intense. … I just said, '[[t]his is what you need to do"'. The interaction lasted "less than a minute". The Student then walked past the Assistant Principal to the office in an escalated state. Once at the office, the Principal took over. An incident report was filled-out, and the Principal communicated with the Student and the Parent about the behavior and the consequence. The Assistant Principal did not have information about any ISS that may have been assigned to the Student, but did recall the Student had not "responded to people in this manner" before. The Assistant Principal reported the Student had received referrals for use of electronic devices and tardiness.
63. The Assistant Principal shared the ICS was first introduced at the Student's annual IEP in 2024. They described the Case Manager "communcat[ing] out to the teachers of what the plan [was], how to utilize, and even offer assistance … ."

Middle School Principal Interview

64. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Middle School Principal was joined by the Director of Special Services and the Attorney for the LEA.
65. The Middle School Principal recounted the Student had "a few" behavioral incidents throughout the year and noted the incidents were not "excessive" compared to other middle schoolers.
66. The Middle School Principal indicated the Parent had requested school staff not meet with the Student without the Parent being notified, and indicated school staff honored that request. The Parent requested communication take place via email beginning in January 2026. The Middle School Principal shared there were fewer phone calls and in-person meetings following that request.
67. The Middle School Principal indicated school staff, such as the School Counselor and Assistant Principal, had conversations with the Parent about the Student's attendance. Attendance was also discussed at the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting. The Middle School Principal shared the Parent had concerns about potential peer difficulties, but the School Counselor had followed up and did not provide the Middle School Principal with "a lot of details" about that.
68. The Middle School Principal confirmed they attended the IEP meeting on December 18, 2025, and noted the meeting was "fairly typical." The Middle School Principal recalled "few concerns" were noted in the meeting, and confirmed the Parent wanted to review the IEP after the meeting.
69. The Middle School Principal acknowledged they had requested an in-person meeting "multiple times" to better understand the Parent's concerns, adding a two-way conversation allowed them to ask clarifying questions and for information to be explained, "more directly". They noted they did not believe they "required" in-person meetings.
70. The Middle School Principal confirmed that, on February 6, 2026, after the Student was brought to the office, they called the Parent to notify them of the incident, and the Parent requested a follow-up email. According to the Middle School Principal, the Student did not follow the directions from the sub plans, engaged disrespectfully with the Assistant Principal, and used profanity in the halls, before eventually arriving at the office. The Middle School Principal affirmed the Student's ICS was used during the incident.
71. The Middle School Principal confirmed the Student served two periods of ISS on February 9, 2026, because the Student was absent on the day following the suspension and completed it the following Monday.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, implemented the Student's IEP with fidelity, specifically regarding behavioral supports and adult-led de-escalation strategies, rather than relying on compliance-based management and "power struggles". K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3)(4-5), K.A.R. 91-40-19(a); 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(a)(d).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b)(3)(4-5) and 34 C.F.R. § 300.323(a)(d), each agency shall ensure an IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP is accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related services provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider is informed of the individual's specific responsibilities related to implementing the child's IEP and the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-19(a), each agency, teacher, and related services provider shall provide special education and related services to an exceptional child in accordance with the child's IEP and shall make a good faith effort to assist the child to achieve the goals and objectives stated in the IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP with fidelity, specifically regarding the required behavioral supports, de-escalation strategies, and the ICS. The Parent further alleged staff relied on compliance-based management and "power struggles" rather than the adult-led de-escalation required by the IEP.

The LEA responded the Assistant Principal acted in full compliance with the Student's IEP and the ICS during the February 6, 2026, incident. By providing the Student with options for alternative workspaces and allowing them time to self-regulate without immediate redirection or physical presence, the Assistant Principal reportedly prioritized the Student's autonomy and avoided a power struggle. The LEA further asserted the staff involved were properly trained in Nonviolent Crisis Prevention Intervention (CPI) and the Student's behavior was managed through "appropriate and measured" behavioral supports.

The investigation into the implementation of the Student's IEP and ICS revealed conflicting accounts of the February 6, 2026, incident. Documentation and the Parent's testimony indicated when the Student expressed a desire not to move to a breakout room as directed by a substitute teacher's plans, the Assistant Principal engaged the Student in the hallway, providing a choice between the breakout room or the office. The Parent alleges this approach constituted a "power struggle" and violated the ICS, which specifically directed staff to avoid scolding, avoid insisting on information, and allow the Student to express emotions regardless of language during defensive or risk-behavior stages. While the Assistant Principal reported the Student was not initially escalated and the interaction lasted less than a minute, security footage shows the Assistant Principal trailing the Student through the halls for approximately 10 minutes. The Student eventually used profanity and was assigned an ISS, a consequence the Parent contends was a known trigger for further dysregulation and directly contradicted the supportive measures outlined in the Student's IEP.

The Assistant Principal allowed the Student to take a break by wandering the halls with line-of-sight supervision, and allowed the Student to de-escalate for ten minutes before they asked the Student to make a choice of work locations.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the Student's IEP with fidelity, specifically regarding behavioral supports and adult-led de-escalation strategies, rather than relying on compliance-based management and "power struggles."

Issue Two

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, appropriately reviewed and revised the Student's IEP to address identified deficiencies and parental concerns following the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting. K.A.R. 91-40-16(a), K.A.R. 91-40-18(b), K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(a), each agency shall be responsible for initiating and conducting meetings to develop, review, and revise the IEP of each exceptional child served by the agency. K.A.R. 91-40-18(b) states, if, as a result of its consideration of the special factors described in K.S.A. 72-987(c) and amendments thereto, an IEP team determines that a child needs behavioral interventions and strategies, accommodations, assistive technology devices or services, or other program modifications for the child to receive a FAPE, the IEP team shall include those items in the child's IEP.

According to K.S.A. 72-3429(f)(2) and 34 C.F.R. § 300.324(b), each agency shall ensure that the IEP team reviews the child's IEP periodically and revises the IEP, as appropriate, to address any lack of expected progress toward the annual goals and in the general education curriculum, where appropriate; the results of any reevaluation conducted under this section; information about the child provided by the parents; the child's anticipated needs; or other matters.

The Parent alleged the LEA failed to appropriately review and revise the Student's IEP to address identified deficiencies and parental concerns raised following the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting. The Parent alleged the LEA conditioned the resolution of these deficiencies on in-person meetings and refused to provide written amendments or corrections despite documented issues with how the Student's disability and supports were framed.

The LEA responded they had made exhaustive, good-faith efforts to collaborate with the Parent and resolve outstanding IEP disputes despite significant scheduling hurdles and parental resistance. The LEA confirmed outreach, including over a dozen contact attempts by teachers, psychologists, and directors, following the December 2025 annual meeting and subsequent winter breaks. The LEA contended that while the Parent had engaged via email to express disagreement, they had repeatedly declined to attend meetings or provide formal, signed consent on PWNs as required by federal law. The LEA remained committed to the Student's plan and intended to proceed with the scheduled February 24, 2026, meeting to ensure the provision of services, with or without the Parent's physical presence.

Following the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting, the Parent requested substantive revisions to the IEP to accurately reflect how the Student's behavioral regulation challenges and anxiety served as barriers to learning and attendance. Correspondence shows the School Psychologist updated portions of the IEP regarding the Parent's concerns and staff training, but the LEA maintained school-sourced data regarding the Student's "present levels" could not be adjusted.

Throughout January 2026, the Parent and LEA staff engaged in an extensive email exchange regarding inconsistencies in the draft, specifically concerning the alignment of academic goals with the Student's current performance and the lack of a signed PWN refusing the requested revisions. Although the LEA offered multiple in-person or virtual meetings to resolve these discrepancies, the Parent requested to communicate strictly in writing to ensure documentation accuracy.

The Student had documented attendance concerns throughout their attendance history, which the Parent indicated was directly related to the Student's disability-related anxiety and avoidance behaviors. Most recently new medication contributed to the Student not waking up in time for school. The LEA made several revisions to the Student's IEP incorporating additional parent concerns into the social-emotional and parental concerns sections, and to reflect quarterly staff training instead of annual training for school personnel support. The Parent then requested their input be removed from the parent input section of the IEP. According to CFR § 300.320(d)(2), IEP content only needs to be in one place in the IEP.

The LEA refused to further alter the IEP to include additional information from the Parent. According to K.A.R. 91-40-26 and CFR §300.503(b) the LEA was thereby required to provide a PWN to the Parent a reasonable time before the LEA refused to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of FAPE to the child. Evidence does not support this occurring.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to review and revise the Student's IEP to address identified deficiencies and parental concerns following the December 18, 2025, IEP meeting.

Issue Three

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Student a FAPE, specifically regarding the impact of disciplinary removals, including the February 6, 2026, ISS, and the loss of instructional access resulting from IEP non-implementation and associated dysregulation and elopement. K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d), K.A.R. 91-40-1(z); 34 CFR §§300.17, 300.101(a)(c).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-2(a)(1)(d) and 34 CFR §300.101(a)(c), each agency shall provide a FAPE in accordance with K.S.A. 72-966 and amendments thereto. A FAPE must be available to all children residing in the State between the ages of 3 and 21, inclusive. Each State must ensure that a FAPE is available to any individual child with a disability who needs special education and related services, even though the child has not failed or been retained in a course or grade, and is advancing from grade to grade. The determination that a child is eligible under this part must be made on an individual basis by the group responsible within the child's LEA for making eligibility determinations.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-1(z) and 34 CFR §300.17, "Free appropriate public education" and "FAPE" mean special education and related services that are provided at public expense, under public supervision and direction, and without charge; meet the standards of the state board; include an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education; and are provided in conformity with an IEP.

The Parent alleged the LEA's failure to implement the IEP and its use of disciplinary removals, specifically the ISS on February 6, 2026, constituted a denial of a FAPE. The Parent further alleged the Student lost access to instruction due to preventable dysregulation and elopement caused by the LEA's failure to provide required behavior supports.

The LEA responded the Student's one-day ISS on February 9, 2026, was a lawful exercise of disciplinary authority that remained fully compliant with the IDEA. They argue that while an IEP requires the provision of behavioral supports, it does not immunize a student from the school's code of conduct or proportionate consequences for misconduct. According to the LEA, the ISS did not constitute a "change of placement" because the Student was afforded the opportunity to progress in the general curriculum and receive IEP services alongside peers.

The Investigation regarding the provision of a FAPE centered on the Student's loss of instructional time due to disciplinary removals and disability-related attendance barriers. On February 6, 2026, the Student was assigned one day of ISS following a verbal escalation with the Assistant Principal, which was served on February 9, 2026, during two class periods. The Parent alleged the LEA failed to recognize the Student's high rate of tardiness and absences as manifestations of anxiety and avoidance behaviors rather than mere "morning fatigue" or transportation issues. While the LEA offered specialized transportation to improve attendance, and a study hall period to assist the Student with missing assignments, the Parent rejected these services, asserting it did not address the underlying emotional disability. Furthermore, the Parent contends the failure to consistently implement the ICS during periods of dysregulation led to increased elopement and avoidance, thereby denying the Student the necessary supports to access their education effectively.

Investigation facts indicated the LEA followed the Student's ICS during the incident on February 6, 2026, and although the ISS was not aligned with the Student's ICS, the IEP did not specify the Student was exempt from school-wide behavior consequences. Additionally, the use of ISS did not prevent the Student from accessing their special education services and accommodations for the half day they were present in ISS. According to Van Duyn v. Baker School District 5J, 2007 , the court defined "material failure" as occurring when the services provided to a disabled child fall significantly short of those required by the IEP. It stated that there must be "more than a minor discrepancy between the services provided to a disabled child and those required by the IEP." In this instance, the ISS did not constitute a material failure.

Based on the foregoing, according to the IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated the LEA failed to provide the Student a FAPE, resulting from IEP non-implementation and associated dysregulation and elopement.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations. A violation occurred in the following area:

A. Federal regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-26 and CFR §300.503(b) require the LEA to provide a PWN prior to refusing to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the Student or the provision of a FAPE.

In this case, the evidence supports the finding that USD #266 USD #266 failed to provide a PWN to indicate the refusal to revise the IEP. Documentation, Interview, and the LEA Response letter of February, 20, 2026 support this.

Based on the foregoing, USD #266 is directed to take the following actions:

1. Within 15 calendar days of the date of this report, USD #266 shall submit a written statement of assurance to Special Education and Title Services (SETS) stating that it will comply with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) at 34 C.F.R. 300.301(c) and K.A.R. 91-40-8(f) by completing and providing the Parent with a PWN indicating the LEA's refusal to revise the Student's IEP according to the Parent's specifications.

Allegations

The following issues will be investigated:

ISSUE ONE: Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), conducted a Manifestation Determination Review (MDR) prior to implementing a disciplinary change of placement exceeding 10 consecutive school days. K.A.R. 91-40-33, K.A.R. 91-40-35; 34 § C.F.R. 300.530(a-f).

K.S.A. 72-3430; 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.530(h), 300.504.

ISSUE THREE: Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parent with timely notice of meetings and sufficient preparation time for the MDR meeting and subsequent disciplinary hearing, thereby ensuring the Parent's opportunity for meaningful participation and the ability to advocate for the Student's needs. K.A.R. 91-40-25 (a)(b), K.A.R. 91-40-17; 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.501(a)(b), 300.322(a)(1)(b)(1).

ISSUE FOUR: Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, applied the relevant protections and supports to the Student during a period of significant removal from in-person instruction, while having "knowledge" that the Student was a student suspected of having a disability prior to the behavior that precipitated the disciplinary action. K.A.R. 91-40-7, K.S.A. 72-3436; 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.111 (a), 300.534 (a)(b).

Background Information

This investigation involved a tenth grade student enrolled at a high school in USD #266. The Student is not currently receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). The Student transferred to the School on October 9, 2025, from School 2. They are currently in the process of Section 504 identification and eligibility for an IEP. The Student struggled with substance abuse.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. A Notice to Student of Short-term Suspension After Informal Hearing document dated October 31, 2025, informed the Student they were suspended from school for 10 days, beginning on October 31, 2025 through November 13, 2025. The reasons for suspension included willful violation of student conduct and conduct that disrupts or interferes with school operation. The "What occurred" section detailed a vape was found on the Student's body, then the administration of a urinalysis test, which came back positive. The Student was suspended for 10 days, but would be able to return after five days if the Student and the Parent met with the LEA Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist. The first day the Student could return after the full 10 day suspension was November 14, 2025; if they met with the LEA Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist, the return date was indicated as November 7, 2025. Noted at the bottom of the document in handwriting, "[October 31, 2025 Emailed: [Parent]."

2. A November 17, 2025, letter from the Outside Evaluator indicated the Student was evaluated for depression and anxiety due to concerns with focus and concentration. It stated, "[The Student] has a difficult time making it to school, staying in school and being successful in the classroom related to [the] severity of [their] anxiety and depression. [Parents] are hopeful to get a 504 plan set up for [the Student] so that [they] may be supported in [their] social, emotional and educational needs."
3. In an email exchange on November 18, 2025, the School Counselor confirmed they would discuss the Parent's concern regarding the Student's attendance being impacted by anxiety and depression with the School's General Education Intervention (GEI) Team. The Parent responded, thanked the School Counselor for their support, provided a doctor's note with the Student's diagnosis, and stated, " … I believe moving forward with a 504 plan is a great idea."
4. In an email on November 20, 2025, to the School Counselor, the Parent formally requested a Section 504 evaluation for the Student, citing ongoing mental health and medical concerns.
5. A notice to the Associate Principal on November 20, 2025, stated "High Vape Index" in the office bathroom at 12:33 p.m.
6. In a November 29, 2025, email to the School Counselor, the Parent formally requested a comprehensive IEP evaluation for the Student to assess academic, emotional, behavioral, and executive functioning skills. The request cited concerns over failing grades and how the Student's diagnoses of anxiety and depression impacted focus and task completion. Additionally, the Parent provided their observations, noting that the Student shut down when overwhelmed and struggled with organization despite putting forth effort. On the same day, the Parent emailed the Associate Principal with the same request.

   The School Counselor responded on December 2, 2025, and confirmed that the School team continued to work through the GEI process to identify interventions that would help the Student, regardless of the outcome of a 504 plan. They provided the Parent with an input packet to complete for the 504 process.
7. In a December 1, 2025, email exchange to the Parent, the Associate Principal acknowledged the Parent's formally requested IEP evaluation and shared the School Psychologist was now on the email communication, and would be the person to start the process of an IEP evaluation.

   In an additional email exchange on the same day, the Associate Principal emailed the Parent and School team confirming that the 504 evaluation process and the requested special education evaluation had been initiated. The Associate Principal clarified that a 504 plan would not protect the Student from school discipline involving drugs or automatically excuse attendance issues, noting that medical notes would still be required for tardies. The email requested further input from doctors or the Parent to identify effective interventions for a GEI plan, as teachers reported they did not yet have a clear grasp of the Student's specific struggles.

On December 2, 2025, the Parent responded to the Associate Principal and School Counselor, providing further insight into the Student's struggles. The Parent noted that the Student felt lost and overwhelmed in class despite putting forth effort, and reported that anxiety was significantly affecting the Student socially and emotionally. To assist the Student immediately while data for the GEI and 504 processes were being collected, the Parent requested several "baseline supports." These included frequent teacher check-ins, clear written instructions, extended time for tests and assignments, organizational support, access to the counselor when overwhelmed, the ability to take movement breaks, and a reduced-distraction workspace. Finally, the Parent acknowledged the start of the IEP evaluation and requested to be kept updated on the evaluation plan and procedural safeguards.

8. On December 9, 2025, the Parent sent an email to the School Counselor and Associate Principal answering questions about the Student's history of trauma and its impact on the Student's educational access. The Parent again requested several supports and requested to be kept updated on the special education evaluation plan and procedural safeguards. The School Counselor confirmed receipt of the Parent-provided information.
9. A Parental Request for 504 Evaluation dated December 9, 2025, indicated the following:
    a. The Parent suspected the Student had a disability affecting their education.
    b. Nature of disability stated anxiety and depression, along with ADD/ADHD, and indicated the family was waiting on testing to be completed.
    c. The Parent indicated they'd make medical records available to the team.
    d. The Parent indicated their permission for a school psychologist or teacher to administer tests to the Student and to assist with the evaluation.
    e. The form was signed by the Parent and dated.
10. A Receipt for Section 504 Notice of Parents and Student Rights, dated December 9, 2025, verified that the Parent received a copy of the Parent and Student Rights Notice, with the Parent's signature and the date.
11. In an email on December 12, 2025, to the School 2 Principal, the Associate Principal inquired about the Student's behaviors, interactions with peers, and any concerns while in attendance at School 2. School 2 Principal responded and shared that there were no concerns regarding the Student.
12. PWN Prior Written Notice (PWN) for Evaluation or Reevaluation and Request for Consent dated December 15, 2025, stated:
    a. The LEA proposes conducting an initial evaluation of special education services.

b. Information to be collected in all areas, including health/motor ability, vision, hearing, social/emotional status, behavior status, general intelligence, academic performance, communicative status, and transition skills.
c. Explanation stated the Parent requested the evaluation.
d. Other options considered indicated continuance of general education with no evaluation was rejected due to the LEA's agreement to complete the Parent-requested evaluation.
e. Data used for the basis of the proposed action indicated Parent input.
f. Other factors considered stated no detrimental educational or social effects anticipated from the evaluation.
g. The Parent was emailed a copy of the parent rights on December 15, 2025.
h. The Parent indicated their consent by marking a box and signing, dated December 15, 2025.

13. On December 18, 2025, the School Counselor emailed and provided the Parent with a summary of their recent meeting and a draft of the GEI plan. They confirmed that the GEI process was active, with teachers gathering feedback on the effectiveness of classroom interventions. They explained that a structured GEI plan would be implemented in January 2026 to collect six weeks of data before determining eligibility for a Section 504 plan. Additionally, the School Counselor noted that the IEP evaluation was proceeding concurrently and could take up to 60 school days to complete in accordance with federal and state guidelines.
14. A January 29, 2026, open letter from the Outside Evaluator stated the Student had been diagnosed with Generalized Anxiety Disorder (GAD) and Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). The letter also noted, “Please note that anxiety-related behaviors are not the result of willful misconduct. Disciplinary approaches may exacerbate anxiety symptoms and should be minimized whenever possible.”
15. In an email exchange between January 30, 2025 through February 3, 2026, the LEA team and Parent discussed the Student’s ongoing GEI plan and the transition toward formal disability evaluations. The Associate Principal noted that while the GEI process was four weeks underway, teacher-led attempts at classroom interventions had been largely unsuccessful, and they planned to assign two days of In-School Suspension (ISS) for the Student's 11 tardies. The Parent formally objected to the discipline, asserting that the tardies were a direct manifestation of the Student's severe social anxiety and requesting immediate baseline supports such as quiet workspaces and movement breaks. To expedite formal support, the Parent provided consent on February 2, 2026, to proceed with a Section 504 evaluation concurrently with the existing IEP evaluation process. Following this consent, the LEA attempted to schedule a 504 eligibility meeting for February 12, 2026, noting that while the law requires a "reasonable time" for evaluations, it does not mandate a specific statutory timeline for Section 504 following a GEI request.

16. In an email exchange between February 4 and 5, 2026, the Associate Principal informed the School team that the Student had a vape on their body, tested positive for THC, and this was their 3rd offense, so a pending manifestation determination review (MDR) and potential hearing would need to take place. The School Psychologist confirmed the meeting would be held as a Section 504 MDR.
17. A Notice to Student of Short-term Suspension After Informal Hearing document dated February 5, 2026, informed the Student they were suspended from school for five days, beginning on February 5 through February 11, 2026. The Student would be allowed back on campus on February 16, 2026, pending an MDR and the potential expulsion hearing. During the suspension, the statement indicated, "It is [the Student's] responsibility to touch base with all of their teachers to obtain any work they may miss and make arrangements for any tests they need to make up." A handwritten note at the bottom stated, "[February 5, 2026] Emailed: [the Parent]."
18. In an email exchanged on February 5 and 6, 2026, to the Associate Principal and School Counselor, the Parent stated, " … I have a good understanding of the MDR meeting. I will be prepared … ."
19. A Notice of Section 504 Committee Meeting dated February 8, 2026, to the Parent indicated a planning meeting to review education needs to the Student was scheduled for February 9, 2026, at 11 a.m. at the School. The notice indicated that parents are not "required" Section 504 team members, yet their input is welcomed. The meeting reason was indicated by an "X" next to "Manifestation Determination (prior to disciplinary removal constituting a change in placement)" and was signed by the Associate Principal.
20. In an email exchange between February 6 through 9, 2026, between the School team and the Parent, the Parent requested LEA "guidance" regarding the Student's Section 504 status, "MDR appropriateness," discipline and support, and next steps. The Parent thanked everyone for "communication regarding the proposed MDR" and stated their goal was to "collaborate" with the LEA to ensure the Student's " … rights, medical needs, emotional well-being, and counseling progress are fully considered."
    Additionally, on this date, the Parent requested time prior to the MDR meeting, to "receive and review all relevant documentation … [LEA] guidance regarding protections, evaluation timelines, and next steps."
    On February 7, 2026, the Special Education Director responded to the Parent and clarified that an MDR was a legal requirement for students under evaluation for Section 504 or IDEA protections before a long-term suspension or expulsion could be implemented. They explained that the purpose of the MDR was to provide the Student with disciplinary safeguards by determining if the conduct was related to a disability or a failure to implement necessary supports. The Special Education Director further confirmed that the Student was under "concurrent evaluation" for both Section 504 and IDEA, with special education consent having been received in mid-December 2025. To ensure the meeting occurred within required timelines, they offered three alternative times on February 9, 2026, and noted that the LEA would expedite the IDEA evaluation to the extent possible.

Additionally, on this day, the Parent emailed the Associate Principal and detailed the law requiring timelines for MDRs and declared, "timelines must be followed." They provided times they were available for the meeting and stated, "I have also reviewed the Kansas State Department of Education Parent Rights in Special Education (Procedural Safeguards). ... it is important to understand that because [the Student] is not a typical student, [they] must be afforded the protections guaranteed under IDEA and Kansas procedural safeguards."

On February 8, 2026, the Associate Principal emailed the Parent to clarify that the MDR was scheduled for February 9, 2026, to ensure legal compliance before the Student reached 10 days of suspension. They noted that the MDR was part of the School's effort to determine whether the behavior was "directly and substantially related to a disability" and to preserve the Student's rights. Indicated in the email was a notice of meeting attachment. Later that morning, the Parent requested clarification on any "statutory or [LEA] requirements" governing the timing and participants of the GEI and Section 504 meetings. Executive Director of Tiered Supports responded on February 9, 2026, explaining that there is "no statutory or regulatory requirement under Section 504 that mandates a specific timeline" following a GEI process. They further clarified that federal law requires 504 evaluations to be conducted within a "reasonable time" rather than a prescribed window. The Associate Principal then sent a follow-up email welcoming the Student to attend the meeting, confirmed the meeting as an MDR, stated "This will be separate from a meeting where we review 504 eligibility," and provided the meeting time of 8:00 a.m. on February 10, 2026, should the expulsion proceed.

21. The MDR was held on February 9, 2026. The MDR panel consisted of the Associate Principal, the School Counselor, and the English Teacher. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports, the Student, the Parents, and other members of the Student's family were also present. The panel found the code of conduct violation was not a result of the Student's disability, or the failure of the LEA to appropriately accommodate the Student.
22. Following the MDR held on February 9, 2026, the Parent sent a formal email to the Special Education Director expressing a "strong disagreement" with the team's conclusion that the behavior was not a manifestation of the Student's disability. The Parent asserted that the LEA had been on notice of suspected disabilities since the evaluation request on December 15, 2025, and argued that the LEA failed its "affirmative obligation under Child Find" by failing to implement interim supports prior to the disciplinary removal.

    Additionally, the Parent formally requested an Interim Alternative Educational Setting (IAES) to ensure access to a free appropriate public education (FAPE), a Functional Behavioral Assessment (FBA), and a Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP). Later that evening, the Parent invoked "stay-put" protections under the IDEA, requesting that the Student remain in their current placement or an IAES pending the resolution of the dispute.

    On February 10, 2026, the Special Education Director responded, stating that stay-put protections did not apply because the Student had not yet been formally determined eligible under IDEA. They clarified that the MDR was conducted as a disciplinary safeguard for a student not yet eligible and encouraged the Parent to participate in the scheduled disciplinary hearing. The Parent replied by reiterating that protections apply when a LEA has prior knowledge of a suspected disability, regardless of a formal eligibility determination. The Parent also noted that the LEA had failed to provide the required Procedural Safeguards Notice and requested its immediate delivery. Later that afternoon, the Special Education Director provided the formal response to the Parent requests and attached the requested Procedural Safeguards.

23. An email dated February 9, 2026, to the Parent, the Special Education Director responded to the Parent's inquiry. They informed the Parent of the following:
    a. The Student was in process and under evaluation for Section 504 and IDEA.
    b. "While under evaluation for Section 504 and/or IDEA, a student is protected under 'child find / knowledge of disability' rules, thus a MDR is required.'"
    c. "While evaluations are pending, schools and parents can discuss temporary, non-binding accommodations and supports. No matter where we are in the process, it is important that the student is ready and willing to accept and make use of support. Sometimes, especially with high school[-]age students, this takes a fair amount of time and trial for the school to find the "right fit." Such supports do not require eligibility and do not prejudge outcomes."
    d. "[The Associate Principal] can update you on where they are with [the Student's] 504 evaluation. With regard to the special education evaluation, the school has 60 school days from the date of consent. As mentioned in my response over this weekend, I will ask the team to expedite the evaluation to the extent they are able to do so."
24. In an email on February 9, 2026, to the Parent, the Discipline Administrative Assistant attached documentation for the Student's long-term-suspension/ expulsion hearing. The date of the hearing was indicated as February 10, 2026, at 8 a.m., and the location was listed as an LEA building. The email indicated 19 attachments, which included "The Student Parent Notification," a description of the discipline, the Student's out-of-school suspension paperwork, and Parent notifications, incident reports, probation notices, an attendance report, transcripts, progress reports, discipline reports, and Student reinstatement documents.
25. On February 10, 2026, the LEA Hearing Officer presided over a disciplinary hearing regarding the Student, who was alleged to have possessed a THC vape device, failed a drug test, and violated school-based probation. The LEA Hearing Officer provided the family with a copy of the IDEA procedural safeguards. The Associate Principal testified that the Student had prior drug-related violations in October and November of 2025, which had resulted in a probation period extending through December 2026. The Parent testified in disagreement with the results of the MDR held on February 9, 2026, asserting that the team did not fully consider the Student's diagnoses of anxiety, depression, and ADHD. The LEA Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist also provided testimony, suggesting that the Student would be well served by attending School Program 1. Ultimately, in their written decision, the LEA Hearing Officer found that the Student had committed the violations and ordered an extended-term suspension through March 13, 2026, with a return to school after spring break on March 23, 2026, under strictly updated probation conditions.

26. In a letter to the Parents dated February 10, 2026, the LEA Hearing Officer issued a Written Notice of Hearing Results to the Parent and Other Parent detailing the results of an extended-term suspension hearing. The LEA Hearing Officer determined that the Student would be suspended from the School for 25 school days, ending on March 13, 2026, followed by a probationary period lasting until March 12, 2027. While suspended, the Student was expected to maintain academic progress through an online outreach program and was prohibited from entering school property or attending school activities, except for meetings with a LEA drug counselor. The notice also informed the Parents of their right to appeal the decision within 10 calendar days and provided information regarding behavioral improvement programs.
    Additionally, the document detailed the reason for the February 10, 2026, hearing under state law, and established a timeline of disciplinary actions involving the Student. The record indicated that the Student was previously disciplined on October 21, 2025, for possession of a vape and THC gummies, resulting in a probationary period that was initially set to last until November 2026. A second violation occurred on November 20, 2025, involving another vape, which led to an extension of the Student's probation into December 2026. Following a third incident on February 5, 2026, involving a THC vape and a positive drug test, the LEA initiated an MDR on February 9, 2026, which concluded that the behavior was not a manifestation of their disability. The Hearing Officer ordered an extended-term suspension effective from February 5 through March 13, 2026, totaling 25 school days. The Student was permitted to return to School on March 23, 2026, but remained subject to strict probationary conditions through December 22, 2026.
27. A February 10, 2026, Extended-term Suspension/Expulsion Hearing Notice detailed:
    a. Box checked, "Expelled 91-186 days" from all school and program activities within the LEA.
    b. Based on an incident that occurred on February 5, 2026.
    c. Incident detailed, "[The Student] is on school-issued probation and part of that probation is to use only the front office single stall restroom. This morning at 9:43 [a.m.], [the Student] set off the vape sensor in this restroom. Upon an initial search, nothing was found. Because of [their] probation, [the Student] then needed to take a urinalysis drug test. When [they] came back into the office, the security officer saw something in [the Student's] hoodie pocket. It was a THC vape. [The Student's] drug test was also positive for THC. Because of [them] being in possession of THC and testing positive while on school-issued probation, [the Student] will be suspended for 5 school days, pending an MDR and a potential expulsion hearing."
    d. The behavior violated the following:

i. "Willful violation of any published regulation for student conduct adopted or approved by the board of education;" and

ii. "Conduct which substantially disrupts, impedes or interferes with the operation of any public school."

e. Board policies violated:

i. "#11 - Cumulative incidences [sic]."

ii. "#12 - Possession, consumption, or under the influence of illegal drugs;" and

iii. "#14 - Positive drug test result, tampering with a drug test, or refusal to take a drug test."

28. In an email on February 10, 2026, to the Parent, the Special Education Director provided the Parent with a PWN, consent form, and Procedural Safeguards. They further explained a copy of the Procedural Safeguards was, " … previously provided to you electronically on December 15, 2025, as well as the copy provided at today's disciplinary hearing … ."

29. In an email exchange from February 14 through February 17, 2026, between the Parent, the Associate Principal, and the Executive Director of Tiered Supports, the Associate Principal requested the Parent's availability to review the 504 evaluation.
On February 16, 2026, the Executive Director of Tiered Supports responded regarding the Student's Section 504 eligibility meeting. They stated that the team would review relevant information to determine if the Student met the criteria for protection under Section 504, but noted that federal regulations generally exclude students currently using illegal drugs from such protections. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports cited district documentation of recent drug use, including positive screenings in 2025 and 2026, to explain that the Student was not eligible for protections at that time based on these regulations. They clarified that the meeting remained important for documenting concerns and discussing progress through interventions so the team could move forward quickly if the Student's eligibility status changed in the future. Additionally, they indicated if anything changed with the Student, like successful completion of a "rehabilitation program" and evidence the Student was no longer using, the team could "reconvene to consider eligibility."
The Parent responded and acknowledged the Executive Director of Tiered Supports' email regarding the 504 meeting and requested the LEA provide "specific federal regulations" linked to the determination of the Student's not being eligible for a 504 plan.
The Executive Director of Tiered Supports replied to the Parent, provided the requested regulations, and stated, "The team will not predetermine eligibility and is not asserting that your [child] is categorically ineligible for Section 504. The team will determine eligibility through the formal meeting process after reviewing all relevant data. Any medical information that you have available will be helpful to the team when reviewing the disability and how the disability manifests for your [child]. A student may have a disability but still not receive protections for actions directly related to current illegal drug use. … No final decisions regarding eligibility will be made prior to the team's full review and discussion."

30. A PWN dated February 10, 2026, indicated:
    a. The LEA refused to initiate the identification, educational placement or provision of special education and related services.
    b. Description of the action proposed or refused stated, "The [LEA] refused to provide the following IDEA services and supports to a student not yet eligible for special education: Interim special education services, supports, or placements, including an IAES and/or 'Stay-Put Placement' A separate or interim Functional Behavioral Assessment (FBA) for purposes implementing behavioral interventions prior to eligibility Development and implementation of a Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) under IDEA Reconvene the MDR team under IDEA prior to a determination of eligibility for the student under IDEA."
    c. The explanation stated the Student has not yet been "determined" eligible for special education and related services under IDEA.
    d. Options considered included implementation of a BIP, conducting a FBA, and providing interim special education services, supports, or placements, including an IAES or "Stay-put placement," were rejected because special education services and supports are created and implemented following an eligibility determination under IDEA.
    e. Data used for the action included teacher and staff input and observations, review of the Student's attendance, discipline and educational records, Parent input, "[MDR] applicable to students not yet eligible conducted on [February 9, 2026]," State and federal regulations related to eligibility and discipline.
    f. Other relevant factors stated, "The [LEA] has initiated a comprehensive initial evaluation to assess [the Student] in all areas of suspected disability, including social-emotional and behavioral functioning, using assessment tools and strategies determined appropriate by the evaluation team. Written consent was received on December 15, 2025. The [LEA] will complete the evaluation without delay, consistent with applicable timelines and expedite the evaluation to the fullest extent practicable. Upon completion of the initial evaluation, the eligibility team will determine whether [the Student] is eligible for special education and related services under IDEA based on evaluation data. If [the Student] is determined eligible, the IEP team will reconvene to reconsider the MDR in light of the eligibility determination and evaluation results, consistent with IDEA requirements. If, after reconsideration, the team determines that the conduct was a manifestation of [the Student's] disability, the [LEA] will: [r]eturn [the Student] to the placement from which [the Student] was removed, unless otherwise agreed by the team; and determine whether compensatory education or services are warranted, consistent with IDEA requirements and [the Student's] individual circumstances. If, after reconsideration, the team determines that the conduct was not a manifestation of the Student's disability, the disciplinary action imposed will remain in effect.

31. In a February 12, 2026, email to the Parent, the Special Education Director informed the Parent that as part of the Student's educational evaluation process, the LEA planned to gather additional information regarding their academic skills through sessions with licensed personnel and the assignment of online coursework. The Student was assigned online math and English courses at no cost to the family. The Special Education Director noted that these courses provided an opportunity for the Student to make academic progress and earn high school credits during their period of extended suspension. Additionally, they mentioned that sessions with licensed staff would be scheduled to review the Student's learning needs and performance, and that these meetings could occur either face-to-face or online. The Special Education Director concluded by stating the School would soon provide further direction regarding the enrollment process and access to these specific courses.
32. In a February 16, 2026 email exchange with the Online Program Coordinator, the School Counselor requested the Student be added to the Online Program for "initial credit," for two courses and explained the Student was "long-term suspended." They also inquired about an email template to send to families regarding logging in to the program and "becoming familiar" with the Online Program.
    The Online Program Coordinator replied they had changed the target dates for both courses to March 13, 2026, added two teachers, established the Parent to receive daily progress notifications, and the Online Program information guide.
33. In an additional February 16, 2026 email exchange between the Principal and the School Counselor and School staff, the Principal requested that Instructional Support Teacher 1 and Instructional Support Teacher 2 were added to the Student's courses as "instructors/moderators." Instructional Support Teacher 1 responded they were able to "monitor and work" with the Student and they had, " … access through my work with students that are placed in an alternative education setting."
34. An undated Student GEI Plan indicated the following:
    a. Type of GEI included enrichment, academics, social-emotional learning-behavioral, and health.
    b. Strengths listed "kind and easy to talk with[.]"
    c. Concerns stated a medical diagnosis of anxiety, depression and ADHD.
    d. Interventions and strategies to be used in classrooms by teachers listed check-ins with the Student throughout class, provided clarification and support, allowing the Student to request a quiet, separate setting for testing, and allowing a counseling break pass if needed.
    e. Classroom accommodations were not indicated.
35. A Student Report card from the School for Term 2 of the 2025-26 school year indicated:
    a. Biology, F.
    b. Introduction to Health Care, F.

c. Painting 1, no mark.
d. Algebra 1, F.
e. Business Essentials, F.
f. Weight Lifting, no mark.

36. An undated Discipline report for the Student stated three offenses of possession/drug use on October 31, 2025, November 20, 2025, and February 5, 2026.
37. An undated attendance report for the Student indicated the following:
    a. Out-of-School Suspensions on: October 31, 2025; November 3, 4, 5, and 6, 2025; February 6, 9, 10, 11, 16, 2026 through March 13, 2026.
    b. In-School-Suspensions on November 20, 2025; February 3 and 4, 2026.

Parent Interview

38. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent and the Other Parent shared they believed the February 9, 2026 meeting was an MDR. However, the Parent shared "they had us sign a paper at the very end and it was very confusing because it said 504."
39. The Parent reported the Assistant Principal, the School Counselor, and the English Teacher served as the MDR panel. They stated there was an observer from the District as well. The Parent stated after introductions, they shared about the Student's background and trauma. They indicated the trauma was "why we thought [the Student] was self-medicating and doing the things that [they're] doing[.]"
40. The Other Parent shared they believed the IEP would be discussed and "whether or not [the Student's] behaviors were a product of [their] trauma and [their] disability." They expressed the MDR panel said "We don't see it that way." The Other Parent described the MDR decision vote as "very informal." The Parent reported the Assistant Principal voted first, and according to the Parent stated "Thank you for sharing, but I don't think that this is anything to do with a manifestation of [the Student's] disability." The next two panel members agreed with the Assistant Principal and both voted that the behavior was not a manifestation of the Student's disability. The Parent perceived the School Counselor and the English Teacher were influenced by the Assistant Principal.
41. The Parent stated they asked if they could appeal the MDR decision and was told "You can appeal it, but nothing's going to change." The Parent shared they felt like they weren't allowed to disagree with the decision. The Other Parent stated they were told by the MDR panel that if they appealed, the panel would still make the same decision. They indicated the MDR panel did not ask their opinion of the Student's behavior.
42. The Parent reported during the MDR, the team discussed long-term suspension for the Student. The Other Parent stated, at the end of the MDR on February 9, 2026, they were handed large packets containing the documents for the expulsion hearing on February 10, 2026. When they got home and opened the information packets, the Parent saw the documents were marked "expulsion" and felt "kind of lost." They indicated there was one packet for the Parent and Other Parent, and one packet for the Student.

43. Regarding the expulsion hearing on February 10, 2026, the Parent shared "we showed up ready just to share our information." They reported they shared their disagreement with the MDR during the expulsion hearing, and requested stay put protections. The Other Parent stated they shared the Student knew what they did was wrong. They expressed "Unfortunately, [the Student had] … very bad anxiety, and [the Student] internalizes everything." The Other Parent acknowledged the Student was self-medicating and indicated neither parent supported the behavior. They reported the Student was receiving therapy and "seeing a doctor for meds."
44. During the expulsion hearing, the Other Parent described the Student's diagnosis as "anxiety, depression, and ADHD." They mentioned these conditions were "connected to past trauma and have intensified as academic and social demands have increased." The Other Parent further described the results of these conditions as "impair[ed] judgment and coping skills, which contribute to poor decision-making rather than intentional misconduct." They stated during the hearing, they asked for an alternative placement for the Student.
45. The Parent shared "… when I did a little research, it seemed like we had 10 days to do the MDR meeting." They acknowledged they asked for the expulsion hearing to be held on February 10, 2026 because they were leaving town on February 11, 2026. The Parent expressed they did not feel they had enough time to review documents or seek legal counsel for the MDR or the expulsion hearing. The Other Parent shared they believed they would still be within the 10 calendar days if the hearing was held when they returned from their trip. They stated the LEA refused their request to move the dates of the MDR and expulsion hearing to after their return.
46. The Parent shared they had concerns the Student had been "academically declining" since arriving at the School on October 9, 2025. They stated they told the LEA about these concerns and on November 20, 2025, "applied for the 504." The Parent shared the LEA responded by beginning the "GEI" process to gather data about the Student. According to the Parent, the LEA said it would take six to eight weeks to begin trial accommodations for the Student because the Student was new to the LEA. They asserted after the hearings, the LEA emailed to inform the Parent the Student was not eligible for a 504 plan, and "[T]hey basically were saying that … if they do drugs, they basically are not entitled to the 504." The Parent stated a 504 plan meeting was never convened.
47. The Parent expressed "… once I realized that [the Student] was failing … classes, then I thought, okay, we need to go the IEP route because I don't think the 504 is going to be enough." They reported they put their request in writing and reiterated their concerns during the MDR. The Parent shared that accommodations were discussed during the MDR, including a "counseling pass" and access to a quiet area.
48. The Parent shared they had "applied for the IEP" prior to the February 9, 2026 MDR. They stated they received PWN on December 15, 2025 with the IDEA procedural safeguards attached. Therefore, it was the Parent's understanding the Student was covered under procedural safeguards for a pending IEP during the MDR. When they brought up the IEP during the MDR, the Parent report "they just kept saying [the Student] doesn't have [an] IEP."

49. The Parent reported, during their trip, they remained in email contact with the LEA, to attempt "to come up with a resolution on my own, and … felt like we were not getting anywhere." Therefore they filed the complaint. They stated IEP testing for the Student was scheduled after they filed. The Parent stated the Student was receiving online instruction, and was "not being provided the education that I feel [the Student] deserves and is entitled to." They reported the Student went to an LEA building to access the instruction, for one hour a day, three days a week.

Special Education Director Interview

50. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Attorney for the LEA, the Special Education Director shared a timeline of relevant events. They stated the discipline incident occurred the morning of February 5, 2026, which was a Thursday. They indicated the Student received an out-of-school suspension and the Associate Principal contacted the Parent that day "at least twice." The Special Education Director reported PWN for the MDR was sent home on February 5, 2026. They stated the Parent and Student signed the notice. The Special Education Director recalled the Parent emailed a records request after business hours on Friday, February 6, 2026. They indicated they and the Executive Director of Tiered Supports both responded to the Parent's inquiries over the weekend. The Special Education Director reported the Executive Director of Tiered Supports stated the Parent did not ask for additional information prior to, during, or after the MDR on Monday, February 9, 2026. They indicated all records other than disciplinary records reviewed during the MDR were previously available to the Parent through the LEA's parent portal for their student information system. The Special Education Director reported "The conduct that was subject to the MDR was the same conduct that was documented on that out-of-school suspension form that was provided both by [the Discipline Administrative Assistant] and by [the Associate Principal] on the 5th; the description of the incident provided to the Parent prior to the MDR and the incident description that were reviewed by the MDR team during the MDR on the 9th were identical in nature." The Special Education Director asserted "[T]he Parent was seeking guidance. The [LEA] believes that guidance was provided."
51. The Special Education Director clarified the MDR was "conducted under Section 504." They shared "The information available for review consisted primarily of data gathered through the GEI process … [and] documentation provided from the Parent from the Student's outside therapist." The Special Education Director shared the MDR panel consisted of the staff most familiar with the Student. They shared "[R]ecords that the team were discussing during the MDR were part of the Student's existing educational record and were previously communicated and shared between the School and the Parent and were not newly created for the purpose of the MDR." They reiterated the Parent had ongoing access to the Student's educational records through the LEA parent portal. The Special Education Director indicated the Parent and other family members provided input during the MDR.

52. The Special Education Director reported they were not present at the MDR and indicated all staff members who were at the MDR hearing would have also been present at any IEP proceedings. They expressed "It's also important to note that normally under section 504, the meeting would've concluded after initially reviewing the behavior in question because there was drug use and possession involved." The Special Education Director acknowledged the panel chose to "conduct a full MDR because the Student had been referred for and consent had been obtained for an initial evaluation." They indicated the MDR panel "applied the legal standard" to make their decision. The Special Education Director explained "The law requires more than a general connection or explanation. It requires evidence that the disability itself directly cause[d] the behavior in question to occur." They further clarified "Neither Section 504 nor IDEA promote or protect the use of THC in any form in the school setting. In fact, it's clear such deliberate actions are excluded from disciplinary protections."
53. The Special Education Director understood the Parent disagreed with the results of the MDR. They expressed "[The Parent] wants to continue to advance the idea that the Student uses THC to treat [their] anxiety. And while this might be true, it doesn't change the outcome." The Special Education Director indicated it was "highly unusual" for drug possession to be considered a manifestation "because such behavior usually involves a student taking a deliberate action that is clearly against school rules." They stated "Disabilities do not in general directly cause a student to possess or use an illegal substance at school."
54. The Special Education Director indicated that while consent for the IDEA evaluation had been obtained before the MDR, the evaluations had not been started before the disciplinary incident. Therefore, eligibility under the IDEA had not been determined at the time of the MDR. Further, the Special Education Director stated "I think it's important that on record, the district says there's no dispute that the Student has a disability that's eligible under Section 504." They acknowledged the Student experienced anxiety.
55. Regarding the disciplinary hearing, the Special Education Director confirmed "[I]t was the Parent's request, not the [LEA's] preference that the timeline for the disciplinary hearing was moved up." They stated the disciplinary incident on February 5, 2026 triggered the 10-day MDR window. The Special Education Director shared "The concern was … [the Student] had other disciplinary exclusions earlier in the year, and they were similar. So to be able to separate those out in terms of whether or not that was a pattern of removal, we treated it as such." They explained the LEA originally scheduled the MDR for February 11, 2026, and the Parent declined due to a planned trip. The Special Education Director reported "the hearing officer made an exception" to move the expulsion hearing to February 10, 2026 so the Parent could attend.
56. Responding to questions from the Attorney for the LEA, the Special Education Direct described the "10-Day FAPE-free zone." They explained the LEA had a "basis of knowledge" the Student had a potential disability under section 504, therefore "we have to consider the disciplinary change of placement in totality" within the 10-day window.

However the LEA did not have an obligation to provide services to the Student prior to the tenth day.

57. The Special Education Director indicated the Parent was waiting for the eligibility determination for the IEP before continuing with the 504 process. They reported parental rights were provided when the Student was initially referred to special education, and again at the expulsion hearing. The Special Education Director stated most of the communication with the Parent was through email and expressed the Parent was "not willing to come in and allow us to try to walk [the Parent] through and clarify things[.]" They surmised "[The Parent] believes because [they have] provided paperwork, and … provided outside documentation to support … [the Student] has a disability, that [the Student was] automatically eligible and covered" under the IDEA. The Special Education Director reiterated the Student's IDEA eligibility had not yet been determined. The Special Education Director asserted "we've offered multiple times to schedule [a 504 plan] meeting and [the Parent] has declined and instead is choosing to wait."
58. Regarding provision of services, the Special Education Director explained "The Student [was] not technically entitled to any of these services under Section 504 because [they are] a self-admitted, and the Parent has acknowledged, a current drug user and [the Student] is long-term suspended due to drug use. The [LEA] does not provide educational services to students under Section 504 that are long-term suspended or expelled." However, the Special Education Director indicated "under the umbrella of the evaluation" for the IDEA, the Student was receiving services they "wouldn't otherwise be entitled to" in the form of online classes during their suspension. They asserted the online education promotes many of the accommodations the Student would experience in an in-person setting.
59. The Special Education Director reported the Student was receiving online instruction in math and English language arts with Instructional Support Teacher 1. They indicated Instructional Support Teacher 1 was continuing to gather data to develop and trial accommodations for the Student, including accommodations to support the Student during online instruction. The Special Education Director reiterated the LEA was not legally required to offer the Student online instruction. They stated they told the Parent "Should [the Student] later be determined eligible for special education services, the IEP team will develop an individualized plan, and at such time, the [LEA] will consider whether any compensatory services are warranted based on the individual facts and circumstances."
60. Regarding specific accommodations, the Special Education Director stated the Student had been receiving universal accommodations such as "teacher check-in, quiet setting, take breaks … [and] alternate passing periods[.]" They were not aware of what accommodations were in place between the Student's suspension on February 5, 2026 and the MDR on February 9, 2026.

Executive Director of Tiered Supports

61. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Executive Director of Tiered Supports shared there were several emails between the LEA and the Parent regarding scheduling the MDR. They reported the formal notification was sent to the Parent via email on February 8, 2026, and the MDR was scheduled for February 9, 2026. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports indicated the Associate Principal handled most of the communication around the MDR. They stated the Associate Principal informed the Parent the MDR was "for the protection of [the Student] for [their] safeguards[.]"
62. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports believed it was clear that the February 9, 2026 meeting was an MDR and not an eligibility meeting for either a 504 or an IEP. They reported a separate email was sent to schedule a 504 eligibility meeting for a separate date.
63. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports explained the parental safeguards were emailed to the Parent several times, including both the 504 and IEP evaluation requests, and given to the Parent in person at the MDR.
64. The Executive Director of Tiered Supports indicated they did not respond to or fulfill any records request for the Parent.
65. Regarding accommodations, the Executive Director of Tiered Supports shared, before the disciplinary hearing, the Student was "on a GEI plan" to gather data to develop supports. They were not aware of the nature of accommodations provided after the hearing.

Associate Principal Interview

66. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Associate Principal was joined by the Special Education Director and the Attorney for the District.
67. The Associate Principal indicated they were responsible for handling the Student's discipline, which included drug possession and use, and tardiness. They noted the Student attended full-time and confirmed the possession and use occurred on school grounds during the school day.
68. The Associate Principal described their School policy for when a student is found in possession of drugs or when they test positive for drugs. They noted policy dictates a ten-day out-of-school suspension, which could be reduced to five days if the student, parent, or both attended a substance-abuse counseling program for a first offense, which was what occurred the first time for the Student. The second incident occurred within 30 days of the first, so the Student received an updated probation. When the third incident occurred, the Associate Principal issued a five-day suspension for the Student because they "didn't want to go over 10" days. The Student met with the substance-abuse counselor again.
69. The Associate Principal explained when the Student had out-of-school suspension, they had access to their learning through their online classroom or by reaching out to their teachers. The Associate Principal noted that the Student had emailed their teachers for work during that time. The Associate Principal confirmed the Student was enrolled in an online math and English class and was receiving one-on-one assistance with certified teachers for three hours each week during the 25-day suspension as part of the special education evaluation.

70. The Associate Principal received a 504 request from the Parent on or about November 20, 2025. They indicated they began the process of gathering data for the 504 evaluation after the Student was caught in possession of drugs on school property for the second time. The Associate Principal explained they gathered data for six weeks. Afterward, the Parent, the School Counselor, and the Associate Principal decided to continue gathering data after winter break.
71. The Associate Principal indicated they had a "504" or an "MDR" meeting on February 9, 2026, because of the process required prior to an expulsion hearing. The Parent was notified at the time of the suspension on a phone call, and was sent the formal notice on February 8, 2026.
72. The Associate Principal reported that during the MDR meeting, the team discussed the 504 diagnoses and reviewed teacher input provided in writing or in person; however, the Associate Principal added it was not considered a 504 meeting. At the end of the meeting, the Parent and Other Parent signed the MDR document, and were provided with the hearing documents.
73. During the expulsion hearing on February 10, 2026, the Associate Principal recalled having one witness, who was the security officer. Both Parents, the Student's Aunt, and the Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist attended. The Associate Principal shared the hearing officer sent the formal decision after the meeting ended, indicating the Student had been suspended for 25 school days.
74. The Associate Principal shared the School had attempted to schedule a 504 meeting "multiple times." However, the Parent stated they wanted to wait until after the special education evaluation meeting had occurred, which was scheduled for March 9, 2026.
75. The Associate Principal confirmed the Parent received their rights under Section 504 and for special education when the evaluation began, and then received the 504 rights again at the MDR meeting. The Parent was given their rights for special education prior to the disciplinary hearing.

School Counselor Interview

76. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Attorney for the LEA, the School Counselor stated they were a member of the GEI team. They shared the purpose of the team was to "facilitate the 504 process." The School Counselor reported all the school counselors, the Associate Principal, the School Psychologist, the Mental Health Liaison, and the School Social Worker were the members of the team. They shared their primary role on the team was "communication and facilitating." The School Counselor described the duties of the team as, when a student was identified as potentially having a disability, "... we do data collection ... It depends on if we're addressing a concern that's medical, whether it's health, whether it's academic, what data needs to be taken into consideration. And so we will determine if there is a need, and then we will look at the recommended interventions to put in place to support the need. We'll communicate that with teachers to explain what … suspected disability that a student has, and then what we're trying to accomplish … for the student."

77. Regarding the GEI process, the School Counselor explained "We typically collect data for anywhere from four to eight weeks … . We'll check in with the student, check in with teachers. … Typically, the goal of a GEI plan is to determine what kind of plan or support a student needs long-term, whether that's a 504 plan or whether it's gen[eral] ed[ucation] interventions that just need to be provided without a plan." They indicated the GEI team was responsible for managing and updating 504 plans.
78. Regarding specific accommodations for the Student, the School Counselor reported four had been developed based on the data collected for the Student. Those accommodations were teacher check-ins, separate quiet setting for testing, preferential seating, and access to a separate quiet setting for classwork. The School Counselor stated the Student was referred to the GEI team on November 20, 2025, and the initial GEI plan was shared with teachers on December 16, 2025.
79. The School Counselor explained between November 20, 2025 and December 16, 2025, they communicated with the Parent to exchange paperwork and receive data about the Student. During that time, they also communicated with the Student's teachers, sharing the intent for a 504 evaluation, and "giving teachers an opportunity to submit that feedback to me as well, compiling grades, contacting [the] previous school to find out if there were any behaviors that they noticed that related to the same things [the Parent] expressed seeing." The School Counselor stated the communication with teachers included "an informal list" of interventions to trial with the Student for data collection purposes.
80. The School Counselor confirmed the February 9, 2026 meeting was an MDR and not a 504 meeting. They elaborated "[T]here was a violation at school and [the Student] was on probation. … part of the probation procedures … include drug testing in the instance of being caught with a vape at school. And so with a positive drug test that led to discipline. And because [the Student] had already been in the process of … if [they] would qualify for a 504 plan, then we had the meeting to determine if the action was related to [the Student's] disability." The School Counselor confirmed the violation was drug related, and confirmed section 504 does not protect students from discipline for drug related offenses.
81. The School Counselor acknowledged the Student's anxiety, ADHD and depression diagnoses. They shared these were all considered during the MDR, along with "feedback from [the Student's] parents, from [the Student], from teachers, and from [the Student's] doctor … [and] the interventions that we were trying through our gen[eral] ed[ucation] intervention process."
82. The School Counselor reported the Student began meeting with the LEA Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist after their second drug-related violation. The second violation occurred on November 20, 2025, the same day the Parent requested a 504 evaluation. The School Counselor indicated the Student continued to meet with the LEA Mental Health and Substance Use Therapist between their out-of-school suspension and the disciplinary hearing. They expressed that although the Student had consistently received drug counseling, the Student continued to use.

83. Regarding the online instruction, the School Counselor stated it was not available until after the hearing. They indicated the program included platform tutorials, "guided notes", and other online resources. The School Counselor confirmed the Student "had two different facilitators to check in with and to monitor [their] progress."

School Psychologist Interview

84. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the School Psychologist shared they became involved with the Student and the Parent through the Child Find process as a member of the GEI team. They recalled they began receiving emails from the Parent "about [the] middle of December [2025]." The School Psychologist indicated the main point of contact for the Parent was the Associate Principal, and they were copied on many emails "because [the Parent] knows that I'm the school psych[ologist]."
85. The School Psychologist indicated the GEI team first discussed the Student on December 3, 2025. They stated the Parent requested an IEP evaluation on November 29, 2025, and consent was granted on December 15, 2025. The School Psychologist explained they officially become involved in the process "[w]hen I receive parental consent to test."
86. The School Psychologist confirmed the Student was receiving drug counseling prior to the February 9, 2026 MDR. They also confirmed the Student was receiving universal accommodations prior to their out-of-school suspension on February 5, 2026.
87. The School Psychologist described where on PWN forms the parental rights and procedural safeguards are referenced and confirmed those documents were sent to the Parent with each PWN.

Hearing Officer Interview

88. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator and the Attorney for the LEA, the Hearing Officer explained the proximity of the MDR and the disciplinary hearing. They shared "After notice is given, we have 10 days to schedule … the hearing. … I had actually set the hearing to be done on February 11th, … the [LEA] came back to me and said that the [Parent] had notified them … they were going to be out of town … and asked to have the hearing moved up. So I moved it up to Tuesday, February 10th."
89. Describing the disciplinary hearing process, the Hearing Officer stated "It's required by state law before any long-term suspension or expulsion can be completed by the school district. I'm appointed by the school board to hold the hearings and we conduct the hearings consistent with … a series of laws that set out the requirements for the hearing."
90. The Hearing Officer reported, during the disciplinary hearing, the Parent shared they disagreed with the results of the MDR, invoked stay put protections, and referenced MDR procedures. The Hearing Officer indicated "As far as I know from my training, that had no bearing on the hearing that we were having at the time." They stated the Parent's concerns about the MDR were "not within my jurisdiction. … and I have to trust that the school followed through on that the way the law intends."

91. The Hearing Officer confirmed the disciplinary hearing was triggered by the Student's drug related offenses. As they understood the law, neither section 504 nor the IDEA protected the Student from disciplinary action for illegal drug use.
92. The Hearing Officer reported the Student provided a written statement, which was summarized out loud by the Parent during the hearing. The Hearing Officer stated the Student admitted to their drug use in the statement, and took responsibility for their actions.
93. Regarding suspension and expulsion, the Hearing Officer indicated the length of removal was at their discretion. They stated the LEA requested the Student be removed for 91 to 186 days, which constitutes an expulsion. The Hearing Officer decided to remove the Student for 25 days, constituting a long-term suspension. They explained their decision was based on the academic calendar and fell within "a natural break in the schedule." Additionally, the Hearing Officer reported they considered similar cases and the resulting removals.

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, conducted an MDR prior to implementing a disciplinary change of placement exceeding 10 consecutive school days. K.A.R. 91-40-33, K.A.R. 91-40-35; K.S.A 72-3433(a)(2)(B); 34 C.F.R. § 300.530(a-g).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-33, the phrase "change in placement for disciplinary reasons" means that school personnel or a special education due process hearing officer has ordered any of the following changes in placement of a child with a disability: the child is suspended or expelled from school for more than 10 consecutive school days, the child is subjected to a series of short-term suspensions constituting a pattern that meets all of the following criteria: the suspensions cumulate to more than 10 school days in a school year, each incident of misconduct resulting in a suspension involved substantially the same behavior, the length of each suspension, the total amount of time the child is suspended, and the proximity of the suspensions to one another indicate a pattern, or the child is placed in an interim alternative educational setting. If school personnel order two or more short-term suspensions of a child with a disability during a school year, these suspensions shall not constitute a change in placement for disciplinary reasons if the suspensions do not constitute a pattern as described above. School officials shall have the authority to determine whether a series of short-term suspensions of a child with a disability constitutes a change in placement for disciplinary reasons. This determination shall be subject to review through due process proceedings.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-35, an agency shall not be required to provide special education or related services to a child with a disability who has been suspended from school for 10 or fewer school days during any school year, if the agency does not provide educational services to nondisabled children who are suspended from school. A child with a disability shall be entitled to continue to receive special education and related services if the child is suspended from school for more than 10 cumulative school days in any school year. If a child with a disability is suspended from school under either of the circumstances stated above, the agency that suspended the child shall provide, commencing on the 11th day of suspension and during any subsequent day or days of suspension, special education and related services that are needed to enable the child to continue to participate in the general education curriculum and to progress toward meeting the goals set out in the child's IEP.

If a child with a disability is placed in an interim alternative educational setting in accordance with the law and any amendments, the agency shall provide special education and related services to the child. The services provided shall enable the child to continue to progress in the general curriculum, although in another setting, and to receive those services and modifications, including those described in the child's IEP, that will enable the child to meet the goals set out in the IEP. The services shall include services and modifications that address the child's misbehavior and that are designed to prevent the misbehavior from recurring.

According to K.S.A 72-3433(a)(2)(B) and 34 C.F.R. § 300.530(g), school personnel may order a change in the placement of a child with a disability to an appropriate interim alternative educational setting for not more than 45 school days if the child knowingly possesses or uses illegal drugs or sells or solicits the sale of a controlled substance while at school, on school premises, or at a school function under the jurisdiction of an agency.

The Parent alleged the LEA imposed a disciplinary removal totaling 30 days without holding a proper MDR.

The LEA maintained it complied with the IDEA and Section 504 requirements by conducting a MDR meeting on February 9, 2026, before the Student reached ten cumulative days of disciplinary removal [after the LEA had knowledge the Student may be a student with a disability]. The initial two removals for drug use occurred before the Student was referred for or determined eligible for special education. The LEA noted that the third violation resulted in a 25 day suspension allowed under the “special circumstances” provisions of the IDEA.

The code of conduct violation that triggered the MDR consisted of an out-of-school suspension totalling five school days. The previous two violations occurred prior to the Student entering the evaluation process, therefore they were not covered under procedural safeguards. However, because all violations were for similar offenses, and the Student had begun the IDEA eligibility process, the LEA considered the possibility of a pattern. Therefore an MDR was initiated.

The record showed an MDR was scheduled and held within 10 school days from the beginning of the five day suspension. While consent for evaluation had been obtained prior to the violation that triggered disciplinary proceedings, IDEA eligibility for the Student had not yet been determined. Therefore, the Student was not considered a special education student at the time of the hearing. Further, under the IDEA and state regulations, removal for drug related offences was specifically permitted. Due to the violations being drug related, the MDR panel had no obligation to proceed. In an abundance of caution, the panel completed the MDR.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to conduct an MDR prior to implementing a disciplinary change of placement exceeding 10 consecutive school days.

Issue Two

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parent with timely notice and procedural safeguards, specifically the right to participate, review records, and provide input, by mischaracterizing the nature of a scheduled meeting. K.S.A. 72-3430; 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.530 (h), 300.504.

According to K.S.A. 72-3430, the parents of exceptional children shall have the right to examine all records relating to such child and to participate in meetings with respect to the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of the child, and the provision of a FAPE to such child.

The parents of exceptional children shall have the right to written prior notice whenever an agency proposes to initiate or change, or refuses to initiate or change, the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child or the provision of a FAPE to the child. Parents shall have the right to receive the notice in their native language, present complaints with respect to any matter relating to the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child, or the provision of a FAPE to the child, request mediation in accordance with this act, consent, or refuse to consent, to the evaluation, reevaluation or the initial placement of their child and to any substantial change in placement of, or a material change in services for, their child, unless a change in placement of their child is ordered pursuant to the provisions of the law and related amendments, or the agency can demonstrate that it has taken reasonable measures to obtain parental consent to a change in placement or services, and the child's parent has failed to respond.

Additionally, a parent shall have the right to be members of any group that makes decisions on the educational placement of their child, and a list of the rights available to the parents of exceptional children shall be given to the parents only one time each school year, except a copy also shall be given to the parents upon initial referral or parental request for evaluation, upon request of a parent, and upon the initial filing of a complaint.

According to 34 C.F.R. § 300.530 (h), on the date on which the decision is made to make a removal that constitutes a change of placement of a child with a disability because of a violation of a code of student conduct, the LEA must notify the parents of that decision, and provide the parents with the procedural safeguards notice described in 34 C.F.R § 300.504. For purposes of this section, the following definitions apply: Controlled substance means a drug or other substance identified under schedules I, II, III, IV, or V in section 202(c) of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 812(c)). An illegal drug means a controlled substance, but does not include a controlled substance that is legally possessed or used under the supervision of a licensed health-care professional, or that is legally possessed or used under any other authority under that Act or under any other provision of Federal law.

The Parent alleged the District scheduled a meeting they believed to be an MDR, but later characterized it as a Section 504 meeting, and procedural safeguards were not provided, discussed, or applied; specifically, parental rights to participate, review records, and provide input.

The LEA asserted that the purpose of the February 9, 2026 meeting was clearly communicated in a written notice and confirmed by correspondence with the Parent.

Signed paperwork indicated the Parent was provided with parent rights and procedural safeguards in December 2025, prior to the MDR, and again on February 10, 2026.

The MDR meeting was not intentionally mischaracterized. Documentation confirmed the MDR was held under the framework of Section 504, and the Student had not yet been determined eligible for accommodations or special education services under either Section 504 or the IDEA. Additional documentation indicated the Parent was aware the MDR was not an eligibility meeting.

The record reflected the Parent expressed understanding of and preparation for an MDR meeting. Testimony provided by staff confirms the LEA offered guidance, and all information considered during the MDR was previously made available to the Parent. Documentation showed the meeting was properly noticed, and the Parent was provided the procedural safeguards prior to disciplinary action or the change in placement. Further, the LEA followed state and federal regulations in scheduling and completing the MDR.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA, Section 504, and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parent with timely notice and procedural safeguards, specifically the right to participate, review records, and provide input, by mischaracterizing the nature of a scheduled meeting.

Issue Three

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, provided the Parent with timely notice of meetings and sufficient preparation time for the MDR meeting and subsequent disciplinary hearing, thereby ensuring the Parent's opportunity for meaningful participation and the ability to advocate for the Student's needs. K.A.R. 91-40-25 (a)(b), K.A.R. 91-40-17; 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.501(a)(b), 300.322 (a)(1)(b)(1).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-25(a)(b), each agency shall allow the parents of an exceptional child an opportunity to inspect and review all education records and participate in any meeting concerning their child with respect to the identification, evaluation, or education placement of the child; and the provision of a FAPE to the child. Each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each meeting concerning their child or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling the meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place and providing prior written notice of any meeting to the parents of the child.

According to K.A.R. 91-40-17, each agency shall take steps to ensure that one or both of the parents of an exceptional child are present at each IEP team meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate. These steps shall include scheduling each meeting at a mutually agreed-upon time and place, informing the parents of the information specified in the regulation, and providing written notice to the parents of any IEP team meeting at least 10 days in advance of the meeting. The notice shall indicate the purpose, time, and location of the IEP team meeting and the titles or positions of the persons who will attend on behalf of the agency.

The notice shall inform the parent that the parent has the right to invite to the IEP team meeting individuals whom the parent believes to have knowledge or special expertise about the child. If a parent of an exceptional child cannot be physically present for an IEP team meeting for the child, the agency shall attempt other measures to ensure parental participation, including individual or conference telephone calls. An agency shall take action to ensure that parents understand the discussions that occur at IEP team meetings, including arranging for an interpreter for parents who are deaf or whose native language is other than English. An agency may conduct an IEP team meeting without parental participation if the agency, despite repeated attempts, has been unable to contact the parent or parents or to convince them that they should participate. If an agency conducts an IEP team meeting without parental participation, the agency shall have a record of the attempts that the agency made to contact the parents to provide them notice of the meeting and to secure their participation. The record shall include at least two of the following: detailed records of telephone calls made or attempted, including the date, time, and person making the calls and the results of the calls, detailed records of visits made to the parent's home, including the date, time, and person making the visit and the results of the visit, copies of correspondence sent to each parent and any responses received, and detailed records of any other method attempted to contact the parents and the results of that attempt.

A regular education teacher of an exceptional child, as a member of an IEP team, shall participate to the extent appropriate in the development, review, and revision of the child's IEP. This participation shall include assisting in making the following determinations: the appropriate positive behavioral interventions and strategies for the child, the supplementary aids and services needed by the child, and the program modifications or supports for school personnel that will be provided to assist the child. If qualified to do so, an agency member of the IEP team may serve in the role of two or more required members of a child's IEP team. In asking individuals with knowledge or special expertise about a child to be members of the child's IEP team, the party asking the person to participate shall have the sole discretion in determining whether the invited person has knowledge or special expertise regarding the child.

The Parent alleged the Section 504 meeting, which was thought to be an MDR, was scheduled and conducted in a manner that prevented meaningful parent participation and did not allow adequate time to prepare or advocate for the Student's needs. Additionally, the Parent alleged a disciplinary hearing was held one day after the aforementioned meeting, which left the Parent insufficient time to prepare and meaningfully participate.

The LEA stated it met mandatory timelines by conducting the MDR within ten school days of the disciplinary decision. The LEA gave notice of meetings within the time required by regulation. The LEA offered alternative meeting times to accommodate the Parent’s schedule.

In this case, Section 504 and special education processes were running concurrently. The LEA provided the Parent with notice under Section 504 and completed a similar process to that under the IDEA for parent notification. The Parent agreed to attend and participated in the meeting. There is no evidence that the LEA failed to notify the Parent of the MDR meeting in a manner that did not allow the Parent to attend or participate.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to provide the Parent with timely notice of meetings and sufficient preparation time for the MDR meeting and subsequent disciplinary hearing, thereby ensuring the Parent’s opportunity for meaningful participation and the ability to advocate for the Student's needs.

Issue Four

Whether USD #266, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, applied the relevant protections and supports to the Student during a period of significant removal from in-person instruction, while having "knowledge" that the Student was a student suspected of having a disability prior to the behavior that precipitated the disciplinary action. K.A.R. 91-40-7, K.S.A. 72-3436; 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.111 (a), 300.534 (a)(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-7, each board shall adopt and implement policies and procedures to identify, locate, and evaluate all children with exceptionalities residing in its jurisdiction, including children with exceptionalities who attend private schools, are highly mobile, including migrant and homeless children, or are suspected of being children with disabilities even though they are advancing from grade to grade. Each board's policies and procedures under this regulation shall include age-appropriate screening procedures that meet the following requirements: for children from ages five through 21, observations, instruments, measures, and techniques that disclose any potential exceptionality and indicate a need for evaluation, including hearing and vision screening as required by state law; and implementation of procedures ensuring the early identification and assessment of disabilities in children.

Any board may refer a child who is enrolled in public school for an evaluation if school personnel have data-based documentation indicating that general education interventions and strategies would be inadequate to address the areas of concern for the child, or school personnel have data-based documentation indicating that before the referral or as a part of the referral, all of the following conditions were met: the child was provided with appropriate instruction in regular education settings that was delivered by qualified personnel, the child's academic achievement was repeatedly assessed at reasonable intervals that reflected formal assessment of the student's progress during instruction, the assessment results were provided to the child's parent or parents, the assessment results indicate that an evaluation is appropriate, the parent of the child requests, and gives written consent for, an evaluation of the child, and the board agrees that an evaluation of the child is appropriate.

According to K.S.A. 72-3436 a child who has not been determined to be eligible for special education and related services under this act and who has engaged in behavior that violated any rule or code of conduct of the school district, may assert any of the protections provided for in this act if the school district had knowledge, as determined in accordance with this section, that the child was a child with a disability before the behavior that precipitated the disciplinary action occurred.

A school district shall be deemed to have knowledge that a child is a child with a disability if before the behavior that precipitated the disciplinary action occurred, the parent of the child has expressed concern, in writing, to supervisory or administrative personnel of the appropriate educational agency or to a teacher of the child, that the child is in need of special education and related services, the parent of the child previously has requested an evaluation of the child, or the teacher of the child, or other personnel of the school district, previously has expressed specific concerns about a pattern of behavior demonstrated by the child directly to the director of special education of such school district or to other supervisory personnel of the district.

A school district shall not be deemed to have knowledge that a child is a child with a disability if the parent of the child has not allowed an evaluation of the child or has refused services under this law, or the child has been evaluated, but it was determined that the child was not a child with a disability. If a school district does not have knowledge that a child is a child with a disability prior to taking disciplinary action against the child, the child may be subjected to the same disciplinary action as is applied to children without disabilities who engage in comparable behaviors.

If a request is made for an evaluation of a child during the time period in which the child is subjected to disciplinary action described by this act, an evaluation shall be conducted in an expedited manner. If the child is determined to be a child with a disability, taking into consideration information from the evaluation conducted by the school district and information provided by the parents, the school district shall provide special education and related services in accordance with the provisions of this act, except that, pending the results of the evaluation, the child shall remain in the educational placement determined by school authorities, which may be long-term suspension or expulsion from school.

The Parent alleged the Student experienced significant removal from in-person instruction without the protections and supports required for students suspected of having disabilities.

The LEA acknowledged it was aware that the Student was suspected of having a disability before the February 5, 2026 incident and, consequently, applied relevant procedural safeguards and protections. The LEA expedited a comprehensive special education initial evaluation. The LEA provided online instruction in two core classes.

The Student was in the evaluation process for a student suspected of having a disability at the time of the disciplinary action that led to their removal. However, eligibility for special education services had not yet been determined. Therefore, the Student did not yet have an IEP, and the LEA was not required to provide special education services. The LEA chose to complete a MDR as a safeguard for the Student, and accommodated the Student's educational needs through online instruction during their long term suspension as a safeguard.

Additionally, According to K.S.A 72-3433(a)(2)(B) and 34 C.F.R. § 300.530(g), school personnel may order a change in the placement of a child with a disability to an appropriate interim alternative educational setting for not more than 45 school days if the child knowingly possesses or uses illegal drugs or sells or solicits the sale of a controlled substance while at school, on school premises, or at a school function under the jurisdiction of an agency.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to apply the relevant protections and supports to the Student during a period of significant removal from in-person instruction, while having 'knowledge' that the Student was a student suspected of having a disability prior to the behavior that precipitated the disciplinary action.

Background

This complaint involves a 10-year-old girl who is enrolled in the 4th grade in her neighborhood elementary school. According to her IEP, the student receives case management, crisis management, and therapy services through the local mental health center and has mental health diagnoses of "Oppositional Defiant Disorder, Severe and Unspecified Disruptive, Impulse Control, and Conduct Disorder." In her formal complaint, the parent also states that the student has been diagnosed with "Severe ADHD...DMD (sic), [and] Anxiety..."

The student was first determined to be eligible for special education support under the categorical designation of Specific Learning Disability in February 2024 while in 2nd grade. At that time, she was attending a full day of school, but in September 2024 the student began attending school on a modified day basis beginning two hours a day (8:00 to 10:00 AM). At the time this change was made, the student was exhibiting physical aggression (biting, kicking, scratching, pinching, headbutting, pushing, punching with a closed fist, and hitting with an open hand). She was also demonstrating verbal aggression (swearing, screaming, yelling at others, and name calling) as well as threatening behaviors. The occurrence of these behaviors increased during the student's 3rd grade year, but the student's IEP team decided to increase the amount of time she would spend at school for 4th grade by 15 minutes (7:45 to 10:00 AM). In-school time was increased again in November 2025 because her behavior had improved, and the student began attending "special classes" (PE, Music, Library, Art, and Technology) from 8:00 to 9:00 AM, and moving to the Resource Room from 9:00 to 10:15 AM. More time was added to the student's school day as of December 8, 2025 (8:00 to 10:30 AM), and 15 minutes more were added on December 15, 2025.

After the winter break the student had difficulty returning to her previous schedule which had been increased by an additional 15 minutes (7:45 to 10:45 AM). There were several incidents of previously described behaviors, and the student eloped from the building.

Issues

In her complaint, the parent identified the following issue:

> With limited notice to the parent, the district implemented a new building-wide behavior plan that resulted in the student being placed in a "Focus Room" where she was considered to be "on restriction" and was not allowed to participate in her "specials" (PE, Music, Library, Art, and Technology). This action was taken by the LEA without first conducting an IEP meeting to discuss how the change would impact the student and despite the parent having stated that she did not want the plan to be implemented until a meeting had been held.

Position of the Parent

It is the position of the parent that she and the student were given insufficient notice of the LEA's plan to implement a new behavior program that could directly impact the student's participation in general education "specials" (art, music, PE). The parent asserts that the new program was implemented without any opportunity for a meeting to first discuss the program.

Position of the District

The district stipulates that information regarding the new program was neither timely nor clearly provided to the parent.

Applicable Statutes and Regulations

Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.101, require states to ensure that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) is made available to all children with disabilities residing within the state. Accordingly, Kansas regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-2(b)(1) require that each school district makes FAPE available to each child with a disability residing in its jurisdiction. Federal regulations, at 34 C.F.R. 300.17, define FAPE, in part, as special education and related services provided in conformity with an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

One of the procedural safeguards afforded to parents is the required Prior Written Notice of certain proposed special education actions (K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(2)). This notice must be provided to parents within a reasonable amount of time before the date the school proposes to initiate or change the

- identification,
- evaluation,
- educational placement of their child, or
- provision of special education and related services (FAPE) to their child.

Additionally, the informed written consent of the parent must be obtained before any substantial change in placement of, or a material change in services for, their child, can be made (K.S.A. 72-3430(b)(6); K.A.R. 91-40-27(a); and 34 C.F.R. 300.300).

School officials may remove a child with a disability who violates a code of student conduct from his or her current placement to an appropriate interim alternative educational setting, another setting, or suspension, for not more than 10 consecutive school days (to the extent those alternatives are applied to children without disabilities), and for additional removals of not more than 10 consecutive school days in that same school year for separate incidents of misconduct, as long as those removals do not constitute a change of placement (K.S.A. 72-6115(a)).. (It should be noted that partial days count as full school days.)

Any removal of a student from the placement(s) specified in his/her IEP to any other location for disciplinary reasons would count as a day of suspension, unless the disciplinary setting meets the requirements for exception to the disciplinary protections described in the Federal Register, August 14, 2006, p. 46715. Those requirements were explained by the Office for Special Education Programs (OSEP) as follows:

> "It has been the Department's long-term policy that an in-school suspension would not be considered a part of the days of suspension addressed in Sec. 300.530 as long as the child is afforded the opportunity to continue to appropriately participate in the general curriculum, continue to receive the services specified on the child's IEP, and continue to participate with nondisabled children to the extent they would have in their current placement. This continues to be our policy. Portions of a school day that a child had been suspended may be considered as a removal in regard to determining whether there is a pattern of removals as defined in Sec. 300.536."

If contemplating a suspension or an expulsion of a child with a disability, school districts must follow the requirements of K.S.A. 72-6115.

The school need not provide educational services during the first 10 days of removal in a school year, unless it provides educational services to a child without disabilities who is similarly removed.

Investigative Findings

At JCDA, Board of Education policies for the district states:

"Each principal shall develop rules and regulations to govern student conduct consistent with board policies. The rules shall be reviewed by the board and adopted as policy by reference. The rules of conduct shall be published in student handbooks."

On page 8, under the heading "Discipline/Detention," the Student Handbook for the student's school (found on the website for the school under the title "2022-23 EW Parent Student Handbook) states that "consequences [for a violation of discipline rules] will be set on an individual basis to fit the situation and the child's needs...ISS (in-school suspension) may be used and is served in a supervised room. The Focus Room may also be used for student's unable to behave appropriately in the regular education classroom.

Staff members from the LEA attended a conference in November 2025 where they heard about a behavior management program being used in a district in Nebraska. The LEA then sent staff to that district to learn more about the program. Subsequently the decision was made to implement the full version of the program in the LEA's alternative educational setting called the Tiger Academy. The LEA determined that a modified version of the program would also be implemented on a school-wide basis at the student's school as well as at another elementary school.

A major component of the new program involves the use of the building's "Focus Room." According to the LEA, the Focus Room is used for students to "self-regulate in a location that is not in-school suspension [ISS]."

The LEA reports that at the student's school (and the LEA's K-2 elementary building) both exceptional and unidentified students access the Focus Room in the following ways:

1. A student may ask to be allowed to go to the Focus Room if they are getting upset or need to self-regulate.
2. A teacher is able to send a student to the Focus Room to self-regulate due to work refusals and being uncooperative.
3. A student who elopes, engages in physical aggression, or does major destructive damage to property can be required to spend time in the Focus Room.

In some cases, students who are in the Focus Room are also placed "on restriction"

- meaning that they are not allowed to leave the room to attend "specials" (classes such as PE, Music, Library, Art, or Technology).

According to the Special Education Director, the student is sent to the Focus Room if she has eloped, displayed physical aggression, or engaged in major destruction of property.

At 2:34 PM on February 17, 2026, the student's special education teacher sent an email to the student's parents writing:

> "Good afternoon. We have started using a new Behavior Data System for [the student]. It is a system that our district purchased from a behavior school. I will start sending home her behavior log each day and would like for you to sign it and return it the following day. I will send todays log home tomorrow. [The student] went to specials this morning and then refused to do anything else. With the new system comes different levels. Since [the student's] percentage was below 90% she will spend the day in the Focus Room tomorrow. Which is considered Restriction. She has to have a 90% or better tomorrow and if it is not a 90% or better she has to stay in the Focus Room until she does. Then she will move to Level 3. She > will return to my room on Level 3. She has to have three days of overall 90% to move down to Level 2. She has more privileges and freedom on Level 2 and 1. This is similar to the system that they are using at Tiger Academy, which is the new Behavior School. It sounds strict, but we are seeing progress in students. It's all about expectations, accountability, and consistency. Please let me know if you have any questions."

At 4:34 PM, the parent sent an email back to the special education teacher asking

> "Will she start the day there? or still do specials"

The teacher responded at 5:26 PM writing

> "She will start her day there. There are no specials when they are in restriction."

No evidence was provided by the LEA to show that the parent was provided with or had access to any additional information regarding the new behavior program, it's structure, and/or how the program would impact the student. The parent was not provided with any information to explain the program levels or the point system that would be used to make decisions as to how the student would be moved in and out of the Focus Room as a consequence of her behavior.

According to the parent's written complaint, she was unable to reach anyone at the school by telephone on the afternoon of February 17, 2026 to get more information about the change and opted to keep the student home from school on February 18, 2026.

At 7:25 AM on February 18, 2026, the parent sent an email to the special education teacher writing

> "I ask that a phone call, meeting or detailed info be sent to me before any of this happens please. I need more time and information so that I fully understand what is happening so that I can understand and explain to her. This affects her behavior plan and the IEP. By the time I responded to this and called it was too late and I had no time to know what would happen today."

The special education teacher responded via email at 12:04 PM writing

> "We can have a team meeting on Friday at 9:00. I think it would be good if the whole team was available. This would include the behavior specialist. Please let me know if this works for you."

The parent wrote back at 12:14 PM stating

> "Ok. As long as none of these changes occur until after this meeting, I am good w/this."

The student returned to school on February 19, 2026. At around 10:30 AM that morning, the parent received a call from the building principal notifying the parent that the student had "a bad day." The parent learned that the behavior plan had been implemented and the student had been placed on restriction.

An IEP team meeting was held on February 20, 2026. The parent participated via telephone and waived her right to 10-day notice of the meeting. The decision was made to table discussion by the team. It was agreed that the parent and the Special Education Director would meet to discuss the parent's concerns at a later date.

On February 26, 2026, the student's IEP was amended.

As noted in the background section of this report, the student attends school on a modified day for 3 hours. According to the "Services" section of her January 22, 2026 IEP and her amended February 26, 2026 IEP, the student was to receive the following direct services:

- 20 minutes one day per week of special education services for language outside of the regular education classroom;
- 100 minutes one day per week of special education services to "assist with social emotional/self-regulation..." outside of the regular education classroom;
- 60 minutes five days per week of special education services to "assist with social emotional/self-regulation..." in the regular education classroom; and
- 120 minutes four days per week of special education services to "assist with social emotional/self-regulation..." in the regular education classroom.

The student's January 22, 2026 IEP includes a Behavior Plan. The "Implementation Steps/De-escalation Strategies" section of that plan includes the following statement:

> "If [the student] begins behaviors from the 'escalation phase," then staff will minimize verbal statements to 2 or fewer per minute, and point to the calm down corner as a reminder for [the student] to use it. If [the student] begins to move from her desk, or leave the immediate area and is disrupting normal classroom operation, staff will evacuate the room of additional staff and students to reduce the audience, so that one staff remains to document and one to engage. Staff will switch roles and set a 30 minute timer. If [the student's] behaviors begin and continue to the crisis stage, then staff will call the Focus Room to attempt to de-escalate and work with [the student] in the classroom. If [the student] continues to escalate, then Focus Room staff will walk her to the Focus Room and continue to utilize de-escalation strategies to help her return to baseline."

On February 26, 2026, this section of the student's IEP Behavior Plan was amended to include the following:

> "... Focus Room staff will walk her to the Focus Room and continue to utilize de-escalation strategies to help her return to baseline which is 90% on her data logs" (emphasis added).

Additionally, the "Other" section of the Behavior Plan was amended on February 26, 2026 to include the following statements:

> "The IEP team for [the student] will meet a minimum of 10 school days ahead of any building protocol, practice, or policy being implemented with [the student] to explain and discuss with the parent(s) for managing behaviors in said building and compare the new building protocol, practice, or policy to [the student's] behavior intervention plan (BIP). The BIP will continue to be in effect and will be followed in accordance with the new behavior practice being put in place in said building. The behavior intervention plan will have 90% added to the strategies section to specify the percentage for [the student] returning to baseline. If [the student] is in restriction for five consecutive full days without making progress to return to the classroom and/or special education resource room setting, the team will meet.

The Behavior Plan included in both the student's January 22, 2026 IEP and the February 26, 2026 Amendment also included the following statement:

"Follow school/district behavior policies/practice."

On February 26, 2026, the LEA provided the parent with prior written notice of the following proposed changes to the student's IEP:

"Effective 2/26/2026, as agreed by the team during the IEP team meeting on 2/26/2026, [the student's] IEP will reflect the following language in the social emotional present level module and the behavior intervention plan:

- The IEP team for [the student] will meet a minimum of 10 school days ahead of any building protocol, practice, or policy being implemented with [the student] to explain and discuss with the parent(s) for managing behaviors in said building and compare the new building protocol, practice, or policy to [the student's] behavior intervention plan (BIP). The BIP will continue to be in effect and will be followed in accordance with the new behavior practice being put in place in said building.*
- The behavior intervention plan will have 90% added to the strategies section to specify the percentage for [the student] returning to baseline.*
- If [the student] is in restriction for five consecutive full days without making progress to return to the classroom and/or special education resource setting, the team will meet."*

In a telephone call on March 11, 2026, the parent told the investigator that after having learned more about the building's behavior program she was now comfortable with how that plan was being used with the student and felt that both she and her daughter had a better understanding of how the program worked.

During the period of February 17 through March 13, 2026, the student was in the Focus Room on restriction for 9 school days (February 19, 20, 23, 24, and 25 and March 9, 10, 11, and 12, 2026). While in the Focus Room, she was supported by a paraeducator and received special education services including speech. However, because she was on restriction, she was not allowed to participate in her specials (PE, Music, Library, Art, or Technology).

Summary and Conclusions

In this complaint, the parent's expressed issue was that the LEA did not timely and effectively communicate with her about the new building-wide behavior program and how that program would impact the student. The LEA acknowledges that communication with the parent was not ideal. At its core, however, this complaint centers on the implementation of a building-level disciplinary program and the use of a "Focus Room."

While the online handbook for the student's elementary school states that the Focus Room may be used "for students unable to behave appropriately in the regular education classroom," the LEA contends that placement in the Focus Room is not punitive and is not intended to be in-school suspension (ISS). The LEA asserts that the in-school suspension room is located in a different area of the building. According to the LEA, students may elect to go to the Focus Room when they need a quiet environment to refocus and deescalate. The student's January 2026 IEP identified the Focus Room as a place to which the student could be directed when she was having trouble recovering from an episode of escalation.

However, a suspension (disciplinary removal) is a suspension even if referred to by any other name. Once the new building-wide behavior plan was implemented, the Focus Room became a setting into which this student could be placed as a consequence for displaying what were deemed unacceptable behaviors. While the Focus Room is not labeled "ISS," placement in the Focus Room "on restriction" removed the student’s access to the general school environment and to general education opportunities in the student's specials - even though the student's IEP required 60 minutes per day of special education support in a general education setting.

For a period of 10 school days, an LEA may use in-school suspension for children with disabilities just as they would for children without disabilities. The comments in the federal regulations which were cited above state that, if in-school suspension is a place where children are held without opportunities to progress in the general curriculum, receive IEP services, and/or participate with children without disabilities to the same extent they would have in the placement described in their IEPs, the days spent in that setting count as school days of suspension. This student's placement on restriction in the Focus Room can continue beyond the allowable 10-day period only if the IEP team proposes a change in placement that properly addresses the removal of any requirement in her IEP which calls for 60 minutes a day of services in a general education setting and the parent gives written consent for that change. It is the student's IEP team, not a building-wide behavior plan, that determines services and placement for a student with a disability.

The prior written notice form provided to the parent on February 26, 2026 following an IEP meeting on that date did not address how the continued use of the Focus Room as a consequence for inappropriate behavior could result in a change of placement - the removal of 60 minutes per day in the general education setting. The February 26, 2026 amendment to the student's IEP did not alter the requirement that the student receive 60 minutes of special education services in a general education setting.

The student has been on restriction in the Focus Room for a total of 9 school days between February 17 and March 13, 2026. While in the Focus Room, the student was supported by a paraeducator and received all special education and related services, but she was not allowed to attend specials (PE, Music, Library, Technology, and Art), and has not been afforded the opportunity to participate with children without disabilities to the same extent she would have in the placement described in her IEP. Special education laws allow the district one more day of restriction before any potential violation of statutes and regulations could be substantiated. Therefore, no violation is identified at this time. However, the LEA is strongly encouraged to take immediate action to address how this child will be served should her disciplinary removals to the Focus Room exceed the 10-day limit.

Corrective Action

Information gathered in the course of this investigation has not substantiated noncompliance with special education statutes and regulations on issues presented in this complaint. Because the LEA has not yet exceeded a 10-day disciplinary removal period, an assertion that the LEA has violated special education laws is premature, and no corrective actions are ordered at this time.

In the Matter of the Appeal of the Report
Issued in Response to a Complaint Filed
Against Unified School District No. 234
Fort Scott Public Schools: 26FC234-001

DECISION OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Background

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint on February 19, 2026, by ------- on behalf of her daughter, -------. In the remainder of this decision, ------- will be referred to as "the parent," and ------- will be referred to as "the student." An investigation of the complaint was undertaken by a complaint investigator on behalf of the Special Education, and Title Services team at the Kansas State Department of Education. Following the investigation, a Complaint Report, addressing the allegations, was issued on March, 19, 2026. That Complaint Report concluded that there was not a violation of special education statutes and regulations

Thereafter, the parent filed an appeal of the Complaint Report. Upon receipt of the appeal, an appeal committee was appointed and it reviewed the original complaint filed by the parent, the Complaint Report, the parent's notice of appeal, and the district's response to the appeal. The Appeal Committee has reviewed the information provided in connection with this matter and now issues this final Appeal Decision.

Preliminary Matters

A copy of the regulation regarding the filing of an appeal [K.A.R. 91-40-51(f)] was attached to the Complaint Report. That regulation states, in part, that: "Each notice shall provide a detailed statement of the basis for alleging that the report is incorrect." Accordingly, the burden for supplying a sufficient basis for appeal is on the party submitting the appeal. When a party submits an appeal and makes statements in the notice of appeal without support, the Committee does not attempt to locate the missing support.

No new issues will be decided by the Appeal Committee. The appeal process is a review of the Complaint Report. The Appeal Committee does not conduct a separate investigation. The appeal committee's function will be to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report.

Discussion of Issues on Appeal

The parent presented one issue in this complaint. That issue was described in the complaint report to be:

> With limited notice to the parent, the district implemented a new building-wide behavior plan that resulted in the student being placed in a "Focus Room" where she was considered to be "on restriction" and was not allowed to participate in her "specials" (PE, Music, Library, Art, and Technology). This action was taken by the LEA without first conducting an IEP meeting to discuss how the change would impact the student and despite the parent having stated that she did not want the plan to be implemented until a meeting had been held. (Report, p. 3)

The complaint, as presented, alleged that the LEA did not timely and effectively communicate with the parent about a new building-wide behavior program and how that program would impact the student. The new building-wide behavior program allowed district officials to assign any student to a "Focus Room" for "students unable to behave appropriately in the regular education classroom." (Report, p. 11).

The report added that, "While the Focus Room is not labeled "ISSI" placement in the Focus Room removed the student's access to the general school environment and to general education opportunities in the student's specials - even though the student's IEP required 60 minutes per day of special education support in a general education setting" (Report, p. 11).

The investigator concluded that special education law did not require notice or parent participation in decision making through an IEP meeting in this instance because this building-wide behavior plan was not a plan for this individual student. It was in essence a building-wide in-school suspension plan. Both federal and state special education laws and regulations allow a school district to suspend a child with a disability for up to ten school days for any violation of a district code of conduct and without any special education services (34 C.F.R. 300.530 and K.A.R. 91-40-34).

Part of the investigator's analysis was the finding that this student was removed for disciplinary reasons to the "Focus Room," "for a total of 9 school days between February 17 and March 13, 2026 (Report, p. 12). Thus, at the time of issuing the report, the school district remained within its authority to suspend the student for any violation of school rules. For that reason, the investigator determined that the assigning of the student to the Focus Room for nine school days was a disciplinary action, and was not a change in placement. As such, it was not a matter for consideration by the student's parent or IEP team and did not trigger any of the parent's rights to participate in decision making under special education laws and regulations.

The Appeal Committee agrees with the investigator's analysis. The student was suspended for a total of 9 school-days for misbehavior. The suspension was within the authority of school administration and was not a change of placement. School administration was not required to consult with the student's IEP team or the parent before implementing the suspension.

In her appeal of the complaint report, the parent also states that she believes her parental right to request information about the student's sudden assignment to the Focus Room (including a request for video footage of the student's behavior), her right to make a request for the special education mediation process, and gaps in communication regarding behavior logs were not addressed in the complaint report. These issues were not in the original complaint and so were not included in the complaint report. They cannot be first addressed through this appeal process.

Sufficient evidence exists to support the findings and conclusions in the Complaint Report. The complaint report is sustained in full.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated herein, the Complaint Report is sustained in full.

This is the final decision on this matter. There is no further appeal. This Appeal Decision is issued this 2nd day of April, 2026.

Background Information

This investigation involved a twelfth-grade student enrolled at a high school in USD #437. The Student is currently receiving special education or related services under the category of multiple disabilities (other than deaf-blind) as a child with a disability per the IDEA. The Student has had a nurse assisting them during school hours since they began kindergarten.

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. Relevant information from the Student's IEP, with a meeting date of March 10, 2025, included:
    a. The Impact of Exceptionality stated, "… Multiple Disabilities is defined by coexisting impairments, the combination of which causes such severe educational needs that those needs cannot be accommodated in special education programs solely for one of the impairments. [The Student] presents as a child with Multiple Disabilities including significant cognitive and adaptive behavior delays, physical/motor difficulties that impact [their] functioning and performance, cortical visual impairment, and impairments in communication. [The Student] has Cerebral Palsy, [the Student] is non-ambulatory, non-weight bearing & has poor trunk control. [The Student] is dependent in all [their] care. [The Student] receives all [their] nutrition via gastrostomy tube feedings. [The Student] also has a seizure disorder for which [the Student] takes medication for. There is a shunt in place to avoid the condition of hydrocephalus. [The Student] was diagnosed with Cortical Visual Impairment (CVI) … on 06/07/2017. … [The Student's] visual functioning impacts how [the Student] sees and processes [their] academic curriculum. [The Student] needs visual accommodations and strategies. [The Student's] disabilities significantly impact [their] ability to see content, as well as the ability to comprehend and understand. [The Student] also learns at a significantly slower pace than [their] same age, typical peers. This requires [the Student] to receive individualized instruction in order to access the curriculum. These together impact [their] ability to progress, function, and perform in the classroom and school setting and in the general education curriculum."
    b. The Student had an IHCP, and the Student "… has a personal nurse with [them] on the bus and at school due to emergency medication."
    c. The Student required special transportation to and from school. "The related service of special transportation includes an estimated travel time for arrival (home to school) and departure (school to home) that is subject to route changes and is based on the school calendar." For their special transportation, the Student required a wheelchair lift, a bus aide, and air conditioning. Bus personnel needed training in order to provide services for the Student.
    d. In the Services and Supplementary Aids section:
        i. School Nurse services would be provided by a school nurse in the regular education classroom at the school from March 10, 2025 through March 9, 2026, for 61 minutes five days a week. This would be for advisory and passing periods.
        ii. School Nurse services would be provided by a school nurse outside the regular education classroom at the School for March 10, 2025 through March 9, 2026, for 85 minutes five days a week. This would be for vitals, physical assessment, feedings, bolus, an ankle-foot orthosis (AFO), range of motion, diapering, perineal care, Mic-Key button care, skin assessment, brushing their teeth, and washing their face.

iii. The Student would receive special education transportation for extracurricular activities, provided by the special education classroom teacher, at the School, from March 10, 2025 through March 9, 2026, for 40 minutes five days a week. The Student would receive nursing services during transportation.

iv. The Student would receive school nurse services, provided by a school nurse, for extracurricular activities at the School, from March 10, 2025 through March 9, 2026, for 40 minutes five days a week. (D176-D177, D185-D186, D190-D192, D194-D197)

2. A PWN, dated March 10, 2025, confirmed the information and services stated in the aforementioned IEP. The Parent checked that they gave consent and signed the PWN on April 2, 2025. (D281-D282, D284)
3. The Student's previous IEP, with a meeting date of March 25, 2024, included services from March 25, 2024 through March 24, 2025. The IEP included the same transportation and school nurse services, with the same number of minutes, as the IEP created in March 2025. (D209, D233-D234, D237, D238)
4. Progress Report dated during the 2025-26 school year indicated the following:
   a. Goal: "When alert, comfortable, ready to learn, & presented with [their] own personal eye gaze device (charged and working), [the Student] will be able to engage with minimal assistance in at least four novel recreational activities using eye-gaze technology."
      i. December 19, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
      ii. October 8, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
   b. Goal: "When participating in positioning out of [their] wheelchair and assisted into prone on forearms, and reclined or prone on vibroacoustic wedge, [the Student] will be able to visually interact with [their] environment."
      i. February 13, 2026: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
      ii. December 12, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
      iii. October 2, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
   c. Goal: "When in speech therapy, [the Student] will be able to independently utilize [their] [Augmentative and Alternative Communication] (AAC) device to communicate for a variety of functions (including but not limited to commenting, describing items and feelings, labeling actions, answering questions, appropriately protesting)."
      i. December 19, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
      ii. October 8, 2025: "Progress adequate to meet annual goal."
5. An LEA timesheet for Nurse 1 showed they worked at the School for 906 hours between February 17, 2025 and September 19, 2025. (D1-D3) An LEA timesheet for Nurse 5 showed they worked at the School for seven hours on October 31, 2025. (D4)

An LEA timesheet for Nurse 3 showed they worked at the School for ten hours on December 19, 2025. (D5) An LEA timesheet for Nurse 2 showed the number of hours they worked at the School, but not the total, between August 27, 2025 and February 16, 2026. (D6-D8)

6. Health Office Visit Reports for the School showed Nurse 1 provided nursing care for the Student on February 24, 25, 26, 27, and 28 2025; March 3, 4, 6, 7, 10, 11, 12, 13, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, and 31, 2025; April 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 22, 23, 24, 25, 28, 29, and 30, 2025; May 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23, 2025; and August 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 28, and 29, 2025. While there were some minor changes in the daily reports, detailed notes about the Student's routine included:
    a. The Student was picked up from their home, and the Parent provided updates about the Student, such as how well they had slept, their current mood, and if the Student had already received one of their medications. Nurse 1 provided an overview of the Student's mood, including whether they appeared alert. Nurse 1 also took and recorded the Student's temperature and performed a skin assessment. They noted when the Student's Mic-Key button was in place. Nurse 1 secured the Student on the bus.
    b. The Student's feeding tube was connected, and feeding started at 69mL/hour. Nurse 1 checked the G-tube site to see if it was clean and dry, and the AFOs were placed.
    c. In the morning, usually around 9:40 a.m. (though times varied slightly), Nurse 1 assisted with a two-person transfer of the Student to the changing table for perineal care. The feeding tube was stopped to do this. The Student's Mic-Key button was cleaned, and a skin assessment was performed. The Student was secured in their wheelchair, their teeth brushed, and their face washed. The Student's feeding tube was reconnected and restarted at 69 mL.
    d. The Student was administered albuterol around 12 p.m.
    e. In the afternoon, usually around 2 p.m., Nurse 1 performed a two-person transfer of the Student for a diaper change. The feeding tube was stopped to perform this care, which included a diaper change. Then the Student's feeding tube was reconnected and restarted at 69 mL.
    f. Around 2:50 p.m., Nurse 1 prepared the Student to go home by stopping the feeding tube and flushing the tubing. Nurse 1 provided a report to the Parent.
    g. An ESY time sheet for Nurse 1, dated June 26, 2025, showed Nurse 1 provided nursing services on June 2-5, 9-11, 17-19, and 23-26, 2025, for the Student. (D60-D72, D96-D148, D149, D301-D304, D306-D365)
7. Health Office Visit Reports for the School showed Nurse 2 provided 90 hours of nursing care for the Student on September 18, 25, 26, and 30, 2025; October 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 27, 28, 30, and 31, 2025; November 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 18, and 19, 2025; December 1, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 15, 16, 17, 18, and 22, 2025; and

January 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, 23 and 30, 2026. Their arrival times ranged from 7:45 a.m. to 8:05 a.m., and discharge times ranged from 2:08 p.m. to 4:02 p.m. While there were some minor changes in the daily reports, detailed notes about the Student's routine included:

a. The Student was picked up from their home, and the Parent provided updates about the Student, such as how well they had slept, their current mood, and if the Student had already received one of their medications.

b. The Student was wheeled out of the house backwards, as requested by the Parent. The bus driver wheeled the Student onto the lift and locked their wheelchair on the ramp. The Student was lifted into the bus, and the bus assistant/paraprofessional secured the Student and applied safety restraints. Once they arrived at the School, the bus driver, paraprofessional, and Nurse 2 transferred the Student off the bus. Nurse 2 wheeled the Student into the School and to the special education suite to retrieve their feeding bag and tubing setup. The Student had a communication device.

c. The tubing was already primed by the Parent. Other times, Nurse 2 prepared the feeding bag and primed the tubing. Nurse 2 flushed the tubing with 60mL, per the provider's orders, before starting feeding. The Student's feeding tube was connected, and feeding started at 69mL/hour, as ordered by the provider. Nurse 2 also checked the G-tube site to see if it was clean and dry. Nurse 2 set up the Student's communication device on their wheelchair.

d. During a restroom break, Nurse 2 paused the feeding pump, disconnected and capped the tubing, then transferred to the changing table. Nurse 2 and a paraprofessional transferred the Student to the changing table, and perineal care was performed. Nurse 2 performed a skin assessment and noted if the Student's brief was wet or if they had had a bowel movement, and applied a new brief. Nurse 2 transferred the Student to their wheelchair and applied their AFO. The Student's feeding tube was reconnected and restarted at 69 mL.

e. Details about the Student's breathing and skin condition were noted.

f. The Student was administered albuterol at approximately 12 p.m. per the provider's orders.

g. During a second restroom break, Nurse 2 followed the same procedures as described above regarding the Student's perineal care. Nurse 2 transferred the Student to their wheelchair, and their feeding tube was reconnected and restarted at 69 mL.

h. During the 6th hour of the school day, the Student's feeding tube was still running at the rate ordered by the provider. Nurse 2 added one container of Pediasure peptide to the feeding bag, as ordered.

i. During a third restroom break, Nurse 2 followed the same procedures as described above regarding the Student's perineal care. Nurse 2 transferred the Student to their wheelchair.

j. The Student was allowed to stretch out while Nurse 2 read to them. The Student was transferred back to their wheelchair. Once the Student was secured in their wheelchair, their feeding tube was restarted at 69mL/hour, per orders.

k. Nurse 2 removed the AFOs and placed them in the Student's backpack. Nurse 2 removed the communication device from the Student's wheelchair and shut it down. They placed the device into its case and secured it in the Student's bag.

l. Nurse 2 stopped the feeding tube and turned off the pump. They disconnected the feeding tube, flushed it, and capped it before the Student boarded the bus, per the Parent's request. The Student was wheeled to the bus, and the bus driver performed the same process described above. Upon arriving at the Student's house, the Parent was given an update about the Student's day.

m. The notes also included details about the Student's participation in their classes and their mood.

n. On January 27, 28, and 29, 2026, and February 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 16, 2026, Nurse 2 was on lifting restrictions. On these days, the Health Office Visit Reports included additional information stating that Nurse 2 received assistance from trained professionals to lift and transport the Student, with Nurse 2 present and supervising. A paraprofessional helped Nurse 2 wheel the Student out of the house and assisted them with securing the Student on the bus. Notes from the reports indicated different teachers helped wheel the Student from class to class, but Nurse 2 remained with the Student. During the Student's restroom breaks, other staff members, including paraprofessionals, Certified Nursing Assistant (CNAs), and physical therapists, assisted Nurse 2 in transferring the Student on and off the changing table. (D9-D34, D37-D59, D366-D404, D411, D417, D423, D426, D427, D447, D450, D451)

8. Relevant information from a Nursing Care document for the Student for the 2025-26 school year included:

   a. The Student had diagnoses of a seizure disorder, a partial complex seizure disorder, generalized convulsive epilepsy, cerebral palsy, periventricular leukomalacia, hydrocephalus with shunt, dysphagia with gastrotomy feeding, and left and right hip surgery.

   b. For the Student's epilepsy/seizure disorder, the Student would be monitored for signs of seizures. If the Student vomited during a Tonic-Clonic type seizure, staff would follow the Seizure Action plan, observe and record seizure activity and its length, and keep a record in the health office. The document contained the Student's medication for current seizures and emergency seizure medication. The Student would remain in their wheelchair if a seizure occurred while in it.

   c. The Student had a G-tube (Mic-Key button) and an Infinity pump. The Student could have Pediasure Peptide per their Mic-Key button at 69-70 mL/hour. When changing the Student's position, staff should monitor for raspy breathing, coughing, and watery eyes. The Student's feeding tube would be stopped and disconnected during bus transport. If the Mic-Key button should become dislodged, staff should cover the area with gauze and replace it as soon as possible, per the doctor's orders.

d. The Student was non-ambulatory, and their mobility was dependent on their wheelchair. The Student was a "2:1 transfer or Hoyer lift." Instructions for lifting the Student were included. The Student would have a position adjustment every two hours by taking breaks out of their wheelchair. Staff would monitor the Student for non-verbal signs of illness, pain, or discomfort. If the Student showed non-verbal signs of pain, staff would reposition the Student and ensure the environmental temperature was not too warm.

e. The Student had hip surgery in 2020 and 2024.

f. The Student was non-verbal.

g. The Student would receive Budesonide upon arrival at school and receive Albuterol at noon. The Student would be monitored for symptoms of shunt malfunctions.

h. "To accomplish the outcomes detailed within this plan, [the Student] will have nursing services throughout [their] day." This included when the Student was on the bus, during all times in general education settings, and when receiving special education and related services.

i. The document was dated February 23, 2026. (D153-D158)

j. A Nursing Care document for the Student for the 2024-25 school year included the same information as the plan for the 2025-26 school year. (D251-D256)

9. A License Verification Report for Nurse 1 indicated they had an active, unencumbered Registered Nurse (RN) license in the state of Kansas. The license was issued on August 26, 1985, and would expire on April 30, 2026. (D164) A License Verification Report for Nurse 5 indicated they had an active, unencumbered RN license in the state of Kansas. The license was issued on January 26, 2012, and would expire on November 30, 2027. (D166) A License Verification Report for Nurse 3 indicated they had an active, unencumbered RN license in the state of Kansas. The license was issued on August 21, 1991, and would expire on March 31, 2027. (D289) A License Verification Report for Nurse 2 indicated they had an active, unencumbered RN license in the state of Kansas. The license was issued on June 16, 2010, and would expire on September 30, 2027. According to the report, "unencumbered" meant the nurse had a full and unrestricted license to practice by the state board of nursing. (D291)

10. Relevant information from a timeline created by the LEA included:

a. September 19, 2025 - The Assistant Principal called the Parent and informed them of Nurse 1's resignation.

b. September 22 and 23, 2025 - The Assistant Principal called and updated the Parent on the search for a nurse.

c. September 24, 2025 - The Assistant Principal informed the Parent that nursing services for the Student would be provided by Nurse 2, who had been working in the School's clinic. Nurse 2 would switch to being the Student's one-to-one nurse.

d. September 25, 2025 - A virtual meeting was held with the Parent and the IEP team to discuss the change in the Student's nurse provider.

e. December 15, 2025 - LEA staff initiated contact with a nursing agency to seek a contract nurse because the LEA had been unsuccessful in hiring a new nurse. The LEA's intent was to hire a nurse for the clinic or the Student, so Nurse 2 could return to the clinic. Due to the lack of a new hire, Nurse 2 remained the Student's one-to-one nurse. The Assistant Principal spoke with the Parent about contacting the nursing agency.

f. January 2-6, 2026 - As of January 6, 2026, the nursing agency confirmed they did not have a nurse available to meet the School's needs.

g. January 22, 2026 - The Principal confirmed with the Assistant Director of Student Programs that they intended to speak with Nurse 2 about continuing Nurse 2's assignment as the Student's one-to-one nurse for the remainder of the school year. Five days later, the Principal confirmed they had spoken to Nurse 2 about the change and assigned Nurse 2 as the Student's one-to-one nurse.

h. January 27, 2026 - The Assistant Director of Student Programs spoke with the Parent and shared Nurse 2 had been assigned to the Student just before the nursing agency found a candidate. It was agreed the Parent would speak with the candidate because it had been difficult to find nursing services for home or school. The Parent was frustrated with the Student's nursing services schedule.

i. January 29, 2026 - The Parent met with the contract nursing candidate, and the Assistant Director of Student Programs informed the Parent that Nurse 2 had been assigned to work with the Student. The Assistant Director of Student Programs stated they would check with the nursing agency to determine whether the candidate wanted to work part-time or cover transportation time and/or ESY for the Student. The Assistant Director of Student Programs spoke with the nursing agency to "pause" the hire because a nurse from the School had been assigned to the position. They asked the candidate if they were interested in part-time work.

j. January 30, 2026 - The Assistant Director of Student Programs spoke with the Parent and indicated the candidate was not interested in part-time or substitute work. The decision was confirmed, with Nurse 2 remaining with the Student.

k. February 4, 2026 - The Assistant Director of Student Programs emailed the nursing agency and acknowledged the Parent was "unhappy" with the LEA's decision not to hire the contract nurse. The Parent expressed concern about the LEA's decision to keep Nurse 2 in the position rather than hire the contract nurse.

l. February 10, 2026 - During a phone call with the Special Education Director, the Parent expressed frustration with the Student's nursing plan.

m. February 12, 2026 - During a phone call, the Special Education Director proposed adjusting the Student's IEP to have a CNA on the bus with the Student. The Parent was "frustrated and resistant." The Special Education Director reiterated the LEA's job was to provide services during the school day, and while the current setup was not ideal, the LEA was meeting its obligation. The Special Education Director offered to contact the nursing agency to see if a candidate was willing to work before and after school, but the Parent refused.

n. February 16, 2026 - LEA staff realized the Student's current IEP did not include full-day nursing services, even though the School had been providing full-day services.

o. February 17, 2026 - During an IEP meeting, the IEP team clarified they had been providing full-day nursing services consistent with the Student's IHCP and would ensure the services on the IEP were reflective of a one-to-one nurse. (D269-D271)

11. According to a Student Period Attendance Detail report for the 2025-26 school year generated on February 24, 2026, the Student was marked absent for the "nurse out" on separate 6 days, for an assembly one day, for illness four days, for a medical appointment one day, for weather three days, and for a school activity one day. All absences were excused. According to this report, the Student was not marked tardy for any class period. (D298-D299)

Parent Interview

12. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Parent noted that once the School decided to use Nurse 2 as the Student's nurse, the transportation times changed, and the Student was being picked up 45 minutes later than previously. The Parent noted due to the late pick-up, the Student missed "the majority" of their first-hour class. The Parent added they had to change the Student's schedule to study hall for their first-hour class so the Student would not miss "important classes." (P1, 00:37, 00:57, 01:44, 02:37) The Parent indicated they were told the schedule was temporary until they found another nurse. (P2, 03:36)
13. The Parent explained the Student had the same bus schedule since starting eighth grade. The Student used to get picked up at 7:10 a.m. The Parent confirmed they worked from home and they had not lost their employment as a result of the changes to the Student's schedule. (P2, 04:33, 04:46)
14. The Parent reported they did not hear from the nursing agency until after winter break, when the nursing agency called to ask if they wanted to meet a candidate. The Parent indicated they had notified the School they wanted to move forward with the nurse from the nursing agency. The Principal explained the School would continue with Nurse 2 for the remainder of the school year and look for another nurse next school year. (P3, 05:50, 06:50)
15. The Parent noted they used a "TA Nurse" from an agency until the Student was in seventh grade, but noted when they moved to the School, they had been using the school nurse. (P4, 09:24)
16. The Parent confirmed the Student missed four days of school during the transition between Nurse 1 and Nurse 2. (P4, 11:01) The Parent noted the Student's schedule changed for their morning arrival at school, but they arrived home at the same time as before. (P5, 11:55) They added the LEA had not offered to make up the time the Student missed. (P5, 11:42)

17. The Parent did not notice any differences in the nursing services provided by Nurse 2 as compared to Nurse 1. They communicated the only difference was the pickup time. They indicated they were not called or told about it before it happened. (P6, 14:43)
18. The Parent noted they did not receive a PWN regarding changes to the Student's schedule. (P6, 16:12)

Assistant Principal Interview

19. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Principal was joined by the Special Education Director. (P1, 00:37, 01:03)
20. The Assistant Principal confirmed the contract nurse was hired to provide services during the school day and on the bus ride to and from school. (P1, 01:39)
21. The Assistant Principal explained, after Nurse 1 resigned, they worked to find a replacement nurse as soon as possible. The Assistant Principal noted they reviewed Nurse 1's schedule and "realigned what the hours were going to be" for the new position. The Assistant Principal noted they had reached out to a nursing agency and people in their community, and confirmed the job was listed as an open position. (P2, 02:00)
    The Assistant Principal recalled the position was initially considered temporary and noted that Nurse 2 agreed to be the Student's nurse while they looked for a permanent staff member. (P2, 02:00, 03:40)
    The Assistant Principal confirmed there were "several days" during which the Student did not receive services between Nurse 1's resignation and Nurse 2's start. (P2, 04:04) The Special Education Director confirmed it was 4 days from September 19, 2025, through September 24, 2025, and noted there was a weekend in the date range. (P3, 04:52) The Special Education Director reported Nurse 2 started on September 25, 2025, and their position was made permanent on January 22, 2026. (P3, 05:53, 06:20) The Director of Special Education acknowledged they did not notify the nursing agency that they no longer needed its services after deciding to make Nurse 2's position permanent. (P3, 07:13) They added the nursing agency found someone almost at the same time and contacted the Parent. (P3, 08:12)
22. The Special Education Director explained the Student continued to have the same bus route, but their pickup and drop-off times changed when Nurse 2 was hired. They explained Nurse 1 worked 6:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and noted it was not "super feasible" for a nurse. The Special Education Director clarified they were not required to provide an extra hour of support at either end of the Student's school day and noted that they had to provide "comparable services" as those provided to peers. (P4, 09:44; P5, 10:43)

Assistant Director of Student Programs Interview

23. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, the Assistant Director of Student Programs was joined by the Special Education Director. (P1, 00:38, 00:49)
24. The Assistant Director of Student Programs stated there was little turnaround time after Nurse 1 resigned. They confirmed the "high school administration" had contacted the Parent, and the Parent had chosen to keep the Student home while staffing was being determined. They added, "high school administration" had asked Nurse 2 to step in and support the Student while the LEA posted the position and looked into "other options." (P1, 01:30)

The Assistant Director of Student Programs noted it was challenging to find qualified applicants. They noted they interviewed "some" applicants and had offered the position to two candidates, both of whom declined. The Assistant Director of Student Programs explained the Special Education Director contacted the nursing agency afterward to see if they could help with staffing. (P1, 02:48)

The Assistant Director of Student Programs decided to assign Nurse 2 to the Student and to continue seeking applicants, and affirmed they wanted stability for the Student. The nursing agency found a viable candidate and informed the Parent around the same time the LEA decided to keep Nurse 2 in their position. (P2, 04:39)

25. The Assistant Director of Student Programs stated the School "administration" told the nursing agency they did not require that solution and would continue with the current plan. (P2, 06:15)
26. The Assistant Director of Student Programs noted the Parent believed the nurse from the nursing agency would be able to provide before and after-school care. (P2, 07:19) The Assistant Director of Student Programs clarified the LEA coordinated and collaborated with outside agencies, but they were only responsible for providing care during the school day, other than before and after school transportation services. (P3, 08:08)
27. The Assistant Director of Student Programs shared that they asked the Parent whether they wanted to speak with the nursing agency, as the Parent had additional nursing needs to address. They added that the Parent didn't have a say in the service provider; however, they wanted the Parent to have the option to ask potential providers about ESY and summer school. (P4, 12:34)

Nurse 2 Interview

28. In an interview with the Complaint Investigator, Nurse 2 was joined by the Special Education Director. Nurse 2 confirmed they worked as the Student's one-to-one nurse. Nurse 2 reported working with the Student from the time the Student got on the school bus until the Student was dropped off at home at the end of the day. (P1, 00:46, 01:22, 02:20)
29. Nurse 2 explained there was one day they could recall leaving early without coverage, and confirmed they had coverage for the Student all other times. (P2, 03:30) Nurse 2 recalled "physical therapy" had to train anyone working with the Student on how to lift the Student and how to use the Hoyer while Nurse 2 was on lifting restrictions. Additionally, Nurse 2 shared school staff helped when Nurse 2 was on a push-pull restriction. (P3, 04:44)
30. Nurse 2 stated before the restriction, they asked CNAs in the special education suite or paraeducators who had been trained to help transfer the Student. (P3, 04:44, 05:22)

31. Nurse 2 described their familiarity with the procedures required for the Student's daily support, which included G-tube care, diaper changes and hygiene, administering breathing treatments, and checking vitals. (P3, 05:47, 06:52, 07:08)
32. Nurse 2 explained that, as a nurse, they had been trained and had experience caring for and running a feeding tube and a feeding pump. They noted they were unable to consult with Nurse 1 before leaving, so they had to speak with the Parent, review the orders, and communicate with staff about when and where certain procedures occurred. (P4, 08:14)
33. Nurse 2 confirmed they began providing nursing services to the Student on September 25, 2025, after Nurse 1 resigned. (P4, 09:16, 09:32)

Positions of the Parties, Applicable Regulations, and Conclusions

Issue One

Whether USD #437, in accordance with state and federal regulations implementing the IDEA, has been implementing the IEP as written with the LEA staff available, or whether non-LEA staff was required to implement the Student's IEP. K.A.R. 91-40-16(b); 34 §§ C.F.R. 300.323, 300.156(a)(b).

According to K.A.R. 91-40-16(b) and 34 § C.F.R. 300.323, each agency shall ensure an IEP is in effect before special education and related services are provided to an exceptional child. Those services for which written consent has been granted as specified by law are implemented not later than 10 school days after parental consent is granted unless a reasonable justification for a delay can be shown. An IEP is in effect for each exceptional child at the beginning of each school year. The child's IEP is accessible to each regular education teacher, special education teacher, related service provider, and other service provider who is responsible for its implementation. Each teacher and provider is informed of that individual's specific responsibilities for implementing the child's IEP, as well as the specific accommodations, modifications, and supports that must be provided for the child in accordance with the IEP.

According to 34 § C.F.R.300.156(a)(b), the State Education Agency (SEA) must establish and maintain qualifications to ensure that personnel necessary to carry out the purposes of this part are appropriately and adequately prepared and trained, including those personnel who have the content knowledge and skills to serve children with disabilities.

The qualifications must include those for related services personnel and paraprofessionals that are consistent with any State-approved or State-recognized certification, licensing, registration, or other comparable requirements that apply to the professional discipline in which those personnel provide special education or related services. They must ensure that related services personnel who deliver services in their discipline or profession meet the requirements of paragraph (b)(1) of this section; have not had certification or licensure requirements waived on an emergency, temporary, or provisional basis; and allow paraprofessionals and assistants who are appropriately trained and supervised, in accordance with State law, regulation, or written policy, in meeting the requirements of this part to be used to assist in the provision of special education and related services under this part to children with disabilities.

The Parent alleged that the LEA failed to hire an outside agency nurse for the Student's home and school care, which affected the Parent's employment.

The LEA responded they were aware of issues with nurse staffing but confirmed they maintained one-on-one nursing services throughout the Complaint period. The LEA also acknowledged there were instances of late arrival or early departure totaling approximately 1% of the Student's present minutes, but the Student continued to make measurable progress toward their IEP goals.

The Student is a child with multiple disabilities, requiring one-to-one nursing services, specialized transportation, and gastrostomy tube feedings. The Student's IEP and IHCP, reviewed on March 10, 2025, mandated nursing services during the school day and during transportation. Following Nurse 1's resignation on September 19, 2025, the Student missed four days of school while the LEA searched for a replacement. The LEA assigned Nurse 2 to the one-to-one role on September 25, 2025. Although the LEA initially sought a contract nurse through an external nursing agency, they decided to make Nurse 2's assignment permanent in January 2026, despite the Parent's preference for a nursing agency candidate and concerns regarding a 45-minute delay in morning transportation. Nurse 2, a licensed RN, had provided consistent care, including tube feedings and seizure monitoring, while using trained staff for transfers during periods of physical-lifting restrictions. An attendance report generated on February 24, 2026, showed the Student had excused absences for various reasons, including six days for "nurse out" and four days for illness, but recorded no tardies for any class period. On February 17, 2026, the IEP team met to formally update the Student's IEP to reflect the full-day one-to-one nursing services that were being provided.

According to Endrew F. v. Douglas County School District, the Court held that, to meet its substantive obligation under the IDEA, a school must offer an IEP reasonably calculated to enable a child to make appropriate progress in light of the child's circumstances. Although the Student missed six days of school due to staffing needs, they demonstrated progress toward their goals. Evidence does not show the lack of staffing caused the Student to regress or lose progress.

Based on the foregoing, according to IDEA and Kansas special education regulations, it is not substantiated that the LEA failed to implement the IEP as written, with the LEA staff available.

KANSAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
SPECIAL EDUCATION AND TITLE SERVICES

REPORT OF COMPLAINT
FILED AGAINST
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT #431
ON FEBRUARY 18, 2026

DATE OF REPORT: MARCH 23, 2026

This report is in response to a complaint filed with our office on behalf of a student, -------, by their parent, -------. In the remainder of the report, the student will be referred to as "the Student" and the parent as "the Parent."

The Complaint is against USD #431, Hoisington Public Schools. In the remainder of the report, "the School" and the "local education agency (LEA)" shall refer to USD #431.

When a special education complaint is filed against a school district that is a member of a special education cooperative or interlocal, or that uses any other state recognized public agency to serve children with disabilities, the term "local education agency (LEA)" in this report will include the school district, the special education cooperative or interlocal, and any other agency that is recognized by the state as an administrative agency for public elementary or secondary schools and is serving the educational needs of this student.

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) allows for a 30-day timeline to investigate a child complaint. A complaint is considered to be filed on the date it is delivered to both the KSDE and the LEA. In this case, the KSDE initially received the complaint on February 18, 2026, and the 30-day timeline ended on March 20, 2026.

Background Information

This investigation involved a third grade student enrolled at in an Elementary School in USD #431. The Student is receiving special education or related services as a child with a disability per the IDEA. The Student had an IEP dated December 16, 2024, with an amendment date of August 26, 2025. The Student was homeschooled for four years prior and was receiving speech therapy. The Student was also diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and autism spectrum disorder (ASD). The LEA found the Student eligible for other health impairment (OHI). The Student received outpatient occupational therapy once per week. The IEP team determined for the 2024-25 and 2025-26 school years, the Student would receive speech-language services in a pullout setting for fifteen minutes two times per week. The Parent suggested starting the Student with social/non-academic activities. The Parent reports [the Student's] tolerance level is 30–45 minutes, requests unlimited breaks, and consistency with staff. The Parent did not believe [the Student] could handle five days/week of 30 minutes, requested two days, but wants regularity in support. The IEP team proposed to amend the Student's special education minutes through a gradual increase in length of day and frequency of attendance, with the intent of supporting the Student's access to instruction and social emotional needs on February 3, 2026. The team recommended five days a week and a placement at the Transitional Learning Center (TLC).

Findings of the Investigation

The following findings are based on a review of documentation and interviews with the Parent and staff in the LEA.

1. The Student had an IEP dated December 16, 2024, with an amendment date of August 26, 2025. Relevant information included:
    a. Both parents attended and participated in person, as the legal education decision makers.
    b. In the "Input" section, it was written, "Parents have reported that they do notice [the Student's] articulation errors in [their] conversational speech. They do take [the Student] for outpatient speech services to address these errors. [The Parent] also reports that [the Student] has a very strong vocabulary and loves clever word play. … [The Student] also has struggles with speech sounds. Other parent comments are documented throughout the IEP."
    c. The Wechsler Intelligence Scale for Children - Fifth Edition (WISC-V) was administered to the Student by the School Psychologist on November 20, 2024. The Student scored "very high" in verbal comprehension and visual spatial, "high average" in fluid reasoning and full scale IQ, "average" on working memory, and "very low" on processing speed. Relevant information from the educational impacts stated, "[The Student] may benefit from having [their] writing assignments chunked and guided notes."
    d. In November 2024, the Student was evaluated for outpatient occupational therapy by an outside provider. It was determined the Student would receive outpatient occupational therapy once per week. The Student underwent three school-based occupational therapy observations in the classroom on November 4, 2024, and December 2 and 9, 2024. A Sensory Profile occupational therapy evaluation of the Student was completed on November 18, 2024. At the time, it was determined the Student's sensory needs did not significantly impact their ability to function in the educational setting and they did not require specially designed instruction.
    e. The Student had a need in the area of articulation. It was written "[The Student] was administered the Photo Articulation Test. [They] made substitutions on the R and TH phonemes. … [The Student's] speech and language delay may negatively impact [them] socially and academically. [They] may become shy or frustrated when [they] [are] unable to express [their] needs and wants. These errors may affect [their] self-esteem and willingness to participate in classroom activities." The IEP stated this would be met by the following goals:
        i. "Within 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will produce the TH in all positions of words in sentences with 80% accuracy when describing/naming objects/pictures as observed by the SLP over two data sessions." The Student's baseline was 20%, based on data and Speech-Language Pathologist (SLP) observation.

ii. "Within 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will produce the R in the initial position of words with 80% accuracy when describing/naming objects/pictures as observed by the SLP over two data sessions." The Student's baseline was zero, based on data and SLP observation.

f. In the Social Emotional / Adaptive section, the Parent reported the Student seemed unhappy at times due to their post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

g. The Student was given the Behavior Assessment System for Children, Third Edition (BASC-3). Raters assigned their scores between September 2024 and December 2024.

h. The Student was given the Woodcock-Johnson IV Tests of Achievement, Form A in reading, math, and written language on October 14, 2024.

i. The IEP noted the Student did not require any accommodations, modifications, or supplementary aids.

j. The Student would receive the following services at the School, every second week, August 21, 2025 through December 14, 2025, and provided by the SLP: speech-language services outside of the regular education classroom for five minutes one day a week, and speech-language indirect services for five minutes one day a week. These services were noted as an amendment to the IEP made on August 26, 2025.

k. The IEP team determined for the 2024-25 and 2025-26 school years, the Student would receive speech-language services in a pullout setting for fifteen minutes two times per week.

l. It was marked "yes" that the Student would receive special education services outside of the general education classroom; the IEP team considered placement in the regular environment with supplementary aids and services; and the team considered the nature and severity of the Student's disability when determining their placement. It was written the IEP team did not anticipate any harmful effects to the Student from their minimal time pulled out of class.

2. A letter from an outside provider to the Parent, dated February 28, 2025, indicated the provider determined the Student was eligible for Intellectual/Developmental Disability (IDD) services.

3. The Parent completed a Parent Input Form on August 10, 2025. Relevant information included:

    a. The Student had diagnoses of autism, attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), sensory processing disorder (SPD), proprioceptive and vestibular dysfunction, pediatric insomnia, sleep apnea, irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) and gastrointestinal struggles, issues with speech articulation, a phonological disorder, and PTSD. The Parent stated the Student could perform academically within their window of tolerance.

4. Relevant information from meeting notes from an August 12, 2025 meeting included:

a. The attendees were the Parent, the Superintendent, the Therapist, the Principal, Teacher 1, Teacher 2, the Family Resource Specialist, the Autism and Behavior Coach, the SLP, the Special Education Director, an outside case manager, and the Advocate.
b. It was written, "[The Parent] frequently resists or creates barriers to team recommendations, moving between agencies when answers are not aligned with [their] expectations. … [The Parent] reports [the Student's] tolerance level is 30–45 minutes, requests unlimited breaks, and consistency with staff. [The Parent] does not believe [the Student] can handle five days/week of 30 minutes, requested 2 days, but wants regularity in support. … We have to take into consideration the information shared by both parents and agencies involved (past/present)."
c. The Parent suggested starting the Student with social/non-academic activities. It was noted the School had done that.
d. The Therapist stated they saw the Student weekly, and noted the Student's progress depended "heavily" on their emotional state that day. They indicated the Student was sometimes engaged, and sometimes withdrawn or dysregulated.
e. The Autism and Behavior Coach stressed the importance of maintaining demands as part of school expectations, while incorporating easier tasks to reduce the Student's frustration.

5. PWN, no date, indicated the IEP team had met on August 12, 2025 to determine whether the Student was eligible for special education, if special education and related services were needed by the Student, the appropriate placement, and any additions or changes to the Student's services to enable them to meet their IEP goals and participate in the general curriculum. It was checked that the Student would receive a material change in services and placement, for which parental consent was required.
    a. It was proposed the Student would receive speech-language services, outside the regular education classroom and as indirect services, for five minutes every other week. The services would be effective the date the form was signed and would remain in effect for the duration of the current IEP.
    b. The IEP team agreed the Student required these services so they may progress in the general education curriculum. The option to not provide services to the Student was rejected.
    c. The data used for the proposed action included parent input, the Student's current IEP and schedule, and student data.
    d. The IEP team believed the benefits of the proposed action outweighed any potential harmful effects.
    e. The Parent signed the PWN on August 26, 2025. The Other Parent signed the PWN on September 2, 2025.

6. An IEP amendment, dated August 25, 2025, summarized the speech-language services described in the aforementioned PWN. It was signed by the Parent on August 26, 2025 and marked they agreed with the amendment. The Other Parent also marked that they agreed and signed the amendment on September 2, 2025.
7. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent on September 17, 2025 and introduced them to the Clinical Director from the Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) provider who would perform the Functional Behavioral Assessment (FBA).
8. The Parent completed the Parent Rating Scales (PRS-C) of the BASC-3 for the Student on November 13, 2025. In the comments section, the Parent wrote the Student struggled due to their neurotype and trauma. They indicated the Student's emotional regulation was developmentally behind and exacerbated by their PTSD. The BASC-3 also indicated the Other Parent had completed the PRS-C on October 28, 2025 and Teacher 1 completed the TRS-C on November 6, 2025. The Clinical and Adaptive T-Score profile showed the Other Parent rated the Student as "clinically significant" in hyperactivity, atypicality, withdrawal, and the behavior symptoms index. Teacher 1 rated the Student as "clinically significant" in atypicality, withdrawal, and the behavior symptoms index. The Parent rated the Student as "clinically significant" in hyperactivity, aggression, externalizing problems, anxiety, depression, somatization, internalizing problems, atypicality, withdrawal, and the behavior symptoms index. The Content Scale and Index T-Score profile showed the Other Parent rated the Student as "clinically significant" in anger control. Teacher 1 rated the Student as "clinically significant" in developmental social disorders. The Parent rated the Student as "clinically significant" in anger control, developmental social disorders, and emotional self-control.
9. Relevant information from an FBA, dated November 17, 2025, included:
    a. The Student was referred for an FBA to assess behaviors of concern to include aggression (hitting, kicking, and scratching), and some self-soothing behaviors, such as pacing, throwing/hitting objects, or knocking them down. The behaviors had proven disruptive to the Student's learning and that of others, interfered with the Student's progress and performance in skill acquisition, and were detrimental to the Student's ability to create and maintain social relationships with adults and peers.
    b. Assessment procedures included the Functional Analysis Screening Tool (FAST) and Antecedent, Behavior, Consequence (ABC) data. School staff collected ABC data between August 25, 2025 through October 28, 2025. Assessments and observations were completed by three separate clinical supervisors/board certified behavior analysts with no pre-existing background information to determine the function of the behavior in the school setting.
    c. The Student had the following percentages for the frequency of certain behaviors: physical aggression, 36%; refusal to come in, 27%; not following directions, 18%; and 9% each for physical aggression/disruption and misuse of materials/property destruction and not following directions/disruption.

d. The Parent included detailed information about the Student. The Parent stated the Student's behavior concerns in school included dysregulation, meltdowns, shutdowns, hypervigilance, and PTSD-related fight/flight/fawn reactions. The Parent advised they supported the Student's needs by keeping things structured and predictable. The Parent shared documentation from the Therapist which stated, "When kids feel safe and are regulated, they can manage hard things. … [the Student] is not at that point with school. … They are to call only [the Parent] to deal with behavior issues."
e. The Other Parent believed the Student should attend school for a full day. They did not think the Student would learn how to cope with a school schedule if they were not being introduced to it properly.
f. On October 9 and 28, 2024 a board certified behavior analyst observed the Student and noted approximately three instances of aggression, eight instances of property destruction, and fifteen instances of screaming within a thirty minute observation period.
g. Recommendations included:
    i. Environmental modifications by removing or hiding triggers or adding comforting elements.
    ii. Providing a reinforcer on a fixed schedule, independent of the behavior, to decrease motivation for the behavior.
    iii. Incorporate sensory strategies that could help the Student regulate their emotions, such as access to weighted blankets, fidget tools, or quiet spaces.
    iv. Prioritize teaching and practice of coping and self-regulation skills.
    v. Prioritize communication skills to express emotion and safety.
    vi. Develop social connections and support networks.
    vii. Establish routines to build predictability and safety.
h. Suggestions for antecedent interventions, replacement behaviors, and consequence/response interventions were also included.

10. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent and the IEP team on November 24, 2025 and stated they tried to call the Parent, but were unable to leave a message. They stated the IEP team was trying to schedule the Student's evaluation and IEP meeting, which were due December 16, 2025, and asked what time was best for the Parent. The Special Education Director provided two meeting date options. While they wrote the days and dates correctly, the Special Education Director wrote the month as November, when it was actually December. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent again on December 1, 2025 and offered the same meeting dates. The Parent replied they were available on December 15, 2025 at 9:30 a.m. They asked the Special Education Director to verify if they meant December for the meeting, which they confirmed. The Special Education Director also attached the Notice of Meeting (NOM) confirming the December 15, 2025 meeting at the School.

11. An envelope from the LEA addressed to the Parent was postmarked December 1, 2025. Handwritten on the envelope was, "3rd attempt. Copy provided [the Parent] on 12/15/25."
12. An undated NOM proposed a meeting date of December 15, 2025 to review the results of the Student's re-evaluation. The Other Parent signed it on December 4, 2025. The documentation of delivery indicated the Special Education Director sent the notice to the Parent on December 1, 2025 by mail and e-mail.
13. The School Psychologist emailed the PWN, the FBA, the evaluation and eligibility report, and the Student's IEP to the Other Parent and the Special Education Director the morning of December 15, 2025. The Special Education Director emailed the same documents to the Advocate about 30 minutes later.
14. Relevant information from the Student's Evaluation and Eligibility Report, with a meeting date of December 15, 2025, included:
    a. The reason for the re-evaluation was to determine if the child continued to be eligible as a student with a disability, determine the Student's present levels of performance and educational needs, whether the Student continued to require special education services, and whether additions or modifications to services were needed to enable the Student to meet IEP goals and participate in the general education curriculum.
    b. A special education evaluation was conducted on December 16, 2024 and it was determined the Student did not meet eligibility criteria for special education services, as their academic performance and classroom behavior did not significantly impact their educational performance at the time. The Student qualified for speech and language services in the area of articulation. The Parent provided documentation the Student had diagnoses of autism, ADHD, SPD, pediatric insomnia, obstructive sleep apnea, IBS issues, speech articulation / phonological disorder, vestibular and proprioceptive dysfunction, and PTSD. These needs impacted the Student's behavior, social skills, emotional regulation, and executive functioning.
    c. The School team met with each parent separately on August 12, 2025 to discuss the Student's attendance plan. It was determined the Student would attend school two days per week on Tuesdays and Thursdays, for 30 minutes each day, from 1:00 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. During the meeting, the Parent reported the Student's tolerance level was 30-40 minutes, and the Student was eligible for the I/DD waiver and had an updated autism evaluation.
    d. The Autism and Behavior Coach observed the Student on September 29, 2025, October 7, 14, and 16, 2025, and November 6, 2025. They stated the Student demonstrated strengths in conversational engagement, turn-taking during structured activities, and the ability to make choices when offered. The Student's participation and behavior varied significantly day-to-day, with sessions influenced by their level of regulation, motivation, and preferred topics. They noted patterns of behavior including preferred-interest focus, fidgeting and movement, difficulty with competition/loss of control, and transition variability. The Autism and Behavior Coach noted the Student showed dysregulation through physical aggression when overstimulated, avoidance behaviors, loud vocalization and aggressive pretend play, and required adult physical support to leave the room on some days. They indicated the Student's participation increased with preferred books or games, and when regulated, they demonstrated the ability to correct mistakes independently. They noted the Student responded well to staff on days when rapport and routines were strong, the Student required frequent verbal prompts and redirection during dysregulation moments, and the Student occasionally sought teacher acknowledgement through noises or actions. They stated the Student's behavior tended to escalate when expectations increased or when preferred items were removed, their level of engagement fluctuated across sessions, and staff consistently provided positive feedback.

e. The School Psychologist observed the Student on December 2, 2025.

f. Both parents and Teacher 1 completed input forms. Their comments and concerns were documented throughout the report.

g. Results from the Student's previous evaluation meeting on December 16, 2024 were summarized in the report to provide additional context. This included the Sensory Profile evaluation, the WISC-V, parent input about the Student's academic skills, the Woodcock-Johnson IV tests, and a Photo Articulation Test. An update on this test stated as of December 4, 2025, the Student could produce the TH phoneme with 60% accuracy and the R phoneme with 70% accuracy.

h. The FBA used structured ABC data collection across 21 observed episodes (including antecedent frequencies, behavior types, consequence patterns, and response patterns), qualitative staff narratives from August-December 2025, parent input and consistent behavioral themes across settings, and direct observation notes from school providers across multiple sessions. The FBA concluded that across settings, the Student demonstrated a pattern of high-intensity dysregulation, including physical aggression, property destruction, and refusal/avoidance behaviors. The FBA concluded the Student, across arrival, transition, and instructional periods, when presented with demands, transitions, or adult directives, was likely to demonstrate physical aggression, property destruction, refusal behaviors and/or disengagement. A secondary function of escape/avoidance of non-preferred tasks or transitions was also present.

i. There was a summary of the BASC-3 and the scores provided by the Parent, the Other Parent, and Teacher 1.

j. The Recommendations/Eligibility section stated, "Based on a comprehensive review of [the Student's] file, previous evaluation results, current classroom and behavioral performance, [FBA] findings, reported diagnoses, and behavioral rating scales, [the Student] meets eligibility for special education under OHI."

The Student's diagnoses were listed. Behavioral ratings from the BASC-3 indicated elevated concerns across multiple domains, and challenges were observed in adaptive functioning, particularly in adaptability and social skills. The report stated, "These findings, combined with observed difficulties with attention, focus, and classroom engagement, indicate that [the Student's] health and behavioral challenges significantly impact [their] ability to access the curriculum and demonstrate [their] skills in the classroom, adversely affecting [their] educational performance, consistent with the definition of OHI. [The Student] continues to qualify for speech-language services in the area of articulation."

k. It was checked "yes" that the Student continued to be a child with an exceptionality, continued to need special education and related services, and there were additions/modifications needed to special education and related services to enable the child to meet their IEP goals and participate in the general curriculum.

l. The report stated during the most recent re-evaluation, the Student was assessed in all areas related to the suspected exceptionality, which included a review of their previous evaluation, updated health information, an analysis of cognitive and academic achievement data, an assessment of social/emotional behavioral functioning through an FBA, observations, screening measures, and parent and teacher input. It was written, "Multiple sources of data—including standardized assessments, behavior observations, record review, and stakeholder input–were used to ensure a comprehensive understanding of [the Student's] current functioning and educational needs."

m. Upon completion of the recent evaluation, a team of qualified professionals and the Student's parents met to review the information and engage in collaborative decision-making.

n. The Student met the criteria for OHI and Speech Language Disabilities.

o. The Other Parent, the Advocate, a general education teacher, the Autism and Behavior Coach, the SLP, the Special Education Director, the Superintendent, Teacher 1, Teacher 2, the School Psychologist, the Family Resource Specialist, the School Counselor, and the Therapist signed the report on December 15, 2025. The Parent signed the report on January 13, 2026.

15. An undated Request for Evaluation/Re-evaluation Extension form indicated:

a. The team met on December 15, 2025 to review the Student's evaluation and draft IEP. The team completed the review of the evaluation and eligibility, but more time was needed to finalize the IEP. The IEP team, including both parents, agreed to extend the evaluation timeline to allow for completion of the IEP. The proposed new due date was January 14, 2026.

b. The Other Parent signed the form on December 16, 2025.

16. A PWN indicated a meeting was held on December 15, 2025 to review the Student's re-evaluation and determine if the Student was eligible for special education and related services. The PWN indicated the Student was eligible for special education services with a primary exceptionality of OHI and a secondary of a speech-language impairment.
    a. It stated the IEP team recommended the Student receive special education services and placement under OHI, based on a comprehensive review of evaluations, classroom performance, behavioral assessments, and reported diagnoses. The Student continued to qualify for speech-language services.
    b. It was written the Student qualified for special education under OHI because their health and behavioral challenges significantly impacted their ability to access the curriculum and demonstrate their skills in the classroom.
    c. Under rejected options, it was stated the IEP team considered a range of options, including providing supports and accommodations in the general education classroom without special education services, tiered interventions and behavior support through a Response to Intervention (RTI) model, counseling or mental health services alone, and a modified placement with reduced attendance and 1:1 support, which was currently in place. The IEP determined, after reviewing the data, those options were not sufficient to meet the Student's needs.
    d. The PWN stated multiple sources of information were used to determine eligibility and placement, including previous evaluations, classroom performance data (observations and teacher input), FBA results, behavior rating scales, medical records, and parent input.
    e. It was noted the IEP team strived to provide instruction alongside peers to the greatest extent possible, but the Student's behavioral, attention, and health challenges limited their ability to benefit from full-time general education placement. The IEP team also considered the potential harmful effects of not providing special education services. They determined providing services under OHI ensured the Student could receive specialized support in a safe and effective learning environment. A handwritten post-it note said, "[The Parent] did not return printed copies provided [at the] TLC visit."
    f. The Other Parent signed the PWN on December 15, 2025. The documentation of delivery showed the School Psychologist emailed the PWN to the Parent on December 17, 2025.
17. New relevant information from the Student's IEP, dated December 15, 2025, included:
    a. A post-it note which read, "[The Parent] did not return. Printed copies provided [at] [the] [Transitional Learning Classroom] visit."
    b. All IEP team members, other than the Parent, but including the Other Parent, signed the IEP on December 15, 2025.
    c. The Student would receive speech-language services outside the regular education classroom, and indirect services, from the SLP at the School for five minutes one day a week, every second week from December 15, 2025 through May 20, 2026.

d. The Student would receive special education services outside of the general education classroom, and the IEP determined the nature or severity of the Student's disability was such that placement in the regular education environment with supplementary aids and services could not be achieved satisfactorily. The IEP team did not anticipate any harmful effects from the minimal time the Student was pulled out of class.

18. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent and the IEP team on December 16, 2025 asking for times when the Parent was available to visit the Transitional Learning Classroom (TLC). The Parent replied two days later and asked what times were available after the holiday break so they could check with those who would be coming with them. The Special Education Director stated that to maintain student confidentiality, any visits with additional people had to be scheduled after 3:15 p.m. They indicated January 6 and 7, 2025 were available, and offered to find a time over the holiday break. On December 19, 2025 the Parent stated via email neither of those days worked and asked for any before school options. The Special Education Director reiterated a visit with guests had to occur after 3:15 p.m., and offered January 12, 2026 as an option. The Parent replied on January 4, 2026 and stated due to childcare and appointments, they were only available on January 5 and 6, 2026. The Special Education Director forwarded that information to the Principal and asked for their availability. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent on January 5, 2026 and offered to meet on January 6, 2026 at the Education Center, and the Parent agreed.
19. The Special Education Director emailed the IEP team, including the Parent, on December 16, 2025 and asked them to complete a spreadsheet with their meeting availability by December 18, 2025 to accommodate "as many schedules as possible so we can identify a date to continue reviewing [the Student's] IEP." They stated they emailed both parents the evaluation extension form.
20. The Family Resource Specialist emailed the Special Education Director on December 18, 2025 and stated the Parent had been attempting to send emails about scheduling the IEP meeting, but thought maybe the Special Education Director was not receiving them, because they encountered similar issues. The Family Resource Specialist included an email from the Parent on December 16, 2025 which read, "It looks like there are not going to be dates that work for all parties the first week of January [2026]. Can we open up scheduling to include the second week as well to increase the chance of everyone being available?"
    a. The Special Education Director replied that day and stated they had not received any email communications. They indicated the remaining available meeting dates were January 7, 2026, with three time slots, and January 8, 2026, with one time slot. The Special Education Director offered the Parent to call or text them with meeting availability if they were experiencing email difficulties. The Family Resource Specialist emailed and asked if dates from the second week of January could also be added. The Special Education Director said, "The dates listed during the first week of January [2026] reflect what we discussed at the meeting."

b. On December 18, 2025, the Parent forwarded the Special Education Director the e-mail they had sent to the Advocate, the Family Resource Specialist, and the Special Education Director two days earlier requesting more meeting dates.

21. A copy of an envelope from the LEA addressed to the Parent was postmarked December 18, 2025.
22. The Special Education Director emailed the IEP team, including the Parent, on December 18, 2025 and attached the NOM for the Student's next IEP meeting. They stated the notice was being mailed to both parents and sent electronically. They stated that given the need to finalize the Student's IEP and start services, the School was moving forward with a meeting on January 13, 2026. They stated unless neither parent could attend, the meeting would not be rescheduled. They acknowledged the meeting time might not be "perfect" for everyone, but the LEA had provided 11 possible date and time combinations in an effort to accommodate different schedules.
    a. A screenshot of an Excel spreadsheet showed IEP meeting date options with multiple times on January 6, 7, and 8, 2026. The School staff and the Other Parent chose "yes" or "no" for the dates, but there was nothing chosen by the Parent, the Advocate, the Therapist, or the Special Education Director.
    b. A screenshot of an Excel spreadsheet showed six meeting IEP date options, with January 13, 2026 at 9:30 a.m. chosen by all of the School staff.
23. A letter from a doctor of optometry, dated January 8, 2026, was addressed to the IEP team regarding the Student's IEP. The doctor wrote the letter to "provide professional insight regarding [the Student's] diagnosis of Convergence Insufficiency" and how it impacted the Student's learning environment. They indicated convergence insufficiency could act as a secondary "stressor" during sustained academic work, and a student could experience physical discomfort, increased distractability, and a lower threshold for frustration. They recommended the team consider using frequent visual breaks, modified visual materials, a slant board, and consider the Student's environment.
24. An undated NOM had a proposed meeting date of January 13, 2026 at the School, with virtual attendance also offered. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the Student's IEP and that during the meeting on December 15, 2025, the IEP team had agreed to reconvene during the first week of January to review the Student's IEP. Documentation of delivery showed three attempts were made to get the document to the Parent, including emailing the form and sending it by mail twice on December 18, 2025. It was handwritten on the PWN a fourth attempt was made when the Special Education Director hand delivered it to the Parent on January 13, 2026. The Parent signed the NOM on January 13, 2025. The Other Parent signed the NOM on December 18, 2025.
25. New relevant information from the Student's IEP, dated January 13, 2026, included:

a. In the Communication section, input from the Parent stated the Student received speech services through their IEP. There was a goal which stated, "Within 36 instructional weeks, [the Student] will produce the TH and R phonemes in a 90 second conversational speech sample with 70% accuracy when describing/naming objects/pictures as observed by the SLP over two data sessions." The baseline was the same as the goal. The evaluation procedure was data and SLP observation.

b. In the Social Emotional/Adaptive section, it was determined the Student had a need in this area which required special education or related services.

   i. The Student's needs were listed as: learning appropriate ways to seek adult attention and supports; needing support regulating during transitions, directives, and academic demands; needing functional communication skills to request help, breaks, or attention; and needing coping strategies to tolerate academic demands or non-preferred tasks and changes in routine. The Student's need would be met through accommodations, modifications, a behavior intervention plan, and goals.

   ii. Goal 1 - "Within 36 instructional weeks, when presented with a transition, direction, or non-preferred task, [the Student] will use an appropriate communication strategy (e.g., "I need help," "I need a break," "not yet," or pointing to a visual, moving to break space as its intended purpose), and begin the expected task or transition within 1 minute, with no aggression, property destruction, or refusal behaviors, in 4 out of 5 opportunities, as measured by staff data collection and observation." The Student's baseline was using "an appropriate communication strategy (e.g., "I need help," "I need a break," "not yet," or pointing to a visual) and begins the expected task or transition within 1 minute, with no aggression, property destruction, or refusal behaviors, in 0 out of 5 opportunities." The evaluation procedure was teacher observation and data tracking.

   iii. Goal 2 - "Within 36 instructional weeks, when presented with a non-preferred academic task, [the Student] will remain engaged for 5 consecutive minutes, without escape-maintained behaviors, in 80% of opportunities, as measured by duration data." The Student's baseline was, "When presented with a non-preferred academic task, [the Student] is able to remain engaged for 5 consecutive minutes, without escape." The evaluation procedure was teacher observation and data tracking.

c. A Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) included target behaviors of property destruction, aggression, and refusal. A hypothesis of the function of the target behavior stated, "According to ABC data and FBA results, [the Student's] behaviors—including aggression, property destruction, and refusal or avoidance of tasks—appear to serve two primary functions: gaining adult attention and avoiding or escaping non-preferred academic tasks or demands. This is supported by consistent patterns in the data showing that these behaviors often occur immediately before or during task presentation and are frequently followed by staff redirection, increased adult interaction, or removal of task demands."

i. The BIP stated the Student had deficits in functional communication, emotional regulation, coping skills, task engagement and work completion, problem-solving, social skills, impulse control, behavioral inhibition, and frustration tolerance. The BIP offered replacement behaviors, how the Student would be taught the replacement behavior, prevention and intervention strategies, classroom/environment strategies, crisis response plan/consequences, and a plan for home and school communication. Communication between home and school would occur at least weekly, and daily communication would occur if the targeted behaviors occurred or severe behaviors were observed. The Student's parents would be included in opportunities for conferences or virtual check-ins to problem-solve and update the behavior plan.

d. In the Accommodations/Modifications/Supplementary Aids section, the Student would receive the following accommodations in all settings, through the completion of the assignment, from January 13, 2026 through January 13, 2027:

i. "[The Student] will receive modified assignments that reduce the volume, complexity, or length of tasks while maintaining access to essential grade-level content. Modifications may include fewer items, simplified directions, alternative formats, or adjusted expectations for output. As academic tolerance improves, assignment demands may be gradually increased." This would be provided across core academic classes and assignments.

ii. "To support the development of academic tolerance, instructional tasks and assignments will be chunked into small, manageable segments with clear start–stop points. [The Student] will receive step-by-step directions and frequent check-ins to ensure understanding and reduce overwhelm. As tolerance increases, chunk size may be gradually expanded based on student readiness and team discretion." This would be implemented across core academic classes and tasks.

iii. A quiet and separate location for all state, LEA, and classroom assignments and tests.

iv. "[The Student] will not be required to show written work for math problems. [The Student] may provide answers verbally, through assistive technology, or by writing only the final answer, unless demonstration of the process is the specific skill being assessed." This would occur in all math assignments, quizzes, and classroom activities, except when the goal of the task was explicitly to assess the Student's problem-solving process.

v. "[The Student] will be offered the option of completing instructional tasks 1:1 with a teacher or paraeducator when classroom demands become overwhelming or when [the Student] requires reduced stimulation to remain engaged. The 1:1 will be used to provide SEL support, reteaching, guided practice, or task initiation support. As [the Student's] tolerance improves, the duration and frequency of 1:1 support will be gradually reduced to promote increased independence within the classroom environment." This would be implemented across core academic classes and tasks.

e. Anticipated services, taking place in an off-site building, included:
   i. Indirect speech-language services for five minutes one day a week, every fourth week, from August 25, 2026 through January 6, 202[7].
   ii. Non-school location speech services for ten minutes one day a week, every fourth week, from August 25, 2026 through January 6, 2026.
   iii. Non-school location special education services for sixty minutes, five days a week, every week from August 17, 2026 through January 6, 2026.
   iv. Non-school location special education services for sixty minutes, five days a week, every week from January 6, 2026 through May 20, 2026.
   v. Non-school location special education services for sixty minutes, four days a week, every week from January 6, 2026 through May 20, 2026.
   vi. Non-school location special education services for sixty minutes, three days a week, every week from January 1, 2026 through May 20, 2026.
   vii. Non-school location special education services for sixty minutes, two days a week, every week from January 1, 2026 through May 20, 2026.
   viii. Non-school location speech services for ten minutes one day a week, every fourth week, from January 6, 2026 through May 20, 2026.
   ix. Indirect speech services for five minutes one day a week, every fourth week, from January 6, 2026 through May 20, 2026.

f. The LRE section stated that for the remainder of the 2025-26 school year, and the start of the 2026-27 school year, the Student would attend the TLC at the Education Center (a non-school location). For the 2025-26 school year, the Student would receive:
   i. Special education services for sixty minutes, two days in the week of January 6-9, 2026.
   ii. Special education services for sixty minutes, three days in the week of January 12-16, 2026.
   iii. Special education services for sixty minutes, four days in the week of January 19-23, 2026.
   iv. Special education services for sixty minutes, five days per week, beginning January 26, 2026 through the end of the school year.
   v. Speech language services in an off-site non-public building for ten minutes once every fourth week.
   vi. Speech language services in a consult setting five minutes once every fourth week.

g. The IEP team first considered placement in the regular classroom with supplementary aids and services. The Student would receive services at an LEA offsite location. There were no parent signatures on the IEP.

26. Relevant information from an undated PWN included:
    a. On December 15, 2025, the IEP team met to review the Student's evaluation/assessment data, to determine whether the Student was eligible for special education and if services were needed by the Student, the Student's placement, and any additions or changes to services or placement needed to ensure the Student met their goals and was able to participate in the general education curriculum.
    b. The PWN noted the Student was eligible for special education services under the exceptionality of OHI and speech-language impairment. There was a change in placement and services which required parental consent. Comprehensive evaluation results indicated the Student qualified for special education under OHI and continued to qualify for speech/language services in articulation. The IEP team concluded regular education could not meet the Student's educational needs without the materials, methods, services, or other assistance through special education.
    c. The PWN listed the services described in the aforementioned IEP from January 13, 2026.
    d. The services were effective the date the form was signed and would remain in effect for the duration of the current IEP.
    e. The action was proposed because the Student qualified for special education under OHI because their health and behavioral challenges significantly impacted their ability to access the curriculum and demonstrate their skills in the classroom. The Student's diagnoses affected their sleep, alertness, attention, behavior, social skills, emotional regulation, and executive functioning. The Student continued to require speech-language services in the area of articulation.
    f. Under options considered and rejected, it was written the IEP team considered several options to support the Student, including general education with accommodations, tiered interventions through RTI, counseling or mental health services alone, and modified placement with reduced attendance and 1:1 support. These options were rejected because the Student's behavioral, attention, and health challenges significantly interfered with their ability to access instruction and demonstrate skills independently. Previous interventions were insufficient, and counseling alone would not provide the specialized academic and behavioral support the Student needed. Reduced, limited sessions were also not adequate for meaningful educational progress. Therefore, the team determined placement in special education with specialized supports and related services was necessary for the Student to access the curriculum safely and effectively.

g. Multiple sources of information were used to determine eligibility and placement, including previous evaluations, classroom performance data (observations and teacher input), FBA results, behavior rating scales, medical and health records, and parent input.

h. The IEP team considered factors relevant to the Student's placement, including the LRE. While the team strived to provide instruction alongside peers to the greatest extent possible, the Student's behavioral, attention, and health challenges limited their ability to benefit from full-time general education placement. The team also considered the potential harmful effects of not providing special education services, including decreased access to the curriculum, difficulty demonstrating skills, increased frustration, and further impacts on social, emotional, and behavioral functioning. Providing placement and services under OHI ensured the Student could receive specialized support in a safe and effective learning environment.

i. The documentation of delivery showed the School Psychologist hand- delivered the PWN to the Parent on December 15, 2015.

27. The Parent emailed the Advocate, the Family Resource Specialist, and the Special Education Director on January 13, 2026 with seven meeting date options. The Special Education Director replied they would send a calendar invite and NOM once they confirmed availability with School staff. The same day, the Special Education Direct shared a spreadsheet with the Parent's meeting dates with the School staff and asked for them to reply within two days.
28. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent and the IEP team on January 15, 2026 to notify them about an IEP meeting scheduled for January 27, 2026. They indicated a calendar invitation would be sent, and the NOM, the IEP amendment, and a PWN reflecting stay-put services for the Student were attached to the email. They stated the documents would be mailed and sent electronically to both parents.
29. A copy of an envelope from the LEA and addressed to the Parent was postmarked January 15, 2026.
30. An IEP amendment form, dated January 15, 2026, indicated the IEP team proposed to amend the Student's IEP to the following: special education services for 30 minutes, 2 times a week. It was stated the services were effective the date the form was signed. The Parent checked they agreed and signed the form on February 3, 2026. The Other Parent signed the form on January 19, 2026.
31. An undated PWN summarized what was included in the aforementioned amendment from January 15, 2025. It also indicated:

a. In the section explaining what action was proposed, it was written the Student qualified for special education services under OHI and "The IEP team has engaged in an extensive, ongoing problem-solving and evaluation process regarding [the Student's] educational needs, placement, and services. This process has included multiple team meetings dating back to August 2024, individual meetings with each parent, joint parent meetings, review of prior special education records, implementation of phased school reentry supports, collection of school based data, completion of a comprehensive reevaluation, and incorporation of outside agency input, including a[n] [FBA], resource room support and attendance through the evaluation process. … [The Parent] expressed opposition to the proposed TLC placement and indicated concerns regarding [the Student's] ability to attend school for extended periods, sharing that [the Student] can tolerate only 30-45 minutes of activity and that [they] would not be able to handle five days a week that was asked by staff in August at the start of the evaluation. [The Parent] also requested that special education services be provided in the home or even directly outside the school building. [The Other Parent] stated that [they] [do] not wish to remove the TLC option entirely but would like to continue working jointly as parents to determine next steps. Due to the lack of parental agreement, the [LEA] is implementing stay-put and will continue [the Student's] current services while the IEP is amended accordingly. Due to ongoing disagreement regarding placement, [the Student] will remain in [their] current placement and receive services under the amended IEP in accordance with stay-put provisions. The IEP team will reconvene on January 27, [2026] to continue collaborative discussions focused on [the Student's] individualized educational needs."

b. In the options considered and rejected section, it was written the IEP team considered a range of options to support the Student. A continuation of the Student's current placement without additional supports, a general education placement with existing supports alone, and homebound services (per the Parent's request) were rejected due to the Student's escalating verbal and physical aggression and documented behavior needs, and the IEP team did not believe homebound services were the Student's LRE because it was isolating and did not provide a FAPE. The IEP team considered limiting school attendance to shortened days, but determined reduced attendance alone did not adequately address the Student's educational and behavioral needs, and were in favor of the Student attending school for more than two days a week for thirty minutes.

c. Multiple sources of data were used to support these decisions, including previous evaluations, classroom performance data (observations and teacher input), FBA results, behavior rating scales, medical and health records, and parent input. The PWN noted the Parent had provided documentation from outside providers, but it was not based on observation or participation in the Student's educational setting, and providers had only received information from the Parent and no school input had been requested. The PWN noted multiple IEP and collaborative meetings had occurred over the past year-and-a-half to provide parents with meaningful opportunities for input. The parents participated in tours of the TLC, and follow-up meetings were held on January 13, 2026 to address questions and discuss placement considerations. The LEA acknowledged the Student's parents held differing viewpoints regarding their educational needs. While the LEA considered parent input, decisions continued to be guided by educational data, observations, and the Student's demonstrated needs within the school environment.

d. The other factors section stated, "The school district proposed that [the Student] receive special education services in the district's [TLC], an offsite program designed to provide structured behavioral and instructional supports. At this time, due to parent disagreement, the district is maintaining [the Student's] current placement and services under stay-put and proposes to amend the IEP to reflect the services [the Student] will receive under the current plan while collaborative discussions continue. The district proposed placement in the TLC program beginning with one hour per day and gradually increasing to five days per week, with the intent to reconvene the IEP team to review progress and consider additional increases in time based on [the Student's] response to intervention. This proposal was made in response to [the Student's] ongoing behavioral needs and the data collected through evaluations and observations in the educational setting."

e. The Other Parent signed the PWN on January 19, 2026. The documentation of delivery showed two attempts on January 15, 2026 to provide the Parent with the documentation by email and mail.

32. New relevant information from the Student's IEP, with an initiation date of January 19, 2026, included:

    a. The Student's anticipated services were to be provided at the School between January 19, 2026 and February 2, 2026:

        i. Special education services outside of the regular education classroom, provided by Teacher 2 for 30 minutes, 2 days a week, every week.

        ii. Speech-language services provided by the SLP outside of the regular education classroom for 5 minutes, 1 day a week, every 2nd week.

        iii. Indirect speech-language services provided by the SLP for 5 minutes, 1 day a week, every 2nd week.

33. A screenshot of a spreadsheet showed seven IEP meeting date options with multiple times on January 26 and 27, 2026, and February 3, 9, 10, 16, and 17, 2026. All parties, including the Parent chose "yes" or "no" for the dates they were available or unavailable.

34. An undated NOM proposed a meeting to be held on January 27, 2026 to discuss possible changes to the Student's IEP. The Other Parent signed the NOM on January 15, 2026. The documentation of delivery showed the Special Education Director made two attempts to provide the document to the Parent on December 18, 2025, by email and by mail.

35. An undated attendance list showed the Parent, Teacher 1, the Special Education Director, and the Advocate attended the IEP team meeting on January 27, 2026.

36. Relevant information from notes about the January 27, 2026 IEP meeting included:

a. The Special Education Director provided the Parent copies of the "stay put" amendment and PWN which had been signed by the Other Parent, as well as a copy of the NOM, and stated copies had been mailed, emailed, and electronically signed. They stated the Parent had not returned any signed documents, but since the School had one parent's signature, they were legally able to proceed with the changes.
b. The Special Education Director asked the Parents if they had collaborated on a plan, and they had not. The Autism and Behavior Coach reviewed the proposed plan drafted by the School since one had not been made by the Parents. The plan included the days the Student would attend, arrival instructions, transitions to the resource room, time with peers and staff, reading/math work time, lunch, and dismissal. Additional supports were read and goals discussed, along with prior proposals from the School, including attending the TLC.
c. The Parent shared a 9 a.m. start time for the Student would cause additional stress. The IEP team considered changing the time frame the Student attended to aid in the consistency of staff working with them. The team's goal was to have the Student attend school for longer periods of time. The Parent wanted to slowly start incorporating the changing of times.
d. The notes stated there had been no communication from the outside professionals to the School that the Parent stated they were receiving recommendations from. According to the notes, the School staff were met with "barriers" from the Parent any time something was proposed. It was noted the outside professionals the Parent worked with never observed the Student in the educational setting.
e. The IEP team created a plan that would "work for everyone," by adding an additional day and staggering the Student's time in 15-minute increments. The schedule was for February 2, 2026 through April 3, 2026. It was noted if the Student was doing well, the team would discuss changing the plan again. It was written if the Student showed four consecutive dysregulations within a week, the team would reconvene and review the Student's schedule, and use data to assist in that process.
f. The Parent asked what data would be used to track the Student's regulated and dysregulated states. The team would use the ABC tracker, review the frequency of dysregulation, duration, and what time of day it occurred. Also, the Autism and Behavior Coach and the Parent would communicate about the Student's day to avoid any confusion.
g. Listed IEP accommodations were: writing (the Student could use different writing utensils), presenting the Student with options of where to work, predictable preferred breaks, oral responses, and extended times.
h. The Parent would review their schedule and share their availability with the team for the week before or after spring break, by February 6, 2026.

37. Relevant information from a potential daily schedule for the Student, which was proposed at the January 27, 2026 IEP meeting, included:
    a. The schedule would be in effect from February 2-27, 2026, and the Student's time at school would increase. The Student would attend school on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 11:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. It was written this schedule would provide the Parent with a month to adjust appointments currently scheduled on Wednesdays.
    b. The Student would arrive at the School between 10:55-11:00 a.m., and staff would meet the Student at the main doors of the building. The Student would transition to the resource room and decide where they wanted to work.
    c. A note stated that during the first four days the Student attended school, they would spend from 11:10 -11:25 a.m. learning how to request a break and creating a break space, with the Student's input.
    d. From 11:25-11:50 a.m., the Student would be in the lunch group with their peers.
    e. From 11:50 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., the Student would choose what order they wanted to work in, and participate in a preferred activity if they completed their work system.
    f. At 12:00 p.m., staff would take the Student to the office and the Parent would take the Student to their car.
    g. Additional notes stated the Student would have a dedicated break space in the testing room/calming corner, and noted this time of day was least disruptive to the resource room and had the fewest students. It was written, "This plan consists of things with the concerns [the Parent] mentioned at the last meeting, we have addressed those in this plan and the plan is applicable for the school setting. We also do not have a chance to get [the Student] to a point of practice in 30 minutes, 2 days a week. [The Parent] may say that [they] [want] an alternative location; however, [the Parent] also has not wanted [the Student] in a different location due to familiarity; [the Student] is most familiar with the [resource room] this year and last. Things [the Parent] requested - [c]oming outside to get [the Student], assisting with arrival, pairing with peers, teaching [the Student] how to take a break, will continue … ."
38. New relevant information from the Student's IEP, dated February 3, 2026, included:
    a. Accommodations/Modifications/Supplementary Aids offered in the resource room setting from February 2, 2026 through December 14, 2026:
        i. The Student would be offered a choice of designated work locations within the resource room to support engagement and regulation. This would be offered at the start of instructional tasks and following transitions, through the completion of the instructional task.
        ii. When the Student demonstrated signs of dysregulation, they would be offered access to their designated break space and pre-identified break options. This would be offered up to three times per instructional period until regulation was regained.

iii. The Student could take a structured break to support task completion. This would be offered upon completion of instructional tasks, and breaks would not exceed seven minutes per occurrence.

iv. The Student would be prompted to notify staff when they were ready to begin or resume a task. Instructional tasks would begin once the Student indicated readiness following the prompt. This would be offered when the Student demonstrated signs of dysregulation, until regulation was regained.

v. The Student would not be required to show written work when the instructional objective was mastery of content rather than process. This would be offered for math assignments through the completion of the assignment.

vi. The Student could provide oral responses in lieu of written responses to demonstrate understanding. This would be for instructional tasks through the completion of the task.

vii. The Student would participate in a brief check-in with a staff member to identify current feelings/emotional state to support regulation. This would be offered at least once at the start of the Student's day and at least once more during their 60 minutes of attendance. It would last through the completion of the periodic check-in.

b. The IEP team proposed to amend the Student's special education minutes through a gradual increase in length of day and frequency of attendance, with the intent of supporting the Student's access to instruction and social emotional needs. Anticipated services included:

39. An IEP amendment form, dated February 2, 2026, described the proposed changes to the Student's services and accommodations, which were detailed in the aforementioned IEP from February 3, 2026 and discussed in the January 27, 2026 meeting. The Other Parent signed the form on February 3, 2026.

40. An undated PWN summarized the changes in the aforementioned February 3, 2026 IEP. The PWN stated the services were discussed by the IEP team and proposed by the LEA following team discussion, including parent input, during the January 27, 2026 meeting and would be effective upon signature of the amendment.

    a. The PWN stated the LEA refused the assignment of a 1:1 paraprofessional and the addition of a declarative language accommodation, which were requested by the Parent. The LEA denied the request for a 1:1 paraprofessional because it was not educationally necessary since the Student demonstrated success accessing instruction and regulating behavior without continuous adult proximity. The team was concerned a 1:1 assignment could increase dependency. It was written declarative language was an instructional strategy utilized by the staff, and not an accommodation or service requiring documentation in the IEP. The team proposed the Student attend school Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday through February to allow time for medical appointments to be adjusted. The Parent declined this proposal, stating changing the number of days attended while increasing the length of day would be too significant a change for the Student. The team declined to implement this option and proceeded with a gradual daily increase model.

    b. The LEA proposed a gradual increase in the Student's school day and weekly attendance to support the Student's access to consistent daily instruction to build stamina and predictability, minimize dysregulation with abrupt schedule changes (as indicated by the Parent), and align supports with the Student's demonstrated ability to attend and engage. The Student previously demonstrated success coming into the building at 11:00 a.m. with incremental increases in attendance and duration, and the team determined a phased approach best balanced the Student's needs with continuity of instruction. The Parent had not been in favor of bringing the Student to school more often.

c. The Other Parent signed the PWN on February 3, 2026. The documentation of delivery indicated the Special Education Director had mailed and emailed the form to the Parent on February 3, 2026.

41. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent and the IEP team on February 3, 2026 and stated the PWN and IEP amendment related to the January 27, 2026 meeting were attached. They indicated the documents would be sent electronically for review and to be signed, in addition to mailing paper copies. The Special Education Director reminded the Parent they needed their meeting availability by the end of February 6, 2026 to schedule a meeting during either March 9-11, 2026 or March 23-27, 2026. They stated the School had not received the PWN and IEP amendment paperwork from the Parent, which was previously sent electronically, by email, in the mail, and in person from the January 13, 2026 meeting regarding the "stay put" services. They stated the changes were made to the IEP because the School received signed documents from the Other Parent.
    a. The Parent replied on February 6, 2026 and stated they and their advocates and providers were available to meet on March 23, 2026. The Parent also included meeting options on March 30 and 31, 2026. The Special Education Director replied on February 9, 2026 and stated they would connect with the IEP team by the end of the week to confirm the final meeting date. They also suggested more meeting dates. The Parent responded that day and stated meeting dates should align with the Student's schedule, and then with the full IEP team, which they stated included themself as the legal education decision maker, the Student's providers, and the Parent's IEP advocates. The Parent asked to pause any further planning on the newly added dates. The Special Education Director replied the next day and stated both parents were recognized as legal education decision makers, and the School would work with both parents. They said, "When scheduling IEP meetings, the school prioritizes the availability of required IEP team members and the parents. We also make every reasonable effort to consider the schedules of additional participants, including outside providers or advocates, when that information is shared with us. … [T]he district is responsible for ensuring meetings occur within appropriate timelines, and we may proceed with a properly noticed meeting when required team members are available, even if not all optional participants are able to attend. In the event that neither parent were able to attend a meeting, we would certainly communicate about rescheduling." 42. A copy of the exterior of an envelope from the LEA and addressed to the Parent was postmarked February 3, 2026.
43. The Special Education Director emailed the Parent and the IEP team on February 12, 2026 and stated the next IEP meeting was scheduled for March 23, 2026. They indicated the NOM was attached to email and would be sent electronically and by mail.
44. An undated NOM proposed a meeting for March 23, 2026 to discuss possible changes to the Student's IEP. The Other Parent signed the NOM on February 12, 2026. The documentation of delivery showed the Special Education Director emailed and mailed the NOM to the Parent on February 12, 2026.

45. An undated PWN stated the LEA declined the Parent's request to hold a separate meeting with the School team. The explanation stated the LEA was required to provide timely notice of meetings and a meaningful opportunity to participate to each parent, so the LEA would not schedule a meeting with only one parent while excluding the other. It stated if both parents received proper notice, the IEP team could proceed with meeting even if only one parent could attend. Following the meeting, the LEA would ensure the parent who did not attend received relevant information and documentation. The LEA considered and selected the option to schedule a meeting with the School team and provide notice to both parents and offer multiple participation options (in-person, phone, and virtual). Documentation of delivery showed the PWN was hand delivered to the Parent on February 17, 2026 by the Principal.
46. Service Logs for fiscal year 2025 detailed the Student received speech-language services from the SLP from 1:00-1:15 p.m. Each session contained a progress code of 3, which meant the Student "maintained performance." The notes contained the following relevant information:

    l. April 24, 2025 - "TH 80%. Initial R words with 80%."
    m. April 29, 2025 - This session was five minutes. "60% initial R words."
    n. May 1, 2025 - "Initial R words with 70%."
    o. May 8, 2025 - This session was three minutes. "TH 0. R 0."
    p. May 13, 2025 - "R initial words with 80%[,] medial 70%[,] final 50%[,] blends 80%. TH sentences with 70%."
47. An undated Daily Log contained handwritten notes. It described two goals for the Student: to produce TH in all positions of words in a sentence, and to produce R in the initial position of words. The log contained information about the Student's speech-language services from August 26, 2025 through February 23, 2026.

48. Behavior Logs for the Student from February 19, 2025 through February 18, 2026 described the Student's behaviors, classroom activities, levels of engagement, and moments of regulation and dysregulation.
49. The Student's grade two reading assessment from spring 2025 indicated the Student scored an 18/19 on foundational reading skills, 5/8 on reading comprehension of literary text, and 7/8 on reading comprehension of informational text. The Student earned full credit for reading common high-frequency words, for knowing the phoneme-grapheme correspondences for common consonant digraphs, and for knowing and using text features to locate key facts or information in a text efficiently. The Student's grade card for grade two showed they had an "A" in physical education in the first quarter, an "A" in math during the second quarter, an "A" in physical education, a "C" in math, and an "A+" reading/writing, art, and music for the third quarter, and an "A+" in art and music during the fourth quarter.
